A. D. Vansickle of Warren, Minn., is the champion grower of oats in the world. Last December at Omaha he won the prize for the best peck of oats in the international grain exposition at that place. During the state fair week he was presented with a beautiful gold and silver trophy. The presentation was made by Isaac N. Stevens of Denver, representing Governor Shafroth and the state of Colorado. The ceremony was attended by state officials, fair managers the faculty of the college of agriculture, and a great number of farmers.

Two years ago while in Europe, H. L. Melgaard of Argyle found an especially good quality of oats in Sweden, of which he brought home a small quantity, which he asked Mr. Vansickle to plant. This he did with proper care, with result that Marshall county is being advertised extensively as the best in the world for growing oats.

A Reliable Medicine—Not a Narcotic

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says Foley's Honey and Tar saved her little boy's life. She writes: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house."—Sold by all Druggists.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

BY F. E. TRIGG

CENTRAL POINT, ROGUE RIVER VALLEY, OREGON

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

A heavy diet of corn is all right for laying fat on the ribs of a feeding steer, but it is badly used when thus fed to the dairy cow or laying hen.

The hog raiser who lives in a section where alfalfa does well is certainly in clover—more correctly, alfalfa—at least his pigs are. Allowed the range of an alfalfa meadow and fed in addition from a fourth to a half ration of grain, the pigs will make a more rapid growth per day than with almost any other ration which has been tried.

Three farmers residing in a dairy section not far away were the other day fined $25 apiece and costs for taking to the nearby cheese factory milk that had been too near the pump—that is, it contained less than 3 per cent of butter fat. Under the pure food laws effective in the state the thinning of milk by the addition of water is classed as an adulteration of a food product.

According to a late ruling of the Oklahoma state board of health, no more bad eggs can be sold to consumers after Sept. 1. Merchants have been notified that after that date they must buy on the "loss off basis," which means, in other words, that the producer, the keeper of the hens, must suffer the loss incident in the marketing of bad eggs and not the consumer, as has been the case in the past. This ruling is equitable and fair, strikes at the real root of the bad egg business and ought to be adopted in other states.

Burbank, the California wizard, has figured out that if every farmer would add one grain to each head of barley, oats and wheat the production of barley would be increased by over 1,000,000 bushels, the oat output more than 20,000,000 bushels, while the yield of wheat would be increased by 15,000,000 bushels, and that if potatoes were given such care that one tuber could be added to each hill the crop the country over would be increased by 21,000,000 bushels. There is certainly something in these figures to inspire the tiller of the soil to better effort.

Additional evidence of the value of skimmilk as a feeding for young pigs has been forthcoming in some feeding experiments conducted by the Nebraska experiment station. It was found that of three lots of pigs fed respectively skimmilk, milk containing 3.5 per cent butter fat and milk containing 5 per cent of butter fat the first lot made an average gain of thirty-six pounds in thirty days; the second twenty-eight pounds in thirty days, and the third lot, which was fed the richest milk, made a gain of but twenty-five pounds in the same length of time. Covering longer periods of feeding the results showed an even greater advantage in favor of the skimmilk.

The directors of the animal husbandry department of the Pennsylvania Agricultural college have been conducting some valuable hog feeding tests, the rations used being wheat middlings and corn chop and tankage. While the pigs fed on middlings alone made better use of their feed at first than the lot given corn chop and tankage, in the latter part of the feeding period the reverse was true. The pigs fed middlings were not only not so active and healthy as the others, but they did not eat their rations with the same relish that those did which were fed the corn-tankage diet. Those fed middlings made a total gain in the feeding period of 337.5 pounds, while those fed tankage and corn made a total gain of 448.5 pounds. The latter ration also had somewhat the advantage in the matter of cost per pound of gain, and the hogs fed this ration dressed out a better percentage.

The kind of road building that the country as a whole is most in need of is not the improving of highways connecting large centers of population and running across states, over which auto owners can speed their cars at a thirty mile an hour clip, leaving the highway strewn with little pigs and chickens, but it is such improvement of main roads leading into myriad towns everywhere as will make it possible for tillers of the soil to haul big loads of produce to market at a minimum of time and expense. Well and good if the improvement of these roads happens to suit the convenience of the owners of automobiles, but that their desires should be considered of paramount importance in outlining a campaign of highway improvement involves an utter misconception of the chief reasons which make the gospel of good roads an insistent and vital consideration at the present time.

A Minnesota farmer who bought a registered Guernsey bull twelve years ago considers that the use of this sire has added $20 to the selling value of every cow he has disposed of since. The other day he was offered $500 for five of his best cows. This man has demonstrated to his own satisfaction that pure blooded stock pays.

A tortoise brought to the London zoo some ten years ago from the island of Mauritius, in the Indian ocean, is said to be the oldest living creature whose age is known with any definiteness. This tortoise, which weighs a quarter of a ton, has lived at least 160 years, according to authentic records which have been kept. Elephants, whales, reptiles and some species of birds are said to occasionally reach an age of 100 years, but rarely do they exceed it.

Experiments which have lately been conducted along the line of a cultivation of the wild blueberry show that it seems to be an exception to the run of native fruits and berries in that it does not do well at all on rich, fat soils which are well balanced in point of fertilizing elements and which are also well drained. On the contrary, it has been found that the blueberry thrives splendidly on low, sour soils or those that are so thin and sandy that they will not produce any other crop.

Three or four weeks ago there was found on a farm near Columbia, Mo., a freak corn tassel bearing eighteen branches. Investigation by an experiment station expert showed that in place of normal pollen sacks there were leaves on this specimen, the pollen sacks being on the inside of the leaves at the base, so that the pollen could not fall on to the corn silks and fertilize them. This corn freak is viewed as a great rarity, for another like it could hardly be found by searching through myriad fields.

What is said to be the largest farm in the world belongs to a Mexican named Don Luis Terrazas at Chihuahua. It comprises 8,000,000 acres, and a passenger train is more than half a day in crossing it. The proprietor of this ranch is a little uncertain as to the number of cattle he owns, but he guesses it is more than 1,000,000 head, while he owns 100,000 horses, and his sheep number 700,000 head. Every year about 250,000 calves are marked with his brand. At his own packing houses, near Chihuahua City, Mexico, there are slaughtered annually 250,000 cattle, about as many sheep and a great many more hogs. On his ranch live 40,000 people, mostly helpers, while it requires a thousand cowboys to look after his cattle.

A pamphlet recently issued by the forest service recognizes three types of forest fires—namely, surface, ground and crown fires. The surface fire burns the surface layer of leaves, dry grass, brush and small trees; the ground fire burns the deep accumulation of vegetable mold, while the crown fires accompany the surface fires and burn the crowns of the trees. The surface fires, which are most common, kill seedlings and young trees, but often do not destroy the larger trees. Ground fires occur only when the leaf mold has become very dry, are hard to extinguish—often burning all winter under the snow—and usually destroy all trees, even killing the tissues of the roots. Crown fires usually occur only when surface fires are accompanied by a high wind.

For the benefit of those who are taking up the matter of feeding special hog rations for the first time a paragraph about tankage may be of interest. This animal product, which, like oilmeal, gluten meal and blood, is very rich in protein, is manufactured from the waste products of the big packing houses, such as meat trimmings, fat scraps, etc. These are put in a tank and subjected to excessive heat for several hours, when the grease is removed and the solid remnants dried and ground and packed in sacks. Some tankage, made from the contents of the stomachs and bowels of slaughtered animals, is fit only for fertilizer and is usually labeled as such. The use of tankage with corn as a ration for hogs has given excellent results in feeding tests. Being a concentrated food, as it is, it should not constitute more than from 10 to 20 per cent of the ration.

An interesting case has been related in newspapers during the past few weeks of a country preacher down in New York who was led to take a deep interest in agriculture through the ambition of his son. It seems that they together made a thorough study of scientific farming, with the result that before long the dominie was far in advance of the other farmers in the community in both the theory and practice of agriculture. He made himself an expert in the matter of soil tillage, orcharding and animal husbandry, with the result that in the trips he made over his parish to minister to the spiritual needs of his people he was also able to give advice and suggestions which enabled them to increase their material resources and swell their bank accounts. He was thus able to minister in a twofold capacity, and there is little question that each type of service was the more effective because it was correlated with the other. This illustration points out in very simple fashion the chief way in which churches and ministers can increase their usefulness to humanity by heartfelt interest and active participation in the everyday life problems and occupations of those whom they would reach and help.

SHYSTER LAND PROMOTERS.

If there is any type of graft or skin game that is a close second to the promotion of "salted" mining enterprises from the standpoint of sheer fraud and skulduggery, it is that followed by certain real estate promoters, chiefly in the south and west, who buy large tracts of very spotted or worthless land, plat it and issue glowing advertising matter, publishing therewith the stolen records of other nearby bona fide fruit, vegetable or grain growing sections to serve as a bait for the always greedy and usually gullible public. In some cases the fraud perpetrated consists of selling at long prices land where there is so little soil above bedrock or hardpan that trees will hardly survive beyond the time when they are turned over to buyers at "bearing age." In other cases the soil may be all that could be desired, but the tract is located in an arid or semi-arid section where, though grafter promoters who make guarantee of perpetual water rights have seemed to build irrigation systems, no water will ever be running when water is most needed. In other cases the land sold "unsight and unseen" may consist largely of impassable bogs, which have been in the past and will likely remain the stamping grounds of alligators, mosquitoes and malaria. All of these promotion schemes and others which might be listed are fraudulent and rotten, and the grafters who are backing them are just as guilty and even more detestable than the highway robber, who, whatever else can be said of him, is not a wolf in sheep's clothing and doesn't pose as a public benefactor. The south and west as sections possess marvelous and varied resources, can stand on their own worth and merits and have a wonderful future, but they don't need, neither are they helped, but rather given a black eye, by the lurid and dishonest advertising of the tribe of sharks above referred to. People in both sections should unite in locating, branding and putting out of commission those chaps who are in the land business solely to fill their pockets and who are in every way a detriment to legitimate growth and wholesome development.

FERTILIZING ORCHARDS.

Last fall while the writer was making a tour of inspection of the Hood river valley he noticed that one of the oldest as well as the most productive Spitzenberg ranches in the valley was growing a fine crop of clover beneath the spreading branches of the trees. This man had the right idea—namely, that crops of apples take fertility from the soil, as do vegetable or small grain crops, and that to offset this depletion the land must be replenished with manures, commercial fertilizers or some of the legumes. The appearance of several orchards in the same valley which were heavily laden with fruit and some of it none too large—doubtless also aggravated by an unusually dry season—emphasized the importance of the above fact pretty forcibly. Apple and other fruit trees, like men and other living things, must have something to eat if they are going to do business. In sections somewhat farther south than the district mentioned the legume treatment may be given an orchard by the use of cowpeas as a fall and winter cover crop, plowing them under in the spring as green manure. If the land to be sown to the peas has not grown them before it is worth while inoculating the seed with nitrogen culture, which will be sent out in limited quantities by the department of agriculture at Washington with directions for its proper use. The peas should be sown during October, depending a bit upon the time of the rains, and will keep alive and make considerable growth during the mild winter months. Most of these highly cultivated orchard soils need both fertilizer and humus, and the growing of cowpeas will furnish both elements in a very satisfactory way.

A COW AND AN AUTOMOBILE.

Unless he is a fool and mortgages his homestead to do it neither Wall street speculators nor bankers need lose much sleep over the farmer who invests in a moderate priced automobile for his own and his family's enjoyment. Many an auto is bought as a result of the exercise of good sense and judgment, as was the case of a Mississippi valley farmer whom the papers told about the other day. Six years ago he bought four head of Holstein cattle, paying $500 for them. As might have been expected, his conservative, shortsighted neighbors thought he was a fool, but such did not prove to be the case. Since the time of the purchase the milk and offspring of one cow have netted the owner $1,260, and the other day he had a picture taken of himself in the auto and beside it the cow that had made the purchase of the machine possible. The item went on to state that his herd of full blooded Holsteins now comprises forty head, one cow having a record of eighty-seven and a half pounds of milk a day and several giving from seventy-five to eighty pounds daily. If this man cashed up he could likely buy an auto for each of his kids and have money in the bank.

A QUEER UNIVERSITY.

Cairo Has the World's Oldest Educational Institution.

"When we think of Harvard or Yale, the former dating from 1638 and the latter from 1701, we think of them as old universities," says a writer in the American Educational Review; "but when we pass to the other side of the world we discover that even the oldest American universities are in reality very young institutions.

"The oldest educational institution in the world is the University of El Ashar, Cairo, founded in the year 988 by the great Saladin. It is the central seat of learning for the whole Mohammedan world, as well as a fountain of spiritual life. It occupies an ancient mosque in the Arab quarter of Cairo, surrounded by a confusing maze of narrow streets where the population is made up of representatives of every race that follows the prophet.

"The old mosque covers several acres and consists of a series of courts surrounded by long cloisters with low roofs supported by forests of columns. The floors of red tiles are covered daily by a multitude of men and boys, squatting in semicircles around their teachers, who sit with their backs to the columns lecturing in monotones.

"The chancellor of the university is always a descendant of the prophet and is usually a man of ability and learning. He occupies apartments in El Ashar and is not only the supreme educational but the ecclesiastical head of the church of Egypt.

"There is no organization similar to that in modern universities. Any reputable man who desires to teach can obtain the privilege by application and is assigned a column where he may sit and impart the truth as he thinks proper. His fame or ability will attract more or less students and disciples, who pay him fees according to their means."

THIS is the shoe man who found
In his hand the bill that went round
'Mong all the people who advertised.
He hired a man whose work he prized
And paid him with the jeweler's bill
From the hardware merchant's till,
Where it went when the clothing dealer bought
From the furniture man, which the clothier got
When to him the dry goods merchant went
With the bill the butcher wisely spent
When his friend the grocer had settlement made
With cash the honest workman paid.

MORAL.

The little story we've told is meant
To show you clearly that money spent
At home will help us all and then
Return to the owner to spend again—
That is, if dealers are also wise
And do not fail to advertise.

WELL KNOWN ACROSS WATERS

Johan Alfred Enader, Swedish-American Editor, Who Died in Chicago Recently—Norwegian Novelist Criticises Present Day Methods of His Countrymen—Biggest Robbery in City's History Occurs at Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

Johan Alfred Enader, the nestor of the Swedish-American press in the United States, for forty-one years editor of Hemlandet, the oldest Swedish newspaper in America, died on Sept. 10 in his home in Chicago, aged sixty-eight years. He was equally well known on both sides of the Atlantic, having published a history of the United States in Swedish and having for years been a correspondent for Swedish papers from America. He had been in poor health for several years and had been unable to visit his office much during the last three years. He is survived by a widow and three children. Mr. Enader was born in Westergotland, Sweden, May 22, 1842. He was a graduate of Venersborg college in 1868 and came to the United States in the following year. He made his home in Chicago, where from 1869 he has been engaged in newspaper work, giving much time to service in Augustana college as a professor of the Swedish language and literature. He served as a member of the Illinois board of education from 1879 to 1883 and was sent to Denmark to represent the United States as minister plenipotentiary in 1889. He was a member of several Swedish societies and clubs and was an honorary member of the Polish National alliance, vice president of the Germanic congress in 1904 and 1905. He was the author of a history of the United States in Swedish and various other works in the Swedish language. His books have been widely read both in America and Sweden and his editorials in the Hemlandet pleased thousands of readers for many years.

The largest Nobel fest yet on record will be held in Stockholm this fall, when about 140,700 crowns will be distributed as prizes for literature, art and science. All Nobel prize winners have been invited to attend and it is expected that nearly all of them will be able to be present. It is heralded as a great event in Stockholm and it will be watched with interest all over the civilized world.

The largest hospital in Stockholm will be Sabbatsberg, which is now almost completed. The old hospital has been rebuilt and remodeled entirely and the annex comprises a large building which can accomodate at least 300 patients. It is built and arranged on modern lines and the operation room in this hospital, when completed, will be one of the most complete and modern in Europe.

A prominent Stockholm banker, G. A. Kyhlberger, and Miss Inga Taube, daughter of Count Taube, were married in Berlin, Germany, the other day. Both are prominently known in Stockholm, the groom being one of the leading bankers of the city and the bride being a member of one of the most aristocratic families of Sweden.

King Gustaf, accompanied by his ministers and members of the diplomatic corps, attended a "Te Deum" and mass in the St. Eugenia Catholic church in Stockholm the other day, which was held in honor of the eightieth birthday of Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. There was a large attendance and every seat in the edifice was taken.

Maria Charlotta Kihlstrom, a much respected woman and very wealthy, died in Stockholm the other day, aged ninety-six years. She was at the time of her death one of the oldest women in the city. Her life has been notable throughout on account of her great sacrifices for the poor of the city.

The only berry crop this year that amounts to anything is the lingon crop, which turns out rather good, but of course it is not nearly as good as last year. Thousands of crates are being exported to England and America, where they find a ready market.

Thirty thousand baskets of fruit were imported to Stockholm from Lybeck, Germany, some time ago. This has been a poor fruit year in Sweden and fruit dealers are compelled to import fruit in large quantities.

The Skansen observatory is about completed. The preparatory observations that have been made prove that the instruments are, optically speaking, of the finest quality.

NORWAY.

The following interesting item appeared in a Norwegian paper recently under the caption "What a Norwegian Has to Say About Norway." It was written by the Norwegian novelist, Knut Hamsum, who says: "The Norwegian 'bonde' (farmer) was at one time a much more proud and independent person than he is today. We have converted the country into a meaningless Switzerland and made it one vast hotel for foreigners. This may prove to be a most delightful method of becoming actually dependent and eventually develop us into a meaningless people. Our old poverty was perhaps far better for us than to become a nation of waiters and bidding for tips. We are soon turning into a set of beggarfolk with the cap off and the other hand reaching out for a tip." Mr. Hamsum's words are a trifle strong, but may be productive of arousing the Norwegian people to believe in the theory of encouraging their people to remain at home and encourage home industry rather than inviting so many foreigners to their shores. The same holds true of Sweden even in a greater degree.

Norway's oldest man at present is Abel Lind Eliasson, born at Arvik, in Vaagen, in 1796. He is therefore 114 years old, but is still so spry that he is able to visit all his neighbors and walk rather a long distance without being visibly fatigued. He has always been an exceedingly healthy man, has a strong constitution and has used tobacco for almost 100 years. He is by all odds the most wonderful man in Norway at present.

To steal a whole house may be regarded as the height of nerve and had it happened in Russia or America it would not have been so surprising, but this really happened in Christiania. The other day when a Christiania citizen returned from an extensive journey up country, where he had been attending to some business, he learned to his amazement that some one had hauled the house away. What has become of it is a mystery and no one has been able to trace the thief or the house.

There has been such a great crop failure in Vastlandet that the storthing may have to make an appropriation to help out the people in that section of the country or they will not be able to get through the winter. Nearly all the farmers have sold their stock and the few cattle that they intended to keep over fall and winter they will have to butcher for home use. It has been an unusually dry season and the hay crop has been a failure.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson's famous villa, "Aulestad," is for sale. Madame Caroline Bjornson has ordered her attorney to sell it as soon as a suitable purchaser be found. Some time ago it was planned by Mrs. Bjornson to turn the old estate into a Bjornson museum, but she has abandoned this plan.

Up to Aug. 15 the Bergen exposition had been visited by 300,000 persons and, judging from this attendance, it will be a record breaker. Enough money has been taken in to defray all expenses and from a financial viewpoint the exposition has been a success.

DENMARK.

Grosshandler Breit's office was broken into in Copenhagen the other night and the burglars succeeded in securing cash to the amount of 400 crowns and checks to the amount of not less than 12,000 crowns. It is the biggest robbery that has taken place in Copenhagen for many a day, indeed some say that it is the biggest burglary in the history of the city. The same night the theft was committed, a notorious criminal by the name of Michael Carlson made his escape from the Fredriksberg hospital, from which place another criminal, H. V. Rasmussen, had succeeded in escaping the night before. It is believed that these two criminals, who have operated together in former years, committed the robbery. The notorious pair attempted to leave the city the other day in company with a couple of women, but were arrested. They, however, maintain that they had absolutely nothing to do with the big robbery, but it is significant that they had 300 crowns with them.

A trip around Europe in a canoe is a rather hazardous feat, but that is what a twenty-eight-year-old Swede has started out to do. He arrived in Nykjobing harbor the other day, having made the ocean voyage in his canoe from Gothenburg. His canoe is a two masted affair. It is his intention to journey through Emperor William canal, the North sea, cross the English channel and make his way to the Mediterranean and the Black sea. When he reaches Russian shores he is going to make his way back through Russian rivers and intends to stick to water all the time. He thinks that he can make this unique trip in a year. His friends predict that he will either get drowned or that he will be glad to make the return journey on foot.

Fire broke out in the city hall in Copenhagen one day during the latter part of last month and for a time it seemed as though the building was doomed. The fire started in an elevator shaft and spread to the second and third stories with amazing rapidity. Had it not been for the prompt way in which the fire department responded the imposing structure would have been destroyed.

Rudolf Tegner's monument over Finsen, entitled "Towards the Light," was unveiled Aug. 23 in the presence of a large gathering of people. Among those present were King Fredrik, his ministers and members of the diplomatic corps. The monument has been erected in front of the national hospital in Copenhagen.

According to a recent dispatch from Reijkjavik, Iceland, it is feared that the volcano Hekla will soon become active again. The snow on top of the mountain has started to melt and places which for years have been concealed by snow are now bare.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

GRAY TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Vacancy on Democratic State Ticket Filled by Selection of Minneapolis Newspaper Man.

James Gray, former mayor of Minneapolis, has been chosen by the Democratic state central committee as the party candidate for governor.

The movement was practically unanimous from the moment his name was mentioned. There was but one objecting voice and that was raised by Major J. M. Bowler of Minneapolis.

It was evident from the moment D. W. Lawler arose and, on behalf of the Democracy of Ramsey county, seconded the nomination, that Gray would have no serious opposition.

John Lind, the man nominated by the state convention, which met in Minneapolis July 28, was present. It was said before the meeting was called to order that Mr. Lind was present for the purpose of opposing any anti-Gray trend which might make itself manifest. There was no occasion for Mr. Lind to appear in that role.

Frank A. Day was re-elected chairman of the state central committee. He accepted.

James Gray is forty-eight years old. He was born in Scotland in 1862 and came to America with his parents when four years old, the Grays settling in Iowa, then in Wisconsin. In 1880 Mr. Gray came to Minnesota. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1885 and at once entered newspaper work.

Mr. Gray worked on the Minneapolis Tribune and the old Minneapolis Times and it was while city editor of the latter paper in 1898 that he was nominated for mayor of Minneapolis by the Democrats. He was elected, but was defeated at the next election by Dr. A. A. Ames, Republican candidate.

Leaving office Mr. Gray resumed newspaper work, first on the Minneapolis Tribune, then on the Journal.

THREE MEN ARE DROWNED

Launch Capsizes in Storm on Lake Superior.

Three of a pleasure party of five Two Harbors men were drowned when in a heavy sea, kicked up by a terrific wind along the north shore, a gasoline launch and a rowboat were capsized near Encampment island. The drowned were:

Roy Sullivan, twenty, John Strand, about forty-five, and Ingvald Amundsen, eighteen. They went down with the launch, and Robert Johnson, thirty-five years old, was thrown into the water when the launch's rowboat sank, but managed to swim ashore, where Edwin Strand, fifteen years old, the fifth member of the party, had been left a few minutes before and was waiting for Johnson to take him to the launch.

CAR SHORTAGE IS FEARED

Unusual Shipments From Duluth Cause Traffic Men Anxiety.

Steam coal is this year being shipped from Duluth to points in Iowa and South Dakota which usually are supplied direct from the Illinois coal mines. This condition is the result of the strike of the coal miners in Illinois.

The Duluth roads also are carrying coals to Newcastle, in that they are delivering hay to points in which hay in normal seasons is a product for shipment. The same is true of oats and some other commodities.

Unexpected calls for rolling stock of this nature at this busy time of year has caused railroad men and shippers to fear that a shortage of cars may result.

Valuable Furs Stolen.

Six thousand dollars' worth of fine furs were missing when the manager and employes of R. W. Munzer & Sons, wholesale furriers of Minneapolis, opened the door of their quarters on the second floor of the new Reid building. Subsequently $2,500 worth of the missing goods were found on the third floor. There is no clue to the robbers.

Housebreaker Fatally Wounded.

Mike Kankras, residing at the Leetonia mining location, near Hibbing, shot and fatally wounded a man whom he detected trying to break into his house. The name of the victim has not been ascertained, but it is said that he has been employed at the Morton mine recently.

Little Girl Burned to Death.

Helen, four years old, daughter of G. A. Sutherland of Fairmont, was burned to death. Her clothing caught fire from a bonfire about which she was playing with a number of other children. Her clothing was burned from her body and she survived only a few hours.

Violated Quarantine Law.

Charged with violating the quarantine law by entering a South Park home on which a warning card was tacked, John Grossacup of South St. Paul was sentenced to ninety days in the Dakota county jail.

A VERY PLEASANT HOME.

All Because of the Way He Solved the Closet Space Problem.

I must tell all my brothers how my wife and I have solved the problem which so bothers those who dwell where there is but little closet room. With one dressing case between us, there was not room for all our things. As to the closets, they were crammed full, and even under the bed there were many hat boxes. So I purchased another dressing case.

I then took all my clothes, which had been crowding my wife's in her dressing case, and arranged them in my own. In the top drawer I put my handkerchiefs, collars and ties and all those other little articles of finery which every man loves so much. In the second drawer I placed my shirts and underwear and devoted the lower drawer to my trousers, neatly folded, and my hosiery. My wife was delighted, as it gave her her own dresser all to herself and relieved the closet somewhat.

But in a day or so the new plan proved to have a few defects, so at my wife's suggestion I emptied one of the upper drawers in my dresser, putting its contents into the other and allowed my wife to use the now vacant receptacle for a few of her jabots, scarfs, etc. The second day it was decided that my shirts and trousers could occupy the same drawer, the lowest one, so this was fixed, and into the second drawer my wife moved a few of her petticoats and such things.

Soon finding that I was still using too much space, I permitted her to put my collars and such effects into the lowest drawer with my trousers, etc., thus giving her both of the upper drawers and the next and still leaving me plenty of room in the one bottom drawer.

Since then, however, I have found that I do not require so much space for my few things, so have taken them out of the bottom drawer and packed them into a hat box, which I keep under the bed, thereby giving my wife all the drawers in my dressing case. I find the present arrangement very satisfactory, as all I have to do now is to empty the hat box on the bed when I want anything in it and then, when I have made my selection, sweep the other articles back into place.

In this way I have solved the dressing case problem, and everything is quite pleasant in our home.—Paul West in Delineator.

FREAK TREASURY NOTES.

The Face of the Bill, Not the Back, Indicates Its Value.

Despite the careful scrutiny given every bill that leaves the bureau of engraving and printing, a number of "freak" notes find their way into circulation from time to time. Such a one was a note that once came to the subtreasury at New York. It had the imprint of a twenty dollar note on one side and of a ten on the other. But, inasmuch as the face showed the figures 20, $20 was the legal value of the bill.

In most cases the "freak" bills that have escaped the vigilance of the bureau's officers are national banknotes, which, like the regular treasury notes, are printed there. As intimated already, the face value is always recognized when the "freaks" come to be cashed at any branch of the treasury. The imprint on the back has no lawful status whatsoever.

The notes are printed in sheets. Usually there will be one twenty and two tens on a sheet. They are printed one side at a time, so it can readily be seen that the printer in turning over the sheet might get it upside down and thus put a ten dollar back on the twenty dollar note or a twenty on the back of one of the tens.

When errors are discovered the misprinted sheet is laid aside to be destroyed. It cannot be torn up at once, for every sheet has to be accounted for. After some formalities it is ground into pulp.

Almost all the "freak" bills that have been issued in the past have found their way back to the treasury, there to be destroyed. It is thought that very few of them are now scattered about, and these are for the most part in the hands of curio hunters.—Harper's Weekly.

Mr. Franklin at the Bar.

Among the state papers for the year 1536 may be read a letter from John Bartelet to Henry VIII.'s minister, Thomas Cromwell, stating that in accordance with the recent act the mayor and aldermen had chosen Mr. Pryseley to attend the English parliament as the representative of Calais and that he had made certain arrangements about his passage into England.

One Thomas Boyd was elected as his colleague, and Calais continued to send M. P.'s to Westminster until, in the reign of Mary, we lost the stronghold we had held for over two centuries. This is the only instance in England's history of anything like colonial representation at Westminster unless indeed we reckon one or two exceptional occasions when colonial grievances have been voiced at the bar of the house of commons, as they were so brilliantly by Benjamin Franklin, when Burke said the scene reminded him of "a master examined by a parcel of schoolboys."—London News.

Her Pirate Lover

By ARTHUR L. SANDS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Molly Van Dusen and I plighted our troth one evening under the parapet of the battery in the town of New Amsterdam. We were looking down the bay, and a ship, the first that had arrived in several weeks, was coming up under full sail. It was summer. All these things I remember well, for it was the happiest moment of my life, and whatever was visible to my dear love and me was deeply impressed upon my mind.

That was a very hot season, and Molly was drooping from the heat. The very next day after she had promised to be my wife her father determined to send her to the eastern coast in Connecticut to spend some time with her mother's brother, Pardon Mathews, hoping that the sea air would strengthen her. I was loath to let her go at such a time and especially since the captain of the ship that came in at the time of our betrothal reported having been chased by a pirate, and it was well known that the buccaneers were at any time liable to make a descent on the coast.

But Molly's father packed her off in the coach leaving for Boston, directing that she be put off at a bit of headland jutting out into Long Island sound not far from the settlement at New Haven.

It was a sad day for both of us when she got into the coach and I watched it pass out of sight among the boweries lying to the eastward of the town. And even after the coach had grown so dim with distance as scarcely to be discovered I could see Molly's white handkerchief streaming a signal of her love for me.

I found the town unbearable without her. I played at bowls in the green near the battery and sailed in my boat on Hudson's river, but I could not get on without my Molly, so I determined to go to her. I mounted my sorrel one August morning, with my saddlebags well filled with eatables, and on the third day reached the New Haven settlement. After partaking of a dinner and giving my horse a good feed I remounted and in three hours' time came in sight of that headland where dwelt Pardon Mathews. There are rocks and short beaches on this shore and an occasional knoll covered with long grass. An Indian showed me Mr. Mathews' house set on one of these knolls. I trotted on where the road ran near the water and presently, looking ahead, saw two persons standing on a rock that protruded out a few feet above the surface of the sound.

As I drew nearer I could see that one of these persons was a man and the other a woman. The man was in an uncouth dress. What was my surprise when I came near enough to distinguish his apparel to see that he wore a hat with a large brim, a short coat and trousers to his knees, flaring at the bottom of the legs, while a broad belt filled with knives was buckled about his waist.

At once I was filled with alarm, feeling sure that there had been a descent of pirates on the settlers and this fellow had carried off one of the women. Having a pistol in my holster, I drew it forth, saw to the priming and made ready for an attempt to rescue this poor woman. Dismounting, I left my horse in a thicket and, stealing up on the couple, hid behind a rock and, taking sure aim at the pirate, pulled the trigger.

The flint refused to light the priming, and luckily, for at the moment the pirate put his arm around the woman's waist, and the two stood looking at the incoming tide. Were she a willing captive it would only distress her if I killed her lover. But what was my horror when she turned her face my way to see my Molly.

At first I was minded to kill them both; but, shrinking from having Molly's blood on my hands, I desisted and advanced with my pistol in hand.

"Have you gone mad, Mistress Van Dusen," I exclaimed, "that you will accept the caresses of a pirate, or has he murdered all your folk and you are making a pretense in order to watch your opportunity to get away from him?"

As I spoke I held the pirate under cover of my weapon, and he, turning, ran like a deer toward Mr. Mathew's house.

"See the coward run!" I cried, half minded to shoot him in his tracks.

And then what did Molly do but burst into loud laughter, and, sitting down on the rock, she kept it up till I grew hot with choler and said:

"For shame, Molly, to turn from me to a pirate, and a coward at that! Speak before I kill him."

This brought her to her senses. "Forbear," she said. "Do not kill a girl."

"A girl! And have the women turned buccaneers?"

With that she fell to laughing again, and I could get nothing from her for a long while, when she controlled her mirth and said:

"Tonight uncle gives a dance to the settlers roundabout, and all are to come dressed in some strange costume. This pirate who has just closed the door of the house is my cousin, Patience Mathews. She is dressed in her costume for the dance. We two came out to watch for the boat bearing guests from New Haven."

"Heavens!" I exclaimed. "Had not my flint failed I would have shot her."

A Loss of Memory

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Up to the age of forty years Peter White had been a hardworking man; then he married the Widow Smith and sat down and communed with himself:

"I've almost broken my back with hard work, but now that I've married money I'm going to take things easy. I'll hire some one else to do the work, and I'll do the bossing."

He fondly expected to carry out this program, but he ran up against a stone wall the very first thing.

"You'll not only work as hard as ever, but a good deal harder," was the reply of the wife when he stated his case. "I've got to do it in the house, and you won't get out of it outdoors. The matter is all settled, and we'll say no more about it."

Peter communed some more. As he couldn't force matters, he determined to resort to strategy. He went home from the cornfield one day with a blank face and asked the wife who he was.

"My stars, what do you mean?" she exclaimed after a look at him.

"I was hoeing corn and hustling when something gave way in my head. I can't remember who I am. I can't remember who you are, but it seems as if I had seen you before. What's the matter with me?"

"Good lands, but it must be something awful! Don't you remember that you are Peter White?"

"Y-e-s; it kinder seems that way, and yet I'm all the time wondering if I hain't Sam Johnson. Your name is Schermerhorn, ain't it?"

"Hear the man talk!" she wailed. "Can't you remember that I was the Widow Smith until I married you? We were married only a few weeks ago. Peter, for heaven's sake, don't go out of your head!"

"Smith! Smith!" he mused. "I don't think I ever heard the name before. Mrs. Jackson, can I get supper here?"

"He calls me Jackson! The poor man has had a stroke or something!"

Peter was taken in and cuddled up. Chicken soup and toast were made for him, and the wife milked the cows and fed the hogs. The doctor came and looked at Peter's tongue and heard some of his queer talk and pronounced it a case of loss of memory. He said that some time in the years agone Peter had stood under a tree during a thunderstorm and had been knocked into a cocked hat by a thunderbolt. The real effects of the injury were just coming out.

Peter was to sit in the house or wander around as he liked. After about a month of coddling a slight improvement was noticed. He remembered getting married to some widow or other and was willing to admit that it might be to Mrs. Smith.

Just how long Peter might have worked his little game and continued to grow fat on it cannot be told, but one day when he had gone to the village a pill peddler stopped at the house. He was told of the case, and he did some thinking. He didn't claim that any one brand of his seven kind of pills would restore memory, as many a faker would have done to make a sale. He said that a shock was needed. He had known of five cases in his medical career, and all had been cured by sudden shocks. No little shock for a cent would bring about a restoration. The brain had got all tangled up, and the cords of laziness had got mixed with the cords of memory. He talked to Mrs. White for an hour, and she came to his way of thinking. Peter awoke next morning glad that he was alive and no work before him, but that sudden shock recommended by the pill peddler was not far off. He found himself bound hand and foot, and when he inquired the reason the wife explained:

"I think I have got a cure for your loss of memory. At least I am going to try it. Can you remember this morning what your name is?"

"It's Rammerdinger, hain't it?"

"Yes, pretty near. Can you remember my name?"

"Seems to me it's Dockstader."

"I see your memory is as bad as ever, and we'll try the shock remedy."

Mrs. White was a strapping woman, strong and husky. With one yank Peter was on the floor. He struck mostly on his head. Of course he had something to say, and the reply was:

"Peter, I've got the horsewhip here, and I'm going to lay it on till you can remember back to when Captain Kidd was hung."

The whip was applied. The husband had too soft a snap to throw away, and he held out for a time, but things became hot. He began to call the wife by her right name. She gave him ten more cuts and stopped to ask:

"Peter, who discovered America?"

"Old Columbus," was the prompt answer.

And after ten more cuts, "Who was our first president?"

"George Washington."

"It's working, Peter! It's working! And who are you?"

"White—Pete White."

"And who was I?"

"Emma Smith."

About twenty more vigorous cuts were administered, and then Peter was asked if his memory was clear. He was sure it was, and within half an hour after the lashings had been cast off he was sawing wood at the kitchen door. Memory had come back to stay.

Colors of the Stars.

Although there is no relation apparent between the two phenomena, it is interesting to recall the fact that among the stars certain colors appear to characterize different stages of change, or evolution. Red stars, according to the testimony of the spectroscope, differ widely in their constitution from white or yellow ones, and it has been thought that varying colors may give a clew to progressive changes in the heavenly bodies. Sirius for instance, is said to have changed from red to white, and some have suspected that Arcturus is fading from red toward yellow.

A Fairly Good Appetite.

Kaffirs, North American Indians and the fat boy in "Pickwick" may well be quoted as fearful examples of voracity, but even their gastronomic feats are exceeded by the full grown Eskimo, who will daily eat twenty pounds of flesh and oil if he has the chance, while on the authority of Admiral Sarticheff a Yakut of Siberia has been known to consume in twenty-four hours "the hind quarter of a large ox, twenty pounds of fat and a quantity of melted butter for his drink."

OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Pennington County Will Not Have to Pay for Court House.

Whether or not the south end manipulators were parties to the destruction by fire of the old county house last winter at Red Lake Falls, the divisionists profess not to know; neither do they care. But this opportune fire opened the way for the accomplishment of one of the boldest attempts ever devised in Red Lake County to thwart the will of the people. The down river folks believed that if they could, by hook or by crook, invest a large sum of the taxpayer's money in the south end, that this investment would forever put a stop to the secession agitation in the north part of the county. To this end, they and their minions have taken advantage of this fire and have sunk over $50,000 in a new court house at Red Lake Falls. This sum of money consists of $37,000 of five per cent building bonds sold last winter, and $14,970 raised by a four mill levy for building purposes on the taxable property of the county.

Right here it is proper to state that a well known ex-attorney general of Minnesota, as well as other distinguished lawyers occupying the highest legal positions in the state, hold that it is absolutely illegal for the county to raise building funds by selling its bonds, and at the same time, levy a direct building tax for the same purpose. A little legal or illegal extortion of $14970 from the taxpayers is such a common event in Red Lake county, that this last one passes almost without attracting any notice. However, the courts will be called upon later to adjudicate this matter, as well as some others which will well keep for an airing until the division proposition is settled. It might be added that this $14,970 of building tax was reported to the state auditor as "county poor fund", so as to cover up its indentity. The county has no poor fund, as each town cares for its own poor.

This $50,000 did actually alarm some divisionists and among those was Michael Bakken, a farmer in the town of Rockesbury, to settle the question for himself and to corroborate the opinions of the local attorneys, he sought the advice of the last and highest legal authority in the state, the Attorney General, and the result is this letter;

(SIMPSON'S LETTER)

Office of the Attorney General
St. Paul, Minnesota.
September 14th, 1910.

Mr. Michael Bakken,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Dear Sir;

In your favor of recent date you asked, what the liability is of a new county formed out of a part of an existing county for the indebtness of the old county at the time of division, and what right, if any, the new county has in any county buildings owned by the old county, and in any money in the treasury of the old county.

I beg leave to advise you, that the rights of the two counties, in case of division, are fixed by Section 393 of the Revised Laws. This section relates exclusively to the creation of new counties, or in the transfer of territory from one county to another. The material part is as follows;

All property so transferred shall continue liable for its proportion of the excess, if any, of the indebtness of the original county above the value of its county buildings and the balance of the funds in the county treasury. Such share shall be based upon the last assessment, and the value of the buildings, unless agreed upon by the respective county boards, shall be fixed by the sworn appraisal of three disinterested citizens, none of whom shall be a resident or a taxpayer in either county, and who shall be appointed by the Governor, upon the written application of the Board of either county.

This provision of the law is so plain that it leaves no room for doubt or misinterpretation. The value of the county buildings ascertained in the manner stated, is to be added to the amount of the cash balance of funds on hand, and the aggregate sum thus obtained is to be subtracted from the outstanding indebtness of the old county. The remaining indebtness, if any, is to be proportioned between the old and new county in proportion to their respective valuations at the last preceding assessment.

Yours very truly,
(signed) George T. Simpson,
Attorney General.

This clear statement of the case shows that the down river plotters permitted their anxiety to run away with their judgment. They must take their new and costly court house, pay for it themselves and the Pennington county taxpayers are forever relieved from paying one cent of its heavy cost. In addition, the November tax collections will soon fill all the county funds, so that there not be but a small balance to divide between Pennington County and reduced Red Lake. Today, Pennington county's assessment is $2,113,256, while Red Lake county had only $1,251,000 when it seceded from Polk in 1897. What Pennington will have to assume as her share of debt will be much smaller in proportion than what Red Lake had to accept in 1897, and no one will admit that in those days she was burdened with heavy taxes as she is now.

The whole division proposition now simmers down to something as follows:

If the voters decide to retain Red Lake county as it now is, they will have to pay for the new court house at Red Lake Falls, and at the same time are sure of the highest legal taxes for years to come to meet the obligations which the commissioners have already placed on the county.

If the voters decide for division, Pennington county taxpayers will be relieved from paying any part of the cost of the new court house, and will escape the exorbitant tax levies, the second highest in the state, and in addition, will receive from the city of Thief River Falls a as gift the city hall and the city jail.

There is little else to the division matter. It is now "up to" Mr. Taxpayer. Every doubting Thomas in Pennington county can now safely place himself where Mr. Bakken now is—for division first, last and all the time.

Many inquiries are daily made as to how Red Lake county got into debt so deeply, when she had not bought or built anything of consequence prior to the construction of the new court house The explanation is very simple. The maximum tax levies are yearly made when these taxes are all spent the funds are overdrawn by issuing county warrants, which the banks take cheerfully when these unpaid county warrants amount to ten or fifteen thousand dollars, they are funded or put in the form of bonds. Some one gets a rakeoff on the deal and some one holds these valuable interest bearing bonds. This same operation is peformed year after year. Debts are being contracted, funds overdrawn (the revenue fund was overdrawn $13,654.99 on July 1st 1910.), warrants issued and these funded and even refunded, and no precaution is taken to meet maturing obligations except by issuing more and more and larger bonds The process is similar to that of the Illinois farmer who raised more corn to feed more hogs to get more cash to buy more land to raise more corn to feed more hogs to get more cash to buy more land and so on without end. Where the operation is going to end in Red Lake county cannot be foretold, but those people living in Pennington county are assured safety from this high finance if they vote for their pocketbooks next November. The moral of the expensive lesson will surely not be lost on Pennington county.

The Pennington county farmers who are receiving the Red Lake Falls Gazette free each week must derive some satisfaction in getting for nothing the paper, which is charging the county 60 cents per folio for the county printing for 1910, whereas the two Thief River papers bid to peform the same work for 20 and 30 cents respectively. The Thief River papers had no pull with the powers that be, so the Gazette, the highest bidder, gets a rakeoff of about $1500 this year, as the printing will approximate $3000. This practically amounts to presenting the state librarian, Mr. John E. King, with $1500 of hard earned taxes of Red Lake county. And still this paper owned by the state librarian, poses as the official exponent of south end doctrines and attempts to preach honesty, antigraft and economy to the Pennington county farmers. What a rebuke is in waiting for this shameless hypocrisy next November!

School Notes.

Some 700 school children above the third grade were marched to the Auditorium on Monday afternoon at three o'clock to hear the illustrated tuberclosis lecture by Dr. Blakely of the state board of health.

A short special course of four months will be offered this winter as soon as the new high school building is occupied It will consist of practical arithmetic, writing, English, spelling, simple accounts, domestic science for girls, and manual training and agriculture for boys. This course will be open to all young people over sixteen years of age, regardless of their other qualifications, and is intended especially for those, who for various reasons are unable to attend school all the year. It will be made as practical and intensive as possible and should be of great value to the class of students indicated.

Music is taught for two periods per week in the high school by Miss Burton.

The high school football team has secured Mr. Irvine as coach. The boys will play their first game of the season at Warren next Saturday.

The Schoolmasters' Club of the Red river valley, of which J. H. Hay is president, meets next Friday evening at Crookston for a business session.

Miss Ward of the domestic science department and Mr. Spratt, teacher of agriculture, will act as judges next Saturday at Germantown in the industrial contest for that section of Marshall county. These contests are conducted under the supervision of the state agriculture college and the county superintendant. Five similar contests have been arranged for Red Lake county.

As stated in the School Notes of two weeks ago, outlines of the courses of study will be presented when opportunity permits. The following is the agriculture course offered in the local high school: Freshman year: English 1, algebra, agricultural botany and farm crops, manual training or cooking.

Sophomore year: English 2, geometry, zoology and animal husbandry, manual training or sewing.

Junior year: English 3, physics, accounts, farm mechanics, manual training or sewing.

Senior year: English 4, senior American history, civics, agricultural chemistry, soils and horticulture, manual training or home economics.

Music is taught to all. Rhetoricals and gymnasium are also required. Mechanical drawing is included in manual training, as is iron work Free-hand drawing, typewriting and a review of the common subjects are offered as electives to students capable of taking same. The state compels all high school students to take four years of English, and insists, as a matter of mind training and culture that the subjects of algebra, geometry, senior American history and civics be taken by all high school people. Field and garden work is included in the agriculture. The above course is broader than those offered in some of the so called agricultural high schools of the state. This course is both practical and cultural and the arrangement of the studies will appeal to one conversant with the sequence of studies.

Married in Montana.

Phillip Zeb, Jr., son of Phillip Zeb, of this city, was united in marriage at Missoula, Mont., last Saturday to Miss Nina Clawson, of Chicago, a teacher in the schools at Missoula. The groom is head clerk in the clothing store of James Armstrong, formerly of Red Lake Falls, who conducts the largest clothing store in Missoula. His many friends in Thief River Falls extends congratulations.

Track All Down

The track laying crew on the new Soo line from Thief River Falls to Duluth finished work last Friday. A considerable number have been laid off, but the majority of the crew is still at work putting in side tracks at the new stations. The men are all furnished transportation to Thief River Falls and paid off here and it is keeping the police force busy these days.

Contract for Sewers to Be Let.

At a special meeting of the city council to be held tomorrow evening, the contract for constructing the two new sewer systems in the city will be let. It is expected that quite a number of bidders will be here from abroad, and work will be commenced this fall.

The Glasgow Select Choir.

The Glasgow Select Choir who are at present touring Canada and the United States have made arrangments to visit Thief River Falls on October 10th, when they will give a concert in the Auditorium. The programme will consist of Scottish Music, Solos, Duets and Quartettes will be rendered as required. This famous Choir which has twice been honoured with a command to appear before Royalty, is appearing for the first time on this side. The opportunity of listening to such singing as that of the Glasgow Select Choir should be appreciated by all lovers of Scotia's National Music. Prices 50-75-100- Ticket sale will open on October 5th at J. A. Swores.

East Side Without Water.

The water main across the bottom of the Red Lake river, which has given the city trouble since it was first put down, broke again on Tuesday and as a result the East Side is without a water supply again. The job was not done right in the first place and now a new pipe will be put down and the work done in a proper way.

A Fine Farm for Sale.

160 acres of fine farm land in the town of Clover Leaf, about 80 acres under cultivation, 40 acres fenced for pasture and a fine meadow on it, has an artesian well 140 feet deep and an abundance of fine pure water as soft as rain water, has a house, barn, grainery, etc. Will sell cheap for cash or will trade for desirable city property. Call quick or you may be too late. Evenson & Hamre.

The next big attraction to be seen in this city is that sterling New England play, "Along the Kennebeck", which will be given in all its entirety, wealth of rural scenery, the quarry scene with its working drills and a real steam engine at the Auditorium Thief River Falls on Monday evening Oct 3rd The company is one of the best traveling and numbers many well known players, including some clever specialty artists. The Characters are all unique in orginality and there are several types entirely new to the stage. In all, the play in its entirety will compare favorably with the best of New England plays, such as the "Old Homestead", "County Fair" and "Shore Acres". The comedy duel scene in the third act is funny and is said to surpass the celebrated duel scene in Joseph Jefferson's play of "The Rivals". The company carry a fine band.

John Sorum, of Holt, who is the Democratic candidate for sheriff of Marshall county, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Sorum says that he is going to make an active campaign for the office and has a whole lot of friends who will assist him, especially in the last end of the county where he makes his home.

Edgar J. Irvine, bookkeeper for the Lumber Company, spent a part of last week with the fair Co-eds of Fargo College, at Fargo, N. Dakota. Edgar made the trip just for pleasure, as he has given up all hopes of entering college this fall.

BIG THING FOR T. R. F.

Enough of Winnibigoshish Reservation Timber Secured to Run Mill Five Years.

Logs to Be Brought to Thief River Falls by Rail Over the Soo Line.

The item in the News last week to the effect that the Thief River Falls Lumber company had purchased 80,000,000 feet of standing pine on the Winnibigoshish reservation usually known as the Cut Foot Sioux was in error. The company purchased 120,000,000 feet or enough to run the local saw mill for five years. As the company has enough logs in the Red Lake country to run the mill for over a year, it is safe to say that it if no additional pine is secured, the local mill will be doing business here for the next six or seven years, even if no additional pine lands are secured. It is more than probable, however, that inside of three or four years, the Red Lake Indian pine will be placed on the market, and it is more than likely the local company will secure its share of this timber when it is offered for sale, so that it is safe to figure that in fifteen or twenty years from now lumber will be manufactured in Thief River Falls.

The logs from the Winnibigoshish reservation will be brought to Thief River Falls by rail over the Soo line, the lumber company having made a contract with the railroad to do the hauling. It is quite probable that they will be banked in the Thief River up near the Soo round house.—The timber is said to be as good as any left standing in the state and will make a fine grade for lumber.

The saw mill is to be practically rebuilt this fall, and fixed up so that it can be run for a term of years without repairs.

The securing of this timber by the Thief River Falls Lumber company is certainly good news to the people of Thief River Falls. We are sure that no lumber company in the state enjoys such pleasant relations with the people of the city where their mill is located as does the local one.

Mr. and Mrs. James Herrick spent yesterday in the city with relatives. They have been in South Dakota for the past six weeks visiting friends and left this morning for Medford, N. D. where Mr. Herrick is agent for the Soo.

D. B. BAKKE, President. H. A. LOKEN, Vice President, OSCAR SPONHEIM, Cashier.

TO MERGE WITH THE SOO

Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Railroad to Become a Part of Soo System.

Merger to Be Made When New Soo Depot at Duluth Is Completed.

That the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad will peacefully and quietly pass out of existence as a seperate road, beginning with the operation of its trains into the new Soo depot at Duluth in the very near future, is a story that has received confirmation from an official in a position to give the facts in connection with the oft-repeated statement.

For the past few years the South Shore has been considered a failure as a money-making railroad. Though the gross receipts of the road ha e been increasing, the deficit has also been increasing.

The bonded indebtness of the road is large, and the interest upon this eats up the earnings of the road.

It is generally known that the Soo is the railroad child of the Canadian Pacific. It is also generally known that a very close affiliation exists between the South Shore and the great Canadian trunk line. Therefore the gradual taking over of the South Shore, its operation its management and all the other details connected with its existence as a railroad, will not be so great a departure as the taking over of an outside road would be.

The change, that has been confirmed has long been looked for by railroad men who have been in touch with the true situation. For the past few years the resignation of President W. F. Fitch has been an annual rumor that has interested railroad men in those parts of the country. Nothing has ever materialized in connection with the oft-rumored dropping out of active railroad work by Mr. Fitch, and in the story of the taking over of the management of the South Shore there is nothing even whispered regarding what will be done in the matter of the present officials of the South Shore. Probably many of them will be retained.

Not only will the trains of the South Shore operate into the new Soo depot here, but it is stated that the offices of the South Shore will be transferred to the new depot.

There is a federal law that prohibits the consolidation of competing lines, but it is not believed that this will in any way interfere, as the two roads can hardly be called competing lines.

INDUSTRIAL CONTESTS

Boys and Girls of Red Lake County Will Compete for Prizes.

Contests to Be Held in Brooks, Plummer, St Hilaire, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls.

The Industrial Contest for boys and girls of Red Lake county, will be held at the following places:

Brooks, Saturday, Oct. 8th.
Plummer, Monday, Oct. 10th.
St. Hilaire, Sat., Oct. 15th.
Red Lake Falls, Sat., Oct. 22nd.
Thief River Falls, Sat., Oct. 29th.

The Industrial Contest is a contest in the production or selection of corn, grains, fruits, vegetables and in sewing and cooking by boys and girls under eighteen years of age. This is the first year that a contest of this kind has been held in this county, but it has been conducted in the state very successfully for the past three or four years. Last year over forty counties held these contests or school fairs as they may well be called, and met with so much success that they are taking up the work again this year with the assurance that nothing can do more to interest the boys and girls in the general duties about the farm and home.

The object of this movement is not primarily to strengthen or develop county fairs, but to interest the boys and girls in the practical things of life; to bring them more closely in touch with the home, and lead them to take such vital interest in agriculture and farm life that they will have no desire to leave the farm. The city schools can have courses in Agriculture, Domestic Science and Manual Training. The country schools however, are not able on account of the expense to establish such courses, but this is a way to get some of this practical work done among the rural school children.

The contest work was begun here in the month of May when Supt. T. A. Erickson of Douglas county came here to help me begin it. The largest schools in the county were visited and many evening meetings were held. These meetings were well attended by school officers, teachers and others who all manifested so much interest and enthusiasm that I have felt that it is bound to prove a great success. Many teachers and children, at once began the work of sewing and agriculture before the schools closed last spring and the work has been continued since that time. The boys have worked hard in helping care for the potatoe fields and gardens and have studied and selected corn and grains that they may be able to bring the best of these products to the fairs and obtain prizes. The girls also have done their part in sewing work aprons, shirt waists etc, and have done darning, patching and cooking. It is however optional with the boys and girls as to which of this work they wish to do; the girls as well as the boys can select, clean and prepare the agricultural products and the boys can learn patching, darning etc. if they wish.

The contest has has been pretty well advertised by Extension Bullitin No. 3, from the Agricultural Department of the University of Minnesota. This bullitin explains the contest thoroly and should any be in need of them, they can be furnished from the office of the county superintendent on request. Letters have also been sent to a great many children about this work and I earnistly hope that parents are encouraging their children to take active parts in the work at home and at school and that there may be a cooperation with the teachers in every district to come to one of the places where a contest is held with many nice exhibits. It is expected that the days of contests be made a kind of a holiday and that teachers and children make it a point to come in a body from each school.

For the sake of convenience sake, a contest will be held at the above named places, and I trust that the people in these places, are willing to help it along in any way they can. Some money for prizes has been obtained already, but business men and others will, I am sure, futher contribute merchandise or money. Prizes will be announced later

The Lions and the Roses.

"An admirer in my younger days," said a woman lion tamer, "once sent me a bouquet of red roses, and I wore them in the ring to do my act. They came near doing for me. I had got my eight lions arranged in their pyramid when the lion at the top saw the red roses in my corsage. He mistook them for meat—lions have poor sight—and down he leaped. He came for me open mouthed. Though I fired a blank cartridge in his face, he made with his paw a sweep at the roses that ripped me open from chin to waist. The other lions bounded forward. They weren't angry. They were hungry. I had intelligence enough to perceive that, and just as they were leaping on me I tore off my roses and threw them across the ring. The big brutes left me at once, and while they sniffed the roses with disappointed growls I staggered out of the iron door. I was young at the time, young and light headed, or I'd have known better than to wear anything red among hungry and nearsighted lions."—Buffalo Express.

A Coin In the Sea.

A coin dropped into the sea will sink to the bottom, however deep it is, owing to the fact that the metal is heavier than the volume of water it displaces. It is a common but mistaken notion that the density of the sea increases with its depth and consequent pressure, as does the density of the atmosphere, which we all know is greatest at the earth's surface. The air, however, like all gases, is elastic and when under pressure (as with its own weight) shrinks in volume and gains in density. Water, on the other hand, is absolutely incompressible, and, although the pressure in the sea increases at the rate of one pound for every two feet we descend, the density of the water remains the same; consequently the penny continues to outweigh the water it displaces, and the coin sinks until it finds a solid resting place. The pressure of the water has no influence at all on the coin, acting as it does on all sides equally.

Decline of the Mustache.

Permission to wear a mustache was eagerly sought after in the middle of the last century. But now the virile decoration is discarded. Why? In those old days the Bank of England would not allow its employees to wear it and issued an order which might have come more appropriately from a bank of Ireland. It was to the effect that the mustache was not to be worn in business hours! A large drapery firm in London objected not only to the mustache, but to hair parted down the middle. There is more tolerance now. Men look younger when clean shaved. They are also more readable without the protection given by the mustache to the upper lip. If hearts can be worn on sleeves thoughts can be read on upper lips. But is it always wise to leave the legend unhidden? Men seldom like to be divined, as La Rochefoucauld remarked once and for all time.—London Express.

An Old Alarm Clock.

At Schramberg, in the Black forest, there is a respectable alarm clock that warned sleepers it was time to get up when Charles I. was king of England. This was made in 1680, and it is deemed a remarkable piece of workmanship. In form it resembles a lantern wherein is a lighted candle, the wick of which is automatically clipped every minute by a pair of scissors. The candle is slowly pushed upward by a spring, which also controls the mechanism of the clock, and at the required hour of waking an alarm is sounded, and at the same time the movable sides of the lantern fall, and the room is flooded with light.

A Spurned Gift.

A charity expert was discussing promiscuous almsgiving.

"Promiscuous giving," he said, "is money thrown away. Nothing should be given to beggars except work. A friend of mine said the other day to a beggar:

"'I can't give you any money, my poor fellow, but if you call at my house I'll give you plenty of work.'

"'Thanks,' the beggar answered, 'I've got plenty of that at home.'"

Conscience.

"On what grounds do you desire to withdraw the plea of 'not guilty?'"

"On the simple ground that we are guilty. However, we must call the attention of your honor to the regrettable fact that the statute of limitations lets us out. Too bad we were not asked about this matter earlier."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Very Good Man.

"He's forever prating about what his conscience tells him. What does his conscience tell him, anyway?"

"It usually tells him apparently what awful sinners his neighbors are."—Philadelphia Press.

Keeps Him Busy.

The Skeptical Aunt—What does he do, Dolly, for a living? Dolly (greatly surprised)—Why, auntie, he does not have time to earn a living while we are engaged!

Made Him Think.

Sapleigh—Ah, speaking of electricity, that makes me think— Miss Keen—Really, Mr. Sapleigh! Isn't it remarkable what electricity can do?—Boston Transcript.

THE WHITE NILE.

Mr. Roosevelt's Description of Night on the Great African River.

We had come down through the second of the great Nyanza lakes. As we sailed northward its waters stretched behind us beyond the ken of vision, to where they were fed by streams from the Mountains of the Moon. On our left hand rose the frowning ranges on the other side of which the Kongo forest lies like a shroud over the land. On our right we passed the mouth of the Victorian Nile, alive with monstrous crocodiles and its banks barren of human life because of the swarms of the fly whose bite brings the torment which ends in death. As night fell we entered the White Nile and steamed and drifted down the mighty stream. Its current swirled in long curves between endless ranks of plumed papyrus. White and blue and red the floating water lilies covered the lagoons and the still inlets among the reeds, and here and there the lotus lifted its leaves and flowers stiffly above the surface. The brilliant tropic stars made lanes of light on the lapping water as we ran on through the night. The river horses roared from the reed beds and snorted and plunged beside the boat, and crocodiles slipped sullenly into the river as we glided by. Toward morning a mist arose and through it the crescent of the dying moon shone red and lurid. Then the sun flamed aloft, and soon the African landscape vast, lonely, mysterious, stretched on every side in a shimmering glare of heat and light, and ahead of us the great, strange river went twisting away into the distance.—Theodore Roosevelt in Scribner's.

A DUKE'S LOVES.

The Force of the Attacks Were Measured by His Appetite.

In the late eighteenth century a Dr. Moore was tutor to the young Duke of Hamilton of those days, whom he accompanied on the usual continental tour. The duke was then eighteen and was susceptible to feminine charms. He had just fallen a victim to the black eyes of a married lady when Dr. Moore made this report to the youthful peer's mother:

"This is the third passion the duke has had since we crossed the sea. They generally affect his appetite, and I can make a pretty good guess at the height of his love by the victuals he refuses to eat. A slight touch of love puts him immediately from legumes and all kinds of jardinage. If it arises a degree higher he turns up his nose at fricassees and ragouts. Another degree and he will rather go to bed supperless than taste plain roasted veal or poulets of any sort. This is the utmost length his passion has ever come hitherto, for when he was at the court with Mlle. Marchenville, though she put him entirely from greens, ragouts and veal, yet she made no impression on his roast beef or mutton appetite. He fed plentifully upon those in spite of her charms. I intend to make a thermometer for the duke's passion with four degrees—(1) greens, (2) fricassees and ragouts, (3) roast veal and fowls, (4) plain roast mutton or beef—and if ever the mercury mounts as high as the last I shall think the case alarming."—Argonaut.

Pawning Bank Bills.

"Pawnbrokers don't think much of ten dollar bills as pledges," said the city salesman. "I saw a man pawn one the other day for $6.50. When asked why he didn't spend his $10 instead of soaking it for a little more than half the amount he explained that he wanted to keep that particular bill. Twice before he had tried to keep a certain bill by giving it as security to a friend who had so many bills that he wouldn't need to spend that particular one, but both times the friend got his money mixed and the keepsake was lost after all. This time he depended upon the pawnbroker to tide him over. To pawn money struck me as a very curious proceeding, but the broker assured me that it is frequently done by people who attach a sentimental value to a particular bill or coin."—New York Sun.

His Choice.

"Yes," said the specialist, as he stood at the bedside of the miser millionaire, "I can cure you."

"But what will it cost?" came feebly from the lips of the sick man.

The specialist made a swift mental calculation. "Ninety-five dollars," was his answer.

"Can't you shade your figure a little?" wailed the other. "The undertaker's bid is much less."—Lippincott's.

Kept His Head.

"Miss Gidday," began Mr. Timmid, "I thought to propose"—

"Really, Mr. Timmid!" interrupted Miss Gidday, "I'm sorry, but"—

"That we have some ice cream"—

"Oh, I should be delighted to take"—

"Some evening when the weather is warmer."

Its Purpose.

Howard—That's a bad cough you've got. Do you do anything to cure it? Coward—Nope. It's this cough that wakes our cook in the morning.—Harper's Bazar.

In Boston.

"Say, I'm a stranger in this town. Can you tell me a good place to stop at?"

"Yes, sir. Stop just before the 'at.'"—Cleveland Leader.

Every man holds in his hand a rock to throw at us in our adversity.—George Sand.

In Colorado Insurgents are called Young Turks. The language of the standpatters must be Greek to them.

Lindquist says that if it had not been for the Thief River Falls papers he would have been renominated. We don't like to take the credit. His neighbors out in Bray did the voting.

Congressman Steenerson was given so large a majority at the primaries that it is not probable that any candidate will come out against him at the general election. The people are commencing to realize that it is not a good thing for a district to change congressmen every election.

According to the returns from the primaries throughout the state, the county option candidates were defeated in a great many cases and the chances are the next legislature will be stronger against county option then the last one. The trouble with the county option candidates in many cases is that they have but one idea, and the voters are too broad guaged to support those kind of candidates.

It will not be so much against James Grey as against Frank Day, John King and other members of the kitchen cabinet that people will vote against in November Gov. Eberhart will have a majority of 50,000.

The nomination of A. L. Thompson in Mahnomen-Norman county district was pleasing news to the people of Northern Minnesota Mr. Thompson is an able man and should be elected by a large majority. He will be one of the leaders in the next legislature, and will accomplish much for his district and the cause of good government.

Jim Gray will get at least one bit of satisfaction out of giving up his position as editoral writer on the Minneapolis Journal and going on the stump as Democratic candidate for governor. In his newspaper position he has been compelled to write what the steel trust and Jim Hill would have him write but on the stump he can speak his own mind without being dictated to by anyone. After having relieved himself he can return to newspaper work feeling much better.—International Falls Press.

If Jim Grey, for hire, has been writing editorial for the Minneapolis Journal that he did not believe to be true and right he is not a safe man to place in the governors chair. The people want a man who is not working for the highest bidder, but one who will do that which he believes to be right.

A condition of affairs heretofore unknown exists in Red Lake county. At present, according to County Treasurer Ives, there is between $4,000 and $5,000 in the road and bridge fund of the county. Heretofore as fast as any money accumulated in this fund it has been promptly appropriated by the county commissioners to the south end towns, but owing to the discussion of this matter of late the commissioners have not been making any appropriations and it is given out that no money is to be appropriated until after election, and it is not hard to understand where it will go. It might be a good scheme for some of the north end towns to ask for an appropriation before election. The Gazette, which is the especial friend of the farmers just at present, says that the reason the north end townships have not been favored in the past is because they have not asked for any money. Now is the time to try it. There is considerable money in the fund and the north end has never been able to get its share although it pays over 65 per cent of the taxes.

5000 Acres Wanted—I want to list every farm in northern Red Lake county that is for sale, for quick sales. Call or write Wm. Moeller, St. Hilaire, Minn., R. R. No. 1, box 9.

Will Open a New Bank.

H. H. Zaiser of this city is organizing the First State bank of Federal Dam and will about Nov. 1 open a state bank in the new town. Mr. Zaiser will also open a lumber yard in the new town. Federal Dam has a good location and it is expected that it will be a division point on the new line. Under such favorable circumstances, so capable and experienced a business man as Mr. Zaiser ought to prosper in the new location. It is possible that Harry Garceau of the First State Bank of Red Lake Falls may become associated with Mr. Zaiser in the banking business. The bank is to have a capital stock of $10,000 and two or three other business men will be associated with Mr. Zaiser.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Leave for the West.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kaufer and family plan to leave for their new home at Seattle, Wash., next Tuesday. The removal of this family from Red Lake Falls will cause general regret. They have been residents of the city since pioneer days. He has worked early and late and between times for his home town. He is a good citizen and a good friend whom Red Lake Falls will regret to lose as a business man and whose estimable family will be missed by numerous friends in this city who will wish them success and happiness in large measure in their new home. Mr. Kaufer will become associated with his brother, Phil A. Kaufer, former publisher of the Gazette, who conducts a large Catholic supply house, wholesale and retail at Seattle.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Winter Care of Brood Sows.

Success in Pork production is largely affected by the attention given to the health and comfort of the brood sow She should always, especially in winter, be housed in a warm, comfortable place Preferably this will be a cot well supplied with straw, and having a door which swings both ways, always closing when, the sow passes in or out. This cot may well be located at some distance from the feeding place, so that she will get the necessary exercise in running to and fro.

Her food should consist largely of bulky foods, such as milk, roots and clover hay, which will keep her in good condition without fattening. As farrowing time approaches the bulk should be cut down, less water should be given, and more protein and oily foods should be fed, so as to keep the sow in a laxative condition. She should be disturbed as little as possible. If she is allowed to get nervous or excited, the effect may be seen upon the litter, in an excitable temperament which lessens the rapidity of their growth. Extension Bulletin No. 7 of the Minnesota Farmers' Library, from which this paragraph is condensed will be found to contain many other suggestions of value to the pork-raiser.

Bringing Her Round.

Bingo (tiptoeing into his wife's room, in a whisper)—I've brought three friends home to dinner unexpectedly.

Mrs. Bingo (aghast)—What!

Bingo—Yes, I have. They're down stairs.

Mrs. Bingo—You wretch!

Bingo—Now, my dear, I couldn't get out of it.

Mrs. Bingo (haughtily)—Then you'll have to take the consequences.

Bingo—But—

Mrs. Bingo—You'll have to put up with practically nothing.

Bingo—That's what I told them.

Mrs. Bingo—You did?

Bingo—Yes. I told them that they needn't expect a single thing; that we'd scrape round in the kitchen if necessary and pick up whatever we could and that, as I hadn't let you know, that was the best we could do.

Mrs. Bingo—What did you tell them that for?

Bingo—It's the truth, isn't it?

Mrs. Bingo—Certainly not. As if it makes any difference to me how many friends you bring home! I'll show you!—London Tit-Bits.

Little Known Republics.

Within the domain of the United States on the North American continent there have been divers independent republics, says Mary W. Hazeltine in Harper's Magazine, the very name of three of which is known to but a few. How many Americans of today have heard, for example, of the commonwealth of Watauga, which in 1772 was organized as an independent community by North Carolinians who had crossed the Alleghenies and, descending into the basin of the Tennessee, had made themselves homes in the valley of the Watauga river? How many remember the commonwealth of Transylvania, which was organized in the eastern part of what is now Kentucky in 1775 and which sent to the Continental congress a delegate, who, however, was not admitted? How many have heard of the short lived state of Franklin, or Frankland, which at a somewhat later period was self created out of certain western counties of North Carolina?

A Remarkable Concert.

A Carlsbad letter calls attention to a remarkable concert which took place at the Spa on Aug. 6, 1812, a program of which is still preserved in the city archives at that place. The entertainment was given for the benefit of the sufferers by the fire which had laid waste Baden and took place at the Saechsischer Saal. The only performers were Beethoven and Polledro, who played their own compositions. There were two pianoforte and two violin solos and several numbers in which both took part, says the writer. The account of the entertainment also mentions the fact that one of the interested listeners was a "tall, elderly man, wearing a great blue coat, who sat perfectly erect throughout the performance, never looking anywhere but at the stage. This was Goethe." The amount realized for the fund was about $200. The letter ends with. "Beethoven at the piano for charity and box receipts $200."

A Dog's Tongue.

Have you ever wanted to know why a dog's tongue lolls out of his mouth on a hot day or when he has been running? People sometimes say that it is because he is thirsty, but that isn't exactly right. If you look at it you will see little drops of water dripping from it. Well, you know that when you get very warm you get covered with perspiration. The dog's body never perspires. When he gets hot all the moisture comes out through his tongue, and as the moisture on the tongue dries up the dog's body cools.—Philadelphia Press.

The Sixth Sense.

In a primary school examination over which I once had the pleasure to preside one of the questions was with regard to the five senses. One of the bright pupils handled the subject thus: "The five senses are sneezing, sobbing, crying, yawning and coughing. By the sixth sense is meant an extra one which some folks have. This is snoring." — Woman's Home Companion.

WILL FACILITATE NAVIGATION

Lights of Swedish Invention to Be Used on Alaskan Coast—Movement in Norway to Purchase Home of Late Bjornstjerne Bjornson—Reported at Copenhagen That Cook's Backer Is Seeking Hidden Records.

SWEDEN.

Navigation will be facilitated on the Alaskan coast when eighteen lights are placed in the harbors of the southwestern part of the country. It is estimated that about $40,000,000 worth of commerce passes through the Alaskan channels during the navigation season and it is menaced by unlighted and uncharted waterways. The lighthouse board has adopted a type of acetylene light for this purpose and eleven gas lighted beacons will be installed at dangerous points along the "inside passage" in Southwestern Alaska during the next summer. The acetylene apparatus is a Swedish invention of a notable character and is in successful operation at several points along the coast of Sweden. Each light will burn without the care of a keeper or any other attention for a period of six months, at the end of which time the supply of gas producing material may be replenished readily by the visit of a lighthouse tender or other vessel. The lights are an advantage on a stormy coast and at points where there is not sufficient foundation for a regular lighthouse station. Each light is equipped with what is known as a sun valve. The action of daylight on the sun valve causes the acetylene flame to burn low until night comes again, when the light reappears with full power.

Bishop von Schecle, who made an extensive trip in the United States last summer, has since his return to his home in Gothland made a trip to Stockholm and called on King Gustaf, for whom he had many greetings from Swedish-Americans and Swedish-American institutions of learning. The bishop gave King Gustaf a very interesting account of the condition of his countrymen in America and his majesty seemed very much interested in knowing something in detail regarding the material and educational advance that the Swedish people have been making in the United States.

Miss Agnes Agrell, who is considered the greatest woman swimmer of Sweden, departed for the United States Sept. 1 for the purpose of engaging in professional swimming contests in the larger cities of that country. She has for about two years been an instructor in swimming at the Malar baths in Stockholm and has won first prize at a number of international swimming contests which have taken place there.

NORWAY.

A movement is at present on foot among a number of charitable societies in the country to purchase "Aulestad," the former home of the noted author and playwright, Bjornson, and turn it into a "National Home for the Aged." When Bjornson received the Nobel prize for literature he set aside a certain sum, which was to constitute a national fund for the aged in the country and his intention was, had he lived, to use as much of his influence as was at his command to have his wishes in this respect realized. The plan of purchasing "Aulestad" for this purpose and turn it into a "National Home for the Aged" has appealed to a good many and if a subscription list be started for the purpose of securing the necessary amount to purchase the Bjornson estate, it is believed that there will be no difficulty in getting enough money. The Christiania papers have spoken very highly of this plan and it seems to be popular throughout the country.

The celebrated case of Editor Thommessen vs. the Verdens Gang has been settled in favor of the former. The jury returned a verdict which completely exonerated Herr Thommessen, and the Verdens Gang will have to pay a sum of 1,500 crowns to the former editor and pay all the expenses in connection with the trial. The Verdens Gang, a number of months ago, sued Editor Thommessen for deliberately misrepresenting the paper editorially and for neglect of duty. The case attracted a great deal of attention in Christiania, where Mr. Thommessen has a wide circle of friends and where it appears that he is held in general high esteem by the public.

Captain Amundsen has started on his long expedition and expects to pass Cape Horn somewhere about Christmas time and reach San Francisco in June, where his vessel will receive a thorough overhauling prior to proceeding north. Captain Amundsen has a splendid outfit and, with his characteristic determination, it is certain that his journey northward will result in many important scientific and geographical discoveries.

During the first six months of the present year Norway imported 186,000,000 crowns' worth of foreign goods and exported about 114,000,000 crowns' worth. Last year during the same period Norway imported 167,000,000 crowns' worth and exported goods to the amount of 103,000,000 crowns.

From all parts of the kingdom come reports of crop failures, owing to the drought, which was not broken until about three weeks ago. There will consequently be a decided impetus for the import business to the country this fall and winter so far as cereals are concerned.

More than 70,000 tourists have passed through the city of Christiania this summer or made brief visits in that city, taking in the sights about the city proper and its environs. The recent tourist season has been the largest on record in Norway.

Professor Gran is at present engaged in an extensive lecture tour in Norway, visiting the larger cities. His subject is "Bjornson, the Uncrowned King of Norway," and the professor is speaking to large audiences wherever he appears.

DENMARK.

Says a recent Copenhagen dispatch: The Danish government steamer Hans Egede arrived here today with the news that John R. Bradley, the financial backer of Dr. Frederick A. Cook's North pole expedition, was on his way to Etah to secure the much talked of records and instruments which Cook has said that he left at that Eskimo settlement, northeast of Greenland. The captain of the steamer thinks that Cook is with Bradley, but gives no particular reason for this belief. The Hans Egede, which is the vessel upon which the explorer traveled to civilization, fell in with a yacht at Godhaven, a Danish settlement on the south coast of Disco island, Greenland, and, in the course of exchanges between the masters, learned that Bradley was aboard the other craft. The polar hunt promoter admitted his identity and explained that he was bound for Etah to recover whatever had been left there by Dr. Cook. He refused, however, either to deny or confirm the report that he was accompanied by the explorer. The government vessel also brings the information that two missionaries who are working among the Eskimos who accompanied Cook on his expedition say that these Eskimos insist that the doctor reached the North pole, as he claims, prior to its discovery by Commander Peary.

A cholera epidemic has been prevalent in Copenhagen and vicinity during the past summer and even now the disease has not shown any signs of abating in spite of the most determined efforts on the part of the physicians to stop it. During the past summer there were over 600 cases of cholera in Copenhagen alone and in less than two weeks there were thirty-six deaths. It has been especially prevalent among children and most of the victims have been little folks.

Swedish and Danish customs officers gathered at Oresund the other day, where the Swedish representatives had been invited by their Danish colleagues to participate in an annual outing. It is so seldom that the customs officers of two countries meet that the gathering was unique, even regarded from that standpoint. The Danish customs officers had arranged an elaborate dinner for their guests at Tivoli, which was the scene of a most animated gathering.

Nearly all of Selma Lagerlof's works have been translated into the Danish language from the Swedish and are being read with a great deal of interest throughout the country at present. Her works are all proving popular in Denmark, which is also the case in Germany.

The approaching visit of the Russian czar to Copenhagen is attracting a great deal of attention, although there is no disposition on the part of government officials to talk a great deal about it. There is no country in Europe which the czar can visit with as much safety as Denmark.

Albert Ross Hill, president of the University of Missouri, still heads the list of possibilities as successor to President Cyrus Northrop of the University of Minnesota. DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Henry J. Altnow, probably the oldest person in that vicinity, died at Arlington of old age. The funeral took place on his ninety-eighth birthday. He was born in Prussia Sept. 21, 1812, came to this country and settled in Sibley county in 1856, where, with the exception of a very short time, he has made his home.

King Staples, who for many years was a well known lumberman and timberman of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, is dead at Portland, Ore. It was after him that Staples, Minn., was named and he once owned the townsite of Iron River, Wis. King Staples was sixty years of age at the time of his death.

Albert Young Merrill, a well known attorney, who practiced law in Minneapolis for the past seventeen years, author of the Anderson bill, which provided for the taxation of railway property, and several times a prospective candidate for attorney general of the state, is dead at Rockford, Ill.

Mrs. Caroline K. Day, one of the first settlers in Minnesota, is dead at her home in Farmington at the age of eighty-five years. She was born in Robinstown, Me., April 2, 1825, and was married to Joseph Lee Day June 11, 1843, at Machias, Me., and moved to Minneapolis in 1854.

Rev. Francis Bruce Ellis died at New Ulm after a week's illness with appendicitis. He was a member of the Minnesota conference and pastor of the Methodist church at Hendricks. He was forty-one years old.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Twenty men, women and children were carried down ladders and saved from impending death when a row of frame houses at 619-21-23 Fourth street south, Minneapolis, caught fire. The flames spread so rapidly that many occupants of 619, a boarding house, found themselves cut off from the halls and stairway. A dozen or more men, terror stricken, jumped from the second floor and were more or less injured.

While playing on the floor of the family residence at St. Paul David Hedman's baby, thirteen months old, swallowed a collar buton and died from suffocation before medical assistance could be given.

Riding on a Milwaukee switch engine at St. Paul Harry Hoover, eleven years old, lost his balance when the engine bumped a car. He was thrown off and so badly injured that he died shortly after.

Seven horses and four mules were cremated in a fire that did a damage estimated at $5,000 to the barn of Fred A. Rollins of Minneapolis.

ARMY OFFICER IS MISSING

Captain O'Connell Absent From Snelling Twelve Days.

Captain John J. O'Connell, Twenty-eighth infantry, one of the best known army officers in the department of Dakota, has been missing from Fort Snelling for twelve days under circumstances so mysterious that the police chiefs of St. Paul and Minneapolis and every army post in the Northwest have been notified to help in the search for him.

Brother officers at the fort say that he has either been murdered or committed suicide. He is known to have had more than $600 when last seen—sufficient motive, they say, for murder. Trouble with superior officers and the fact that he was to have been courtmartialed in the near future for a minor offense is given as a possible cause for suicide.

SETTLERS FIGHTING FLAMES

Forest and Swamp Fires Raging Near Mora, Minn.

Destructive forest and swamp fires are raging in the northern part of Kanabec county to the north, east and west of the village of Mora and many settlers are fighting day and night to protect their homes and property. Smoke is so dense in some localities that it is impossible to see over a few hundred feet.

The extreme dryness of the soil and vegetation greatly increases the hazard of fire and places the settlers at a great disadvantage in combatting its progress. Hundreds of tons of hay in the wild meadows and swamps which had been cut by farmers as winter forage to carry their herds through have been destroyed by these fires.

VICTORY FOR ROADS

State Two-Cent Fare and Commodity Rate Knocked Out.

Railroad rate legislation passed by the state legislature in the past several years received a body blow in the decision at St. Paul of Judge Charles E. Otis that rate reductions ordered are confiscatory and, therefore, unconstitutional. The railroads are also enjoined by the decision from keeping the rates in effect in the state.

The 2-cent passenger rate and the recent reduction of freight rates in all commodity lines must now be increased to the old figures prevailing before the beginning of the state railroad and warehouse commission's attempts to reduce them.

The decision holds that any attempt on the part of the railroad commission to adjust rates is a discrimination against the regulation of interstate commerce and therefore unconstitutional. The effect of his decision is apparently wide enough to nearly wipe out the ratemaking powers of the railroad and warehouse commission. The decision probably will be appealed, if the master's findings are sustained by the court.

The suits were filed by attorneys representing the stockholders of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Minneapolis and St. Louis railroads, but all other railroads operating in the state are affected by the decision. The railroad attorneys took no part in the cases. They were brought by the stockholders as a third party affected and the railroads were, in effect, defendants in the suit. The injunction granted enjoins the railroads from continuing the present rates and orders the officers of the various companies to put the former schedules into effect.

WOMEN CANDIDATES A TIE

Lot Cast in Becker County and Miss Kahler Declared the Nominee.

The contest between Mrs. Caroline C. Auxer and Miss Lulu H. Kahler for the Republican nomination for county superintendent in Becker county resulted in a tie vote, each receiving 1,971 votes. The canvassing board in casting the lot found that it fell to Miss Kahler and she was declared the winner. There is a strong likelihood that a recount will be demanded by Mrs. Auxer and a contest started. Mrs. Auxer has served four years as county superintendent.

SCARE CAUSES MAN'S DEATH

Auto Driver Dies After Running Into Farmer's Wagon.

H. A. Cleveland died of heart failure at Minneapolis after running into a farmer's wagon with his auto. He was alone, driving an automobile, when his machine lightly hit the wagon. There was no damage.

Immediately the automobile swerved to the right and went into Twelfth street and hit a tree. A fireman in front of a nearby station went to the man, who was sitting limp in the machine, and found him dead.

Snake Bite Proves Fatal.

Because he thought he possessed power to dodge the striking of a reptile, George Taayer, a former Pipestone man, who laid claim to the distinction of having been the first white child born in Pipestone county, is dead. Taylor was a contortionist with a carnival company and went into a cage of snakes to show that the reptiles were not quick enough to strike him. One of the snakes bit him in the arm and he died shortly afterwards.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

JAMES A. TAWNEY IS RETIRED

Leader in House of Representatives and Cannon Supporter Defeated for Renomination.

Although the Republican "insurgents" lost in the St. Paul and Minneapolis districts, they won a signal victory in the First congressional district in the defeat of James A. Tawney, for eighteen years the victor in exciting campaigns, but finally slaughtered in spite of the famous Winona speech which President Taft delivered in his district a year ago.

Sidney Anderson, the young attorney who defeated Tawney, has a plurality of about 2,700.

In the Fourth district Frederick C. Stevens, the present incumbent, won over Hugh T. Halbert, progressive, by 1,500 plurality.

In the Fifth district, Hennepin county, Frank M. Nye, the present Republican congressman, was renominated by less than 1,000 votes over Albert H. Hall, insurgent, and Alderman Thomas P. Dwyer was nominated by the Democrats after a lively scrimmage.

The Republican nomination in the Second district goes to F. F. Ellsworth by a small plurality and Winfield Scott Hammond, the present Democratic congressman, was easily renominated.

Patrick H. McGarry, standpatter, did not have a look in in the Sixth district, C. A. Lindberg of Little Falls, the present congressman, being renominated in a landslide.

Halvor Steenerson, in the Ninth, also won easily over H. P. Bjorge, and Clarence B. Miller, in the Eighth, defeated Alfred McKnight.

In the city contest at Minneapolis Mayor James C. Haynes was renominated by the Democrats by 4,000 over Alderman George B. Esterman. The Republican mayoralty nominee is W. E. Satterlee, who had a margin of 7,500 over C. J. Minor.

OPTIONISTS CLAIM MAJORITY

Say They Will Control Minnesota Legislature.

County optionists are claiming a sweeping victory at the primaries. At the anti-saloon headquarters it was said that the "drys" will have a majority in each branch of the legislature next year. They claim at least thirty-two senators and sixty-one representatives. Their maximum claim goes as high as thirty-eight senators and sixty-seven representatives.

"We are absolutely sure," said C. W. Start, "that we will be able to control each branch of the next legislature. A careful canvass of the returns has been made and we are sure of a working majority."

F. W. Zollman, attorney for the Minnesota Brewers' association, denies the claims of the county optionists and says that the brewers will have enough men in the legislature to head off any county option bill that may be proposed.

TO TAP FARMING COUNTRY

Electric Line From St. Paul to Southern Minnesota.

An electric interurban railway connecting St. Paul and Minneapolis with the vast territory tributary to the Minnesota valley in the southern part of the state is projected by St. Paul capitalists. The exact route of the line is not announced as yet, but enough is known to say authoritatively that Mankato, St. Peter and other cities in that locality will be on the main line. Branch lines will be constructed reaching the outlying farming districts. The lines will tap a rich agricultural district.

Again Tries to See Governor.

With a loaded revolver in his pocket Michael Angelo Scavo, the former proprietor of the "Bucket of Blood" saloon at St. Paul, again made an attempt to force his way into Governor Eberhart's office. He was stopped by Special Officer O'Connor, who arrested him and turned him over to the officers of the Central station. He is believed to be demented.

The National Flag.

The first display of the national flag at a military post was at Fort Schuyler, on the site of the present city of Rome, N. Y. The fort was besieged early in August, 1777. The garrison was without a flag, so one was made according to the prescription of congress by cutting up sheets to form the white stripes, bits of scarlet cloth for the red stripes, and the blue ground for the stars was made from a piece of the blue cloak belonging to Captain Abraham Swartwout of Dutchess county, N. Y. This flag was unfurled over the fort on Aug. 3, 1777.

The national flag was first unfurled in battle on the banks of the Brandywine Sept. 11, 1777. The flag was first hoisted over a foreign stronghold June 28, 1778, when Captain Rathbone of the American sloop of war Providence captured Fort Nassau, on the Bahama Islands. Captain Paul Jones was the first man to display the American flag on an American vessel. This flag was made by the women of Portsmouth, N. H., for the Ranger, which was fitted out at that port for Captain Jones. The Ranger sailed from Portsmouth on Nov. 1, 1777.

Buried Landscapes.

One of the most curious results of geological exploration is the discovery of "buried landscapes," by which is meant parts of the former face of the earth now covered under later deposits, but yet retaining so many of their original features that the geologist can ideally reconstruct the scenes that would have been presented to the eye of man if he had been present among them. Sometimes buried landscapes exist in countries now densely inhabited. Investigation has shown that one lies beneath the region in England known as Charnwood forest. The rocky projections seen there are the peaks and aretes of a buried mountain chain belonging to the old red sandstone period. Several different phases in the history of this landscape have been traced. At one time it contained salt lakes and desert expanses. In its modern form it is a pastoral region, with barren, stony tracts and rocky eminences where the ancient mountains project through the soil.—Detroit Free Press.

Whistler as a Horseman.

Boggs, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thoroughly disliked to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use. The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size. Whistler, with much vehemence, urged the man next him to "swap." The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size" and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."

"Oh, don't swap! Don't you swap, Mr. Whistler" cried the dragoon. "Yours is a war horse, sir!"

"A war horse!" exclaimed Whistler. "That settles it. I certainly don't want him."

"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man. "He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run."—Century.

Among Those Present.

Commenting with light irony on the pretensions of a certain nouveau riche, a contributor to Paris Figaro questions whether men of this type are any sillier than those of a past generation who belonged to well known families of long descent.

"There was one of the family of Croy," this contributor writes, "who was fond of showing an old painting of Noah entering the ark and crying out:

"'Sauvez les papiers de la maison de Croy!' (Save the records of the house of Croy!)

Corrected His Error.

With the Germans the absentminded college professor is a stock source of witticisms.

One of these deeply absorbed gentlemen, sitting on a rear seat, thought he knew a person sitting in front and was about to speak to him when, the stranger by chance turning a little, the professor saw that he was mistaken.

Nevertheless, touching him on the shoulder, he remarked politely:

"You will excuse me, but you are not the person I thought you were."

A fact that is worth while for the poultryman to remember is that a skunk never climbs and that a piece of tight fence three feet high placed across the door of the henhouse will be an effective bar to his entrance.

In localities where quack grass is getting a foothold, as it is in many eastern and central states where summer rainfall is usually abundant, a fellow should be a bit cautious about using raw manure got from stockyards and livery barns where there is likelihood that hay containing the mature seed has been used. This suggestion is made because, as every farmer knows to his sorrow who has had experience with the pest, it is a far simpler matter to get land fouled with the grass than it is to get rid of it after it gets a foothold.

Contrary to what one might suppose, bananas as they grow on the trees in the tropics are borne small end of the bunch upward. The fruit is never allowed to ripen on the tree, but is cut when half or three-fourths developed, there being enough sap in the fleshy stem to bring the fruit to proper maturity and to about the same size as if they were left on the tree. After the fruit is cut the trunks of the plants are cut off to within a few feet of the ground, and a new growth comes forth from the remains of the old, and on this the subsequent fruit is produced.

If reports are to be credited a new and most valuable friend of the apple grower has been found in the shape of a diminutive bee introduced into the southern states some years ago to wage war on the cotton worm and the present season put to work in western Colorado to prey upon the codling moth. The bee is known scientifically as the hymenoptera and has appeared by hundreds of thousands in the section named. It is planned to breed the parasite by millions another year, so that war can be waged on the codling moth from the beginning of the season.

There are mighty few men who possess such versatility that they can do two things just as well as they can do one. It's so in the case of cattle. If a breed makes an extra good showing along the line of beef production it is not reasonable to expect that a considerable portion of the food it eats can be converted into milk, and the reverse of this is equally true; hence if one inclines to beef production he would better stick to beef types—the Doddies, Herefords and heavy Shorthorns—while if dairying is his forte he will get better results with a strictly dairy breed—the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire or Holstein.

Nebraska pure food laws need overhauling if reports relative to conditions found in Omaha last spring can be relied upon. An investigation by the local board of health revealed the fact the parties who had been awarded the contract for removing dead animals from the city were feeding the carcasses to a big drove of hogs, which when fattened were doubtless worked up into "pure leaf lard" and "fancy" hams and bacon. An inspection of the premises where these hogs were kept revealed a pile of more than 500 carcasses of horses, cattle, dogs, cats and other animals. Being outside the city limits, the case was beyond the jurisdiction of the city health officers, while no law of the state prescribed any limit on the stuff which may be fed to hogs.

The owner of a 10,000 acre ranch or bunch of ranches near the state line in western North Dakota performs all of his farming operations—plowing, harrowing, seeding, harvesting and the thrashing—with big gasoline tractors, which are extremely simple to operate and require neither coal nor water for their operation. He has ten or twelve of these big "iron horses," and they give him a minimum of trouble. They need neither hay, grain nor water, seldom balk, never have colic or heaves, never are bothered with flies, get their tails over the lines or run away. A decided advantage of these big tractors over horseflesh or mule meat is that they furnish sufficient power so that the plows can be set to a depth of eight or ten inches instead of from three to five, as is the rule in most horse plowing. This means new soil to the surface and better crop returns. Not long since the writer passed through the section in which this ranch is located and saw one of these big horses pulling a gang of six or seven plows. The engine piffled along as quietly and steadily as an old Norman horse, and but one man was needed to operate the outfit. But one span of horses was used on the above ranch, and this was for the quick transportation of the proprietor from place to place.

There seems to be almost limitless possibility as to valuable additions which may be made to our lists of grains and fruits through importations from other countries. Already to this source we must credit the orange, lemon, Smyrna fig, Thompson seedless grape and other fruits, while recent importations in the line of grain include macaroni wheat, the Kherson and sixty day oats and the Russian and Turkey wheats. Several varieties of hardy alfalfa from northern Siberia are being now tested by the government, and much is expected from them. Much as has been done along this line, it is believed that it is but a small beginning.

An Englishman named Galvayne has discovered a new method of determining the age of a horse after it has reached the age of ten. He has noticed that at this age a groove begins to appear on the upper part of the corner teeth of the upper jaw and continues to grow down as the tooth is gradually worn away for about eleven years. At the end of that time the groove begins to wear away and at the end of about nine years has entirely disappeared. Thus at the age of sixteen the groove would extend about halfway down the tooth, at twenty-one it would extend the entire length and at twenty-six would be found on the lower half of the tooth. Heretofore the general appearance of the teeth, degree of wear and slope have been the chief means of determining a horse's age.

Many a woman who wears the aigret or plume taken from the white heron as a decoration for her best hat is doubtless ignorant of the fact that in securing these plumes a portion of the skin is removed from the back between the wings and that its removal means the death of the bird. And this is not all of the tragedy, for the plume hunter takes advantage of the mother love of the bird by hunting at nesting time, her attachment for her nestlings being so strong that she remains near them in the face of an attack and thus falls an easy victim. Not only she gives up her life, but her nestful of little ones starve to death, deprived of their mother's care. This briefly is the story of the aigret. It is one of sufficient pathos to appeal to any woman who is refined, has human sympathy and is not utterly depraved and hard of heart.

There will be held on Oct. 10-15 at Watsonville, in the beautiful Pajaro valley, in California, the "apple annual," as the yearly exhibition of the fruit in this particular locality is known. Watsonville is the center of the largest apple shipping section as well as the center of the largest single apple growing district in the world. Within a radius of a few miles are to be found more than a million trees, which will this year produce 3,000,000 boxes of fruit, or about 300,000,000 apples. At the exposition in question it is expected that there will be sixty carloads of exhibits, twenty being carload lots. A feature that has made the Watsonville show very popular and a splendid advertiser in the past is that apples were given away to the thousands of visitors, it being the view of the backers of the show that a luscious apple in the hand, or more particularly in the mouth, was a better booster than merely nicely printed pamphlets in a fellow's pocket or under the library table. A new exhibit pavilion is being built as a permanent home for the "annual," and it is expected that about twelve and one-half acres of floor space will be occupied by the exhibits this season. While the show has up to the present been a strictly state affair, it is possible that next season it may be opened to competition from the whole country, as the Watsonville people, whose slogan is "The apple show where apples grow," believe that with their Newtown Pippins and Belleflowers they can meet all comers.

The logan and phenomenal berries are among the most popular as well as best paying small fruits produced in the west. They reach a high state of perfection in the valleys of the Pacific slope. The two plants are much alike in habit and appearance, the only noticeable difference being that the leaves of the loganberry are a trifle darker than those of the phenomenal berry. In appearance the fruit of the two plants resemble large blackberries in shape and are deep red in color, while in flavor the phenomenal berry is a trifle milder than the loganberry. The origin of the two fruits is similar, both being the result of crosses. The loganberry is a hybrid resulting from pollenating the Aughinbaugh blackberry, a wild variety of California, with pollen from an Antwerp raspberry, its originator being Judge Logan of Santa Cruz, Cal. The phenomenal berry, one of Burbank's creations, is a cross between the improved California dewberry and the Cuthbert raspberry. As is often true in the case of other hybrids than horticultural, neither of these crosses is as hardy as its parents and often kills back with a zero temperature, but this difficulty can be overcome by covering the canes during the winter. A rich, mellow soil is ideal for these two fruits, and it should be well drained. Largest returns are possible with abundance of water at the proper time. A very satisfactory arrangement in planting is to set three feet apart in rows six feet apart and to train the vines on a wire trellis arranged on T posts. About four canes should be allowed to mature in each hill, the weaker being removed. As in the case of many other small fruits, these berries will give largest returns with heavy fertilizing.

If from this on the loaf of wheat bread is not so white as heretofore it is not because it is inferior in quality or less nutritious, but because a late decision of the department of agriculture forbids the bleaching of flour with hydrogen peroxide.

You now and then read of a $10,000 individual in the horse or cattle line, but this price looks small compared to the $60,000 which was refused a short time ago for Dick Stone, the finest bulldog in the world, whose death took place in London early last month.

Now and then a hawk acquires a taste for poultry and ceases to quite an extent preying upon the destructive rodents of the farm. Only in such a case, when raiding the poultry becomes a habit, should a hawk be shot, and never on mere suspicion and because it belongs to the hawk family.

The plumcot, a horticultural hybrid resulting from a cross between one of the large, tender plums and the apricot, may be of interest from the standpoint of the violence of the cross used to produce it, but it is considered by many who have sampled it to be inferior to both its parents from a standpoint of quality and utility as a commercial fruit.

The hog that is intended for the family larder will give much finer cuts of bacon and salt pork for frying and beans if the fattening ration is cut down to less than a third and barley, peas and oats substituted in its place. Let a family once enjoy pork made in this way and they will never voluntarily put up with pork from a straight corn fed hog.

Manure that lies a year before it is spread will contribute needed humus to the soil, but considerably more than half of its fertilizing value will have been lost. A way to get around much of this loss during the growing season, when much of the land is occupied with growing crops, is to scatter the manure as fast as it accumulates on the pastures, which need fertilizing as badly as do other portions of the farm.

According to a late decision of the acting attorney general, the cooking compound designated as "lard substitute," containing one-fifth animal fat and four-fifths cottonseed oil, has been declared as coming under the head of meat food products and as such must be marked "inspected and passed" before it can enter into interstate commerce. This view is one held from the first by Secretary Wilson, but which some manufacturers of the product have been disposed to dispute.

The old saying that the "sire is half the herd" is coming to be viewed, if anything, as an understatement rather than an overstatement of the facts in the case. Yet, notwithstanding this, too many dairymen and stock raisers are woefully slow in catching on and giving the truth practicable and profitable demonstration. Too many still plod on in the old rut, using any old scrub of the proper gender and having four feet, picked up at a country auction or selected from a bunch of canners at the stockyards. The trouble with men of this type is that they are short-sightedly stingy. They lose dollars in returns where they save pennies in initial investments, and they don't seem to be possessed of sufficient horse sense to appreciate the folly of their course.

Many a creamery, whether private or co-operative, might greatly increase its business and render a very real service to the farmers of the community patronizing it if the manager, buttermaker or directors—one or all—would take the lead in encouraging the patrons of the creamery to use the Babcock test and weigh their milk for the purpose of weeding out the cows that are not paying for their keep or at best yield but a paltry and unsatisfactory return. A creamery of this character, sustaining as it does a supervisory relation to the dairies of the community, could very appropriately take up this work, and the good results which would come from such a well directed cow testing campaign could hardly be measured. In many states wide awake dairymen have voluntarily formed such cow testing associations, and the results attained have been most satisfactory.

According to the last report of the bureau of statistics, the total amount of sugar consumed in the United States in the year ended June 30 last was 7,500,000,000 pounds, the average per capita consumption being eighty two pounds, which exceeds that of any preceding year. Of the above enormous total of sugar consumed there were produced in the United States 730,000,000 pounds of cane sugar and 1,025,000,000 pounds of beet sugar as against 820,000,000 pounds and 967,000,000 pounds, respectively, for the year preceding. The imports from foreign countries for the last year aggregated 3,918,000,000 pounds, which is a reduction of 188,000,000 pounds from the preceding year. The remainder of the sugar consumed amounted to 1,856,000,000 pounds, of which the Hawaiian Islands furnished 1,111,000,000, Porto Rico 563,000,000 and the Philippines 170,000,000 pounds. An interesting fact in connection with the history of sugar production for some years past is that, while foreign countries produced 75 per cent of the total amount consumed in 1890, they produced but 51 per cent of the amount used last year. In the production of beet sugar there has been an increase from 73,000,000 pounds in 1890 to 1,025,000,000 pounds last year.

THE HIRED MAN PROBLEM.

On a 200 acre farm which the writer visited the other day the proprietor explained a pile of a couple of hundred tons of manure in the pasture near the barn by saying that it was simply impossible to get the help necessary to do the work connected with his large dairy and at the same time to do the other work, including the spreading of the manure as it accumulated. He had offered fellows from town $1.50 a day and board, but they had "jumped the job" after a day or two, notwithstanding the fact that they were riding the manure spreader a good share of the time. The predicament in which this man found himself is not peculiar to the locality in which he lives. This "hired man" problem is one that touches vitally every man who has more work to do than can be handled by the members of his own family. It is true equally of the general farmer, the dairyman, the big grain farmer and of the fruit grower. Bad as the situation is, there seems no prospect that it is going to improve. In spite of the fact that the tide of foreign immigration is sweeping into the country at the rate of close to a million a year, there is still the greatest dearth of help. As a people we are multiplying tasks at a pace far outstripping the increase of hands to perform them. The time would seem to be near at hand when a readjustment was inevitable. It will mean first of all a division of farm and orchard areas to a point where they can be handled by the owner with a minimum of outside help; a substitution of machinery in place of hand labor in all work where at all feasible; a definite arrangement of work so that a fellow will be the victim of "labor" circumstances in the smallest degree possible. The theorist holds out hope from a transfer of thousands of folk from the congested city districts to rural communities where conditions of life are both financially, socially and morally more wholesome, but except in the case of foreigners used to agricultural labor this class has not proved at all satisfactory. These are some of the general aspects of the problem. Individually it is one that is minimized or aggravated in any particular case by the kind of treatment which an employer accords his help—whether stingy, small and fault finding or liberal, genial and appreciative. Perhaps some of the most perplexing phases of the problem depend upon the conditions just named. Everything considered, this help problem is one of the biggest which is up for settlement, and it is clear that a lot of thought will have to be devoted to even a partial solution.

THE HOLLOW BLOCK SILO.

Within a couple of weeks the writer has had opportunity to inspect carefully the silo which was designed and is at present highly recommended by the Iowa State college at Ames. This structure is called the "Iowa" silo and is constructed of clay hollow blocks, which are given the desired kink or curve on the cutting table. A substantial cement foundation from a foot and a half to two feet thick should be laid for the structure and put deep enough to extend below the post line and rest on solid earth. The courses of hollow blocks are laid in cement, and between every other course, if the hollow blocks are of the small size, a heavy wire girder is placed, which gives added strength and stability to the structure. The door frame is continuous and of solid cement, heavy iron rods running its full length, and to these are anchored the wire stays above mentioned. At intervals of about six feet cement braces extend across the doorway, these being re-enforced with steel ties attached to the upright rods. A cement roof is recommended for this silo, but this is not vital, one of metal or wood answering the purpose very well. The advantages of the hollow block silo are that it is practically air tight, that it does not warp and shrink when empty, that it will not rot and that the dead air spaces of the wall make the structure the warmest possible. The cost of a silo 18 by 32 feet, large enough to hold 200 tons of ensilage, will range from $350 to $480, depending upon accessibility of materials, etc. A considerable economy can be effected where several silos of this type are to be built in the same neighborhood by ordering the materials in carload lots. At the cost named the hollow block silo is as cheap as if not cheaper than a substantial wooden structure of like dimensions, counting first cost only and not taking into account any of the advantages above mentioned.

FIGHTING FOREST FIRES.

That forest fires are expensive affairs aside from the loss in timber and other property consumed by the flames may be gathered from the report of Assistant Forester Buck, who had charge of the fire fighting campaign in the Crater lake national forest and at a few other points in southern Oregon, and these fires were relatively small and indestructive as compared with many which have raged in the west during the past three months. This one campaign cost $30,000, of which amount $13,000 was paid in wages to fire fighters, $2,000 for tools, $5,000 for food for the fighters, while the remainder represents amounts which will have to be paid out to fire fighters and for service rendered by the soldiers.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL. XXVII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1910 NUMBER 41

INSTANTLY KILLED

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt, of Highlanding, Killed at Virginia.

Was Struck by a Train While on his Way to the city of Virginia.

Ray Arndt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt, of the town of Highlanding, was instantly killed last Thursday about one mile from Virginia, a city over on the iron range.

Ray had a responsible position with one of the large iron mining companies located a few miles from Virginia, and a few days prior to his death was taken sick. Thursday evening he started to walk to Virginia to secure medical aid and when about one mile from Virginia was struck by a train and instantly killed. The crew on the train that killed Ray did not know that they had run over him and therefore it will never be known how the accident happened.

Henry Arndt went to Virginia and brought the body to Thief River Falls on Friday and the funeral services were held Saturday morning under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. lodge, of which the deceased was a member.

The deceased was a very bright and likeable young man and was very successful in the mining field and held a very responsible position. He was thirty years of age and unmarried.

Have Leased Power.

The city council last week after a conference with D. N. Winton made arrangements to rent the engines and boilers of the Thief River Falls Lumber company for the winter, to run the dynamos for the city's electric light plant. The water in the river is so low that this action of the council is made necessary in order to furnish the people of the city with lights, as water power cannot be depended upon until next spring. The city is to pay the lumber company $5 per day rent and $2.25 per cord for wood delivered at the boiler rooms.

The members of the council figure that under this arrangement the electric light department will not be a revenue earner for the city, but will just about pay expenses.

A new dynamo is to be either purchased or rented and will be placed in the engine house at the mill in a short time.

Lars Hansen's Views.

Editor, "News:-" About the meanest of all the false arguments brought by the Red Lake Falls gang is that Thief River Falls is going to control the Pennington county board for selfish and unlawful purchases, as against the farmers. Now, let us see what there is to this argument.

In the first place those who drew up the petition and named the commissioners for the new county were Thief River Falls people, largely (as there was no time to spare, for the petition had to be filed before the debt for court house was created, in order to be sure to relieve the new county from this debt) and they certainly showed that they would give the farmers control of the new board, for they only named one of the five commissioners from their city, Mr. Shaw. Two farmers east of town about 25 miles, one south of the Red Lake River, the other north,—Mr. Hedin and Mr. Wold. Two farmers west of town, one in the extreme north-west corner, Mr. Nelson and Mr. Aubol. Does this look like a gerrymander for the city's control?—No, if we wish to be fair, we must admit that when they gave the farmers four-fifths of the new board, and spread those members as far from the city as they well could, they could do no better, providing they selected trustworthy farmers. Did they? Have you heard of any of them being of the grafting order, or badly liked at home? I think not, I have taken special care to get exact information regarding the two with whom I am not personally acquainted and have learned that they are good, trustworthy, well-posted and well-liked farmers, as well as those whom I do know personally.

Is it reasonable to think these men will turn the county over to a set of grafters, or give the city undue advantage over the county districts?

Then some will say: "It never looks reasonable that the people want to be governed by a bad set, but it is done never the less, as you must admit, right here in Red Lake County"

Conditions are peculiar here, and that is the principle reason why we have unsatisfactory county government. At the time Red Lake County was organized the east end was not settled,— neither the Eleven Towns nor the towns south of them on the original Red Lake Indian Reservation, consequently these towns were not entitled to representation at that time. This left the people with only the west part of the county entitled to representation, and this way a majority of the commissioner districts favored retaining the county seat at Red Lake Falls, or may have been gerrymandered to do so, as, even in those days Red Lake Falls people thought Thief River might have a future. Now then, to the answer to the quoted argument. As the eastern part got settled and Thief River Falls grew to be a city, the clamour for removing the County Seat there became more and more apparent. Something had to be done by the south end to prevent this removal, so of course they had to refuse to redistrict the county, otherwise the majority of commissioner districts would favor the removal. Then they must refuse to listen to the legal petition of the people for a vote on the removal proposition as well as for redistricting. The law being very plain in regard to the commissioners duty when thus petitioned, and being sworn to uphold the law, and yet their own people (the south end) expected them to refuse the petitions of the people, probably not knowing what a stretching of the conscience, both as to law and justice, it would require. So you see when a man accept a position like county commissioner in the three south districts under present conditions, he must either disregard the wishes of his constituents or else the law. Is it any wonder then that a majority elected and qualified with such conditions obtaining, that you got poor county government in regard to those matters as well as others?

In Pennington county those peculiar conditions would be entirely eliminated Each individual commissioner could represent his own district properly without sacrificing the interests of the county at large. There would be no excessive temptation to disobey the law in order to please his constituents.

If it were not for the conditions mentioned, we certainly all agree that taxpayers would all vote for the best men they could find to run the county government, so as to keep taxes at a minimum for the amount of public improvements made and the necessary expences incurred.

In the second place we must consider that Thief River Falls lies in a part of Pennington County that makes it to the city's interests in regard to expenditure to the County Road and Bridge Fund identical with the country districts. The principal roads needed are those to Thief River Falls, from all parts of Pennington County and the roads leading to their own city are naturally the ones Thief River Falls people would favor. We could not possibly start a new county under better conditions, and all those I have talked to, agree to this therefore let us all vote together for Pennington County not only because smaller counties can be run more economically, which is beyond all doubt proven, but still more removing the conditions here discussed, so conducive evil.

Very Sincerely,
Lars Hansen.

Boy Runaway.

Ole Nelson was in from Germantown the first of the week looking for his fourteen year old son, John, who ran away from home last week. The boy came to Thief River Falls and was seen here by parties who knew him, but his present whereabouts is not known. He is described as weighing about 100 pounds and had black hair. When he left home he wore a pair of overalls, a brown duck coat and cap. The only reason that can be given for his leaving home is that he did not want to be confirmed. He is said to be a good willing worker and Mr. Nelson believes that he is employed by some farmer in this vicinity.

Glasgow's Famous Choir Leaves The "Old Country".

Quite an ovation was witnessed on Saturday last at Glasgow Docks, prior to the departure of the Allan Line Company's S. S. "Ionian" containing the twenty members of the famous Glasgow Select Choir Company on voyage for Quebec. This celebrated combination of vocalists, who have twice had the honour of performing before Royalty, are making their debut in Canada and the United States, and the music-loving public of Thief River Falls and vicinity will have an opportunity of listening to their performance at the Auditorium on October 10th. Ticket sale will open on October 5th at J. A. Swore's.

A Hard Winter Predicted.

It's going to be a hard winter the old timers say.

The prognostication is based on general weather observations extending over considerable periods of residence at the head of the lakes, and upon the woodman's lore, which is concerned with the habits of birds and animals and the appearance of the forests and streams.

The fur-bearing animals of the forest are getting their new crops of fur earlier this year than usual. This is a sign of an early and hard winter. Even the prosaic horse shows this bit of horse sense, and is beginning to sprout unusually thick tufts of hair in preparation for cold weather of unusual severity.

Another sign is the sudden and early flight of night hawks toward south. For over a week these creatures have have been flitting toward a warmer climate, sometimes in noticeably large numbers. The flight of all birds southward will probably be early this fall, the wood-lore folk aver.

And furthermore, the hot summer with its lack of rain, is taken as another sure indication that there will be much snow, much cold weather, and a long winter during the rigid months that are approaching.

Made Good Money.

That it pays to farm in Red Lake county is proven by Andrew Nish, who lives east of the city. This spring he purchased a quarter section of land for $2,500 from a neighbor and put eighty acres of it in to flax. He has threshed forty acres from which he received an average yield of 14 bushels and hauled all of the grain to this city, receiving $1,400 for the same. He has still forty acres to thresh and when this is brought to market he will receive a total sum equal to the amount of the purchase price of the land. Mr. Nish also raised 900 bushels of wheat on his old farm.

"It Beats All"

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completly cured me." Contains no opiates. Sold by all Druggists.

Eye Glasses properly fitted. Dr. Spofford will be at Evelyn Hotel, Thief River Falls, Oct, 8.

A Fine Farm for Sale.

160 acres of fine farm land in the town of Clover Leaf, about 80 acres under cultivation, 40 acres fenced for pasture and a fine meadow on it, has an artesian well 140 feet deep and an abundance of fine pure water as soft as rain water, has a house, barn, grainery, etc. Will sell cheap for cash or will trade for desirable city property. Call quick or you may be too late. Evenson & Hamre.

Want Bridges Built High.

It is suggested by those living northeast of here on the Germantown and Grygla ditches that the various bridges across the main ditches be high enough to pass under them. These ditches are what could be almost called canals and there will be enough water in them most of the year to float gasoline boats. This would afford a means of cheap transportion for the settlers up there.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye:

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley Kidney Pills I had severe backaches and pains in my kidneys with suppression and a cloudy voiding. On arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and again feel like my own self." Sold by all Druggists.

Refused Permission.

At the meeting of the council Tuesday evening, the Tri-State Telephone company submitted a proposition to the council asking permission to put their telephone wires in the business part of the city under ground. The council refused to accept the proposition on the grounds that the Tri-State company has no legal franchise at present and if the city ever desires to put in a system of its own, it will be in a position to deal with the Tri-State company to advantage if the permission to put the wires under the ground is not given.

A Generous And Charitable Wish.

"I wish all might know of the benefit I received from your Foley's Kidney Remedy," says I. N. Regan, Farmer, Mo. His kidneys and bladder gave him so much pain, misery and annoyance, he could not work, nor sleep. He says Foley's Kidney Remedy completely cured him. Sold by all Druggists.

Free Delivery Soon.

Free delivery of mail is soon to be established in Thief River Falls. John H. Lurey, one of the special inspectors of the post office department, arrived in the city yesterday and will remain for a few days establishing routes for the carriers. It is expected that two mail carriers will be required at the start to cover the city and these will be selected by civil service examination. The streets of the city are all numbered.

Proposed Amendments

—TO THE—

Constitution

—OF—

Minnesota

—BY—

The Legislature General Session 1909.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1, 1910.

Hon. Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State—

Sir: As required by Section 25 of the Revised Laws as amended, I have the honor to furnish you herewith a statement of the purposes and effects of the respective amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota by the Legislature of 1909 and which are to be submitted to the electors in said state at the general election in 1910.

FIRST PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The first proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 506 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to authorize the payment by the State from the State Road and Bridge Fund of one-half of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein, and is an amendment of Section 16 of Article 9 of the Constitution, which now reads as follows:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided further, that in no case shall more than one-third (⅓) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund," and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund, to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided, further, that in no case shall more than one-half (½) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund."

EFFECT. The present Constitution authorizes the payment by the State, out of such fund so created of ONE-THIRD (1-3) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein. If this amendment is adopted the State could then pay ONE-HALF (½) of the cost of constructing any such road or bridge, and the effect of the amendment is thus to increase the amount which the State may lawfully pay toward such purpose.

SECOND PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The second proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 507 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to repeal the provisions of Section 11 of Article IX of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. There shall be published by the treasurer, in at least one newspaper printed at the seat of government, during the first week in January of each year, and in the next volume of the acts of the legislature, detailed statements of all moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, for what purposes and to whom paid, and by what law authorized; and also of all moneys received, and by what authority and from whom."

EFFECT. The Constitution requires the treasurer to publish yearly a detailed statement of the moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, giving the names of the persons to whom paid and the purposes for which it was expended. It also requires a like statement of the names of the persons, and the sources, as to money received, and in both cases a statement of the law under which payments were made, or money paid into the treasury. The effect of this Amendment, if the same be adopted, will be to repeal the section of the Constitution mentioned and insofar relieve the treasurer from such publication. This change in the Constitution, however, would not prevent the legislature from hereafter directing by law that such, or a different publication, of the same or other information should be made by the Treasurer.

THIRD PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The third proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 508 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 17, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment, by the State of Minnesota, of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, including the necessary expenses of giving effect to this act, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment, if adopted, will be to authorize the State to become a trustee in the collection and disbursement of a fund for the payment of damages to growing crops by hail or wind, or either. This fund is to be created and maintained by a specific tax imposed by the legislature upon the lands of such persons, ONLY, as shall voluntarily list the same with their respective county auditors for that purpose. Under it there could be no tax for such purpose imposed on the lands of any owner who does not consent thereto. The legislature is also authorized to include in such fund the necessary expenses of administration of the law. The adoption of the amendment will authorize the legislature to direct that the taxing machinery of the state be used to levy and collect the tax necessary to raise such fund and to provide for the disbursement of same by the officers of the State; but any payments to be made by the State, by reason of damage by hail or wind will have to be made from such fund and from no other. In the settlement of any such damages the State would assume no liability beyond the amount of such fund, and could not further be rendered liable. A similar amendment was offered at the general election of 1908, but not adopted. The amendment then offered read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment by the State of Minnesota of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

The main difference between the amendment now offered, and the one last quoted, being that the legislature is now to be authorized, in addition to providing a fund for the purpose of paying damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, to further provide an additional tax upon the lands of the persons so listing the same, to meet the necessary expenses incurred in the administration of the law and thus relieve the State therefrom. This last provision was not included in the amendment offered in 1908.

FOURTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fourth proposed Amendment is contained in Chapter 509, General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Section 23 of Article IV of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and every tenth year thereafter. At their first session after each enumeration so made, and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional senatorial and representative districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section second of this article."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year 1915, and every ten (10) years thereafter. At any session after any enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made pursuant to law and also at any session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or any of the same, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section 2 of this article."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment will be to direct the legislature to provide for a census of the inhabitants of the State in the year 1915, and every tenth year thereafter, and will also authorize the legislature to change the boundaries of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or of any one of such districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts, at any session after any State or Federal census. If adopted, the legislature might therefore, if it deems best, change at any session the boundaries of such districts and apportion anew the senators and representatives and thus redistrict the State every two years.

FIFTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fifth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 510, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 18, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 18. To secure a sustained yield of timber for the use of the people of this state, the proper officials shall annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property within this state, the proceeds of which shall be used for the purchase of land better adapted for forestry purposes than for agriculture for the state at not over $3.00 per acre, and for the production and maintenance thereon of forest according to forestry principles.

"Unexpended balances shall not lapse but constitute a fund for forestry purposes.

"The timber produced thereon shall be sold at a fair valuation and the revenue therefrom or from other source shall be paid into the state treasury, except that one-quarter of the net revenue shall be paid to the towns, or if unorganized, to the county, in which the land is situated, in aid of public schools and roads.

"Should any tract acquired be found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, it may be sold and the proceeds used for acquiring or developing forestry land.

"Until otherwise directed by the legislature, which may supplement these provisions with necessary enactments, the state forestry board shall draw and disburse the money hereby provided and purchase, manage and control the lands and forests.

"No money shall be paid for any tract until the attorney general shall certify to the validity of the title.

"It shall be competent for two successive regular legislatures, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to repeal any of these provisions."

EFFECT. This proposed amendment, and the proposed amendment hereafter mentioned should be read together. They constitute the foundation for a plan of State reforestration. As the constitution stands today, while the legislature might pass laws providing funds to be used for the purchase of lands, and the cultivation of the same for reforestration purposes, yet it is not directed to do so. The effect then of this amendment is to COMPEL the taxing officers of the state to annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property in the state, to be used as the legislature shall direct, for the purchase for the state of land adapted to forestry purposes, but at a price not to exceed $3 per acre. All unexpired balances in the fund at the end of each fiscal year shall not lapse, but shall be carried over into the fund thus raised for the succeeding year and shall be an addition thereto. It also directs the sale, at a fair valuation, of the timber produced on such land so purchased, the payment of three-fourths of the money received therefrom into the state treasury, and the payment of the remaining one-fourth to the town, if organized, or otherwise to the county in which the land is situated, and that the same shall there be credited to the public school funds. If after the land is purchased it is found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, authority is contained in this amendment to sell it, but the proceeds must be used for acquiring or developing forestry land. Until the legislature provides otherwise, all purchases shall be under the direction of the State Forestry Board. The title to all lands purchased must be approved by the Attorney General before purchase is made. It is further provided that two successive regular legislatures shall have power by a two-thirds vote of each house to repeal any of the foregoing provisions. That is to say, if after a trial, such plan for any reason is found to be impracticable or undesirable, and it so appears to two successive legislatures, any or all of the foregoing provisions of the amendment may be repealed. The legislature does not now possess such power and the same is a distinct change in the methods heretofore in vogue in Minnesota, in the making and revising of the Constitution. Heretofore an amendment might only be made to the Constitution or a provision of that instrument eliminated by direct vote of the electors. Under this amendment, if it be adopted, that power is not taken away and also exists. But a new power, that of repeal by the legislature, as to this amendment, is created. Such power, however, would extend to no other provision of the Constitution and affords an easy method of change in case of necessity or advisability.

SIXTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The sixth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 511, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution to be known as Section 17a, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17a. Laws may be enacted exempting lands from taxation for the purpose of encouraging and promoting the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon."

EFFECT. The effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to enact laws exempting from taxation lands of private persons to be used in the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon, and thus supplement where the lands of such private persons are devoted to reforestration, the purposes contemplated as to public lands by the fifth proposed amendment. The authority so granted is part of a general plan for the reforestration of land within the state. If the legislature does not pass such laws, such lands will not be exempt and the power to repeal such a law, when enacted, remains with the legislature. Power to pass a law to exempt such lands from taxation the legislature does not now possess, and it is, therefore, an additional grant of power.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE T. SIMPSON,
Attorney General.

St. Paul, May 1, 1910.

Mr. Julius A. Schmahl,
Secretary of State.

Dear Sir:—Referring to proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 2 I would say: As state expert printer I have given the publications involved in this proposed amendment special thought, and am of opinion both these publications are entirely superfluous. The extensive [illegible] publication "in a daily newspaper published at the capital city" attracts absolutely no attention. The annual report of the state treasurer is published in book form, and to an extent that makes it easy for every person specially concerned to secure a copy. To conform strictly with the law as it is at present, means the expenditure, under reasonably favorable printing contracts, of approximately [illegible], a sum which can be used to excellent advantage under [illegible] which ordinarily exact the greatest care and economy upon the part of those under whose direction the printing fund is expended.

Yours respectfully,
J. T. MANNIX,
State Expert Printer.

GRAY AND COUNTY OPTION.

In his key note speech at Fergus Falls, James Gray, Democratic candidate for governor says:

> My opponent has said that if a county option law were presented to him by the legislature he would sign it. He could do no less. If elected, I will do more. I shall take the position that my election was a mandate from the people to put this question up to the legislature, and I shall exercise the constitutional function of the governor to recommend proper legislation to carry out their will.

This sounds very well, but the voters are not going to be fooled. Under normal conditions, Minnesota is a strong Republican state, and a large per cent of that Republican vote favors county option. In the Democratic party there is little or no county option sentiment, but if the Republicans who believe in county option unite with the Democrats, there is no question but that Mr. Gray would be elected governor. Mr. Gray has undoubtedly taken this position upon the advice of Frank Day John King and other members of the kitchen cabinet. These members of the kitchen cabinet are not sincere in desiring to see a county option law passed, but one desirous of perpetuating themselves in office for two more years.

In the last session of the legislature, with one exception we believe, every Democratic state senator and representative were against county option. Practically every Democrat who is a candidate for the legislature this year is against county option and so pledged. Therefore Mr. Gray in "exercising the constitutional function of the governor" to recomend the passage of a county option law would be wasting his time. The Republican members of the legislation (and they will be in the majority) would be under no obligation to follow his advice and Democratic members would not. Gov. Eberhardt has pledged himself to sign a county option bill if one is passed and that is all that Mr. Gray can do.

But while Gray is on the stump talking county option, the members of the kitchen cabinet will be busy soliciting contributions from the brewers to elect members of the legislature who are unfavorable to county option, and Youngdahl and others will be sent out among the church people to gather in campaign funds on a commission basis. The members of the kitchen cabinet are not so very slow, but we miss our guess if the people do not get onto their game before election day.

The Eleven Towns says that the small majority given to A. L. Hanson in this district and the election of A. D. Stephens in the Polk county district was due entirely to their stand upon county option. There is absolutely no question as to this. Senator Hanson made one of the best records of any senator in the last legislature and if it had not been for the county option issue he would have received a tremendous majority.

In this issue the News publishes the "key note" speech of Gov. Eberhardt. It should be read by every voter in the state.

FACTS ABOUT COUNTY DIVISION

South end anti-divisionists, thru their official mouthpiece, the Red Lake Falls Gazette, state that Thief River Falls cannot dispose of its city hall to Pennington county for a court house. This has about as much truth in it as has nearly all the division dope which has appeared in the down river sheet. It is sufficient reply to say that within ten days, the county commissioners of Pennington county will be in possession of a warranty deed to the present city hall of Thief River, to hold the same in trust for Pennington county.

The south enders farther state that Pennington county will have to go to heavy expense to construct a county jail. This jail matter has purposely not been hinted at by the divisionists, the Gazette faithfully complies.

The city jail stands on the city hall property in Thief River, and it will be transferred at the same time as is the city hall. It is a new jail built of cement blocks, is modern and sanitary, supplied with the latest form of steel cells and other conviences and was constructed under state supervision. It is ample for county jail purposes for many years to come, possibly for all time to come. Thus another bugaboo scare man, with which the worried south end people had hope to terrorize the Pennington voter, tumbles to the ground. If the voters support division, they will receive a county house and a county jail free and both under warranty deed. They will also be relieved from paying for the costly court house at Red Lake Falls and from the heavy taxes now fixed on Red Lake county. The choice is easily made.

The down river workers frequently complain that certain unfortunates who violate law in Thief River are caught and punished by being committed to the county jail, as the law demands. This has probably nothing to do with division, but as Thief River pays one-fifth of the county taxes she more than pays for their board and care.

The apparent trouble with Thief River is that she sometimes catches evil doers, while, on the other hand, as serious offense as stealing a petition from a county office or burning a court house is considered quite a joke in Red Lake Falls. The difference is merely one of moral standard and the wonder is that any person violating law in Red Lake Falls ever finds his way to the county bastile.

As one sidelight on why Red Lake county taxes are the second highest average in the state. Beltrami being the highest it is fair to state that the legal department of the county cost twice and thrice what the same does is counties hereabouts. William Michelet was duly elected two years ago to the office of county attorney, and receives a salary of $1200 annually. No one ever questioned his legal attainments, his learning or desire to proform his official tasks. Yet, his duties are almost preformed by special attorney employed by the majority of the county board. The official proceedings of this board show that these special attorneys receive more each year than does the legally elected official. This same needless waste of the people's money marks every other department of county government. It has been so for years and is now a fixed costum and saddled Red Lake county with its present heavy taxes. This extravagance is seen in the purchase of county supplies, in the construction of public buildings and grounds, in the construction of the farmers' ditches, in the granting of contracts in the number of unnecessary deputies, clerks and assistants which swarm the county house, in the county printing, in the funding of county inleptedness and in the handling of county bonds.

The north end commissioners have consistently fought this waste for years but without seccess. A change of county commissioners at the approaching election will not wipe out the debts already contracted. Nothing but secession and the establishment of Pennington county can exempt the taxpayers from further burdens.

A Thief River visitor at the county seat last week became engaged in conversation about county division with a Red Lake Falls gentleman. They Both expressed regret at the hard feelings which the six years contest between the two sections had engendered, and they both admitted that the people in the main, north and south, were kindly disposed and honorable.

The Thief Riverite innocently inquired just why the south end was opposing division so betterly, and in reply, the other said, "Why, who would pay our taxes if we let Pennington county go?"

The moral side of a proposition appeals most stongly to some people as it ought to all. In the division contest this phase of the subject has been almost ignored.

Morally, it were well to divide the county of Red Lake. Nothing will be taken from the south end or from Red Lake Falls; no injustice will be done any one or any section by dividing. Each half of Red Lake county will have more than ample valuation to maintain efficient county government at low taxes, if honestly administered. Each can be better secured by a county seat in either part. Each is also greater in valuation and area than other Minnesota counties.

With a divorce accomplished, the two parts will settle down to business, bad feeling die out and peace prevail. These considerations of themselves are very important and will induce many persons to support division.

Strange as it sounbs, four classes of voters in the south half will support county division. The first consists of those who are sick and tired of the endless county jangle, and who believe that it will never cease (as it won't) until the two sections are divorced.

The second is the one which really believes that smaller counties are more honestly governed than larger ones and the small county has the low taxes, that they can be watched better by the people and thus the expenses be kept down.

The third is the class which has been taught to hate and distrust Pennington county and its citizens. By one fell stroke next November, this class will sever all relations with the bad northerners forever.

The fourth class is located in the county seat and through their official mouth piece has loudly announced that they will not supply funds for this fight, that the farmers must make this contest themselves. These shrewd gentlemen are not making a vigorous campaign, as they state they will have a county seat no matter how the election goes. Their interests will be less disturbed in the future under division than under the present county arrangements. This division agitation has not been good for a continuance of the present conditions; it has caused people to sit up and take notice of those who are the cause of the heavy county taxes.

Each of these four classes will not noisily announce their feelings in the division proposition, but the size of their quiet vote is going to be a surprise to the public.

Every week the anti-divisonista admit that small counties are more economically governed than are large ones and that the taxes in the small counties are the lower. They always claim, though, that these small counties are in southern Minnesota, that they are old and rich and have all their indebtedness paid up.

Better a few facts than columns of claims and talk and generalities. To prove that a small new, northern county in Minnesota can be run more cheaply and with lower taxes, the following facts about Kanabec county, taken from the annual report of State Auditor Iverson for last year, are presented. This county is like several other small northern counties: It lies next to Carlton Aitkin, Mille Lacs and Pine in the extreme northeastern part of the state. Its market is Duluth. All the counties mamed were and even now are wooded. Kanabec was formely a lumber country and only within the last twelve years could it be said to have entered the farming class. Today the northern part is covered with woods or cut-over lands.

It has only 15 townships; Red Lake has 29; Pennington 17; reduced Red Lake 12.

Assessed valuation of Kanabec, $1,798,099; of Red Lake $3,744,509; of Pennington, $2,113,226; of reduced Red Lake, $1,763,217.

Votes cast in the last election in Kanabec, 1259; in Red Lake 2929; in Pennington about 1750; in reduced Red Lake, about 1150.

Average value of land in Kanabec, $4.50 per acre. in Red Lake, $4.60.

Total county taxes raised last year in Kanabec, $18855.42; in Red Lake $62924.39; and the county funds overdrawn $17192.40. Kanabec paid out in 1909 $1528.37 for county poor, so this should be deducted from its total taxes to place it on the same basis as Red Lake, the latter having no county poor. it would make a tax of $17,327.04 raised for county expenses, as against Red Lake's $62924.39 and the funds overdrawn.

Kanabec has a small debt, paying only $809.13 for interests on bonds, Red Lake for the same purpose $5,242.35 yearly.

Kanabec cost per township for government is $1155. against Red Lakes $2247 per township.

Kanabec has a handsome county house and hardly any debt of any kind. Red Lake is different.

Kanabec has one officer for each office and the work is well performed. Red Lake has a host of specials deputies, clerks and assistants, not to mention a crowd of hangers-on, and persons supported indirectly by county revenues.

Kanabec is about half the size of Red Lake, has poorer soil, fewer people, has poorer roads, smaller farms, just as many county offices but not officers, and it still maintains an efficient county government at a low rate of taxation.

There are other northern counties about as young as Red Lake which are accomplishing the same thing. It is being done all over the state, but the anti-divisionist would try to deceive the people into believing that it is only near the Iowa line that this can be found. They dare not tell the truth in the matter, as it would be their undoing.

Pennington county, and for that matter reduced Red Lake also, will have as low taxes as Kanabec under division, when the people are near the offices and the officials are near the people.

Put Two Saloons Out of Business.

Two Bemidji saloons were on Monday put out of business by the government, as the result of evidence showing that they have been supplying liquor to persons of Indian blood.

Ole Anderson, who has been running a place at 106 Third street, and Dudley A. Mahan, who have been operating at 212 Minnesota avenue, were notified by Government Agent N. J. Sero that they must close up their places.

In neither instance was any liquor confiscated, but the proprietors were warned that they must ship their goods outside of the restricted district within twenty-four hours.

Mr. Sero would not discuss the incident other than to say that he was obeying instructions and that the evidence against the places involved is conclusive.

Had A Big Celebration

The "neighbors and friends" of C. A. Lindquist had a regular barbecue on Saturday Oct. 1, to celebrate the result of the last campaign and election. A large bonfire, that could be seen for miles, was kept up the greater part of the night. Things good to eat and drink were handed out with a free hand and a general jollification was indulged in. Speechmaking, singing and reading of original poetry constituted a large part of the program.

All Bids Rejected.

At a meeting of the city council held last Friday evening, bids for the construction of the proposed three new sewer systems in Thief River Falls were opened. There were quite a number of sewer contractors in the city, but only three bids were submitted. Those submitting bids were O. F. Doyle, of St. Cloud, Fraser & Danforth, of Rochester, and P. McDonald, of Duluth. They all bid upon the entire three systems, but it so happened that each bidder had the lowest bid on one of the systems. It looked to the council as if there had been a frame-up on the part of the bidders and so all of the bids were rejected. The bids were considerable higher than the estimated cost of the work.

The council is now undecided as to whether new bids will be asked for or whether to go ahead and hire competent foremen and do the work by day labor. There should be no reason why the city could not do this work as cheaply as any contractor.

City Scales.

At a meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening a resolution was passed to the effect that city scales be established. All coal, hay and other articles sold in the city will then have to be sold according to the city weight. Alderman Jensen, Fasel and Booren were authorized to pick out a location for the public scales.

Local Packing Houses.

A contributor to Wallace's Farmer suggests as a cure for the present intolerable conditions, both in the marketing of live stock and in the supplying of meats to the consumer, the establishment of a local packing-plant in every county. He declares that "All of the live stock sold for packing purposes could just as well as not be packed within the borders of the county. A co-operative packing-plant could be managed as well as a co-operative creamery or an insurance company". He suggests that each such plant be provided with an inspector from the State Agricultural School, his salary to be paid by a tax. All meats killed for packing, or refrigerated at the plant and sold fresh, would thus have a State guarantee of their wholesomeness. Such an arrangement would save the haul to Chicago and return. The farmers would get at least as good prices for their stock as now, and both they and the townspeople would pay far less for the finished products. The county packing-houses would have as little difficulty in disposing of their meats as the creameries have in disposing of their butter; for they would equally have the confidence of the consumers. All the economies in the use of by-products, etc., could be as readily practiced in the county establishments So many reasons can be cited, in fact, why a system of local packing-houses should be preferred to the present system, that apparently only the inspiration of a good leadership is necessary to bring about the establishment of local concerns in large numbers. —C. Mothers, Quality Counts

Quality is always important, but in boys' clothes it is absolutely necessary.

It requires the very best materials and making to keep the knees and elbows covered, the seat from needing patches, the seams from splitting open.

Quality, highest quality, perfection; that's the standard of the makers of XTRAGOOD clothes for boys. It's the standard of this store, too.

We meet your demand for quality with merchandise of quality. It counts in the fabrics, in the linings, in the tailoring. It counts in the longer wear the boy gets from the garments, in the satisfaction they give while worn.

Think of this store as a quality store. Think of XTRAGOOD clothes as clothes of quality. Select your boy's suit or overcoat here.

"It Beats All"

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completly cured me." Contains no opiates. LAW APPEARS INADEQUATE

"Mashers" Very Numerous in Stockholm and Few Are Punished for Their Actions—Southern Part of Norway Stirred by Meetings of Sensational Evangelist—Recent Socialist Congress at Copenhagen Expended 50,000 Crowns.

SWEDEN.

Women are sometimes treated very disgracefully on the streets of Stockholm and it does not appear that there are adequate enough laws in vogue to punish boorish men, who stop respectable women on the street and engage in conversation with them and otherwise insult them with improper proposals. The other evening while Disponent A. Kliblom of Nykoping, who, by the way, is a much respected citizen in his home town, was, together with a gentleman friend, his wife and daughter, leaving a restaurant on Drottnings street to go to their hotel, he was suddenly amazed to see that his wife and daughter, who were walking a little in advance of the men, were stopped by a couple of young mashers, who proceeded to place themselves directly in front of the ladies and engage them in a conversation. Mr. Kliblom immediately interfered in behalf of his wife and daughter, whereupon one of the young men struck him a fierce blow in the face, splitting his lip, and also struck him another blow right over his eye, which split the eyebrow. Mr. Kliblom reported the matter to the police at once, who found that the man who had insulted the ladies was a fellow by the name of Nystrom. He was taken before the court, but claimed that he had a right to talk to whom he pleased on the street and, owing to lack of witnesses, he was immediately released. This is only one case in a hundred and it happens almost every night in Stockholm that men will stop defenseless women on the streets and in the parks and attempt to engage them in conversation, follow them for several blocks and make improper insinuations. A woman who goes out unaccompanied on the streets of Stockholm after 9 o'clock can never feel safe. It is a matter that the city council of Stockholm should act on at once, or the city will get an international questionable reputation.

The Swedish National Anti-Emigration society will open a hotel in Gothenburg the middle of next month, which has been named the "Homeland hotel." In this hotel there will be a small industrial exhibition, showing Swedish-American homecomers what progress is being made along industrial lines in the home country. It is also an aim to make this hotel an attraction for Swedish-American tourists. The Anti-Emigration society in Gothenburg is a busy organization and is working systematically and zealously to induce home returning Swedish-Americans to return for good to the mother country and also to check the emigration movement all over the country by means of advertising literature and lectures.

His majesty, King Gustaf, has decreed that paragraph 9 of the statutes of the Nobel foundation shall be amended to read as follows: "At the festival of the foundation, which occurs on the anniversary of the founder, Dec. 10, the judges of award shall deliver to the winners of the prizes checks for the amounts of the prizes, as well as diplomas and a gold medal showing a picture of the testator and a suitable inscription. The prize winners shall, if possible, be required to appear within six months of the festival at Stockholm and, in the case of the peace prize at Christiania, to give public lectures on the work for which the prizes were given."

Major General J. G. Wikander, chief of the Sixth infantry, has tendered his resignation. It is rumored that General Wikander contemplates severing all connections with the military and devote the rest of his life to his business affairs. His successor may possibly be Major General Jungstedt.

Johan Ljjegren, a wagon manufacturer of Ljunby, suddenly departed for America, leaving an indebtedness amounting to at least 200,000 crowns. Several of his best friends are involved and also a number of business men who were backing him and who had faith in him.

Queen Victoria is at present in Germany visiting her mother, the Grand Duchess Luise. The crown princess and her children arrived at Sofiero Sept. 6 and have since departed for England. The crown prince will join his family in England within a week or two.

A peculiar thing occurred in Nyby the other day when Sofia Hammar, a woman aged ninety-one years, suddenly recovered her eyesight after having been totally blind for over six years.

A gang of thieves, six in number, who have been operating very extensively in Uddevalla and vicinity, were finally arrested the other day by the Uddevalla police. They had stolen goods to the amount of 30,000 crowns.

NORWAY.

In the southern part of the country, especially in the vicinity of Kristiansund, the former Methodist minister, Barratt, has recently been conducting a most comprehensive evangelistic movement by means of "speaking in tongues" and religious miracles, so that people have been stirred to the wildest kind of fanaticism. Long telegrams and stirring accounts in the newspapers picture the religious movement in the darkest of colors and if the newspapers are telling the truth there are conditions in that city and vicinity which are indeed deplorable. In Holrrag congregation the pastor of the church has joined the Barratt forces, who have now made their headquarters at the church, where they hold sensational meetings, engage in the "speaking in tongues" and convert people by means of "laying hands on their heads," heal the sick and stir up the people to a pitch of the greatest excitement. Barratt seems to have the upper hand in the community and the old, conservative, common sense people appear to have little to say.

There are slumbering millions in the northern part of the country and it is only a question of time until the rich iron ore country will be developed and yield immense results. But things work out slow in Norway. There is apparently lacking the necessary working capital and until that puts in an appearance the immense iron and copper ore fields will remain dormant. The Tromsoe sound country has been investigated recently and mining experts claim that the ore fields in that country extend over a distance of at least seven English miles. Over 45 per cent of the ore is iron.

Great preparations are already under way for the exposition in Christiania in 1914. The executive committee will have about 3,000,000 crowns to start with, but a great deal more money will undoubtedly be required later on. There is a movement on foot to start an industrial lottery and raise money in that way. A great advertising campaign will be inaugurated and every legal way of raising money for the exposition will be resorted to.

The American process of reducing milk to a powder has been introduced into Norway. One of the new companies formed has contracted to deliver 300 tons of dry milk each year for three years to an English firm. The dry milk is used largely for invalids and convalescents and on ships on long voyages, because of its qualities of preservation under all climatic conditions and its convenience of transportation.

Wilhelm Krag, the well known author and recently director of the National theater in Copenhagen, has resigned from his position at the theater and will hereafter devote all his spare time to literary work. He will also be engaged as one of the editors of the H. Aschehoug Publishing company in Christiania.

At Hammarfest, in the extreme northern section of the country, snow fell as early as Aug. 18. But Finmarken beats it, for there snow falls every month in the year.

DENMARK.

The expenses of the recent socialist congress, which was held in Copenhagen last month, are to be paid by the so called "Samvirkende Fagforbund." The expenditures amount to over 50,000 crowns. The festal cantata, which was composed by A. S. Meyer, will cost alone something like 6,000 crowns. The Copenhagen papers are wondering how the socialists could afford to spend 6,000 crowns for the composition of music suitable for the occasion when there are so many laboring men that are clamoring because they are out of work. It is rumored, too, that it will be difficult for them to pay the 50,000 crowns which were expended during the congress.

Horace Fletcher, an American millionaire, who spent the summer in Copenhagen, fell so in love with the city and its people that he has decided to return to America and sell all his property there, says a Copenhagen paper, and "return to this city, where he contemplates making his home permanently." The writer does not care to question the paper as to the millionaire's real intentions, but it appears that he might possibly change his mind. Besides the paper failed to state where he was from in America.

Raebild park has been purchased and set aside as a national park for home returning Danish-Americans. The park is located in Jylland and is one of the finest in the country. The park, which has been purchased by Danish-Americans, will cost at least 2,000,000 crowns. The formal dedication of the park will take place on July 4 next year, when several hundred Danish-Americans will be present.

The new Danish national hospital was dedicated the other day in the presence of the king and a number of other high dignitaries. The hospital is the largest in the country and has been erected at an expenditure of 10,000,000 crowns.

The Danish aeronaut, Svendsen, has been doing a rather handsome business during the past summer. He has cleared something like 25,000 crowns. His seems to be a dangerous but paying business.

"Probably the greatest single deterrent to water terminal advance in the United States is the present adverse attitude of rail lines toward independent water traffic, in their exclusive control of frontage, in refusal or neglect to co-ordinate with general water traffic, and in refusal to prorate generally with water lines in through movement of traffic." This is one of the conclusions of Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, in his report to the president on water transportation in the United States.

It also was said that the president would recommend to congress this fall that all second and third class postmasters, 7,198 in number, be placed under civil service rules.

Sweeping plans for retrenchment in governmental expenditures through modern business methods were decided upon by President Taft and his cabinet. The creation of a division at the White House, the duty of which shall be to keep the president in touch with the work of all departments, was announced, with Dr. Frederick Cleveland, head of the bureau of natural research in New York, as chief.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

RAILROADS ARE NOT SATISFIED

Exceptions to Findings of Judge Otis in Minnesota Rate Case to Be Made by Both Sides.

Exceptions to the findings of Judge C. E. Otis of St. Paul, master in chancery in the Minnesota rate cases, are being prepared not only by the attorneys for the state, against whose contentions the master found almost uniformly in his report, but by the attorneys for the plaintiff railroad stockholders.

"That reports seems to be a swooping document in our favor," said Jared How, of How, Butler & Mitchell, attorneys of the railroads involved in the controversy, "but we are not satisfied with it. It falls short of doing what we contend ought to be done in many ways. We shall certainly file exceptions."

E. T. Young, former attorney general, and counsel for the state in these cases, remarked in this connection:

"I don't see what exceptions the stockholders' attorneys could care to file. The findings of the master gave them about all they asked for. I can scarcely understand how they could make more demands of him, unless they should obtain leave to amend their complaints and ask for more."

TROUBLE LIKELY TO OCCUR

Northern Minnesota People Object to Closing of Saloons.

Open threats against the United States government and elaborate plans for the arming of private citizens to be sworn in as special officers are some of the alarming features of the intense indignation felt at Cass Lake and in other towns of the fourteen counties of Northern Minnesota, where saloons are to be closed Oct. 15, as a result of orders from the commissioner of Indian affairs.

"Our people are aroused to the point of desperation," said Mayor Dumas, "and you can take it from me that the government is going to call off its Indian agents who have been persecuting, insulting, assaulting and interfering with private citizens or they will find a body of men here as brave as the patriots who faced bullets at Lexington or any other battle where liberty was at stake. There can be no doubt but that the situation here is dangerous. It need surprise no one if government troops should be required to preserve the peace."

MILL CITY FIRE CHIEF OUT

Loses His Position as Result of Real Estate Deal.

Before a hooting, cheering crowd which filled the council chamber to overflowing the city council of Minneapolis voted a unanimous acceptance of the resignation of Fire Chief James R. Canterbury, to take effect immediately, on account of his connection with the sale of a plot of land for repair shop purposes. The report of the investigating committee also called for the institution of a suit for $2,300 against the chief, his profit in the land deal.

The charges upon which the fire chief loses his position were that he purchased a piece of land for $6,000 in Southeast Minneapolis when he learned the city might buy it, had it transferred to Mrs. Sarah Gulie, a cousin of his wife, for $6,500. In the course of a few months the committee looked over the property and then decided to buy it for $9,000.

Thrown Into Water When Launch Strikes a Pile.

Lynn Carroll, note teller, Second National bank, St. Paul; his wife; Mrs. Christine Carroll, his mother, and Mrs. Elizabeth Deardorff, Stillwater, narrowly escaped drowning in the St. Croix river near Stillwater.

The party was cruising in Mrs. Christine Carroll's launch, with Mrs. Lynn Carroll at the tiller, when the boat struck a pile. The boat upended, but did not capsize, and all the occupants were thrown into the water.

Mr. Carroll pulled the women to the boat side and rescued his infant by placing the child in the boat.

Calls for help were heard by the crew of the steamer Hoes passing down stream. Assistance was dispatched and all members of the party, nearly exhausted, were rescued.

TWIN CITY BANKS UNITE

Secure Authority to Issue "Emergency Currency."

At a conference at Washington between J. W. Lusk of St. Paul, president of the National German-American bank of that city, and A. Piatt Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, the preliminary arrangements were completed and the authority granted for the formation of the Twin City Currency association, a plan which has been under consideration by the national banks of St. Paul and Minneapolis for several months.

The association, organized under the terms of the Aldrich-Vreeland act of 1908, will permit the banks which are members to issue additional currency in times of financial stress. National banks of the United States are authorized to issue "emergency currency" to an amount not exceeding $250,000,000, as the secretary of the treasury may determine.

This currency is to be secured by bonds and other securities presented by the banks, the value of which shall be determined by the secretary of the treasury, controller of the currency and treasurer of the United States. The emergency currency is to be taxed at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, to insure its retirement when it is no longer needed.

Stock Train Collides With Work Train Near Cannon Junction.

One man was instantly killed and three injured in a train crash on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad near Cannon Junction when a stock train, eastbound, made up of thirty-seven cars, collided with a work train running east from Hastings.

Mike Mulcahy, fireman of the work train, was hurled several feet. His skull was crushed in the impact with the rails. Death was instantaneous. Nick Reedy and John Caska, members of the train crew, suffered painful bruises. The former's left leg was badly cut. Fireman R. P. Henry of Minneapolis, who saw the approaching danger, jumped from the cab and suffered a sprained ankle. W. J. Rudy of Minneapolis, engineer of the stock train, and Emil Rogowski, engineer of the work train, escaped injury by jumping before the crash.

The fire is supposed to have been started by lightning. Members of the family sleeping in the upper story of one of the buildings barely escaped with their lives.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Just how Minnesota has prospered during the period of fifty-two years which ended July 31, 1910, is told in the report of the state treasurer now being compiled. Back in the territorial days—Jan. 1, 1858, to be exact—the total assets in the state treasury amounted to $6,009.43. The receipts for the first year's business amounted to $286,902.36, but of this sum $282,839.18 had to be spent in keeping the ship of state riding on uncertain waters. During the fiscal year just closed the total receipts amounted to $14,810,944.43 and the cash in the treasury on July 31 amounted to $4,216,231.67. The total cash receipts for the year amounted to $17,584,194.84 and the disbursements to $13,322,963.17. In its permanent funds now the state has $24,728,852.02. This is one of the most gigantic funds ever amassed by a commonwealth in the United States.

St. Paul has an honest highwayman. Nearly three years ago he held up a saloon in that city, masked in approved style and alone, nearly killed the bartender and departed with a pocket full of cash. He escaped the dragnet of the police department and Chris Batroot, the proprietor, chalked up $51.05 to loss and forgot about it. A few days ago he received a money order for the full amount, signed George Smith.

There will be a one-tenth of a mill reduction in the state revenue tax for 1910. Despite the recent announcement of state officials that the entire revenue tax of 1 mill in 1909 might be wiped out this year it has been decided that the levy shall be made and the only change in the levy will be the reduction from 1 mill in 1909 to nine-tenths of a mill this year.

Milwaukee railway surveyors, who started from Hutchinson last spring, disbanded after arriving at Fargo. The principal towns through which the line runs are Litchfield, Sauk Center, Alexandria, Fergus Falls and Moorhead.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

William L. Ames, member of the legislature in 1891, is dead at St. Paul, aged sixty-four. In 1859 he entered the naval academy at Annapolis, remaining there a year. EBERHART ON THE ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Keynote Speech of the Republican Candidate for Governor at Mankato.

STANDS ON HIS RECORD AS STATE EXECUTIVE

By Reason of Experience Is Better Fitted to Serve In Future Than In Past.

Governor A. O. Eberhart, Republican candidate for governor, delivered his keynote speech at Mankato before an audience including many prominent members of the party. He said:

On the 21st day of last June there assembled at St. Paul one of the most important and memorable conventions ever held by the Republican party in Minnesota. It was important because held at a time when the Democratic party, then in control of the state patronage, was bending every effort to revive the forgotten strife of prior campaigns in the Republican party and to place new obstacles in the way of harmonious action. It was memorable because more truly representative, fair and deliberative than any convention in recent years, and chiefly because, as is universally admitted, it was absolutely free from domination by any clique, faction, interest or corporation, free to express the will of the people in the selection of candidates and the adoption of a platform. I received the unanimous nomination of the convention for the office of governor, and I accepted the same realizing fully the duties and responsibilities involved, and pledged myself to the faithful discharge thereof, feeling justified in believing that the unanimous nomination tendered me was an evidence that my services had been satisfactory to the people of the state.

More than a year has passed since I was called to the office of governor upon the death of my brilliant and lamented predecessor, John A. Johnson, and while my position has not always been free from difficulty no one will deny that the people of this as well as other states have given me their confidence and accorded me most kind and considerate treatment for which I am sincerely grateful. But no reception has ever touched me so deeply as the one accorded me by my fellow townsmen and neighbors here tonight, and no city could possibly confer greater honor upon a son than Mankato has done on this occasion.

In accepting the nomination I stated that at the proper time I would discuss the questions pending in this state, and make clear my position with reference thereto. That promise I am here to fulfill tonight. In making such statement I shall speak frankly and without evasion, believing firmly that right is might and that the people will choose the right.

Progressive Platform.

First, I stand squarely upon the platform adopted by the Republican party of this state. This platform is clear, definite, comprehensive, and distinctly progressive. No Republican candidate need offer any apology either for its contents or for the manner of its adoption. It is an admitted fact that all shades of opinion were given a square deal by that convention in the selection of a committee on resolutions, that all were permitted to be heard on the floor of the convention and that no improper interest of any kind was allowed to influence the convention or its committee in the adoption of that platform.

The Minnesota Republican platform takes advanced ground upon all the public questions of the day and has been used as a model in other states. It wastes no time in mere denunciation, but offers specific remedies for evils complained of. In the language of Theodore Roosevelt it favors—among other things—

Tariff Question.

"The policy of providing for a disinterested revision of tariff schedules through a high class commission of experts which will treat each schedule purely on its own merits, with a view both to protecting the consumer from excessive prices and to securing the American producer, and especially the American wage-earner, what will represent the difference of cost of production here as compared with the cost of production in countries where labor is less liberally rewarded."

The foregoing quotation from his speech delivered at the Republican state convention in New York, Sept. 27, is almost identical with the language of our own platform adopted three months before and certifies that the Republicans of Minnesota were alive to the interests of the people, and were progressive in fact long before some of our critics had come to appreciate the significance of the word. The declaration of the Minnesota Republicans in favor of a tariff commission is characterized by my opponent as pure "Bunco," but he probably wrote his speech before he read Roosevelt's speech at Saratoga. Under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt our republic is gaining a new birth of freedom. The power of the people was never exerted as it is today. Public conscience has been quickened and boss rule, in the Republican party at least, is a thing of the past. Exceptional means of education and intercommunication have raised the average standard of intelligence and the voters of today are full of knowledge and keenly alive to all the rights and duties of citizenship. This has been frequently demonstrated. The recent action of the New York Republican state convention in accepting Theodore Roosevelt's leadership is the best evidence that the rights of the people are safe in the charge of the Republican party. The political crook and pretender must be banished from public life. To deserve the honor of public office men must render real service for the people. This is right. No man should be elected to public office who is incapable or unwilling to serve the people, honestly, fearlessly, all the time.

Political Bossism.

Party bossism is not entirely extinct in Minnesota. When the Democratic party assembled in Minneapolis on July 28 last, it nominated John Lind for governor, after adopting a platform upon which he refused to stand. Commenting upon this platform the Minneapolis Tribune said:

"As represented by its platform, the Democratic party stands for nothing but criticism, has no other aim than but negation, is capable of nothing but criticism, has no other aim than to get office and makes no higher bid for public confidence than the promise to carry out Republican policies better."

So much for the platform. Mr. Lind declined the nomination and the chairman of the Democratic state central committee carried his letter of declination in his inside pocket for six weeks, meanwhile regaling the public with various stories and promises. During this period the Democratic boss evolved the "Kitchen Cabinet" candidate with a new platform—new to the boss, new to the candidate and new to the party, whose policy and action he seems to control in this instance.

County Option.

The nominee of the Democratic state central committee says that he will do more than sign a county option bill if passed by the legislature. He will, if elected governor, recommend it to the legislature. Without attempting to minimize the force and effect of executive recommendations, I say in all seriousness to the people of this state, that if you do not elect a legislature in favor of county option a recommendation of the governor will not secure the passage of the law. Promises like this may sound good during a campaign, but laws are based upon the will of the people as exercised by their chosen representatives. The Republican declaration is as follows:

"The Republican party stands for the strict regulation and control of the liquor traffic. All the restrictive and regulative provisions relating to the same now on the statute books of the state are the fruits of Republican legislation. The Republican party stands for the strict and rigid enforcement of all these provisions and for the strict and rigid enforcement of such other and future provisions as the representatives of the people, elected by the people, may in their wisdom enact; and we pledge the party to a fair, full and free consideration of all legislation pertaining to the liquor traffic and its regulations."

This is a straightforward statement and may be understood by all. Compare this statement with the language of the Democratic platform, which my opponent says justifies him in declaring for county option.

"We hold that all questions affecting the moral, political and economic welfare of the people should be directly subject to the conscience and will of the people."

Could the audacity of ignorance go farther than to state that the language I have just quoted commits the Democratic party to county option? Add to this, the undisputed fact that the county option resolution was voted down in the committee on resolutions by a vote of 18 to 3 and when offered on the floor of the convention, the mover was refused a hearing, we may fairly infer the real attitude of the Democratic party on this question. Under all the circumstances the sudden conversion of the Democratic boss and his nominee to county option calls to mind the old verse:

"The devil was sick, the devil a saint would be,
The devil was well, the devil a saint was he."

Several months ago I met the friends of county option in their state convention and defined my position. If a county option bill is passed while I am governor, I will approve and enforce it. My opponent cannot do more although he may promise more.

The Policy of Conservation.

That the Republican party in Minnesota is progressive is again indicated by its position and achievements on the vital question of conservation. Our platform specifically commits the party to the conservation of resources "along the lines suggested by Theodore Roosevelt and begun by him during his administration." Minnesota is recognized by all the states in the Union as first and most progressive as well as most practical in the line of achievement. The continuation of this conservation work is the most important problem now confronting the people of the state, for it includes not only the conservation of natural but also of human resources. It includes such preservation of our resources for the future as will not interfere with the proper use thereof for the present. It follows necessarily that any theory of conservation which does not provide for the present as well as the future does not cover the entire field and cannot possibly bring the best results. From every economic standpoint it is desirable that the present generation should be preferred, since future discoveries and inventions may render present resources of less value and importance to the coming generations. When, early in the present year, the people of the state showed a lively interest in the practical bearing of the conservation movement I used my influence to bring about a state conservation and development congress, the first of its kind to be held in this country. The beneficial results of this gathering are matters of recent history in the increased appreciation by the people of the state of its vast resources and in the widely spread attention these advantages have attracted throughout the entire country. Following this state meeting as a natural sequence came the holding in St. Paul of the Second National Conservation congress, which marked an epoch in the progress of this nation-wide movement.

Reapportionment.

The Republican party is pledged to a new apportionment of the legislative districts in accordance with the constitution. The plank is as follows:

"Believing that each and every section of the state should be fairly represented in the law-making bodies, as is provided in Section 2, Article 4, the constitution, we pledge the Republican party to the passage of an apportionment law by the next legislature based on population, as shown by the United States census for 1910, to take effect on or before Jan. 1, 1912, that will give to each county the representation it is justly entitled to in both branches of the state legislature."

GOVERNOR EBERHART.

A clean, unambiguous statement and pledge. Listen to the Democratic plank:

"We are unequivocally in favor of a reapportionment of representation in the state legislature with a view of making the composition of that body a true reflection of the distribution of population."

In other words the Democratic party is unequivocally in favor of a very equivocal declaration touching reapportionment. Its meaning, whatever it may be, is lost in the phraseology of studied concealment. The ambiguity in the Democratic platform is explained by the attitude of the Democratic members of the state senate. At the last session, Senator Clague, as chairman of the committee on reapportionment, on March 26, 1909, introduced S. F. 714, for a new apportionment. On a roll call every Democratic senator present, eighteen, voted against reapportionment. Had they voted in favor of the bill, it would have passed and the state would now have a fair legislative apportionment. I find no fault with these senators for voting their convictions on this or any bill, but the fact is that they were opposed to the bill and presumably had something to do with the framing of the Democratic platform. My opponent intimates that the failure of reapportionment at the last session is chargeable to the Republicans. The record shows the contrary to be true.

Primary Law.

Under the present primary law many abuses are permitted. I quote from the Republican state platform:

"It has become notorious that the great expense attendant upon primary election practically precludes men of moderate means from becoming candidates for important offices, and it has become a common thing for voters to vote for and help to secure the nomination of men of opposite political faith, for whom they do not intend to vote at the election, and we declare that legislation is imperatively needed that will reduce the expense of conducting a primary campaign and to prevent voters from aiding in the nomination of candidates that they are seeking to defeat."

I am strongly in favor of amending the primary system of nomination in accordance with the platform, and also heartily favor the election of United States senators by popular vote.

The Problem of Transportation.

One of the most important problems before the people of the state is that of transportation. The Democratic platform is absolutely silent on that vital question. On the other hand the Republican party has placed itself on record with reference to the regulation and control of railway, telegraph and telephone companies in the clearest and strongest terms. I quote from the platform:

"We assert the right of national and state regulation and control over all transportation companies, whether of the people, commodities or messages; declare that all such companies are entitled to charge rates that will yield a fair profit on actual investment, meeting all actual expenses, including liberal wages for all employes, provide for deterioration, lay by a reasonable sinking fund and no more, and that the nation and state, each within its respective jurisdiction, should see that such rates are maintained and that no discrimination is allowed to be practiced between individuals and localities."

Upon that plank of the platform I stand without reservation and through the legal department of the state I shall exert every effort to guard the interests of the people in all the so called Minnesota rate cases now pending before the courts.

Legislative Record.

Referring to the recent legislatures the Democratic platform accuses them of being:

"Debauched by aggressions of monopolistic and lawless wealth."

Concerning those same legislatures Governor Johnson made this significant statement in his keynote speech at Montevideo two years ago; and I quote it here, because I want to add my hearty endorsement to it:

"No legislature in the history of Minnesota has enacted into law as many vital reforms or placed upon the statute books as many important measures of constructive statesmanship as the legislatures of 1905 and 1907."

Knowing the work of the last legislature it is safe to conclude that had Governor Johnson spoken today he would have included the legislature of 1909.

Good Roads.

One of the most important problems to which it has been my privilege to devote considerable time and attention is that of good roads. After securing the passage of the "Highway Commission Act" in 1905, I immediately set out to interest the people of the state in the appropriation of necessary funds. Through the efforts of the press generally, good roads associations, leading men, such as Hon. R. C. Dunn, and others, together with the commission itself, there has arisen such an interest all over the state that I will recommend, in accordance with the Republican platform, that the next legislature authorize the submission to the people of a 1-mill state road tax. It should also raise the present levy to the authorized limit of one-fourth mill and amply increase the authority of the commission so that road construction throughout the state could be properly supervised and improved. The state can make no better investment than the extension of aid in the supervision and construction of good public highways, not merely from a purely economic standpoint, but because it is essential in the proper development of rural schools.

Labor.

Minnesota is rapidly advancing as a commercial and industrial state. Consequently the protection and advancement of labor should receive the most careful consideration. No state can be prosperous unless its laboring classes are prosperous and amply protected by the strong arm of the state. There is no question where the Republican party has stood and where it stands today with reference to labor. All the advance labor legislation on our statute books has been enacted pursuant to its policy of aiding and protecting labor, and I shall use every effort to secure further legislation in the interest of child labor, the protection of health and life of all wage earners and the enactment of a workmen's compensation act in accordance with the recommendations of the commission provided for by an act of the last legislature.

Education.

No state in the Union can boast of a better educational system than Minnesota. Yet I think we are ready to admit that our state has paid too little attention to the teaching of agriculture, industrial training and home economics in all our schools. This should be remedied immediately. The two conservation congresses held in St. Paul have stirred up the interest and enthusiasm all over the state to such an extent that the time is now ripe for introducing these important branches of education in all our public schools, thus teaching the people of the state how we may conserve our wealth and increase our prosperity. The time has also come when our schools should be taken out of politics and when all our educational officers should be selected strictly upon their merits and without reference to party affiliations.

Immigration.

Immigration is another important phase of state development. The immigration commission should be given more funds and authority so that it may be able to render more assistance in securing settlers and in overcoming obstacles necessary incident to the development of new territory. All state land should bear its fair share of the expense in making local improvements, for it is altogether unjust to ask a settler to endure all the privations of pioneer life and in addition thereto pay the expenses of improving adjacent public property.

Administrative Record.

The state administrative officers constitute one great business institution. In coming before the people as a candidate for governor it is proper that an account should be rendered covering my stewardship already rendered. Charges have been made by my opponents and the "Kitchen Cabinet" to the effect that so called business interests have been permitted to "filch the heritage from the people, to threaten the integrity of our own courts and debauch our legislatures." That this wholesale accusation is intended for purely political effect no one can seriously doubt, but in order to show conclusively that the interests of the state have been carefully and efficiently guarded, I shall give a brief summary of the most important state transactions. In doing so I desire to give all due credit to the respective state officers not only for their efficiency and ability, but also for the kind consideration given me and their earnest co-operation in everything that portains to the welfare of the state.

Record of Attorney General.

Among the brilliant achievements of Republican administration during the past few years is the record made by the attorney general's office. In the so called railroad rate cases and cases in state courts against the Western Union Telegraph company and the railroad company for taxes, former Attorney General Young and Senator E. S. Durment have been employed as special counsel, but in the numerous important timber and tax cases that have been carried to the United States supreme court Attorney General Simpson and his assistants have conducted the litigation and made the arguments. This is said to be the first instance in which a state has appeared in the United States supreme court without the aid of outside counsel.

The total collections made by the attorney general's office from 1905 to July 1, 1910, inclusive, amount to a grand total of $2,330,735.29.

But what was more important than the amounts collected, was the sustaining of the timber acts of the state and the power of the state to pass laws of a most stringent character dealing with timber trespassing.

Secretary of State.

In the office of the secretary of state many important reforms have been instituted by the present incumbent, Julius A. Schmahl. In the payment of filing fees, the laws have been strictly enforced, and the record of the two years ending July 31, 1910, shows that the state has received nearly $25,000 more in filing fees than during the two years preceding. Another enactment for which this department should be given credit is that permitting proposed amendments to the constitution to be published in at least three newspapers in each county, thereby giving every voter a better opportunity to become familiar with the provisions of the proposed amendments. Another measure enacted by the legislature is the one directing the secretary of state to secure an annual license for every dining and buffet car where liquor is sold while the car is in the state. Through this legislation the secretary has collected several thousand dollars annually. The enforcement of the ticket agent license law has been diligently made, and today the state is realizing large sums from this source.

The secretary of state, together with the auditor and treasurer, constitute the state printing commission, in charge of state printing. The average yearly expenditure for such work during the last eighteen years has been $57,924.61, but the average expenditure for the four years ending Aug. 1, 1910, was only $55,272.12, whereas the average expenditure for the four years just preceding was $85,089.58. Thus it is shown that while the printing has increased largely as to amount, the average cost has been greatly reduced.

State Auditor.

Undoubtedly one of the most important offices in the state is that of auditor, and the record of that office during the past few years is not surpassed in the history of the state. Through the persistent efforts of Auditor Iverson and the attorney general, a large amount of swamp lands have been recovered by the state and while the value of the timber upon these lands exceeds a million dollars, it is believed that they also contain a valuable amount of iron ore. In securing there swamp land grants the state has conducted one of the most important contests before the interior department.

Minnesota was the pioneer state in conserving her natural resources, and is now reaping its reward. The auditor is the custodian of the permanent school fund, which now aggregates $26,977,225.14, and it is estimated that this fund will be increased from the royalties on iron ore to the extent of $200,000,000 more. The state school fund is invested in securities bearing from 3 to 4 per cent interest, and only about $100,000 is in the state treasury at this time. It is invested as a permanent trust fund, and only the interest thereon can be used for the purposes of education. While Minnesota has a permanent school fund of over $27,000,000, the states of Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa have each less than $5,000,000. The policy of the state has been practical conservation, and all future generations will enjoy the prudence and administrative ability of the guardians of our school fund. The state auditor is the custodian of this fund, and the present incumbent of the office, Hon. S. G. Iverson, has made an enviable record in the protection of the interests of the state and in the enforcement of all laws pertaining to his office.

Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

The work of the railroad and warehouse commission and its important bearing on the interests and welfare of the people clearly illustrate the increased importance of this department. Minnesota has now obtained recognition as one of the most advanced states in the Union in relation to its railroad legislation, and the successful administration of these laws. Its duties are varied and each year increase in scope and importance, embracing generally all questions or grievances that may arise between the public and the railroad companies.

The railroad and warehouse commission has taken an active part in the trial of the rate cases. It has realized fully that these cases involve some of the most momentous problems ever presented to any tribunal. On the one hand lies the taking from the people of the state by unjust rates a sum of money beyond computation, and on the other, depriving the railroads of the state unjustly of the very means for performing a necessary public service. Between these two extremes lies the right medium, which it is believed and hoped by both sides in this case, will finally be determined.

With reference to express rates, the commission has also rendered the state valuable services. After a thorough inquiry and investigation, an order was made reducing express rates 20 per cent on merchandise and produce and correcting a number of inequalities which previously existed.

The commission, composed of Judge Ira Mills, C. F. Staples, candidate for re-election this year, and Elias E. Elmquist, ranks in personnel and services rendered with any like body in the entire country.

State Highway Commission.

The state highway commission was organized in January, 1906, in order to meet a great demand for improvement of the public highways. The theory of road betterment, as at first outlined, contemplated the construction of expensive and permanent roads of stone and gravel, but a careful investigation of road conditions convinced the commission that the interests of the people could be better served by applying state aid to the general improvement of the common earth roads. This plan has been consistently carried out, and so far has met the general approval of the people. A marked improvement has been noted in the method of construction by town and county authorities, who have been informed, advised and instructed by the commission, through the medium of correspondence, printed instructions and personal visits.

Summing Up.

This is a summary of the important issues in this campaign, my position with reference thereto and a brief accounting of my short stewardship. As the executive of a great business institution I have reported to the board of directors and stockholders. It is for the people of the state to judge whether or not I have discharged my duty faithfully and conscientiously, so that I may be deserving of their renewed confidence. Like all others who have occupied important public positions I have made mistakes. No man ever received better treatment at the hands of the public, and while some criticism may have been unjust, I have always consoled myself with the thought that unjust criticism could not injure and just criticism was an invaluable guide to follow in the path of duty. The press of the state has been especially friendly and I wish to express my appreciation of its loyal and unselfish support. Whatever may have been the shortcomings of this administration, I can go before the people of the state with the assurance that I have endeavored to give them the very best service of which I was capable; that I have labored diligently to learn the needs of the state and its great opportunities for development, and that by reason of such experience I have become better fitted to serve in the future than in the past. To merit the confidence and good will of the people has been my sole ambition and I leave my case in their hands, feeling that their verdict will be just. The true greatness of our state cannot be measured in terms of wealth, territory, commerce or industry, but rather in the prosperity and happiness of the people, the purity of the homes, the efficiency of the schools, the sanctity of the churches, the enforcement of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, and the honesty and integrity of our citizenship. Our work at the polls should therefore be an endorsement of what is highest, cleanest and most intelligent in American citizenship. True, we cannot expect to eradicate selfishness and approach perfection, but we have a right to expect that the public conscience shall continue to quicken and civic virtue continue to spread, and that character, honesty, integrity and ability shall be the standard by which personal worth is determined; that the record of every public official shall resemble a torch, that is, the more it is shaken the more it will burn. We have a right to expect that justice shall be meted out to all alike, and that every law of the land shall be enforced against the strong and the weak, the rich and the poor equally and without fear or favor, and to that end I pledge my earnest and hearty co-operation.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL. XXVII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1910 NUMBER 42

NEW ORDER IS GIVEN

Secretary Ballinger Reverses Policy and Suspends All Former Orders.

Saloons Can Be Run in All Towns in Northern Minnesota Now

Washington, Oct. 7.—All orders prohibiting saloons or sale of liquor to white persons in the "Indian country" of Northern Minnesota were revoked today by Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior. The decision of the secretary suspends the closing of saloons in Moorhead and Cass Lake, already ordered. It may reopen saloons already closed in a number of villages. It is given in a letter today from the secretary to Indian Commissioner Valentine. It follows the conference of yesterday between Secretary Ballinger, Commissioner Valentine, Oscar Lawler, assistant attorney general for the interior department, with Mayor D. M. Dumas of Cass Lake, Mayor W. H. Davy of Moorhead, S. G. Comstock and City Attorney J. H. Whitcrow of Moorhead.

The visitors appeared to protests against the previous order to close saloons in their cities Oct. 15. They are delighted with the outcome, and say that they will use every effort to cooperate with the department in stopping the sale of liquor to Indians.

Secretary Ballinger's letter lays down an entirely new policy. It gives Commissioner Valentine authority to make any new regulations necessary to stop the sale of liquor to Indians, but without any discrimination as to places or persons. This means that saloons will not be closed anywhere outside the Indian communities unless they are closed in all of northern Minnesota, outside of the twin cities and Duluth. The alternative is that state and local authorities are to co-operate heartily with the Indian department in stopping liquor traffic with Indians. The department declares it has the power to stop all liquor selling in treaty territory, but that power will be held as a club to compel general co-operation in the work of keeping liquor from the Indians.

Secretary Ballinger's letter to Commissioner Valentine, laying down the new policy, is as follows:

"Sir; From various petitions and communications addressed to me in connection with the enforcement of the acts of congress relating to the introduction of liquor into the Indian country of Minnesota, I feel called upon to express to you what seems to me to be the correct policy of the department in dealing with these questions. I fully understand and approve of the diligence of the Indian office in its efforts to enforce these statutes. It is true there has been some contention respecting the right to enforce them. The law, however, appears to be settled in respect to the authority of the department, and it, therefore, becomes purely a matter of administration. In the administration of these statutes, the department cannot countenance discriminations or anything that savors of arbitrary, capricious or vexatious proceedings.

"The officers in the field are entrusted with a policy duty to protect the Indians under their supervision from the introduction of liquor, as contemplated by the statute. You will therefore, instruct your officers to secure convictions for violations of these statues where the evidence is available and proceed throughout the territory involved to enforce the law without discrimination as to persons or territory.

"In view of the limited force at your command, you will proceed to exercise the duties imposed upon the service, where the greatest demand seems to exist for its exercise from time to time.

"This does not imply that there is to be any lack of diligence in controlling conditions throughout the entire territory. Any and all orders of the department or of the Indian service, heretofore made, in conflict herewith are hereby vacated. You will instruct and supervise your force in the field in such manner as to efficiently carry out the enforcement of the obligations of the department as above outlined. Very respectfully,

R. A. Ballinger, secretary.

The commissioner of Indian affairs.

Commissioner Valentine, refused to make any comment on the secretary's action. "This is a department matter," he said, "and I have nothing to say about the department's action." The delegation from northern Minnesota, were loud in the praises of Secretary Ballinger and the action he had taken.

"Secretary Ballinger has done the right thing," said Mayor Dumas of Cass Lake. "On behalf of the people of Cass Lake I came here to urge that the department treat us in the same way as it does other parts of the Indian country, and the secretary has done just exactly that. I am going home and will co-operate with the department in every way in its effort to keep liquor from the Indians. I cannot say too much in praise of the secretary for his fair treatment of us, and his just view of the situation and the application of the law."

City Attorney Withrow of Moorhead said: "The secretary adopted the view I urged at yesterday's hearing, and accepted the suggestion that there should be co-operation between the state and federal authorities. I am satisfied that the people of Moorhead will join heartily in the co-operative movement, and that so far as our city is concerned, the traffic with Indians will be stopped."

At yesterday's conference charges of improper conduct were made against some of Special Agent Johnson's deputies. Secretary Ballinger said that a rigid investigation of these charges would be made, and that, if the charges were sustained, the deputies would be dismissed.

Mayor Dumas and Messrs. Comstock and Davy left for home today. Mr Withrow will remain here for a day or two, visiting friends.

WHO IS A BALL PLAYER?

That Is a Question Judge Bishop Will Soon Have to Decide.

Suit Started in Municipal Court That Will Be of Much Local Interest.

Muncipal Judge J. M. Bishop has a mighty question to decide, and one that will never give satisfaction no matter what his decision may be.

This spring William Warner, manager of the Thief River Falls base ball club, engaged the services of Oscar Bergan as catcher for the local club at a salary of $50.00 per month and board. The local club had a lot of hard luck and was unable to pay Bergan in full. Therefore Bergan through his attorney Perl W. Mabey brought suit against Warner for the sum of $132.22, salary he claims to be due up to the 22nd of September this year, although the ball team has not played any games for the past two months.

Warner engaged the services of attorney Stanton, and that gentleman put in a reply that is "real mean", and also asks that other prominent citizens be made a party to the complaint. The following is Attorney Stanton's answer to the complaint:

Defendant for answer to the complaint of the Plaintiff herein denies each and every allegation in said complaint contained and alleges except as hereinafter expressly admitted.

Defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether Plaintiff is a ball player or not, but that the Plaintiff sometimes plays ball.

Defendant admits that he employed the defendant to play ball for the Thief River Indians or Thief River Ball Club, which was during all the times mentioned in the said complaint an unincorporated association composed, of T. P. Hamre, Ole Thoreson, Sever Brandon, Chas. Nason and others whose names are to defendant unknown. That on or about the said first day of May 1910 this defendant was asked by said association to secure for them the the services of the Plaintiff herein and pursuant to said request, this Defendant did on or about the said first of May 1910 secure the services of the Plaintiff to play ball in the position of catcher for said Thief River Ball Club for the sum of fifty dollars per month and board and traveling expenses, but defendant expressly denies that the Plaintiff was hired for the base ball season ending September 22, 1910, and alleges that said hiring was for no longer term or time than from month to month.

That in hiring said Plaintiff this defendant was acting for and on behalf of said Ball Club, not as a member or officer thereof but as an accomodation to said club, all of which was well known to the Plaintiff herein.

Defendant further alleges that by reason of the facts above alleged he is not a proper party defendant herein, and asks that the said members of said Thief River Ball Club be cited to appear herein and be made parties defendant.

Wherefore defendant asks that he be henceforth dismissed with his costs and disbursements.

To Use Stickers.

Representative John Saugstad of Climax, who opposed Senator A. D. Stephens of Crookston in the Polk county republican primaries Sept. 20, will clash with him again in the general election. He will endeavor to win in the second contest by means of "stickers" which will be distributed to the voters to paste upon the blank space on the ballot.

Having been defeated in the primaries Mr. Saugstad is not eligible to go on the ticket by petition, and there was some talk of bringing out another candidate, but the Polk county workers have notified the Anti-Saloon league headquarters in Minneapolis that they prefer to continue the fight with Saugstad. They will also distribute "stickers" with the name of W. A. Martin of Crookston, defeated candidate for the house, and try to land him at the polls instead of K. S. Akers, who won in the primary.

Here on Oct. 17.

Joshua Simpkins, a four act New England play will be presented at the Auditorium on Monday evening Oct. 17. The climax of stage realism, it is asserted, has been reached in the presentation of the stirring saw mill scene in Joshua Simpkins and will be presented in this city by a peculiar mechanical device which has been introduced here before. This new mill scene is claimed to be a vast improvement over any attempted in a similar line. The company also boasts of a splendid orchestra, which is carried complete by the organization to aid in the proper presentation of the play, which is said to abound with musical and dancing specialities of a high order. To assist Joshua Simpkins in popuplarity, a band of music is also carried and a concert is given which is said to be far above anything usually heard with a traveling musical organization. The parade will leave the theatre at the usual time and take the usual route, making a burlesque parade.

MICHELET WON'T RUN

Being Convinced That County Division Is Going to Carry He Refused to File.

Would Not Remove to Red Lake Falls to Serve as County Attorney.

In the last issue of the Sunbeam, published on Friday, October 7, W. G. Hunt, who is an authority on all matters of county division, has the following to say:

> County Attorney Wilhelm Michelet is making a strong campaign for reelection, notwithstanding he is a resident of Thief River Falls and is U. S. Commissioner for that district. If he was as sure of county division as some of the divisionists there would be no use for him to run for county attorney of Red Lake county. Straws tells which way the wind blows.

Now it so happens that Mr. Michelet had not been making any strong campaign for re-election, and as a matter of fact on the day before the Sunbeam was issued the following letter from Mr. Michelet was in the hands of the Republican County Central Committee of Red Lake county. It speaks for itself and shows that Mr. Michelet is a keen observer of which way the wind is blowing. Had he become a candidate he would undoubtedly have been elected. The following is the letter:

Oct. 6th. 1910.

To the Republican County Central Committee of Red Lake County, Minn.
Gentlemen:-

Being convinced that the proposition to divide Red Lake County and to create the new County of Pennington will carry at the coming General Election to be held on the 8th day of November, 1910, I have determined not to stand as a candidate for re-election to the office of county attorney of Red Lake County. For under no circumstances would I care to remove from the city of Thief River Falls in order to serve as county attorney in case I should be re-elected and division should carry. Thanking you for the support already given me and for the hearty assurances of your support I have received I am,

Yours very truly,
WILHELM MICHELET.

A Fine Entertainment.

The people of Thief River Falls were given a genuine treat Monday evening, the famous Glasgow Select Choir appearing at the Auditorium. This company is composed of artists and they rendered a very pleasing program.

This is the first tour of this company in America and not many cities are favored. The company started the American tour at Quebec and went as far west as Winnipeg, coming to Thief River Falls from the latter city. This city had the honor, therefore, of being the first city in the United States in which they gave an entertainment. From here the company went to Minneapolis and then goes to St. Paul, Milwaukee, Chicago and Detroit, Mich., and then back into Canada.

LOOKED UPON WITH SUSPICION

Russians Who Make Their Appearance In Sweden Closely Watched. Independent Theological Seminary Established at Christiania—Infant Daughter of Prince Harald and Princess Helene of Denmark Baptized.

SWEDEN.

Whenever any Russians make their appearance in Sweden they are at once looked upon with a great deal of suspicion. Some years ago there were a number of Russian spies, who went about the country districts in the northern part of the country dressed as laboring men and in nearly every instance bringing portable grindstones with them with which they picked up an odd job here and there. In Swedish they are called "sagfilare," because they sharpen saws, knives, scissors, etc. It is a significant fact that all the Russian spies which have been arrested in Sweden have all been following the same trade. Two Russians who were engaged in this same kind of work were arrested the other day at Boden and gave their names, respectively, as Vassilij Moloddin and Povel Andro Vassinen. When they appeared before the judge they were unable to speak Swedish and an interpretor was engaged. Moloddin stated that he was twenty-nine years old and born in Novgorod and that he had resided in Finland for six years, but he was unable to understand a word of Finnish. During the past few months he had visited, together with his companion, the cities of Vardo, Hammerfest and Tromso, Norway, and later on journeyed to St. Petersburg, going thence to Sweden. Both of the men were dressed as laborers, but their general appearance and manners betrayed that they did not belong to the laboring class. Vassinen is about twenty-three years old and says that he was born in Novgorod, Russia. They were sent back to jail, pending another trial.

On Sept. 18 last Baron Cederstrom, the Swedish aviator, made his first aerial trip around the so called "Gardet." He remained in the air only about ten minutes, but succeeded during this time in regulating his machine so that there was no mishap of any kind. The wind had almost died down and the weather was beautiful. Hundreds of curious persons had gathered on the scene and when the aerial ship glided up into the air to a height of about sixty meters, cheer upon cheer went up from the crowd below who stood and watched the aviator with outstretched necks. It was the first aviation attempt in Stockholm and it proved successful.

Crown Prince Gustav Adolph departed from London for Karlsruhe Sept. 17. After attending the festivities at Karlsruhe the crown prince will return to London, where he will join his family, who are at the home of the crown princess, whose parents are the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

A great many of the teachers are opposed to the ruling made some time ago by the directors of the public school teachers' pension fund to the effect that in case a pensioned teacher re-enters the service as a substitute his pension shall be reduced the extent of his salary. Some time ago the extremely liberal views of the theological professors of the University of Norway resulted in the establishment of an independent divinity school. This happened about two years ago. Now something has happened which indicates that the university men are going to make certain concessions to the orthodox people. At the reception given to this year's freshmen Dr. Oskar Jaeger, professor of political economy, made a carefully prepared statement in which he emphasized as a general axiom that the laws of nature are not contrary to the religious theory of an invisible, supersensual world in which a personal life is continued after death and the dissolution of the body.

One of the most prominent ministers of the Norwegian Methodist church, Rev. L. Krogsrud, has passed away after suffering from an acute attack of cancer. He was born in 1844, became a minister of the gospel in 1874 and has organized and served a large number of Methodist congregations. He was for many years a traveling missionary, was a forceful and captivating speaker and wherever he appeared he spoke to large audiences. In him the Methodist church in Norway has lost one of its strongest and ablest leaders.

The Norwegians of Berlin gave a farewell reception in honor of the retiring Norwegian minister there and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lie. There were about 300 guests present. Mr. Lie has been transferred to the Mexican post and will leave for that country some time during the latter part of next month, after having made a visit to his friends and relatives in Norway. Mr. and Mrs. Lie will be greatly missed in the Norwegian colony at Berlin, where they have made hosts of friends.

The new villa which the Norwegian people have built for their king was occupied by the royal couple for the first time last month. "Kongsaeter" is ideally situated in the Christiania fiord and Queen Maud and the little Prince Olaf are said to be very fond of living there. It was formally presented to the king last June and the money for it was raised by private subscription, to which even the common sailors contributed.

The employes of the Christiania street railways and the Holmenkollen railway held a mass meeting the other evening and determined to go on a strike for higher wages and shorter hours. The raise in wages which they demand will amount to at least 100,000 crowns and the railway companies will hardly be able to meet this demand. It is therefore likely that a general strike will be inaugurated.

Sondflord's high school was completely destroyed by fire on Sept. 3. Principal J. Ovrelied's mother-in-law and one child received injuries which may cost them their lives. The building was a new one and had but recently been completed and was to have been dedicated next month.

Professor Harmach of Leipsig, Germany, is booked to deliver a series of lectures on "The Religion of Our Times" in the Norwegian university in Christiania some time this fall. Ministers and educators are anxiously awaiting what he has to say.

Statsminister Carl Lowenskiold and his wife have donated 5,000 crowns to the Norwegian Sailors' mission. They have on several previous occasions donated large sums of money to the sailors' missions both at home and abroad.

DENMARK.

On Sept. 10 occurred the baptism of Prince Harald and Princess Helene's little daughter at Jaegerborgshus and she received the following names: Fedora Louise Karoline Mathilde Victoria Alexandra Fredrikke Johanne. At the baptism the historic baptismal font was used in which many Danish princes and crowned heads of the country have formerly been baptized. The formal sponsors, whose names are recorded on the royal baptismal certificate, were, besides the king and queen of Denmark, the Duke and Duchess of Gluckaburg, the empress of Germany, Dowager Queen Alexandra of England, Princess Victoria of England, the Duchess Victoria of Koburg-Gotha, Prince August Wilhelm of Prussia and Prince Hans of Denmark.

There has been an increase of about 1¼ cents per pound on all meats in Copenhagen lately. But that, however, did not prove very popular with good housewives of the city, who immediately started to cut down their meat supply. They have shown a disposition to stick to their resolution in this regard and it is very possible that the Copenhagen butchers will have to come to time and reduce the prices again or they will sell that much less meat.

The so called "Rigshospitalet," which has recently been erected in Copenhagen and which is considered one of the most modern hospitals in Europe and certainly the largest in Denmark, was dedicated by Bishop P. Madsen Sept. 11. Besides a large gathering of Copenhagen citizens the king and queen, the crown prince and many members of the diplomatic corps and other high functionaries were present.

The Danish United Steamship company has ordered from Burmeister & Wain, shipbuilders, two 1,850-ton steamers, designed for passenger and freight traffic in the Baltic sea. The same company has ordered another steamer for the North sea and within a year it is expected that the three big steamers will be ready.

HUNDREDS DIE IN FOREST FIRE

Northern Minnesota Towns Are Wiped Off the Map.

FLAMES ADVANCE RAPIDLY

Beaudette, Spooner and Several Other Towns In That Vicinity Are Prey of the Flames.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 11.—Every fire fighter that can be mustered is being sent out to check fires and locate bodies in the burned area.

Fires are still burning in every direction, making progress into Manitoba. Canadian Northern bridges and culverts are burned out and wires are down.

All the way from Beaudette and Rainy River west to Warroad, a distance of fifty miles, is a solid mass of flames. Beaudette is only a charred remnant of a town. Spooner is wiped off the map. Cedar Spur, Graceton, Pitt, Swift and Roosevelt, mere hamlets, are burned to the ground. Every settler in a district bounded by Rainy River and Lake of the Woods on the north to twenty-five miles south of Fort Francis, Ont., and from Spooner and Beaudette on the east to Warroad on the west who is not accounted for is dead, according to the most conservative information.

No one now estimates the dead at less than 200 and estimates run as high as the appalling total of 1,000. Probably that is too high, but it is certain that the dead will reach close to 500.

Nine dead bodies were seen on the Canadian Northern tracks by women who mounted horses and fled down the railway. Four unknown dead are in the roothouse west of Pitt, including one man, two women and a baby. Four railway men went through the burned bridge between Pitt and Beaudette in attempting a rescue. Barwick, a homesteader; Mike Beaver, "Kate," a woman homesteader known by her first name only, and three unknown men are dead at Beaudette. Seven settlers up the Beaudette river and eleven settlers between Rapid river and Beaudette are dead. The bodies were found on the logging road by fleeing refugees.

SUMMARY OF THE SITUATION

Conditions as They Exist in Northern Minnesota Fire Zone.

St. Paul, Oct. 11.—Following is a summary of the fire situation in Northern Minnesota:

Property loss estimated at $10,000,000.

Number of known dead seventy-five. Total deaths, it is believed, will reach 500.

Five hundred square miles of nearly virgin timber laid waste and homes of thousands of settlers destroyed.

Relief trains rushed to the devastated region from St. Paul, Duluth and Bemidji.

Governor Eberhart cancels all engagements to accompany St. Paul's relief party.

Crookston, Minn., sends carload of provisions and Great Northern railway polices all bridges on its line to Warroad. Special water trains sent to the front.

Thousands of survivors fill towns within easy reach and many are cared for by charitable institutions and subscriptions.

Ranier, a village near International Falls, wires Governor Eberhart for assistance, saying town is surrounded by flames.

State troops arrive at Baudette from Bemidji to preserve order. Soldiers were accompanied by physicians.

Typhoid Patients Rescued.

One hundred and ninety typhoid fever patients at Baudette saved from horrible deaths.

Icehouse at Baudette converted into morgue containing bodies of Brotea and Goffin families.

Warroad safe as yet, but flames threaten.

Three thousand persons are homeless and destitute.

Hundreds of fugitives reach Winnipeg.

Town of Kellihar has been temporarily saved from flames, it is believed.

Big fires reported near Bagley and Clear Brook.

One hundred refugees, penniless, arrive in Bemidji.

Private message to Minnesota and International railroad officials says 300 charred bodies must be taken care of at Rainy River within forty-eight hours.

Inhabitants of Salol, Minn., near Warroad, driven out by flames.

CLEMENTSON IS DESTROYED

Town East of Baudette Wiped Out by the Flames.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 11.—Clementson, a settlement of 200 people ten miles east of Baudette, has been destroyed by fire. Fires are working east along both sides of the Rainy river toward Fort Francis and International Falls. Both of these towns are enveloped in clouds of smoke.

FOUR TOWNS ARE DESTROYED.

Villages In Northern Minnesota Wiped Out by Forest Fires.

Graceton, a town situated on both sides of the Minnesota-Ontario border, is a heap of ashes, being totally destroyed. The places known as Williams, Roosevelt and Swift suffered the same fate. In all about 100 people are homeless and the Canadian Northern railroad has suffered considerably.

A young woman school teacher and child are reported to have been burned at Graceton. They were last seen in the school, and since then could not be found, and were left behind when the residents left for Williams.

The fires are still burning fiercely and it will take a very heavy rain to extinguish them, for the fire smoulders in the peat and literally travels underground. The surrounding country is heavily timbered and was sparsely settled, but all squatters in the fire zone must have lost all they had and it is feared some of them may have lost their lives.

Large crews of men are out trying to stop the ravages of the fires, but their efforts are of but little avail.

CANTERBURY IS INDICTED

Former Mill City Fire Chief to Face Trial.

James R. Canterbury, former chief of the Minneapolis fire department, has been indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury for wrongfully receiving money while in the employ of the city. He was released on bail.

The charges relate to the purchase of a repair shop site. The council, on the advice of the fire committee, purchased the site for $9,000 from Mrs. Sarah Gullo. It is alleged that by this transaction Chief Canterbury realized $2,300. Following this disclosure the chief resigned.

The offense charged is a felony and is punishable by a fine five times the amount gained, a term of three to five years in the penitentiary, or both.

ACCUSED OF REBATING

Charge Against Minneapolis and Rainy River Railroad.

That the Minneapolis and Rainy River Railway company, a common carrier, gave the Itasca Lumber company rebates from its regular published tariffs amounting to $288,634.29 and that it gave rebates to the Deer River Lumber company amounting to $9,008 is recited in a report of Anton Schaefer, public examiner. A copy of his findings has been placed in the hands of the state auditor and will be forwarded immediately to the attorney general. It is probable that action will be brought against the road for violation of the anti-rebate laws.

According to Mr. Schaefer's communication the railroad owes the state of Minnesota $12,449.12 in back taxes on gross earnings, representing the difference between the contract rate charged the lumber companies on shipments of logs and the rates contained in the published tariffs filed with the state railroad and warehouse commission.

STATE LAW IS HELD LEGAL

Express Companies Liable for Gross Earnings Tax.

Express companies doing business in Minnesota are liable for the 4 per cent gross earnings tax as levied under the constitutional amendment of 1896. Such is the decision of Judge Oscar Hallam of the Ramsey county district court at St. Paul, filed in the case brought by the state to compel the United States Express company to pay $9,719.64 back taxes on its earnings for the past ten years.

The court upheld the contentions of the state throughout.

The decision holds that all earnings produced by express shipments between two points in this state, although the goods pass across the state's boundaries in the meantime, are taxable under the gross earnings law.

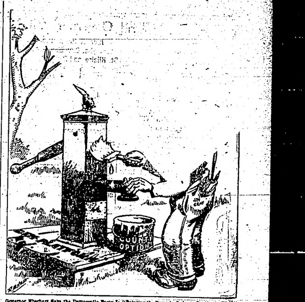
This case was brought as a test and it will undoubtedly be appealed by the express company. Assistant Attorney General George W. Peterson handled the case for the state, and Davis, Kellogg & Severance appeared for the express company.

FATAL CRASH OF TRAINS

Three Men Killed in Wreck Near Minnesota Falls.

Two St. Paul road trains crashed into each other while going fifty miles an hour near Minnesota Falls and as a result F. J. Dunbar, conductor; Charles Kraft, engineer, and Fireman Hires are dead and Brakeman Olson is in the Montevideo hospital suffering from a broken leg and internal injuries, the serious nature of which has not been learned.

The trains, a fast stock special bound for South St. Paul, containing forty three cars, and the other regular freight No. 463 from Chicago, were ordered to pass each other at Sacred Heart, but in some manner the orders were mixed up and the stock train leaving Minnesota Falls was given a clearance when the trainmaster had intended holding it for the passage of the freight. Two miles from Minnesota Falls, while both trains were speeding along at fifty miles an hour and both were going down hill, the crash occurred.



Governor Eberhart Says the Democratic Party Is "Painting the Pump in Order to Purify the Well."

ALWAYS FOR THE RIGHT.

Immediately following the decision of Judge Otis in the rate cases, Gov. Eberhart expressed himself in the following words:

"If the decision of the master in chancery should be sustained it would be unfortunate, both to the state and the railroads. It would leave the control of the railways neither in the hands of the state nor of the interstate commerce commission.

"The control which the state has had in the past has been beneficial because under it the 2-cent fare has been established and the passes and rebates have been abolished.

Fears No Passenger Rate Change.

"Inasmuch as the earnings of the railway companies have increased under the 2-cent fare we have no reason to believe that an effort will be made to re-establish the 3-cent fare. If, however, a move should be made in this direction by the railroads I shall assert all the power reposed in me as governor to prevent such action. In such event I shall see to it that the railroad corporations have all the protection afforded them under the law, but no more.

"Many eminent railroad men favor the control which is now in the state and I believe that the people have no apprehension that their wishes will be thwarted by the railroads. The state is ably represented by former Atty. Gen. E. T. Young and the rights of the state will be fully protected in the courts."

There was no waiting to see what the sentiment of the interests might be in the matter. He simply viewed the situation from the standpoint of right and justice and without the least hesitation announced what would be the position taken by the state's chief executive, and to what extent he would go to defend the people's rights. It is a safe proposition for the people to keep such men at the head of state affairs.

CAMPAIGN COMMENT.

Governor Eberhart will do all he can to secure legislation changing the present primary election law. He holds it is inadequate as it does not secure party nomination within the party. In proof of this he calls attention to "flagrant violations of the law at the recent election."

The Governor has not decided as to the exact nature of the suggestions he is to make to the legislature if reelected, but he has several plans under consideration.—St. Paul Dispatch, Sept. 26.

The rank and file of the democratic party are getting tired of the boss rule methods of Mr. Day and the kitchen cabinet, and are about ready to insurge and their insurgency will mean advantage to the present governor.—Windom Reporter.

Frankie Day is happy. His party has given him a candidate for governor who is not a scandinavian.—Anoka Union.

WHAT CONSERVATION MEANS.

Have you as a voter really considered what the present conservation movement would have meant to this state had it been conceived thirty years ago? Do you realize that had Minnesota had a governor like Gov. Eberhart, with his advanced ideas on the conservation of the state's natural resources, the farmer would not today have to pay the freight on lumber from the western coast with which to build his house, barn, granary and other farm buildings? Had Mr. Eberhart been governor then there would at this time be millions of dollars worth of Minnesota pine still standing in the northern wilds ready to be converted into useful material, instead of having been otherwise carelessly frittered away.

Had we had a governor like Mr. Eberhart thirty years ago, the state's mineral deposits would have been safeguarded in such a manner that the revenue therefrom would make it positively unnecessary to levy a cent of direct tax for revenue to sustain the state government.

Had Mr. Eberhart been governor at that time to advocate his ideas, the state would now have a thorough system of drainage, and our water courses would be perfectly conserved. His ideas advanced thirty years ago would have put to practical use the millions of dollars worth of wasted labor that has been wasted in haphazard road construction, and this state would today be enjoying the best system of highways known to the western hemisphere. Think of these things, voters when you go to the polls.

GOVERNOR EBERHART AT MANKATO.

Governor Eberhart, opening his campaign for re-election at Mankato last night, gave a frank and convincing statemnt of his own attitude on various State issues, and followed it with an account of his own stewardship and that of his Republican associates in office at the Capitol. Taking his stand on the strong Republican platform adopted by the State Convention—a platform, by the way, which is such a model of excellence as to have been in many respects adopted later by the New York Republicans under the leadership of Mr. Roosevelt—Governor Eberhart makes some effective comparisons between its planks and the airy generalities of the Democratic document. The Republican pledges are definite and clear, and they are reiterated by Governor Eberhart with expository details.

In the matter of county option the Governor reiterates his pledge to sign any bill of that nature the Legislature passes. More he cannot do. Nor can his opponent do more. The question is purely legislative. If the voters of Minnesota want a county option law, they can get it by electing a county option Legislature—and in no other way. A recommendation of a Democratic Governor to a Republican Legislature to adopt county option, such as is involved in Mr. Gray's promise, would be about as effective as bombarding the sky to get rain. The Republican party has given Minnesota all the temperance legislation so far passed, and the Democratic party has invariably opposed such laws. Mr. Gray's present attitude is in direct opposition to that of practically all of the Democratic candidates for the Legislature. When Mr. Gray can bring to county option the votes of Democratic Legislators, he will be doing some real service to that cause. His present thunderings are futile.

In the matter of reapportionment, Governor Eberhart gets in a telling blow when he shows that the reapportionment bill in the last Legislature was really defeated by the votes of eighteen Democratic Senators. If they had voted for the bill, the present glaring injustice would have been largely corrected.

As for the primary law, the Governor recognizes its two points of greatest weakness—the prohibitive cost of candidacies for poor men, and the intrusion of voters of one party in the affairs of the other—and reiterates the plank of the Republican platform demanding curative legislation.

In such important matters as conservation of State resources, the building of good roads, the passage of effective labor legislation, the teaching of agriculture, industrial arts and domestic economy in the schools, and the fostering of immigration, Governor Eberhart takes advanced ground. He commends the one-mill road tax amendment to the Constitution. Meanwhile he proposes that the full one-fourth mill now authorized be levied, and what is quite as important, that the powers of the State Highway Commission be increased, so that road construction throughout the State may be properly supervised and improved.

As for railroad matters, the Governor stands squarely on the Republican plank, demanding that Nation and State, each within its own jurisdiction, see that fair rates are maintained and no discrimination practiced. He pledges himself to guard the interests of the people in the pending rate cases.

In short, Governor Eberhart shows himself an enlightened Executive, watchful of the important interests entrusted to him and eager to give the best that is in him to the service of the people.—Minneapolis Journal, Oct. 5, 1910.

THE NEWS

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Published Every Thursday.

FOREIGN RATES:
Including the Dominion of Canada and Mexico..........................$1.50 Per Year.

In his Red Lake Falls Gazette, John King says "restore the rights of the people by electing James Gray governor." King has used mighty little of his influence in Red Lake county to restore the rights of the people to Red Lake county. He rather liked the role of County Commissioner Lindquist. It was money in his pocket. So will the election of Gray help him out for he will hold his job as state libarian for two years more. We believe King is selfish in his desire to have the rights of the people restored.

It is suggested that Edward Peterson, the state fire marshal, might have an opportunity of earning his salary by going up in the Rainy River country and assist in fighting the forest fires instead of going through the state making campaign speeches for the Democratic state ticket. Either the office should be abolished or Mr. Peterson should be doing his duty.

A Taxpayers View.

To the Editor of the Thief River Falls News:

As I see quite a few writing about County - division, I thougut I would also say a few words.

I believe it is the proper way to settle the county - seat question in our county for we have enough population, valuation and territory to make two counties. Suppose the county-seat were removed to Thief River Falls, then the people down south would always feel angry about it, and would likely vote against our interests up here every chance they might get, as they did at the last primary election by voting for Albert Berg and running G. L. Hanson against A. L. Hanson, just because we wanted Hanson up here, (at least that was what they said)

If we divide, I think everybody in Red Lake and Pennington counties, both, will be much better satisfied.

Some say division will cause higher taxes, but it has been proven in your paper, beyond any doubt that they are generally lower in small counties than in big ones, and people, who are really anxious to find this out, and dont think your figures are correct, are certainly not excused for not writing to the State or County Auditor to find out. Any one who will not bother that much is not looking for facts, and is not doing his duty as a citizen. I, for my part, feel perfectly satisfied the figures are correct, or we would have been told by the Red Lake Falls Gazette long before this. I expect to see the Gazette claim they are incorrect in its last issue before election, but no one should pay any attention to it then, when they have not attacked them before this. If you had not showed up the false statment of Road & Bridge appropriations in the Gazette, until your last issue before election. I should not have expected people, who did not know you personally, to have believed your statement of the falsifications, but as you showed it up in due time, we all know they falsified it for the benefit of the Anti-divisionists.

This reminds me of a fellow I met in one of the hotels in your city just after you had published the State Attorney's opinion that we would not have to pay for the new court house at Red Lake Falls, if we divide. "He never wrote the opinion, or else Thief River paid him for writing it to suit themselves," this man said. and then continued to say no one could believe anybody nowadays, and that one could not find out the truth. Then I told him there were quite a few people nowadays who pretended to be seeking the truth in different matters who really did not want to find it out. Well, he did not know of any such. Then I offered to go with him up town and get the Statutes and pay any attorney he would name to find the law, and he could read it himself. Do you think he would do it? Not much. He went out without a word, but not to find the facts. Now acting like this is about as bad as to vote for a bad candidate that you know.

Let us be reasonable. The table you published of ten large and ten small counties showing average cost per township, for county government, ought to either convince a man, or else he ought to write to the Auditor of every county in the state and compare all the small counties with the big ones, rather than vote against division; and excuse his ignorance by saying "I thought the Thief River papers lied."

Yours for Pennington County
A Taxpayer.

Governor Will Not Be Here To-Night.

Just at the hour of going to Press the News received word to the effect that Gov. Eberhart will not speak in Thief River Falls to-night or at St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls to-morrow. The Governor has deemed it to be his duty to take charge of the relief work in the fire zone north of us and has cancelled all of his speaking engagements for this week Whether or not the governor will be here later in the compaign is not known.

Before leaving for the fire zone, Gov. Eberhart sent the following telegram to the Republican State Central Committee:

"I am exceedingly sorry that the unfortunate condition among the fire sufferers compels me to cancel all my campaign engagements for at least one week. The disappointment resulting from failure to fill speaking engagements is to be regretted but the duty to relieve suffering and distress and to protect from further destruction to life and property is a higher one and as governor and president of the State Red Cross Society I deem it my duty to devote all my time in the fire region as long as may be necessary. In cancelling my engagements please announce that I will endeavor to come later.

The situation is intensely distressing but there will be no expense or effort spared to meet every emergency and secure immediate relief."

FACTS ABOUT THE TAXES

Red Lake County Now Levies a Tax Greater Than the Law Allows.

Some Facts That Show Why the County Should Be Divided.

This year Red Lake county is taxed 70 per cent beyond what the law plainly states is the highest permitted. This startling statement may appear beyond the truth, but it is absolutely true nevertheless.

Section 871 Revised Laws states that in counties having a valuation of over one million dollars, the total annual county tax shall not exceed one per cent of the valuation of the county property. Red Lake county had an assessed valuation of $3,744, 599, in 1909. One per cent of this would yield a tax of $37,445.99, the very highest county tax which could be levied in one year. Last fall the following taxes were levied: Revenue, $18, 723.02; road and bridge, $7,480 38; building fund, (this was reported to the state auditor as county poor fund) $14,979 03; interest on bonds, $5,242.35; "other special taxes", $1. 0190.01, making a total of $62,921 39. This means that the taxpayers of Red Lake county are paying into the county treasury this year $25,478.40 of absolutely illegal taxes. Any person can prove the truth of this assertion by consulting or by inquiry of the state auditor.

This kind of indirect robbery was practiced in a neighboring county for several years, with the result that Governor Johnson removed two county commissioners and one county auditor from office in 1908. The county had been brought to a condition of bankruptcy and the state took charge of the county business for several months and placed it on a safe financial basis. This is why Beltrami county has the highest average rate of taxation in the state, 47 mills, and why Red Lake county has the second higest rate, 45 mills.

There are still a few people in Red Lake county who are against divison for fear of heavy taxes. How in the name of common sense can the county taxes be as high as they now are unless Messrs. Peter Hedeen, Ed. Aubol, Daniel Shaw, Olaf Larson and Peter Wold levy an illegal tax of over the legal one percent? Today the county tax is nearly two percent-to be exact, 1.7 percent. That the county commissioners of Pennington will levy less than the legal one percent is not doubted. This alone will cut the county tax in two.

Why the wide awake business men of Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls and the intelligent farmers in the county do not rise in rebellion as was done in Beltrami in 1908, and everlastingly wipe out this iniquitous taxing system, which is standing in the way of every improvement in schools, towns, roads and bridges in the county, is beyond belief. And the man who would try to make any taxpayer in Pennington believe that the new county means higher taxes is simply presenting such arguments for other than patriotic motives.

Looking for Loot.

The small villages up along the border line that have been visited by fire are being over run by tramps looking for plunder, A large number have been driven out of Spooner and Beaudette and are said to be headed this way Yesterday morning the creamery at Warroad burned and it is thought that it was set on fire by these tramps.

Passing Through City.

Every day since the fire up north, the Great Northern passenger trains are loaded down with women and children who escaped from the fire and are going to the southern part of the state to visit relatives while the head of the family remains to do relief work and build a new home. These passengers have nor excess baggage and not too many clothes upon their backs.

At a branch experiment station which the Oregon Agricultural college expects to establish at Gold Ray, in southern Oregon, a line of work which will receive special attention will be given to ascertaining the effects of electricity upon plant life. Tests along this line which have been conducted in two or three European countries have been attended with considerable success, it being found that electricity applied from a network of wires overhead to an orchard or garden increased not only the size and amount of sugar contained in fruit and vegetables, but hastened their maturity as well. There is abundant water power at the point in Oregon mentioned, and the proprietors of the electric plant there have offered the state land, electricity and water power for such an experimental tract.

A few nights ago a flock of sheep near where the writer lives were raided by a bunch of neighborhood curs, and next morning thirteen of the innocents were found dead and a dozen badly injured. Of course if the owner of these sheep can prove whose dogs they were who did this killing he can compel them to foot the bill of damages. If not he'll have to charge it to profit and loss. This lust for blood in the average canine is natural enough perhaps, for it tells of the wild dog or wolf ancestry of the modern dog family and of a time when their whole bill of fare consisted of the blood and flesh of the wild animals which they ran to earth. This sheep killing streak in dogs has its parallel among humankind in the barbarian instinct which crops out now and then in mobs bent on lynching or maudlin droves of bipeds that will hack a notorious criminal's scaffold or coffin to pieces for grim souvenirs.

*A number of people who visited the national corn show at Omaha two years ago had a taste of the alfalfa meal cookies and cakes which were on exhibition in the Nebraska headquarters. Now comes the Texas experiment station in bulletin No. 128 with the suggestion that finely ground cottonseed meal may in the near future be used extensively as a protein furnishing ration in place of meat, eggs, cheese, beans, peas, etc. Experiments have been made along this line, and biscuits, cakes, cookies and bread have been made of a four mixture containing one part of cottonseed meal to four parts of wheat. These products are palatable and are of a yellowish brown color, just as the alfalfa meal products were of a light olive green. It is estimated that a pound of protein from cottonseed meal costs but one-twentieth of a pound of protein got from meat, while three ounces of cottonseed meal—the maximum ration recommended for an adult—furnishes as much protein as would be supplied in six ounces of meat, an average day's ration.

SHE WAS NO SHIRK.

And She Had No Patience With Modern Cooking Methods.

Different persons have varying ideas as to what constitutes a good housekeeper. The ideas held by Mrs. Dana Goodyear were her own and firmly fixed. "I've got nothing to say against those that follow after these modern notions of cooking, like the minister's wife," she remarked one day, "but all I can state is that her ways aren't my ways and never would be."

"She's been to a city cooking school, I hear," said Mrs. Goodyear's visitor, "and does her work all the newfangled ways."

"I presume so.", and Mrs. Goodyear's chin took on its firmest expression. "She was telling me yesterday how she could do a morning's baking—bread, cake, pies—and get the regular dinner, too, and only have three bowls and three or four spoons to wash when she's done aside from the dinner dishes. She told me 'twas by cooking school system she did it, planning and rinsing out as she worked, and so on.

"She seemed real proud of it, but it struck me as a pretty slack way of doing kitchen work. There isn't a lazy bone in my body, if I do say it, and when I've done a Saturday's baking I'm safe to say that there's hardly a bowl left on my pantry shelves, and I've got a good hour's work before me right in my kitchen sink where anybody that comes in can see it."—Youth's Companion.

KING OF THE METALS.

The Importance of Iron to the Electrical Industry.

The very root of the electrical industry is iron. Without iron it is doubtful if the larger generators and the mighty motors could be built, for the powerful magnets upon which these inventions depend for their power are all made of soft iron either in the form of thin plates or long wires covered with insulation.

Nearly every one is familiar with the common horseshoe magnet, which is but a piece of steel bent in the shape of a horseshoe and charged with magnetism. When a steel bar of this shape is rubbed against another magnet it is "charged" and will remain so for a long time. The magnets used in electrical machinery are of the induction type—that is, the magnetism vanishes just as soon as the current is taken away from them. If you wind a long insulated wire tightly around a soft iron core and send through this wire a weak current of electricity the core will be instantly possessed of strong magnetic qualities. This fact is the basis of all electric motors and generators. The field coils are usually made of a soft iron core wound with yards and yards of insulated wire. When the current is sent through this wire the soft iron core is turned into a powerful magnet, and this magnetic power is used to drive motors or to generate more electricity.—Electrical Bulletin.

Elephants In Captivity.

The trainer flashed for an instant his dark lantern on the long line of elephants.

"They are asleep," he said. "In captivity elephants always sleep standing."

"Why is that?" the visitor asked. "They lie down to sleep in the jungle."

"Yes," said the trainer. "I don't know why it is. But you'll never see a captive elephant sleep lying down. Some people say a captive elephant never really sleeps—sleeps sound, I mean—at all. He never has complete confidence, you know. He grieves. He longs to be free. Why, as a matter of fact, this light, standing sleep of his only lasts about three hours at that. All the rest of the night he rocks from side to side in the dark."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hopi Courtship.

When a Hopi maiden decides which of the eligible young men of the tribe she wishes to marry she goes and sits in his house and grinds corn until he is sufficiently impressed by her industry to marry her. After the ceremony, which is an elaborate one, the couple go to live in the wife's house. If she tires of her husband she can obtain a divorce by merely throwing his saddle out of the house. After marriage the house, fields and all their property except the herds belong to the wife.

The Hopis are indulgent parents. The right of the children to do as they please is never questioned.

Odd Way to Rest.

There is nothing that will rest you so quickly as to sit on a straight back chair and, lifting the feet from the floor, push them out in front of you as far as possible, stretch the arms, put the head back, open the mouth wide and make yourself yawn.—Family Doctor.

School Notes.

State High School Inspector Alton visited the schools on Tuesday of this week. The improvements in facilities met with his approbation and the growth of the school population and the city itself surprised him.

The enrollment in the grades for the month of September, 1910, was 62 greater than for the corresponding month of last year. This means almost sufficient pupils to supply two rooms, but the same teachers are caring for the young people as did last year. The crowded condition of some of the rooms, particularly the grammar grades, can be seen from this statement. There were five more high school students enrolled in high school last month than one year ago. Had the ruling of the state high school board not prohibited the trance to the normal department of the graduates of the eight grade, there would have been at least twenty five rural students taking the normal work this fall. Hereafter, no one can register for normal unless she has had one year of high school work.

There are 22 students in the normal training department this year. They consist largely of senior and junior students. Last year under the old regulations they were all freshmen. The new requirement secures a more mature student for this important work.

The schools aided this week in the collection of clothing and other supplies for the unfortunates in the northern burned district. It was properly packed and forwarded to the fire commission

Miss Blexrud, formerly a teacher in the normal department, visited the schools last Friday. She was accompanied by Mr. Jones, the teacher of agriculture at Warren high school.

Reports received from all the high school graduates in the various colleges throughout the state, and even over in North Dakota, relate the same story of success and also of hard work. It is to the credit of these young people that not one of them was conditioned in a single subject but entered fully on the chosen work without any delay or handicaps.

The football boys are not disheartened by their defeat by Crookston's heavy team. The visitors are the heaviest players who have appeared in the football game in the Valley for at least five years. They also are well trained and know how to play the game.

Manual training and domestic science have been made compulsory in all North Dakota high schools. This requirement will be in effect in Minnesota within two years.

The Schoolma'am is the guiding star of the republic. She takes the little bantling fresh from the home nest, full of his pouts, his pets and his passions, ungovernable in many cases, a rampant, riotous little wretch whose own mother often admits she sends him to school purposely to get rid of him. The schoolma'am takes a whole carload of these little anarchists, half of whom singly and alone cannot be handled by their mothers, and she puts them in the way of becoming citizens.

"It Beats All"

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completly cured me." Contains no opiates. Young Men: Do You Appreciate Style?

Style is the one thing in which every maker of clothing tries to excel; the one thing they all agree is absolutely necessary. And style, more than anything else, marks the difference between manufacturers.

In these smart Ederheimer-Stein coats, style is backed up by the best tailoring in the land, by fabrics that are genuine, by patterns that are unusual.

Some other makers sacrifice quality to get a certain unusualness in the appearance of the garment. They resort to any extreme to get a "flashy" looking coat. Often these coats are not stylish at all—but just "freakish."

Good style is an expression of good taste whether displayed by the makers or the wearer of clothing. In the overcoats we are selling, you find your sort of clothes, clothes made for you, clothes that best suit the purposes for which you want them.

Some of our models are long, graceful garments that protect you down to your shoe tops. Others are medium length box style. They are roomy, full chested, perfect fitting garments that will hold their shape and keep their grace. Get one early and get one of this particular make.

BALLINGER REVOKES ORDER

Indian Bureau "Lid" Rule Held to Be Discriminatory as to Persons and Territory.

In a letter to the commissioner of Indian affairs Secretary of the Interior R. A. Ballinger outlined what would be the policy of the interior department in the future relating to the law prohibiting the introduction of liquor into the Indian country of Northern Minnesota. Enforcement of the law without discrimination as to persons or territory is to be the rigid rule, according to Secretary Ballinger's decision, and a recent order from the Indian office, which set aside certain districts in the Indian territory as "wet" or "dry" sections, has been vacated.

Since the order was issued which provided in certain sections of the Indian territory the traffic in liquor would not be interfered with by the federal authorities, there developed protests from cities in the territory, principally Moorhead and Cass Lake, claiming that the order was discriminatory. Several delegations of officials from Minnesota have been in Washington to discuss the matter with Secretary Ballinger and, after carefully investigating the situation, Mr. Ballinger determined that there should be no so called "liquor" zones.

Referring to the federal regulations regarding the liquor traffic with Indians, Secretary Ballinger said in his letter:

"In the administration of these statutes the department cannot countenance discriminations or anything that savors of arbitrary, capricious or vexatious proceedings. The officers in the field are intrusted with a police duty to protect the Indians under their supervision from the introduction of liquor as contemplated by the statute. You will therefore instruct your officers to secure convictions for violations of these statutes where the evidence is available, and proceed throughout the territory involved to enforce the law without discrimination as to persons or territory."

UNCONSCIOUS AT THROTTLE

Engineer of Fast Great Northern Train Injured.

While leaning from the cab window to inspect the injector on his locomotive Engineer Dubois of Grand Forks struck his head against a tower a short distance out of Grand Forks and for forty miles the passengers on the Oriental limited, one of the fastest trains on the Great Northern road, traveled with an unconscious engineer at the throttle. The train sped through several small towns, the engineer bleeding and unconscious at the cab window. It was not until Fireman Morrow, also of Grand Forks, spoke to the engineer to inquire why they were losing time that his condition was discovered.

Throwing coal into the engine, the fireman worked over the unconscious engineer until he was restored to consciousness, the train meanwhile speeding onward at sixty miles an hour. When the train reached Barnesville Engineer Dubois was taken from his cab and his injuries attended to. He was sent home on the next train.

ADVISES OBEDIENCE TO LAW

Attorney General's Opinion Sent to Cities in Indian Zone.

That the residents of Cass Lake and the other towns in the northern part of this state within the restricted Indian district cannot lawfully issue licenses to saloons and that the sooner they cease attempting it the better it will be, is the opinion of Attorney General George T. Simpson. In a letter to D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, Mr. Simpson advises him not to defy the order of the Indian department, but to obey its mandate until determined otherwise by the higher courts.

SAY LAWS ARE NOT OBEYED

Citizens of Hibbing Complain About Saloons.

A petition signed by thirty citizens of Hibbing, asking Attorney General Simpson to take action in compelling the proprietors of saloons in the village to comply with the liquor laws, was filed with the attorney general. The citizens allege that saloons are open at all hours of the night and day, including Sunday, and that at present practically no efforts are being made to enforce the laws.

A potato is a potato this fall, with retail prices hanging around $1.40 per bushel now and the prospects good that seed potatoes no larger than banty eggs will fetch $2 or more per bushel by next April.

In spite of the popular superstition that a brown shelled egg is "richer" than a white shelled, chemical analyses of the contents of the two do not reveal any difference in quality. It is merely a notion, but nevertheless the brown egg will fetch a higher price in some localities and white eggs in others.

If the job has not been already done it will be a good idea soon to go through the bush fruit patch and cut out the old canes. This will tend to make the new canes thriftier and hardier and will simplify the work of covering the canes for the winter if one's latitude is such that this work needs to be done. The brush and litter from the patch should be burned.

Now and then one moves into a neighborhood where the soil is good, crops are fine and climate endurable, but where one just can't get along with his neighbors and is in a rumpus with some of them most of the time. Where one hasn't a pocketbook long enough to buy such neighbors out and they show no disposition to sell to other folks and move away the sensible thing is for the aggrieved party to sell and move to a more agreeable neighborhood.

The city of Denver adopted some five years ago a free tree distribution policy that might well be followed by other municipalities that would like the growing of handsome shade trees encouraged in their bounds. April 8 was tree distribution day in Denver this year, and close to 17,000 young maple, elm and poplar trees were disposed of. The forestry department has kept tab on these tree plantings and reports that, while but 60 per cent of the trees given out in 1906 lived, of those distributed in 1909 82 per cent lived. The trees for the distribution of the present year cost $5,000, and it is expected that a still larger amount will be spent for the trees which are to be given away next season.

The harvesting of the apple crop in the Iowa orchard in which the writer has had an interest for several years was a simple matter this season. From the same but older trees from which we gathered more than 900 barrels of fine fruit two years ago there were picked this fall, a few days ago, a couple of quarts of runty fruit. We have the consolation of knowing that the harvest expense was not burdensome and that hundreds of orchardists in the area visited by the freeze last spring when the trees were abloom fared no better. Smudge pots would have been of no avail, for in the latitude the cold spell was not a spring frost, but a February blizzard, with all of its frills.

The terrapin scale, closely allied in both appearance and habit and the injury which inflicts to the San Jose or Chinese scale, is quite generally distributed over the east half of the United States. Like the latter, it is imported, coming from Europe, its original home, on nursery stock. The most valuable parasitic aid in keeping the pest in check is a small four winged fly. Somewhat strangely, the lime-sulphur wash, so effective in keeping the San Jose scale in check is worthless when used for the terrapin scale. Experiments which have been made show that the only effective spray is the kerosene emulsion made after the usual formula and applied under good pressure as a fine spray.

One of the few orchardists in the upper Mississippi-Missouri valley region who will this year market a crop of apples is C. E. Miner, in Fremont, the southwest county of Iowa. The value of the crop, which has been gathered within the past few days, is placed at close to $10,000. He has this yield not by chance, but because he adopted western methods of orchard care and precaution and last spring smudged his orchard with crude petroleum in fire pots designed for the purpose. Last April during the memorable freeze a thousand oil pots were kept blazing in this orchard, and things were adrip in the orchard while the thermometer registered as low as 22 degrees Fahrenheit outside. This cost a nice sum of money, but it was worth the petroleum, the returns in apple sales compensating for the outlay many times over. This man's success in the instance cited is just another example of what can be accomplished where determination and intelligence are combined to effect the accomplishment of a given object.

The fact needs emphasizing frequently that all of this effort by cereal specialists along the line of developing more prolific types of grain is of little use unless along with it go instruction and practice which will keep up the fertility of the soil so that it can produce the extra yields of grain without depletion. On any other basis increased yields of grain can mean only an accelerated exhaustion of the soil.

The refined city dweller who is too respectable to go to the polls on election day because he "does not want to associate with the kind of men who gather there" is, if anything, a little worse traitor to the country of which he is a citizen and the free institutions of which he is a beneficiary than the farmer who is so busy he "can't spare the time to vote this year." However, the important thing to remember is that both are traitors and should be viewed as such by all right thinking people.

Dairy Maid of Pinehurst is the name of the champion three-year-old cow of the world. In a year's milking test which closed a short time ago she gave 14,600 pounds of milk, which contained 860 pounds of butter fat, or the equivalent of 1,032 pounds of commercial butter. The cow was on exhibition at some of the big state fairs and was admired by thousands. She is a Guernsey of large size, beautiful color and splendid dairy type conformation and belongs to W. W. Marsh of Waterloo, Ia.

The day is not here yet, but it will be ere long, when the only accepted method of handling the farm manures will be storing them carefully under a covered shed with a concave cement floor, which will not only prevent their leaching in the rain, but will catch and hold all the liquid ingredients. With fresh manure worth by actual crop growing test $2.25 per ton and with more than half this value lost under the prevalent method of handling, a saner method for conserving this important by product of the farm would seem to be demanded.

Along with the very commendable policy of storing the barn full of fodder for the stock and the cellar full of fruit and vegetables for physical cheer during the long winter months, it is a very excellent idea to provide a goodly supply of mental provender for the library table in the shape of popular periodicals and several wholesome books. Suited to their respective tastes and ages, there should be found in these something for the boys and girls, for the soberer parents and for grandpa and grandma, if the home is still graced with their presence. It will cost a few dollars thus fitly to provide for the mental needs, but no money put in around the place in the way of winter supplies will have a more wholesome effect or be more enjoyed.

TEN DRY FARMING COMMANDMENTS.

Some one in the semiarid section of the west has formulated a set of commandments supposed to be helpful in achieving the largest measure of success in dry farming operations. While the injunctions are not supposed to be all inclusive, a casual inspection of them shows that they are of sufficient practical bearing so that every "dry" farmer might well cut them out and tack them upon his stable door, while with two or three exceptions the principles suggested would be quite to the point if followed by farmers in humid sections where rainfall is sufficient. The ten commandments are as follows: (1) Thou shalt plow deep. (2) Thou shalt keep the surface soil loose. (3) Thou shalt cultivate level. (4) Thou shalt summer fallow when the rainfall is less than fifteen inches. (5) Thou shalt add organic matter to the soil. (6) Thou shalt keep down the weeds. (7) Thou shalt grow early maturing crops. (8) Thou shalt grow corn every three to five years. (9) Thou shalt grow clover and alfalfa every few years. (10) Thou shalt keep live stock. Deep plowing and keeping the surface soil loose and finely pulverized are based on the well known fact that such layer of soil is in effect a reservoir in which moisture is to be stored and that this supply of moisture from winter rains and snows can be best caught and held by maintaining a loose and fine pulverized blanket of surface soil. Adding organic matter to the soil means, in other words, applying homemade fertilizers, which presupposes the keeping of stock, which is pertinent in all sections of the country, whether the rainfall be seven or seventy inches. Without ditch water, clover and alfalfa cannot be grown in many sections, but wherever possible the injunction is one that should be carried out, for both of these plants are soil enrichers. The command to grow corn every three to five years is hardly applicable to strictly dry farming conditions, though a fair degree of success may be had where there is an annual rainfall of fifteen inches.

ALFILARIA AS A FORAGE PLANT.

The Arizona experiment station has of late been making a study of forage plants as a means of restoring the overstocked range or increasing the forage production of grazing areas. Of the plants tested alfilaria, also called filaree or pin clover, is given first rank. The plant is a native of the Mediterranean region and seems to have been introduced into California by the Spanish explorers. It has spread since that time into practically all of the extreme western states, where mild winters are the rule and where the fall and winter precipitation is sufficient to insure germination and growth. There are some eight species growing in the United States, three of which are native to the Pacific slope. Of these the most valuable and the one which has spread over the territory mentioned is the red stemmed alfilaria, scientifically known as Erodium cicutarium. During the winter the plant forms a many leaved rosette, from which the leaf stems, bearing purple blossoms, are thrown up during the spring months. The mature seeds are borne in a pin shaped pod and are equipped with spirally twisted awns, which coil and uncoil with change in the weather, thus hastening the progress of the seed into the soil, or which become attached to the coats of domestic animals, thus insuring distribution of the seed. In fact, one method recommended of seeding new ground is the herding of sheep which have pastured on filaree, thereon enough seed becoming detached from their wool to do the job. If seeding is done in the usual manner three pounds are required per acre, the cost of the seed being $1 per pound. Alfilaria will produce one and one-half tons of hay per acre, and in the tests by the Arizona station it was found to contain 2.22 per cent more water, 1.37 per cent more ash, 1.88 per cent more protein, 14.18 per cent less crude fiber and .47 per cent more fat than bright alfalfa hay of equal grade and quality.

ISOLATION AN AID.

Many an animal husbandman could reduce the losses sustained from tuberculosis and other diseases in his hogs and cattle if he would practice the simple precaution of isolating individuals which have the appearance of being diseased, whatever the cause of the trouble. We are led to make the above apparently trite suggestion from visiting not long since a herd of mixed feeding and dairy cattle kept under decidedly nasty and insanitary conditions, among which were circulating a number of animals that were very plainly in well advanced stages of tuberculosis. Experimenters have proved conclusively that an animal thus affected may discharge not only virule feces, but nasal discharges. On another farm we know of a steer that was far along with lumpy jaw being allowed to mingle freely with other cattle, the exudation from the open sore befouling not only the ground, but the feed which the other cattle in the yard ate. Many a serious epidemic of hog cholera could be prevented or considerably lessened were dumpy pigs isolated at the start and kept so until they recovered or died. The type of precaution referred to costs little and has a merit entirely apart from medicine or veterinary attendance which should also be made use of if occasion requires.

Proposed Amendments

—TO THE—

Constitution

—OF—

Minnesota

—BY—

The Legislature

General Session 1909.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1, 1910.

Hon. Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State—

Sir: As required by Section 25 of the Revised Laws as amended, I have the honor to furnish you herewith a statement of the purposes and effects of the respective amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota by the Legislature of 1909 and which are to be submitted to the electors in said state at the general election in 1910.

FIRST PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The first proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 506 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to authorize the payment by the State from the State Road and Bridge Fund of one-half of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein, and is an amendment of Section 16 of Article 9 of the Constitution, which now reads as follows:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided further, that in no case shall more than one-third (⅓) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund," and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund, to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided, further, that in no case shall more than one-half (½) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund."

EFFECT. The present Constitution authorizes the payment by the State, out of such fund so created of ONE-THIRD (1-3) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein. If this amendment is adopted the State could then pay ONE-HALF (½) of the cost of constructing any such road or bridge, and the effect of the amendment is thus to increase the amount which the State may lawfully pay toward such purpose.

SECOND PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The second proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 507 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to repeal the provisions of section 11 of Article IX of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. There shall be published by the treasurer, in at least one newspaper printed at the seat of government, during the first week in January of each year, and in the next volume of the acts of the legislature, detailed statements of all moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, for what purposes and to whom paid, and by what law authorized; and also of all moneys received, and by what authority and from whom."

EFFECT. The Constitution requires the treasurer to publish yearly a detailed statement of the moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, giving the names of the persons to whom paid and the purposes for which it was expended. It also requires a like statement of the names of the persons, and the sources, as to money received, and in both cases a statement of the law under which payments were made, or money paid into the treasury. The effect of this Amendment, if the same be adopted, will be to repeal the section of the Constitution mentioned and insofar relieve the treasurer from such publication. This change in the Constitution, however, would not prevent the legislature from hereafter directing by law that such, or a different publication, of the same or other information should be made by the Treasurer.

THIRD PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The third proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 508 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 17, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment, by the State of Minnesota, of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, including the necessary expenses of giving effect to this act, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment, if adopted, will be to authorize the State to become a trustee in the collection and disbursement of a fund for the payment of damages to growing crops by hail or wind, or either. This fund is to be created and maintained by a specific tax imposed by the legislature upon the lands of such persons, ONLY, as shall voluntarily list the same with their respective county auditors for that purpose. Under it there could be no tax for such purpose imposed on the lands of any owner who does not consent thereto. The legislature is also authorized to include in such fund the necessary expenses of administration of the law. The adoption of the amendment will authorize the legislature to direct that the taxing machinery of the state be used to levy and collect the tax necessary to raise such fund and to provide for the disbursement of same by the officers of the State; but any payments to be made by the State, by reason of damage by hail or wind will have to be made from such fund and from no other. In the settlement of any such damages the State would assume no liability beyond the amount of such fund, and could not further be rendered liable. A similar amendment was offered at the general election of 1908, but not adopted. The amendment then offered read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment by the State of Minnesota of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

The main difference between the amendment now offered, and the one last quoted, being that the legislature is now to be authorized, in addition to providing a fund for the purpose of paying damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, to further provide an additional tax upon the lands of the persons so listing the same, to meet the necessary expenses incurred in the administration of the law and thus relieve the State therefrom. This last provision was not included in the amendment offered in 1908.

FOURTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fourth proposed Amendment is contained in Chapter 509, General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Section 23 of Article IV of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and every tenth year thereafter. At their first session after each enumeration so made, and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional senatorial and representative districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section second of this article."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year 1915, and every ten (10) years thereafter. At any session after any enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made pursuant to law and also at any session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or any of the same, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section 2 of this article."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment will be to direct the legislature to provide for a census of the inhabitants of the State in the year 1915, and every tenth year thereafter, and will also authorize the legislature to change the boundaries of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or of any one of such districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts, at any session after any State or Federal census. If adopted, the legislature might therefore, if it deems best, change at any session the boundaries of such districts and apportion anew the senators and representatives and thus redistrict the State every two years.

FIFTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fifth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 510, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 18, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 18. To secure a sustained yield of timber for the use of the people of this state, the proper officials shall annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property within this state, the proceeds of which shall be used for the purchase of land better adapted for forestry purposes than for agriculture for the state at not over $3.00 per acre, and for the production and maintenance thereon of forest according to forestry principles.

"Unexpended balances shall not lapse but constitute a fund for forestry purposes.

"The timber produced thereon shall be sold at a fair valuation and the revenue therefrom or from other source shall be paid into the state treasury, except that one-quarter of the net revenue shall be paid to the towns, or if unorganized, to the county, in which the land is situated, in aid of public schools and roads.

"Should any tract acquired be found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, it may be sold and the proceeds used for acquiring or developing forestry land.

"Until otherwise directed by the legislature, which may supplement these provisions with necessary enactments, the state forestry board shall draw and disburse the money hereby provided and purchase, manage and control the lands and forests.

"No money shall be paid for any tract until the attorney general shall certify to the validity of the title.

"It shall be competent for two successive regular legislatures, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to repeal any of these provisions."

EFFECT. This proposed amendment, and the proposed amendment hereafter mentioned should be read together. They constitute the foundation for a plan of State reforestration. As the constitution stands today, while the legislature might pass laws providing funds to be used for the purchase of lands, and the cultivation of the same for reforestration purposes, yet it is not directed to do so. The effect then of this amendment is to COMPEL the taxing officers of the state to annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property in the state, to be used as the legislature shall direct, for the purchase for the state of land adapted to forestry purposes, but at a price not to exceed $3 per acre. All unexpired balances in the fund at the end of each fiscal year shall not lapse, but shall be carried over into the fund thus raised for the succeeding year and shall be an addition thereto. It also directs the sale, at a fair valuation, of the timber produced on such land so purchased, the payment of three-fourths of the money received therefrom into the state treasury, and the payment of the remaining one-fourth to the town, if organized, or otherwise to the county in which the land is situated, and that the same shall there be credited to the public school funds. If after the land is purchased it is found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, authority is contained in this amendment to sell it, but the proceeds must be used for acquiring or developing forestry land. Until the legislature provides otherwise, all purchases shall be under the direction of the State Forestry Board. The title to all lands purchased must be approved by the Attorney General before purchase is made. It is further provided that two successive regular legislatures shall have power by a two-thirds vote of each house to repeal any of the foregoing provisions. That is to say, if after a trial, such plan for any reason is found to be impracticable or undesirable, and it so appears to two successive legislatures, any or all of the foregoing provisions of the amendment may be repealed. The legislature does not now possess such power and the same is a distinct change in the methods heretofore in vogue in Minnesota, in the making and revising of the Constitution. Heretofore an amendment might only be made to the Constitution or a provision of that instrument eliminated by direct vote of the electors. Under this amendment, if it be adopted, that power is not taken away and also exists. But a new power, that of repeal by the legislature, as to this amendment, is created. Such power, however, would extend to no other provision of the Constitution and affords an easy method of change in case of necessity or advisability.

SIXTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The sixth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 511, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution to be known as Section 17a, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17a. Laws may be enacted exempting lands from taxation for the purpose of encouraging and promoting the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon."

EFFECT. The effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to enact laws exempting from taxation lands of private persons to be used in the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon, and thus supplement where the lands of such private persons are devoted to reforestration, the purposes contemplated as to public lands by the fifth proposed amendment. The authority so granted is part of a general plan for the reforestration of land within the state. If the legislature does not pass such laws, such lands will not be exempt and the power to repeal such a law, when enacted, remains with the legislature. Power to pass a law to exempt such lands from taxation the legislature does not now possess, and it is, therefore, an additional grant of power.

Yours respectfully,

GEORGE T. SIMPSON,

Attorney General.

St. Paul, May 1, 1910.

Mr. Julius A. Schmahl,

Secretary of State.

Dear Sir —Referring to proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 2 I would say: As state expert printer I have given the publications involved in this proposed amendment special thought and am of opinion both these publications are entirely superfluous. The extensive annual publication "in a daily newspaper published at the capital city" attracts absolutely no attention. The annual report of the state treasurer is published in book form, and to an extent that makes it easy for every person specially concerned to secure a copy. To conform strictly with the law as it is at present, means the expenditure, under reasonably favorable printing contracts, of approximately $[illegible], a sum which can be used to excellent advantage under conditions which ordinarily suggest the greatest care and economy upon the part of those under whose direction the printing fund is expended.

Yours respectfully,

J. T. MANNIX,

State Expert Printer.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

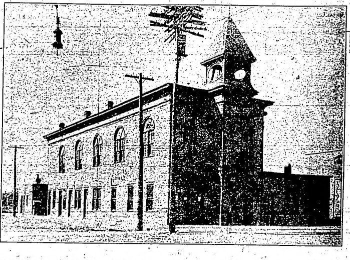
THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL. XXVII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1910 NUMBER 43



Will Soon Be Pennington County's Court House.

The buildings shown in the above cut, which have served Thief River Falls as a city hall, city library, engine house and city jail and valued at not less than $10,000, were purchased from the city last Friday by Math Barzen for $1,500. Mr. Barzen has deeded the property to Peter O. Wold, one of county commissioners of the proposed new county of Pennington, to be held in trust by that gentleman until Pennington county is organized when it will become the property of the new county. About $1,500 additional is to be spent by the citizens of Thief River Falls in fixing up this building suitable for court house purposes, and the new county of Pennington will start out with a court house suitable for ten or fifteen years which will not cost the county one cent.

Division Meetings.

Last Saturday evening a meeting was held in St. Hilaire by those favoring county division. The meeting was largely attended and there was considerable sentiment for Pennington county.

Tuesday evening a meeting was held at Highlanding and last evening one at Erie.

Tomorrow night a meeting will be held in Black River in school house No 94. and Saturday night a meeting in Sanders in school house No. 22. On October 28 a meeting will be held in Wyandotte and on the 29 th one in Bray. Other meetings will be announced later.

Mason Bros. Uncle Tom's Cabin.

The managers of Mason Bros. Uncle Tom's Cabin company which will appear at Auditorium Friday, Oct. 21 have made a radical departure this season from the methods pursued by most companies playing this popular drama inasmuch as they dispensed with the customary street parade and confine the outside advertising to simply a band concert at noon. Managers heretofore have practically given the best part of the performance on the street, introducing dogs, donkeys, and ponies that play no part in the production. The dramatic strength of the company suffered in consequence.

There are no brass band actors with Mason Bros. company, but instead a cast of high salaried and capable performers who give a complete and convincing presentation of this greatest of all American dramas. The uniformly large audiences and the favorable comments received at every place visited has proven conclusively that the theatre goers appreciate the efforts of the management in presenting the play with the best talent obtainable.

Taxpayers Interested.

We have been accused of not being a taxpayer in Red Lake county and that was the reason we were willing to take up the fight for County Division, not caring how much taxes our neighbors had to pay. It begins to look as though those paying the heaviest taxes are the ones to be found in favor of Division. Where a man pays no tax it makes but very little difference how County matters are conducted, but those who pay taxes are usually the ones who investigate the cause of their taxes being raised year after year notwithstanding the increasing prosperity of the County and those who investigate the most thoroughly are the ones who are convinced beyond a doubt.--Eleven Towns

This Is Good Advice.

The Sunbeam in its last issue, in arguing against division, gives one instance in Deer Park where it will divide father and son, one's farm being in Red Lake the other in Pennington. This is certainly too bad, but if they cannot stand it to be divided by a county line we would suggest that the one whose farm lies in Red Lake sell out and buy in Pennington where he will be under honest government and have less tax to pay.—Eleven Towns.

Free Delivery For Thief River Falls.

After November, 1, 1910, the General Delivery and Register windows will be open on Sundays and Holidays from 9 to 10 a. m. instead of from 12 to 1 p. m. as it is now.

There will be no City Delivery from this office until the fixtures can be placed so as to give more room and less lobby. The numbers must be on the houses and patrons of Free Delivery must put up a box or some other receptacle for the carrier to put the mail in. Unless this is done by the time the Inspector returns, there will be no City Delivery established in Thief River Falls.

Dead Body Found.

The remains of Ole [illegible] found last Saturday in a small grove near his farm east of Strandquist. On the 4th. of September, Mr. Evenstad, who is 78 years of age, had been visiting a neighbor and on his return home lost his way, and since that time no trace could be found of him until the dead body was found Saturday although a large number of residents of that section had been hunting for him for a number of days.

Coroner Bierdman of Argyle was over to view the remains but decided that no inquest was necessary.

Besides an aged wife who is an invalid, the deceased leaves one son about 50 years of age who is an inmate of the insane asylum at Fergus Falls.

A Theatrical Treat.

The greatest success achieved in the past by any Uncle Tom's Cabin company is that won by Mason Bros. which will appear at the Auditorium, Friday, Oct. 21.

Of all the dramatic successes now known there are none that equal this great play. It is established in popular favor and needs no indorsement from our press. It is sufficient to say that it will be presented by an excellent company of twenty players, with new and elaborate scenery arranged especially for this season's tour.

This large company also carries a Challenge band, composed of solo artists under the direction of Prof. Hicks, which will give a noon day concert. Don't fail to see this big show on Oct. 21.

The governor will arrive at Red Lake Falls Monday morning at 10 o'clock over the Great Northern and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon will address the voters there. He will then at once be taken in an automobile to St. Hilaire where he will deliver an address at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after which he will be brought to Thief River Falls for an evening meeting. These political rallies are the only ones to be held in Red Lake county by the Republicans this year and all should turn out. The Governor is a fluent speaker and discusses the issues of the state campaign in a frank and open manner.

Steenerson to Assist Settlers.

Realizing the necessity of prompt action in coming to the assistance of the settlers in the burned district and the desire to give the homesteaders every assurance of assistance possible, Congressman Halvor Steenerson has written the following letter which indicates that every step possible will be taken to encourage the burned out settlers to return to their farms:

Crookston, Minn.,
October 17, 1910.

Hon. G. H. Mattson,
Roseau, Minn.,

Dear Sir:—Replying to your favor I have the honor to advise you that I intend to apply to Congress at the opening of the next session, for the relief of all homesteaders who were in actual occupancy of their claims, and whose property was destroyed in the late forest fires, and for the relief of the heirs of all such homesteaders who lost their lives in the disaster.

Following the precedent established by congress for the relief of the forest fire sufferers of 1894, (Hinckley fire), such relief would be in these terms:

1st. Two years extension to make final proof and payment, and leave of absence during the time, but without credit for such absence.

2nd. Proof of occupancy and compliance with the homestead law up to time of fire, and loss of buildings and property in the fire, shall be sufficient to entitle entryman to make payment and secure patent, or such proof in case of death in fire shall entitle the heirs to make payment and secure patent.

3rd. Homesteaders who may not be entitled to commute under above provision, whose claims have been burned over, to be permitted to cut part of the timber upon payment of the price of the land.

I should be glad to hear from you and all interested in the subject as to the proper form and scope of the proposed relief measure, in order that it may be perfected and be in shape for introduction on the first day of the session.

With highest regards,
Yours very truly,
H. STEENERSON.

Soo to Start New Service Soon.

Duluth, Oct. 18—There is a report in railroad circles that the Soo line expects to inaugurate passenger service on the Thief River Falls division, between Duluth and Winnipeg, Nov. 6. The line will be a little longer than the Canadian Northern between the Twin Ports and Manitoba metropolis, but it is said that the fare will probably be a little less as the Soo line will have a greater mileage in Minnesota, where the fare is 2 cents a mile. The Soo line between Duluth and Winnipeg will have but 69 miles on a 3 cent basis.

The Soo line is two miles shorter to Bemidji and Cass Lake, it is claimed than the Great Northern. The Soo line will establish passenger service that will meet present needs to the Cuyuna range at about the same time that it puts trains in commission on the Thief River Falls division.

The stations between Duluth and Superior and Winnipeg are: Blackhoof, Nemadji, Moose Lake, Findland, Lawler, McGregor, Round Lake, Palisade, Bain, Swatara, Shovel Lake, Remer, Boy River Federal Dam, Portage Lake, Cass Lake Farris, Rosby, Bemidji, Scribner, Pinewood, Leonard, Clearbrook, Gonvick Gully, Trail, Oklee, Plummer, Thief River Falls, Newfolden, Karlstad, Bronson, Orleans, Noyes, Emerson and Dominion City.

SCHOOL NOTES

Numerous students who have completed the eighth grade work in the rural schools have recently written the superintendent asking permission to enter the normal training department of the high school. The state high school board adopted a resolution last April whereby no person could enter this department until he had completed at least one year in a high school, or could present state high school board certificates equivalent to one year's high school work. The reason for this change was to secure more mature students for teachers, and also because of the fact that the certificates now issued by the training department is equivalent, under nearly all conditions, to the certificates of a state normal school. They wisely raised the standard for the benefit of the rural schools, where the graduates of the department will teach.

The plastering is almost finished in the Lincoln. Large crews of carpenters, painters and steam fitters are busily at work there. The grounds are also being graded.

Every week sees new faces in the different rooms, especially in the higher grades where the enrollment is largest. Pupils and teachers are putting up with much inconvenience in the hope of relief when the Lincoln is completed.

Paul Midderigh was appointed truant officer at the last regular meeting of the board of education. His duties will consist in securing the attendance of those children who indulge in truancy and of others under sixteen who do not attend school at all. The state insists that her future citizens have at least a common school education and it is well understood that all intelligent parents will co-operate to help this along. Habitual truancy is bad enough, but it is an indication of something much worse.

An industrial contest will be held at the Masonic block school rooms on Saturday Oct. 29th. This is for rural pupils exclusively and is under the direction of the county superintendent and the extention department of the college of agriculture at the university. Prices will be offered and a lunch served at the domestic room to all participants. The expense of these sectional contests in the counties is borne by the state and the leading winners in each county are qualified to enter their products in the state contest in November.

Attention is called to an article on the present industrial movement in schools by State Superintendent C. G. Schulz. It appears in the local papers this week and is worthy of the notice of all persons having children in school.

When the Lincoln school is completed and accepted it will be appropriately dedicated. Leading educator from all parts of the state will attend this interesting function.

His case has been set for trial on Saturday, but before that time it is expected that he will be deported to Winnipeg, he being a British subject, and there tried for his sanity. Beard was recently married to a daughter of Martin Rockstad.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley Kidney Pills I had severe backaches and pains in my kidneys with suppression and a cloudy voiding. On arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and again feel like my own self." Sold by al Druggists.

A dairy cow may present a prettier and more natural appearance in the estimate of some folks with her horns on, but a fellow feels quite a bit safer when he has the handling of them if they are off.

It beats everything how a good, square meal or a night's refreshing sleep will change one's attitude toward the old world, things in general and in particular the task which one may have in hand.

You will now and then run across a farmer of the old school who still holds that a heavy frost about the 1st of October is a great help to the corn. The heavy freezing of the stalk does not help the corn at all—only kills it and in this way may possibly hasten the drying out process.

About the next surest investment after a government bond is a patch of thrifty alfalfa. During the growing season it is as bad as a family of eight kids and a washing about keeping a fellow at home, but with hay from three to six cuttings in a season and the hay worth from $12 to $20 a ton a fellow is compensated for having to stay at home. Another cause of the high regard in which alfalfa is held is that it is a soil enricher and not a soil robber.

With first class manure spreaders to be had at from $85 to $125 there is absolutely no good reason why thousands and hundreds of thousands of tons of farm fertilizer all over the country—one of the most valuable byproducts of American farms—should be allowed to leach and weather and lose a good half or more of its fertilizing value before being spread on the land. The manure spreader is one of five or six farm improvements which a fellow is justified in going into debt for.

It's a pretty sane idea for parents to know where the boys and girls are after 7 o'clock p. m. In one nice little town we know of a bunch of boys, some of them from supposed best families, make a practice of meeting the 8:50 train, and by a prearranged plan the "newsy" furnishes these half baked kids with cigarette papers in direct violation of the state law. This thing couldn't happen if their parents were wide awake and the boys were at home, where they ought to be.

If the average country plunger on the board of trade—more exactly, the fellow who sends his money to city commission men for investment in wheat or corn or pork or what not—could see the degree of affluence in which these fellows live, who neither toil nor spin, he would be a whole lot slower than he usually is in playing a game in which he usually gets plucked before he gets through. It's a bit slower and laborious making coin by swilling pigs and milking cows, but lots safer and surer in the long run.

Many a farmer planning to embark in the dairy business asks himself the question, "What is the best breed for me to keep?" If he has no special individual preference it will probably be best for him to select a breed of which there are the most representatives in his locality. Splendid results have been had with all of the leading dairy breeds, which in the last analysis means that success in dairying depends considerably more upon the man and the care he gives his cows than upon the breed chosen.

There's many a housewife who covers a cycle of twenty-four hours in the making of a batch of bread and who is never sure when she starts it what kind of a loaf she is going to take out of the oven. In many cases failure is due to the method, sometimes the flour and doubtless more often to poor yeast, from which it is as difficult to make good bread as a whistle out of a pig's tail. Bread made from live potato yeast, started with a fresh yeast cake or compressed yeast, can be made at 7 a. m. and baked with the dinner fire, and, more than this, if simple directions are followed the baked loaf will be uniformly sweet and light.

The slender wheat grass found in a number of the mountain states is a cousin of the quack grass. The seed heads closely resemble those of the quack grass, but are borne on longer stalks. The plant is a perennial—lives from year to year by means of its root system, but does not have running root stalks, which make quack grass such a persistent pest. The wheat grass starts early in the spring, producing a good growth of fine, tender leaves, which are greatly relished. As hay it is said to be equal to timothy. As pasture and hay grass it would seem to possess qualities which ought to commend it, especially where the rainfall is short.

A "BETTER WHEAT" CAMPAIGN.

The Oklahoma Agricultural College, co-operating with the Rock Island lines covering the state, has inaugurated a "better wheat" campaign, and the general features of the project are so practical and sensible that they are worth summarizing for the benefit of all northern and western states where any serious attempt is made at growing this great cereal staple. It is estimated that Oklahoma's output of wheat this year—totaling 24,000,000 bushels—represents a loss to the wheat growers of the state of $2,000,000, due solely to the use of mixed and mongrel seed last fall. Although this mongrel wheat has been plump and heavy this year, it presents such difficulties in milling that it brings from 5 to 20 cents per bushel less than the pure Turkey Red wheat, which is accepted as the standard in the state. It costs no more to raise the pure bred wheat; in fact, the yield is usually larger and the price always higher. The campaign referred to is being carried out in a comprehensive manner. It is to include not only a special train to run over the lines mentioned, bearing experts to give demonstrations and lectures, but the newspapers of the state are publishing articles on better wheat growing. Posters outlining the campaign have been put on display in postoffices, depots, exhibit buildings and other public places. Not only this, but experts have been sent out to find pure seed wheat and lists will be compiled giving addresses of those who will have good seed wheat for sale. Grain dealers and millers' associations, commercial clubs, bankers and business men are all lending a hand in the good work, and with them will co-operate the 15,000 odd boys, members of the agricultural clubs, who have been furnished with good seed wheat literature. Schoolteachers have been enlisted in the work and have been urged to ask their pupils to bring samples of wheat to school and study them so they may become acquainted with the characteristics of choice wheat and stir their fathers up to get pure seed. As in many other lines of agriculture, whether it be wheat, corn, cotton, potatoes or what not, the measure of prosperity to be found in a community depends upon the success with which its staple products are grown, hence all are directly or indirectly interested in a real way.

NOT WORTH THE CANDLE.

The tendency mentioned in these notes some little time ago of an overtaxing of immature girls in school as a result of too much study and too little recreation and exercise was brought to our notice the other day. A fine little lady of sixteen had taken an auto trip from a nearby town, yet notwithstanding the trip was in the nature of an outing she was in a hurry to get back so that she could study two hours that night. On inquiry we found it to be the old, old story of two bright, intelligent girls, in the same class and of about the same age, who stood neck and neck in their grades, each being possessed with the desire to excel the other. When we asked the girl in question if her brother ever brought his books home to study she replied, "Yes, but that is all it amounts to, for he seldom opens them." This in a nutshell explains the difference between boys and girls, and it is a fact that thoughtful parents ought to take into account. However, in all too many instances parents are shortsighted and, instead of discouraging overstudy on the part of their ambitious daughters, take a keen interest in their study rivalry and encourage and urge them on to still greater effort. Sometimes her constitution is strong enough so that the immature girl finishes her high school and perhaps a college course, but at the end of that time she is all too often done for—a wreck physically and spent nervously, when these powers should have been so guarded that she would be strong and vigorous and able to meet the duties and responsibilites of living, instead of being a broken down, miserable invalid. The pupil herself should try to look this situation squarely in the face, and if she does not possess that maturity of judgment which will enable her to take the right course she should be assisted by both parents and teachers. This wanton sacrifice of health and vital force to secure grades that will only adorn the pages of musty school records is a travesty on education and an insult to the Giver of life. It is a species of rivalry in which the sacrifice entailed is too great and in which the game is not worth the candle.

CAROB TREE FOR CALIFORNIA.

Bulletin No. 180 of the United States department, written by the director of the Jewish agricultural experiment station at Haifa, Palestine, contains interesting descriptions of a number of plants native to Palestine which, it is believed, might be valuable if introduced in sections of California, where the climatic conditions are similar. Among these is a legume, the carob tree (incidentally it was pods of this tree that the prodigal son would fain have filled his belly with when he was in a far country after he had wasted his substance in riotous living.) When twenty-five years old this tree is said to produce as high a yield as 800 pounds of pods annually, while an acre of the trees will yield a far greater amount of nutriment than an acre of the most thrifty alfalfa. These pods contain 40 per cent of sugar and about 8 per cent of protein and are highly regarded as a food for stock.

A CREDIT TO THE STATE.

GOV. A. O. EBERHART.

"In answer to the criticisms indulged in by the opposition with reference to Governor Eberhart's accomplishments during the time he has been governor, the Osakis Review of Sept. 22 makes the following reply, which cannot help but be instructive and pleasing to the voters of the state:

"Governor Eberhart's candidacy rests upon a record of exceptional value to the State of Minnesota, not alone in his official capacity but in the larger service of directing attention to the greatness of Minnesota in its resources, it achievements and its possibilities.

He has not only discharged the regular duties of his office with promptness, thoroughness and fairness to all interests and has attended all important meetings of the various state boards of which he is a member, but he has lost no opportunity to advance the best interests of the state through a wide range of speaking engagements both at home and abroad.

During Governor Eberhart's short incumbency he has addressed some of the most notable gatherings in the country—including the Convention of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement Association at Winona, the National River and Harbors Congress in Washington, the Deep Waterways Convention in New Orleans, the National Farm Lands Congress in Chicago, the Governors' Conference in Washington, the banquet of the Hamilton Club in Chicago, the National Convention of Advertising Men in Omaha and the South Dakota Conservation Congress in Pierre—on each of which occasions he delivered an address devoted to exploiting the agricultural, commercial and material advantages generally of the state.

As a direct result of these various appearances the State of Minnesota has received an immense amount of valuable publicity, the practical benefit of which can be noted in the increased demand for detailed information as to the agricultural advantages, business opportunities, rates of taxation and other matters, shown by the correspondence of the Immigration Bureau, Auditor's office and other executive departments.

In short, it has been Minnesota publicity, rather than personal or political publicity, for the Governor.

To Governor Eberhart is due in a very large measure the splendid success of the State Development and Conservation Congress of last March, which is conceded by both press and public to have done its best work in arousing the citizens of Minnesota to a full realization of the state's greatness, both actual and potential. This gathering was followed by development meetings in different sections of the state, which have already resulted in great practical benefit and to which Governor Eberhart has given his hearty encouragement.

Governor Eberhart has given particular attention to the needs of the State University and Agricultural School, exerting his influence toward extending their advantages and opportunities more widely and profitably.

Governor Eberhart has responded promptly and generously to the many demands upon his time and strength by the various commercial, agricultural and educational organizations of the state, regardless of personal and political considerations, and has come into close touch with the real needs of all classes of citizens in the state, thus enabling him to conduct the business of his office and to influence the departments under his control to the best interests of the whole people.

In the matter of appointments he has pursued a conservative policy, selecting men on the ground of character and fitness rather than for reasons of purely political expediency. He has shown exceptional consideration for the appointees of the preceding administration, asking of them only that faithful attention to duty that the state has a right to expect; and while the public service has suffered because of the injection of partisan politics into certain departments, he has refrained from the exercise of his undoubted right to make removals for cause.

Governor Eberhart has ever been willing to co-operate with the other departments of government in securing the best results, regardless of any possible effect on his political fortunes.

He has consistently refused many flattering offers to go upon the lecture platform outside of the state, believing that he owed his entire time and all energies to the Commonwealth of Minnesota.

Governor Eberhart entered upon duties of the office under distressing and delicate circumstances, but has so conducted himself as to win the respect of the entire community and the unanimous and hearty support of the most representative Republican convention in the history of the state.

Governor Eberhart today stands pledged to a business administration of his office and in favor of every legislative policy that conduces to the common good."

REPUBLICANS SHOULD THINK.

To the republicans of Minnesota there are certain facts that should particularly attract their attention at this time, and they are vital facts to every voter of that party. First, the state senators that are elected in November next will, before their time expires, have a voice in the selection of two United States Senators, Senator Clapp's term expiring this coming year, and that of Senator Nelson two years later. You most certainly want those gentlemen to succeed themselves or want republicans in their places. The representatives you elect will be called upon to elect a United States Senator at the coming session of the legislature.

Then again there will be a redistricting of the state, based upon the census of 1910, and it is of the highest import that a republican Senate and House shall be entrusted with that duty to the end that there be no gerrymandering in the interest of the opposition.

Thirty-two state senators constitute a majority of the upper house, and it behooves you to think that it would take but the change of a few senatorial districts to give the opposition control of that body.

Minnesota has for the past 45 years had a good clear working republican majority, and there can be no good or valid reason advanced why the party should thoughtlessly throw away the rights and privileges that legitimately belong to it.

For six years the opposition has succeeded in purloining a sufficient number of republican votes to give it the governorship, but if we mistake not, the people now see the fallacy of such action, because they see that it is leading to other dangers and is utter foolishness on their part. Then, as stated at the beginning of this article, guard well the party interests by electing a republican chief executive in sympathy with the principles advanced by the republican party, and a legislature that will correctly voice your sentiments in the selection of your representatives in the U. S. Senate.

THE KEY-NOTE SPEECH.

It is doubtful if any platform utterance ever delivered in the State of Minnesota has called forth more flattering comment than was given to Governor Eberhart's Mankato address on Tuesday evening, October 4th. From every part of the state and from the most influential men in the state, as well as the country press, was heard nothing but praise and commendation. The Governor is credited by them with having positively demonstrated that he has the mind of a true statesman and the courage to put forth his convictions in unequivocal terms. He has amply satisfied the republicans of Minnesota that they made no mistake in naming him as the chief standard bearer in the campaign now on. It must be a source of satisfaction and pleasure for those who are striving for good government and clean politics to read the following comment coming from different points in the State:

The keynote speech of the Republican campaign, delivered by Governor Eberhart at his home city of Mankato Tuesday night, was the subject of much comment yesterday.

The Republicans declared it was wonderfully strong. Democrats were not willing to discuss it.

Congressman Miller said of it: "Governor Eberhart's keynote speech was strong, logical and convincing and more than ever demonstrated that the Republicans have in him a leader capable and with the welfare of the people and the prosperity of the state deep at heart."

"A masterful address by a wonderful man," said County Auditor Odin Halden. "Governor Eberhart in that speech clearly outlined his steadfastness of purpose, his intention to stand for all that is for the best interest of people and state, demonstrated his strength as a candidate and made an incontrovertible argument for the biggest Republican victory at the polls Minnesota ever saw."

Senator George R. Layburn said: "It was a strong argument and a credit to the candidate of the Republican party for governor. It shows that Governor Eberhart is growing stronger as a candidate and an executive. The campaign this year will demonstrate that the Republicans under the leadership of A. O. Eberhart are to win by one of the largest majorities Minnesota ever saw."

County Treasurer W. A. Holgate: "The straightforward and frank way in which Governor Eberhart discussed the many questions to come before the people in this campaign can surely leave no doubt in the mind of any one as to where he stands on all of them. To my mind, the governor's speech was a very strong one, and I believe it will make him many friends and supporters all over the state."

S. W. Gilpin, candidate for judge of probate: "I consider Governor Eberhart's speech a clear and intelligent presentation of the political issues in the state at the present time. After reading the report of it I am more than ever convinced that he is alive to every public condition that demands careful consideration at this time. His fearless statements prove that he is especially well informed on the needs of the common people and the general welfare of the state. No one can question his alertness and keen insight in grasping and developing Republican principles in this state."

John H. Norton, county attorney, said: "Once again, as hosts of times before, Governor Eberhart has demonstrated his unqualified equipment and ability to occupy the executive chair of this commonwealth. He clearly outlined his stand on the principal questions of public interest, and indicated in a fearless way his intention, if elected, to stand for all that will tend to make Minnesota one of the greatest of states."—Duluth Tribune.

It is a business review of a business administration.

He makes some rather clever thrusts at the Democratic candidate and quotes from the late Gov. John A. Johnson to discredit the statements of the candidate and the Democratic platform. It is a good speech to read, and it will be approved by the people of Minnesota who prefer performance to promises.—St. Cloud Journal Press.

Frank Day, the man who is credited with bringing Mr. Gray out as a gubernatorial candidate, is credited with writing early in the campaign that "the public is getting tired of this Scandinavian business." Well it may be truthfully retorted that the public is getting most awful weary of this Frank Day business, as will be shown by the votes when they are counted. Mr. Day should remember that it sometimes is dangerous to abuse a friend just because one has got through using him.

Mr. Gray says he will not only sign a bill of county option, but he will urge its passage by the legislature in case he is elected. Think of the position in which he places himself. Of the number of democratic candidates for the legislature, ninety per cent of them are pledged to anti-option. If he and they were all elected, what effect would his recommend have with them in the way of accomplishing what he is promising the people. It is your duty to think of these things voters, before you cast your ballots.

If Governor Eberhart is "an accident" as Frank Day and his kitchen cabinet sneeringly claim, will some one please explain what Jim Gray is, who was nominated by Day and his cohorts and could not, by any manner of means, have been the choice of the recent democratic convention?

Hon. R. J. Bell, of Roseau, is an independent candidate for county attorney of Roseau county. There should be no question of his election.

There is no excuse for any person living within the boundries of the proposed new county of Pennington for voting against the proposition and we do not believe that many will.

Red Lake Falls would like to have taxation without representation for four more years. That is why they don't want the county re-districted until after election.

A vote for Pennington county is a vote to establish an honest system of government. And an honest system of government is what is going to reduce taxes.

Saugstad and Stephens will fight the battle over again in Polk county for the state senatorship. Stephens won at the primaries and will have his name on the official ballot. Saugstad will have to use "stickers" which is a disadvantage.

Now that the fires in Northern Minnesota are all extinguished, would it not be a good idea for State Fire Marshall Edward Peterson to stop making campaign speeches for Gray long enough to tell us how it happened.

"After election", according to the Red Lake Falls people, Red Lake county will be re-districted into new commissioner districts. It would not be right to "restore the rights of the people" in this county before that time.

While John King, as head of the Democratic State Press Bureau, is writing some warm articles about electing Gray for governor in order to restore the rights of the people (and incidentally offices to the members of the kitchen cabinet) three of the county commissioners of Red Lake county are doing their best to "restore" what money there is in the county treasury to King's pockets. This "restoring" business suits King first rate.

Gov. Eberhart has made good and is going to be elected by a large majority. The only sad thing about this is that he will not re-appoint John King as state librarian and the latter gentleman will have to return to Red Lake county. But as we in the northern part of Red Lake county will be living in Pennington county by that time, it is not going to make so much difference.

School Notes.

This letter is directed to the superintendents and principals and members of school boards and graded schools, and its aim is to emphasize the growing interest which is manifest regarding the relation of the public schools to industrial training.

The conviction is constantly becoming stronger that the public schools must offer training and courses of study which fit for the practical, everyday duties of life. In these respects the schools of Minneapolis have during recent years been leaders. Last year 127 high schools offered manual training; 57 had courses in home economics; in 9 high schools and 1 graded school courses in agriculture were maintained under the Putnam act, and in several more the study of agriculture was pursued.

This latter subject is studied not from a standpoint of theory, or for the purpose of gaining only book knowledge. The young people plant gardens, care for them, market the products, are trained in the selection and testing of seed corn and seed grains, and in all respects the study of agriculture is pursued with a view of making it fully practical and in harmony with actual farming operations.

Last year 28 high schools maintained teacher's training departments and during the present year they have reached the number of 54. The object of these is to give a review of the common school subjects, to train in some of the elementary principles of teaching, organization, and discipline of the school, with a view of preparing teachers for the rural schools.

The high and graded schools of Minnesota, which are liberally endowed by the state, have in turn responded to the present demand in the way of enlarged courses of study and new departments to meet the newer demands.

At the meeting of the High School Board on April 2 this year, a committee representing the State Association of Builders' Exchanges presented a request on the part of that body, urging that manual and industrial training courses be introduced into a larger number of both high and graded schools. This committee especially directed attention to the need of offering manual training before the pupils have completed the grades, basing their contentions on the fact that less than one-half of the boys and girls completing the eighth grade enter the high school.

At a subsequent meeting the following statement was submitted by the same committee, representing the above organization:

"First. That it is acknowledged by all that there is a growing demand for more practical things in the educational lines, one of which is instruction in manual training work; instruction that will tend to attract boys to some of the many mechanical callings; training that will interest them and fit them to become something of more value to the community than clerks, or elevator operators, or drivers of delivery wagons; instruction that will create in boys an ambition to excel in mechanics and teach them to look upon skill in the mechanical field with the same degree of pride that skill in professions is now looked upon.

Second. It is also conceded that this instruction properly belongs to and should continue to be a part of the course taught in the public school.

Third. That the teaching of manual training in the grade schools is of far greater importance than is the teaching of it in high schools, because it is the children who attend the grade schools who need it most and who can best put that kind of knowledge to practical use.

Fourth; That the providing for giving this training is a duty which the state owes to the great ninety and the odd per cent of the children of the state who cannot attend the high schools, in a far greater degree than is the duty to provide for instructions of the comparatively few who wish to follow the professional callings.

Fifth; The chief faults of the present system of teaching manual training in the public schools are that far too little money is provided for the attention given to this instruction in the grade schools, and that the teacher in many instances lacks practical knowledge in mechanical lines."

In pursuance of this the High School Board unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

"First. That in such high and graded schools where instruction in manual training is not offered at the present time, this board would urge the local school boards the necessity of providing such instruction.

"Second That this board heartily favors such legislation as will provide adequate means for obtaining of male teachers of manual training.

"Third. That this board recognizes the usefulness and importance of manual training in the high school and would favor the development of its courses along practical lines."

AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE.

Recognizing the wide-spread interest among all classes of our people in the benefits which will follow a more general study of agriculture, and the duty which the public schools and higher institutions of learning owe to this movement, President Northrop called a general conference at the University on July 29th, to consider this question. The meeting was attended by men and women representing the rural, graded, and high schools and University, by members of the legislature, farmers, and men and women from various professions. At the close of the two days' session, this representative body adopted a series of resolutions strongly endorsing the Putnam act, and commending the work in the schools organized under its provisions; urged the consolidation of rural schools, and a graduated system of state aid for their establishment; approved the teaching of agriculture and home economics in the summer training schools; recommended the establishment of a summer session at the school agriculture; approved of rural school industrial contests; and emphasized the need of preparing teachers for the industrial work in public schools.

Graded schools, as well as high schools in the smaller towns, can make the introduction of courses in agriculture and industrial subjects more easy by following the provisions of the Putnam act (Chapter 247, Laws of 1909), providing for association of rural schools. This has already been made use of in several places, notably at Cokato, and is proving to be the means of brining the town and rural school into close harmony. Each of the ten Putman agricultural schools has become a center in arousing interest among the country folk in adopting better methods of farming. they stimulate reading and discussion of farm journals and bulletins, have brought the farm boys and girls into closer relation with town high and graded schools, and have helped to put new life and action into many rural schools.

The High School Board asks that the high schools and graded schools respond to these demands coming from men of affairs and from commercial and industrial organizations calling upon the schols to train pupils in a practical way to take up the varied duties of life. The public schools cannot be expected to prepare skilled artisans, mechanics, or specialists, in the various industries and commercial pursuits. They should, however, give every child a training which teaches him the skilful use of his hand as well as his dead. To this end, we urge the establishment of manual training courses, the introduction of drawng and of sewing, not only in the high school department, but in the grades.

As to the extent and scope of this work, local conditions must govern. The work must be done under competent direction. Waste, whether in time or material, must be guarded against. Schools where this work is not already undertaken will do well to advise with the state inspectors. It is not to be understood that every high and graded school will at once establish manual and industrial courses. Many schools where these are not now in operation no doubt could profitably undertake the work. However, plans must be fully thought out, the expense estimated, room provided, and in the entire scheme the main thought must be to make the school and instrument for training that will be of the greatest and most permanent value.

C. G. SCHULZ,
Superintendent.

The fertility of the soil of northern Minnesota is to be extensively exploited in the east by the Northern Pacific this winter. A seventy foot car is being fitted with exhibits of fruits, grains, grasses and vegetables grown in the countries traversed by the road. The most of the collection was obtained from individual sources, with some from Duluth. All states reached by the Northern Pacific are to be exploited in a similar manner. On the sides of the car is painted in gilt letters, "Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon." At one end is the trade mark of the Northern Pacific in colors.

cultural purposes, while at the same time reserving the coal for disposal under the coal land laws, Congress, at the last session, passed the act of June 22, 1910, which permits the entry of the surface of such lands under the homestead law, the reclamation law, the desert law, and the Carey law, reserving from such entry the coal beds underneath for disposal under the coal land laws. The surface entryman can, of course, if he so desires, purchase the coal beneath the surface of his land.

Many years ago it became evident that our public forests were fast passing into private ownership under our various land laws and were being rapidly and recklessly denuded. It became important therefore to stem this tide, and to take steps to preserve some of our timber supply for future use. To this end Congress passed the act of March 3, 1891, authorizing the president to withdraw, reserve and set apart, such portions of our public lands for forestry purposes as he deemed advisable and to put the same into forest reservations. Under this law, chiefly during the administrations of Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, upwards of 150,000,000 acres, exclusive of Alaska have been withdrawn from entry and reserved and set apart into national forest reserves, administered by the Bureau of Forestry, in the Department of Agriculture. The act of 1891 was supplemented by the act of June 4, 1897, providing for the administration and care of these national forests. Under this law, and subsequent amendments, Mr. Pinchot, late Chief of the Forestry Bureau, successfully organized and established a system of forestry of care and conservation which, on the whole, seems to work fairly well, though it will undoubtedly, from time to time, require changes and modifications.

Some of our existing land laws are far from satisfactory, and should be either repealed or materially amended. The timber and stone act should be repealed; the coal land laws should be greatly modified and amended, and suitable laws should be provided for the disposal of water power site lands, and gas, oil and phosphate lands. Much diversity of opinion upon these subjects exist among the people of the west, where most of these lands are located, and therefore it is no easy problem to secure appropriate legislation in all these cases. In order to give Congress ample opportunity to act, and in the meantime preserve the lands for disposal under suitable and appropriate legislation, Congress at the last session passed the very important act of June 25, 1910—approved the same day the twenty million dollar reclamation act, already referred to was approved—authorizing the president to withdraw from all forms of sale and entry any of the public lands of the United States, and to reserve the same for water power sites, irrigation, classification, or other public purposes. Extensive withdrawals, for various purposes, had been made prior to the enactment of this law, but some question had been raised as to the validity of some of them, and a disposition had been manifested in some quarters, notably in respect to the withdrawal of oil and gas lands, to raise the question in the courts. This act places the power of withdrawal beyond all question, and since this enactment President Taft, to make assurance doubly sure, has rewithdrawn most of the land included within the former withdrawals, especially in the cases where there could be any possible question raised.

Conservation of Health.

Among other important laws,—to which I will in the briefest manner call your attention, are the pure food law, and the meat inspection law of 1906—both urgently needed and comprehensive and far-reaching in their character. The meat industry in all its branches of purchasing, slaughtering, curing, packing, and selling, has become an enormous industry, and has passed into the hands of a few great concerns, whose eagerness for profit made them, to some extent, oblivious to the proper and necessary sanitary considerations, hence the necessity for the law. For many years food and drug adulterations had been, more or less, prolific, and was on the continued increase. State legislation and regulation, on account of our dual system of government, proved insufficient and hence, in order to reach the evil and secure better protection for life and health, it became necessary to pass a Federal law that could reach into all sections of the country.

Postal Savings.

Congress, also at its last session, passed the postal savings act. This was a great step in advance, and for the first time gives our people the same advantages for accummulating their small savings that people in monarchial countries have enjoyed for a long time with great advantage and blessing. Many of the bankers of the country were opposed to this legislation as they feared the system would diminish their deposits, and this opposition, to some extent, retarded the enactment of the law. But I think the bankers were entirely mistaken. There are among our people quite a number, especially among certain classes of foreign born citizens, accustomed to postal savings systems in their native countries, who will not deposit their money in banks. Most of the money that will go into postal savings banks is money that would not be deposited in the banks, is money that would be out of circulation and not in active use. Through the postal savings system that money will find its way into the banks and will be put to use as the other deposits of the banks are put to use, and thus be the means of enlarging and increasing the volume of money in active circulation. Moreover, a part of the postal savings can well be utilized by investment in 2½ per cent Panama Canal bonds. The interest on these bonds is so low that the banks and other money institutions will not care to invest in them and will be glad to be relieved of the burden.

New States.

Congress also, at its last session, passed an act for the admission of the territories of Arizona and New Mexico as states. These territories will, under the act, proceed to adopt state constitutions, and will no doubt be regularly admitted as states at the next session of Congress. They are, aside from Alaska, the last of our territories within the boundaries of the Atlantic and Pacific to be admitted as states, and thus for a long time to come the drama of new statehood is finished.

I have been a member of the Senate for over 15 years and during that time Congress has not, at any other session, passed so many valuable, important, and far-reaching measures of legislation as at the last session. The session is a notable one for the number of important acts passed, and President Taft deserves more credit than any one else for this great work, for, early and late, in season and out of season, he spurred Congress on in the work. His recommendations were not of a perfunctory character; he was in dead earnest about the passage of these great measures and never failed to press them.

Congress, as you know, also passed the tariff act of Aug. 5, 1909. This act did not go as far, in the matter of tariff reduction, as I hoped and expected, and did not, from my standpoint, wholly fulfill the promises made and therefore I could not see my way clear to vote for it. While it effected some reductions along certain lines and classes, its great defect, to my mind, was the increase in the cotton schedule and leaving the wool and woolen schedule—one of the highest in the whole list—untouched. As a whole, and in the aggregate, the act effected a slight reduction below the Dingley law, and it has proved a good revenue provider and under it the importation of non-dutiable goods has been greater than ever before in our history, so that, on the whole, the act is not as bad as our political enemies paint it. The Democrats of the Senate can certainly claim no credit on the tariff law. To my knowledge, the majority of them repeatedly voted with the stand-pat Republicans for the higher schedules. When Senator McCumber and I sought to put lumber on the free list, or at least to obtain a substantial reduction from the Dingley rate, we encountered the opposition of a majority of the Democratic senators voting on the subject. A majority of the Democrats, as a rule, voted for the higher schedules when they were considered in detail and finally eased their conscience and sought political capital by voting against the bill as a whole on its final passage. The bill had one good feature, that of practically providing for a tariff commission, which has been appointed by the president, and for which a liberal appropriation was made last session. This will be the means of securing proper and requisite tariff data for Congress, and with the information thus furnished Congress should take up each schedule separately and dispose of it by itself, and thus avoid all kinds of trading and so-called log-rolling.

At the same session that the tariff act was passed, Congress also passed another very important act. Some years ago the supreme court decided that under the constitution congress was powerless to pass a practical and adequate income tax law. An attempt was made by the Democrats and a few Republicans to have such a law as that of 1894, which has been declared unconstitutional by the court, engrafted upon the tariff act of 1909. To most of us Republicans this seemed vain and futile, for it was not likely that the supreme court would retrace its steps. We took a more sane and rational course by passing an act providing for the submission of a constitutional amendment, for ratification by the several states, which, when duly adopted and ratified, will give Congress ample power to impose a suitable and reasonable income tax. I regard this constitutional amendment as of the utmost importance. Its aim is to reach, for purposes of taxation, a specie of property—the income of the rich and well-to-do—that is now wholly untaxed. There is no good ground for limiting the Federal government to tariff and internal revenue taxes. In the event of a foreign war with a large naval power, our tariff taxes might become scant and insignificant. During our great civil war, the government was obliged to resort to income taxes.

Even if we do not feel called upon at once to resort to such taxes, yet the Federal Government ought, nevertheless, to be constitutionally equipped with the power to levy such taxes in cases of great emergency. Every other government, great and small, has this power, and there is no good reason why our government should not be on a par with the governments of monarchical countries in this respect. I trust our legislature will, at its next session, ratify this amendment.

I have thus briefly, though somewhat in detail, called your attention to the great legislative and administrative work wrought and accomplished by the Republican party for the welfare and betterment of our country under the leadership of our great Presidents, McKinley, Roosevelt, and Taft. I feel that I can present no stronger argument than the recital of this record. It shows how our party has steadily aimed, by legislation and administration, to keep pace with the evolutions and changes that have taken place and are taking place in our economic and industrial progress and development; and when, in consequence of new schemes and methods of business, new regulations and new laws are required for the relief and protection of the public, our party is ever alive to the occasion, ever ready to meet the emergency by progressive and remedial legislation and by adequate and effective legal proceedings. All this furnishes the best warrant for the continuance of our party in power. It possesses within its pale all the sanely progressive and reforming elements of our population. Its faithfulness in the past is an assurance of its faithfulness in the future.

State Affairs.

What is true as to federal and national affairs is also true as to state and local affairs. Since 1891 a majority of our state legislature, in both branches, has been Republican. All important legislation since that time has come through the Republican party. The state auditor, who has the charge and management of all the state lands and all that pertains to the same, including timber, mines and other resources, has, during all of the time, been a Republican. The state treasurer, who has charge of, collects, and disburses the moneys of the state, has also been a Republican, and the same is true of the attorney general, who has charge of all the important legal matters of the state. These officials, together with the secretary of state who is also a Republican, constitute the Board of Deposit, with power to designate the banks in which the funds of the state may be deposited. And a majority of the Board of Investment—the board which determines and prescribes the securities in which the school and university funds of the state shall be invested—has also been Republican. The same is also true of the Timber Board which has charge of the sale and management of the pine timber. The same is true of the Board of Audit which examines and audits all public accounts and funds. This is also true as to the Drainage Commission. A majority of that important board which supervises the railways, the elevators and warehouses, and enforces the laws respecting the same—the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners—has also been Republican. So that practically, for all material and important administrative purposes, our state government has been, during all the time referred to, in the charge and keeping of the Republican party; and whatever beneficial results, in the way of legislation or administration, has been secured in the meantime must, in all fairness, be credited to the Republican party. Let me enumerate some of the most important results that have been accomplished:

Drainage of Swamp and Overflowed Lands.

In the northern half of our state are large tracts of wet and swampy land which are subject to overflow from clogged up streams and water courses. These lands are of a fertile character and well adapted for agricultural purposes when properly drained and reclaimed. Much of this land belongs to the state, some belongs to the federal government, or is held in trust by it, and some is in private ownership. For many years prior to 1893 it had become evident that it was of the utmost importance for the growth and development of the state that steps be taken for the drainage and reclamation of these lands. An agitation and movement, for the purpose of getting the state to take up the work, was started in the Red River Valley in the eighties and an effort was made during the session of 1891, when the Democrats and the People's party controlled the legislature, to secure an appropriation for inaugurating and initiating the work, but the effort to secure an appropriation failed. In 1893, while I was governor, the matter of securing an appropriation for initiating the work was again brought before the legislature, a majority of which was then Republican. The legislature responded by passing the act of April 17, 1893, appropriating the sum of $25,000 per year for each of the four years, or $100,000 in all, but the appropriation was contingent upon the contribution of $6,250 per year, or $25,000 in all, by the Great Northern Railway Company, which contribution was duly made by the company. The act provided that the work should be done under the supervision of a board consisting of the governor, the secretary of state, a member to be selected by the Great Northern Railway Company, and a member to be selected by the chairmen of the Board of County Commissioners of the counties in which the lands to be drained were located; and in case the railway company, or the chairmen failed to make the selection then the governor was to make the appointments. No selection was made by the railway company, or by the chairmen of the boards. I accordingly appointed Chief Engineer Miller, of the Great Northern Railway Company, on behalf of that company, and Mr. Valentine, of Breckenridge, who had labored long and zealously for the initiation of the work, on behalf of the counties, as members of the board. The drainage work was limited to eight counties in the Red River Valley. In the summer of 1893 I, together with the other members of the board, traveled by team through the whole length of the valley from Hallock, in Kittson County, to Herman, in Grant County, for the purpose of selecting locations for the ditches. The board, during that year, located and initiated the work on several important ditches, and two or three of the most important ones were completed during my term of office.

It has always been a source of gratification to me that I was instrumental in securing the first appropriation for this great work and in initiating the same. The legislature prior to 1901 supplemented the appropriation of 1893 by additional appropriations of $57,500, which made the total amount available for the work, including the contribution of the Great Northern Railway Company, $182,500, and with this fund the construction of 18 important ditches, at various localities in the Red River Valley, was embarked upon. In 1901 the legislature created a State Drainage Commission, consisting of the governor, the state auditor, and the secretary of state, which board has since that time had charge of the drainage work; and since that time the legislature has appropriated for carrying on the drainage work under the direction and supervision of the commission the aggregate sum of $575,000, and greatly enlarged the field and scope of the work. There has thus been appropriated by the state legislature, from first to last, for drainage purposes, the sum of $732,500, supplemented by a contribution of $25,000 by the Great Northern Railway Company. If it is borne in mind that an extensive and valuable grant of swamp lands was given by the federal government to the state for the drainage and reclamation of its swamp and overflow lands, and that the state has diverted the lands and the proceeds of the same to other purposes, it is evident that these moderate appropriations by the legislature for drainage purposes are fully justified, and that more liberal and extensive appropriations are clearly warranted. The amplest kind of appropriations for drainage purposes would exhaust but a limited portion of the proceeds of the swamp land grant.

Congress, by the act of May 20, 1908, for the purpose of cooperating with our state in the drainage work, made all public lands in the state open to entry, subject to the laws of the state relating to the drainage of swamp and overflow lands. This law will prove of great help and advantage to the state and county authorities in carrying on the drainage work. I need not call your attention to our drainage laws relating to the construction of county and judicial district ditches. You who live in the localities where such ditches are constructed are more or less familiar with the subject. In view of the great amount of wet, swampy, and overflowed lands in the northern half of our state and in view of the fact that these lands when properly drained are as fertile and productive as the best of our other lands, it is evident that the drainage and reclamation of these lands is a matter of the utmost importance—second to none other—for the future growth, progress, and development of our state. Thousands of happy farm homes can be made on these lands, which will not only prove a blessing to such home-builders, but will also tend to minimize and lessen the congestion in our great cities. What irrigation means to the far west drainage means to our state; and land drained is not like irrigated land continually subject to an annual charge for its successful cultivation.

Railway Regulation and the Grading and Inspection of Grain.

Minnesota is a great agricultural state and in normal years is the greatest-wheat-producing state in the Union, and as a consequence the marketing, grading, and inspection of wheat and other grains and cereals is a matter of the utmost importance to all her people. The earliest attempt at railway regulation was the act of March 4, 1871, providing for the appointment of a single railway commissioner, but giving him only the power to investigate and report on the physical condition of the railroads. The same legislature also passed the act of March 6, 1871, prescribing statutory rates for freight and passengers, but providing no machinery for enforcing its mandate. These acts were superseded by the act of March 6, 1874, providing for the appointment by the governor of a board of three railroad commissioners, to hold office for the term of two years. The board was given power, on its own initiative, to fix rates for freight and passengers. The act prohibited unjust discriminations, and had a rather crude long and short haul clause. It also provided for track connections at intersecting points so that cars could be readily transferred from one line to another; it also provided for track connections with elevators and warehouses on, or adjacent to the right of way. The act also prescribed the method and procedure to be pursued for its enforcement. The act of 1874 was repealed and superseded by the act of March 8, 1875, which provided for the election of a single railroad commissioner and simply gave him the power to investigate and report violations of law and the physical condition of the roads and their management, etc. The act further, in rather vague terms, prohibited discriminations, and also prohibited unreasonable rates. The act of 1875 was repealed and superseded by the act of March 6, 1885, providing for the appointment by the governor of a Railroad and Warehouse Commission, consisting of three members, with power to investigate and report on various matters, but without the rate-making power. The act laid down some general rules about discriminations and rates, but otherwise was not much of a rate regulator. This last act was again practically superseded by the act of March 7, 1887, which continued the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of three members, but equipped it with the rate-making and other important and far-reaching powers, and laid down a broad and strong code of railroad regulations, which, with some subsequent modifications and amendments made for the purpose of fortifying and strengthening it, is the great railroad regulative law of the state, and one of the best and most effective of all state laws in this country. The commission has the rate-making power both on complaint and on its own initiative. I have not time to describe it in detail. I can only say that in practical operation it has proven one of the most helpful and effective of state railroad laws. Not only is this law one of the best but it is also one of the great pioneers in the matter of railroad regulation and control.

In 1906, after extensive hearings and investigations, the commission ordered a considerable general reduction in merchandise and commodity rates. Considerable objection was made to this on the part of the railways, and they appealed to the legislature of 1907 for relief, and the legislature, after passing the two-cent-a-mile passenger rate, passed the act of April 18, 1907, reducing to some extent the commodity rates previously fixed by the commission. The validity of these legislative rates was questioned and objected to on the part of the railroads on the ground, among others, that they were confiscatory, and certain of their stockholders brought suit in the federal courts to test the validity of the rates, and these suits are still pending and undisposed of on their merits in the lower federal court. The master in chancery has made his report but that has not yet been acted upon by the court. The two-cent-a-mile passenger rate has so far been acquiesced in and has not yet been assailed in the courts. In order to aid them in fixing and prescribing rates the commission has caused to be made by experts a physical valuation of the properties of the several railroads in the state. This vast work of a most complicated character was begun in January, 1906, and completed in December, 1908. The commission has also, on its own motion, investigated express rates and ordered a reduction of 20 per cent on merchandise and produce rates and otherwise readjusted and corrected inequalities in other rates. The commission believes that the express rates are still too high and are now engaged in a further general investigation of a most thorough and comprehensive character. The commission is not a dormant body but is constantly at work investigating and adjusting a variety of complaints, and in looking over the rates and classifications for the purpose of keeping the railroads within fair and reasonable bounds, and for the purpose of preventing all discriminations and rebates, and for the purpose of securing good and adequate service.

Grain Inspection.

A system of grading, weighing, and inspecting grain at terminal points was established and inaugurated by the act of March 5, 1885, and the duty of supervising the work was entailed upon the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. Prior to that time representatives of the boards of trade and chambers of commerce at the terminal points who, in fact, represented the buyers, had done the grading, weighing, and inspecting of grain. Much fault was found, and many complaints were made against this system, hence the enactment of the law which, on the whole, seems to have worked well and given tolerable fair satisfaction. At all events, it has been considered, by the sellers and shippers of grain, far superior to the old system. The inspection and weighing department are under the direct supervision of a chief inspector of grains who is appointed by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. A small fee is charged for weighing and inspecting and this fee goes into a special fund from which are paid the expenses of the service, and the fees are found ample for that purpose. The legislature of 1905 also conferred upon the commission the duty of supervising the weighing and inspection of hay. The grain inspection service is practically conducted by civil service principles and no removals are made except for cause and new appointments are made only in the lower grades of the service. While the public demand for [illegible] inspection at terminal points was [illegible] by the act of 1885 and its amendments, many complaints were made and much fault was found with the grading, inspection and weighing at interior and local elevators and warehouses. Most of these elevators were owned and operated by large companies, in many cases controlled [illegible] to two [illegible] lines [illegible] and operated [illegible] with large elevators [illegible] at the terminal [illegible] companies were subject to state [illegible] at the terminal points but as to country and local elevators they were immune and a good deal of [illegible] to themselves and oftentimes [illegible] of the rights of the farmers [illegible]. They would oftentimes allow the farmer a lower grade and charge him with more dockage than they themselves were subjected to for the same grain at terminal points. This condition was intolerable and there arose a cry for some remedy and relief from such practices. During the legislative session of 1893, while I was governor, with the aid of Mr. Clausen, then chief grain inspector, and now secretary of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, I drafted a bill for the inspection and regulation of country elevators and grain warehouses, and procured the introduction of the same in the legislature. It encountered considerable opposition from some of the elevator and railroad companies, but finally passed both houses by a narrow majority in each body. It is the act of April 7, 1893, and took effect August 1, 1893. This law was somewhat amended and enlarged in some of its details and thus reenacted and superseded by the act of April 18, 1895, which is practically on the same lines and of the same scope as the act of 1893, and is now the law governing the grading and inspection of grain in all country elevators. This law has proved to be valuable and helpful to the farmers marketing their grain at country elevators, and has proved to be a restraint upon the inclination of the agents operating these elevators to give incorrect and undue weights and grades, and to make unreasonable dockage, for they now have to operate in harmony with, and are checked up by, the grading and inspection at terminal points, and any errors committed by them can be speedily rectified. And I may further add in this connection that this law has run the gauntlet of and been sustained by the supreme court of the United States.

Ample provision has also been made by legislation for the shipment of grain in carload lots, for the construction and operation of elevators on or adjacent to the right of way of railroads, and for track connection with the same, for suitable track connection between intersecting railroads to the end that cars can readily be transferred from one line to another, and for suitable loading platforms and cattle yards. As supplemental to, and in aid of, the laws relating to the weighing and inspection of grain at terminal and country elevators, the legislature has also provided for a grain inspection board of three members at each of the cities of Minneapolis and Duluth, to whom appeals may be taken and who have a regulative voice and control in the matter of grain inspection.

Prior to 1899 there was no law to regulate and control commission merchants dealing in farm products, and it often happened that some of these merchants were irresponsible and dishonest; and shippers were often defrauded by some of these merchants and in consequence often sustained great losses. It was not easy for a farmer or shipper, living at a remote part of the state, to pass upon the credit or character of the merchant at the terminal, and it was oftentimes difficult to determine the degree of fraud and deception practiced. To relieve farmers and shippers from these evils, the legislature passed the act of April 14, 1899, for the licensing and regulation of commission merchants, selling agricultural products on commission, and placing them under the jurisdiction and control of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. All these important laws, to which I have thus briefly called your attention, have been enacted by Republican legislatures and administered by Republican officials, and they have all been in the interest and to promote the welfare of the farmers, the producers, and the shippers of our state. No other state can point to such judicious, prudent, and helpful code of laws relating to the shipment and marketing of all kinds of grain and country produce as that of Minnesota. Our railroad laws and our elevator and warehouse laws are the first, the best, and the foremost in the entire country models for other agricultural states to follow.

Other important legislation occurs to me, to which I will briefly call your attention.

In 1903 an act was passed increasing the gross earnings tax on railroads from three to four per cent, and submitting the act for approval to a vote of the people, who duly ratified it. This law has been tested in the supreme court of the United States and held valid by that court. The legislature of 1893 by joint resolution appointed a committee of three senators and four members of the House to investigate all frauds committed in connection with the sale, disposal, or spoliation, of any of the lands of the state, or the timber on the same, and the said commission were directed to make a report upon their investigation to the governor before the first day of January, 1895. As one of the results of this investigation and report, the legislature passed the act of April 22, 1895, a most important law prescribing with much detail the methods for the appraisal and sale of the lands of the state and the timber on the same, and providing drastic penalties for timber trespassers and other violations of the law. The act created a board of timber commissioners consisting of the governor, the auditor, and the secretary of state. Before any pine timber can be sold, the sale must be authorized and approved by this board, and the sale must be at auction, after due notice, to the highest bidder. The law gives treble damages in case of wilful trespass and double damages in other cases. Many suits have been instituted and successfully prosecuted by the attorney general of the state under the law to recover damage for timber trespasses, and treble and double damages in large amounts have been recovered in a number of cases. The validity of the law has been drawn in question, especially on account of its drastic penalties, but the same have been sustained by the supreme court of the United States.

Attorneys General Young and Simpson deserve great credit for the vigor with which they have so successfully prosecuted these very important cases. The act of 1895 has been amended and strengthened by the supplemental act of April 17, 1905.

After passing other inheritance tax laws, which had been held invalid by the courts, the legislature finally passed the act of April 19, 1905 providing for a tax on inheritances and bequests, and prescribing the rate of such taxes. The validity, of this law, like that of its predecessors, was questioned, but the same has been sustained by our state supreme court, and under it over one million dollars in taxes have already been collected. Through the efforts of the present attorney general and the state auditor a portion of these taxes have been collected from the estate of non-residents. A notable case of this kind is that of the estate of John S. Kennedy, of New York, who owned a considerable amount of stock in the Great Northern Railway Company. Over $245,000 were collected from this source alone.

Under the state constitution, before amended as hereafter mentioned, no taxes aside from taxes on the gross earnings of railroads and taxes for local improvements could be levied except on the basis of the assessment and valuation of all kinds of property. This system was inelastic and failed to properly reach certain kinds of property that could only be properly taxed by other methods. To obviate these and other valid objections that were made the legislature passed the act of April 12, 1905, proposing an amendment for ratification by the people of the state at the next general election providing for ampler, broader and more liberal power of taxation than the original constitution.

This amendment was duly ratified by the people. The question was raised in the district court of St. Louis County as to whether the amendment had been ratified by the vote of the people. That court held that it had not, but this decision was reversed by our state supreme court which held that the amendment had been duly ratified so that it is now a part of our state constitution. It removes the restrictions on taxation existing under our original constitution and gives the legislature ampler powers to tax by proper taxation all kinds of property and thus distribute the burdens of the government among the people and upon their property in a more just, fair and equitable manner.

Standard Oil Company.

This company, for the purpose of [illegible] all rivals and [illegible] a monopoly [illegible] several years prior to 1907 been engaged in gross and unfair discriminations in the matter of prices between places and localities, maintaining a high price in [illegible] where it had the entire field to itself and an excessively low and unprofitable price in places where it had rivals and competition, and thus it came to pass that it had a variety of prices for its products in different parts of the state, although the cost of putting the goods on the market were not any greater where the higher price was charged than in places where the much lower and non-remunerative price was asked. The evident purpose of this procedure was to drive all rivals out of the field and thus obtain a monopoly of the entire state. For the purpose of curing this evil and preventing such a monopoly the legislature passed the act of April 20, 1907, prohibiting unfair discrimination between different places, communities, or localities, and prohibiting unfair competition. The act provides for its enforcement, by criminal and civil actions. A suit was instituted against the Standard Oil Company to enforce the law. The complaint of the state was demurred to, in the district court and the demurrer was sustained by that court, but on appeal to the supreme court the decision was reversed, and the case went back to the district court for trial on the merits, where it is now pending.

Last February Attorney General Simpson preferred several complaints to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission against all express companies doing business in the state. The complaints charged the express companies with imposing and exacting exorbitant and excessive rates, and prays that the commission will veto such rates and prescribe just and reasonable ones for the future. We who have had dealings with these express companies are satisfied that the complaints are well founded and that the people are entitled to relief. An investigation of the facts and the taking of testimony began in these cases last winter and is now being carried on as expeditiously and as thoroughly as the nature of the subject will allow. Several experts are now, and for a long time have been, engaged in the work of looking over and checking up the books, way bills, and property of the companies.

Minerals, Etc.

By the act of April 2, 1901, as amended by the act of March 26, 1905, the state reserves for its own use all iron, coal, copper, gold, and other valuable minerals, and all water powers, on any of its lands, thus segregating the same from the surface and the timber. And by the terms of the revised laws of 1905—a reenactment of previous laws—provision is made for the granting of permits to prospect and explore for iron ore, a single permit not to cover more than 160 acres, for which a fee of $25 is charged. Said laws also provide for the leasing of iron ore lands for a term of fifty years upon a royalty of twenty-five per ton upon the ore extracted. The form of the lease in such cases is given and prescribed in the statute. These iron ore lands, under these laws, will prove to be a rich source of income to the state, which has already derived therefrom $2,171,000. It is further to be noted that 584 forty-acre tracts are now under mineral lease and 83 of them are now developed iron mines. It is estimated that all these tracts will ultimately yield the state upwards of $100,000,000 in royalties before the ore is exhausted.

School and University Funds.

The permanent school fund of the state now exceeds $21,000,000; and the permanent University fund is nearly $1,500,000; and of these funds over $16,000,000 are invested in interest-bearing state, county, municipal, and school district bonds, and over $6,000,000 are covered by outstanding land contracts. These funds are derived from the sale of lands and timber, and from iron ore royalties. The state still owns and holds upwards of 3,000,000 acres of land undisposed of, and will no doubt ultimately secure from these lands and from outstanding leases an additional fund of over $200,000,000. No other state in the Union has husbanded the lands granted to it by the federal government as prudently, nor derived such a large income therefrom as the State of Minnesota. A proper plan was adopted in the first instance and that plan has been followed, and there has been an honest administration of our public land system throughout.

State Prison.

About twenty years ago the state prison at Stillwater, under authority of the legislature, embarked upon the manufacturing of binding twine for the use of the farmers. Owing to poor machinery and the use of hemp, progress was rather slow at first, but after good machinery was obtained and Manila and sisal was used, the manufacture of twine has proved a great success and has increased to large dimensions, supplying our farmers with large quantities of good twine at reasonable rates, and keeping down the price of other twine to the level of our prison twine. There is no telling how exorbitant a price our farmers would have to pay for their twine were it not for the competition of our prison twine. The manufacture and sale of the twine entails no expense on the state, for it is more than self-supporting, and it furnishes a suitable employment for the convicts, less in conflict with organized labor than most any other employment. The manufacture of twine proved such a success that it led the legislature of 1907 to pass an act providing for the manufacture of rakes, mowers, and harvesters and binders. The prison has already embarked, in a limited way, upon this industry. A few mowers and harvesters have been made and put upon the market, and they have proven to be quite satisfactory, and in demand. I have no doubt that this industry will greatly expand and in time prove as valuable to our farmers as the prison twine industry. It may prove to be an efficient brake and curb upon the great harvester trust, and if that is the case, it will confer a great blessing upon our farmers.

I have thus briefly called your attention to the legislative and administrative record of the Republican party in this state for the purpose of showing, by a plain statement of facts, that the Republican party has been faithful to its trust, and that it has aimed to give legislative and administrative relief in all cases where there was good and reasonable ground therefor. Our state government in its entirety has been in the charge and keeping of the Republican party and that party is fairly entitled to credit for all that has been done in behalf of the public welfare in the years gone by. We not only present a good record but our candidates, from the head to the foot of the ticket, are men of high character, trustworthy, and reliable in every respect. Most of them have been in the public service for years and have been tried and not found wanting. Our candidate for governor, Mr. Eberhart, has served with credit and ability as senator, as lieutenant governor, and nearly a year as governor. No one can question his integrity and ability. There is no valid ground for any Republican to oppose his election. The question of county option is not made a party issue by either the Republican or Democratic platform. That issue is pending in respect to the various legislative candidates, and there is the appropriate place to give vent to expression to one's views on the subject. If the legislature shall see fit to pass a county option bill Governor Eberhart will approve and sign it, and that is all that any fair-minded county option man can ask and expect. The Democratic candidate can do no more, for no sane man can well believe that he has the gift to convert a hostile legislature. County optionists should devote their energies to elect men of [illegible] faith to the legislature and not to [illegible] attack [illegible] covert on the Republican candidate for governor. That [illegible] with them in the reform [illegible]

Supplement to THE NEWS, Thief River Falls, Minn., Thursday, Oct. 20, 1910.

SPEECH OF HON. KNUTE NELSON

DELIVERED AT

ALEXANDRIA, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 15, 1910.

For administrative and legislative purposes the Federal Government has, ever since the Fourth of March, 1897, been in the keeping and under the guidance of the Republican party. The preceding Democratic administration of Grover Cleveland had, in many respects, proved a failure, especially in its tariff legislation, which proved, more or less, hampering to the industrial and economic life of the country, and produced an insufficiency of revenue for the current expenses of the Government, entailing, in part, the necessity of increasing the interest-bearing debt of the Nation. And no serious efforts were made to enforce the provisions of the anti-trust law, which had been enacted in 1890, under a Republican administration, for the purpose of checking and restraining the growing and threatening rapacity and greed of corporations seeking, by various devices, to monopolize and restrain interstate trade and commerce. The only remedial legislation secured during Cleveland's term—and that was only a mere palliative—was the repeal of the statute requiring the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver every month, and this repeal was effected chiefly by Republican votes. The great majority of the Democratic vote was against the repeal.

The first duty entailed upon the administration of President McKinley was the enactment of new tariff legislation for the purpose of reviving the languishing industries of the country, and for the purpose of securing sufficient revenues for the current expenses of the Government. This duty was accomplished when the tariff act of July, 1897, was passed. That act was not only the means of reviving the industrial life of the country, but also furnished ample revenues for the wants of the Government, aside from the demands of the Spanish war, which broke out within a year thereafter. This war was carried on in 1898 to a successful issue, resulting in the independence and rehabilitation of Cuba, and the acquisition and regeneration of Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. The war and its resultant burdens delayed the enactment of needed monetary legislation, so that it was not until 1900 that this important work was taken up.

At that time, and for years, we had been suffering from the evil effects of the double standard, and from the difficulty of maintaining silver on a parity with gold. By the act of March, 1900, the double standard was abolished and gold was made the single standard and unit of our currency. This placed our monetary system on a sound basis and on a par with the other great commercial nations of the world. And while our paper currency is not entirely satisfactory and is subject to some criticism yet, aside from its lack of elasticity, it is, on the whole, a fairly good and safe currency, and in all essentials far superior to the paper currency we had in this country before the days of the Civil War. The monetary panic, which occurred in the latter part of 1907 and the early part of 1908, did not come so much from any defect in our currency system as from undue and sinister speculation in the great monetary center of the country. Many promoters, individuals, trust companies, and banks, had, in one form or another, incurred obligations, not always of a legitimate business character, far in excess of the available currency at their command, and when they were unable to meet their current obligations, the panic ensued. Had the demand for currency been confined and limited to the requirements and demands of legitimate trade and commerce there would have been no dearth of currency and no occasion for bank suspensions. The banks and monetary institutions outside of New York City were, as a rule, in a sound and safe condition; and the industrial and commercial life of the country was in a normal and fairly prosperous condition, as was shown by the easy and steady recuperation which ensued after the panic. In short, it was a banker's rather than a business man's panic, with its origin and storm center in New York City, rather than elsewhere, and just such a panic as could well occur under the best currency system. There was as much money in circulation per capita immediately preceding the panic as in the prosperous year succeeding it, and the volume of deposits in the banks and other monetary institutions was greater by $883,000,000 June 30, 1907, than June 30, 1906. However, to meet such contingencies as occured in this panic Congress, by the act of May 30, 1908, amended the national banking laws by providing for the issue of an emergency currency through currency associations of national banks. The act is well guarded and the currency issued under it would be perfectly safe. A few currency associations have been, or are being organized under this act, but no currency has, so far, been issued. The act also provided for the creation of a "monetary commission," charged with the duty of enquiring into and reporting to Congress what changes are necessary, or desirable, in our monetary and banking systems. The Commission has made extensive investigations and enquiries and has made various preliminary reports especially upon the monetary systems of other countries, but has, so far, made no final report or specific recommendations to Congress. Such report and such recommendations will no doubt, be made to Congress at its next session, and Congress will no doubt, in the near future take up the subject for due consideration and action. In the meantime we have the assurance that, barring the want of elasticity, our currency is safe and sound and answers fairly to the demands of all legitimate trade and business. We have over 7,000 national banks, with a capital and surplus of nearly two billion dollars, a circulation of over $650,000,000, deposits of over $5,300,000,000, and loans and discounts of nearly $5,500,000,000.

We now have a per capita circulation of nearly $35 as against $22.87 when the McKinley administration came into power, and the great increase in the production of gold has led to the continued increase in the coinage of this metal.

Panama Canal.

Under the act of June 28, 1902, we purchased from the French Company, and embarked upon the construction of the Panama Canal for the purpose of securing direct water transportation for our navy and our merchant marine from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboard. The construction of the canal is carried on under the direction of the War Department and is progressing at a most satisfactory and speedy rate, and the indications are that within less than five years this work, the greatest of its kind, will be completed, thus verifying the dream and fulfilling the hope of centuries. The canal will not only prove in itself, to be a great vehicle of commerce, but it will also be in the very nature of the case a potent regulator of transcontinental railroad rates, and indirectly, to a more limited extent, of intermediate local rates. The chief credit for this grand and immense work belongs to the administrations of Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, to the former for initiating and to the latter for carrying on the work.

Legislation Requisite for Modern Conditions.

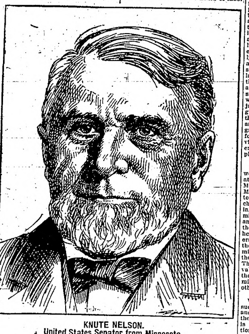
The great and transcendent changes and evolutions which have taken place in the industrial and economic life of our people within the last fifty years have entailed problems of legislation and administration which our forefathers could not foresee and had never dreamed of. Rules and regulations—comparatively few and simple—which in those early days proved ample and sufficient for the protection and welfare of the public, have in these modern times, in the face of the great changes that have taken place in the scale and methods of all kinds of business, proved insufficient and in many instances well-nigh abortive. In the days when commerce and manufacturing was carried on by individuals, firms and corporations, on a small scale and with limited capital, there was ample room for competition and this competition gave the consumer a fair degree of protection. The same rule held good in those days in the realm of transportation. While transportation was largely confined to water, it was not easy to build up a monopoly or to exact unreasonable rates. But in these modern and later times, when a few great corporations—created by State and not by Federal law—with enormous capital at their command have, to a large extent, absorbed and monopolized the transportation facilities, the manufacturing industries, and the commerce of the country, and to a large extent destroyed competition, the conditions have become intolerable, and the public cry out for relief and protection. For these great corporations, in many instances, assume to be a law unto themselves, and insist upon immunity from public regulation and control.

Railways and Railway Legislation.

This was especially the attitude and assumption of the railroad companies in the seventies and eighties. In those days the companies were much given to stock-watering, or over-capitalization, from which they are not yet free. They were also guilty of great discriminations between persons and places. Their rates were high and in many cases unreasonable, and gross and unjust rebates were of frequent occurrence. The conditions were, in many instances, intolerable, especially in the middle west, where the farmers, who produced the food supply of the country, resided, and to whom it was of the utmost importance to secure fair and reasonable rates for their products. By reason of these facts the farmers in these states—sneeringly called Granger states—applied, in the first instance, for relief to their state legislatures and these responded by enacting various forms of railway rate regulation laws, and by creating railway commissions to enforce them. Some of these laws were rather crude, while some were quite substantial and effective. But whether good, indifferent, or bad, they all labored under one drawback. Under our dual system of government these laws and regulations could only cover and affect intrastate traffic, that is, traffic beginning and ending in a single state. But as nearly all the products of the farm enter into interstate commerce, it became evident that legislative relief must come from Congress, to supplement state laws. So Congress was appealed to, and it responded by passing the act of 1887, creating the Interstate Commerce Commission and giving it some power of regulation, but without the rate-making power, as construed by the supreme court. The Interstate Commerce Commission, as well as the public, believed that the law conferred the rate-making power, and there was much disappointment when the court made its decision. All the Commission could do under the law was to pronounce an existing rate unjust, and if its decision was not complied with, go into a court and try and secure a decree sustaining its order, but it could in no manner prescribe future rates, and therefore, even if its veto of an existing rate was sustained, the railway company could, nevertheless, the next moment, make a new rate but a mere trifle lower than the old one. This result was very unsatisfactory, and as a consequence, Congress was again appealed to, and especially asked to confer the rate-making power upon the commission. But Congress was slow to respond. In 1902 I introduced a bill in the Senate to confer the rate-making power on the commission. The bill was never reported by the committee to which it was referred. But finally in 1903, Congress passed the so-called Elkins' law for the purpose of checking and repressing all kinds of rebates and discriminations, and for this purpose it has proved quite effective, but this law, too, failed to confer the rate-making power.

The demand for further railway regulation legislation continued to grow apace. The public were very anxious to have the rate-making power conferred upon the commission. President Roosevelt took up the matter and earnestly pressed it upon Congress, and under this pressure Congress finally responded by passing the act of June 1906, largely amending the act of 1887 in many important details and conferring upon the commission the rate-making power, but limiting its exercise to cases where complaint was made. This was a great step in advance and taken in the face of persistent and long-continued opposition on the part of the railways. It was evident, however, that the act of 1906 did not go as far as it should have gone in some particulars, especially in not conferring the rate-making power upon the commission on its own initiative, and in not allowing it to examine and pass upon new rates before going into effect. President Taft brought to the attention of Congress, at the beginning of last session, the necessity for further amendments to the act of 1906 in order to make it more effective and more remedial, and Congress again took up the subject and passed the act of June 18, 1910. This act conferred upon the commission, subject to appeal to the courts, the full rate-making power to be exercised by the commission on its own initiative as well as when complaint was made. It also empowered the commission to suspend new rates, for investigation and determination, for a period of ten months in all, to the end that if the commission found such new rate unjust and unreasonable it could veto the same and prohibit its taking effect. The commission was also given the power on its own initiative, or on complaint made, to establish through rates and joint classifications. The so-called long and short haul clause of the act of 1887 was also amended in the interest of interior local points, so that a greater charge cannot be made for a shorter than a longer haul on the same line, as had been done in the noted Spokane case and in many other instances. The act not only embraces railroads within its scope, but also express and sleeping car companies and telegraph and telephone companies. The act also gives the shipper the right to route his shipments; that is, the right to designate the route on which his goods are to be shipped. Prior to the enactment of this law appeals from the decisions of the commission could be taken to the various circuit courts of the country. This act created a Court of Commerce, consisting of five circuit judges to which all appeals in the future are to be brought. The act also makes many other material amendments of a highly remedial character, of which I have not the time to speak in detail. While great progress in the matter of railway regulation and control was made by the act of 1906, the act of 1910 took a much further and a much more substantial step in advance. Experience will, no doubt, demonstrate that further remedial amendments may be needed. After the law has been in operation and tested we can better determine what further steps to take. The subject is of a vast and complicated character and in this case, as in many other important matters, reforms cannot be accomplished in a day, a month, or a year, or by the wholesale.

One of the evils appertaining to railway companies has been that of over-capitalization. The act of 1910 provides for the appointment by the president of a commission to investigate this subject, and I have no doubt that the report of this commission will lead to material remedial legislation on this subject. The public, as a whole, are actuated by no hostility to our railroads, and are quite willing that they should receive reasonable and fair compensation for their services. What the people object to is making watered-stock—stock not representing actual investments—the basis, in whole or in part, for imposing rates.



KNUTE NELSON.
United States Senator from Minnesota.

Railroad Employes.

As it became necessary to relieve and protect the shippers against the railroads, so it also became necessary to relieve and protect the employes of the railroads, for the latter appeared to be as oblivious in the one case as in the other. To check the disposition of the railroad companies to impose undue and unreasonable hours of labor on their trainmen, train dispatchers, and telegraph operators, Congress, in March, 1907, passed the act limiting the hours of labor for this class of employes. By an earlier act, that of June, 1898, Congress had made provision for the arbitration of disputes between the railroad companies and their employes as to wages, hours of labor, and conditions of employment. To promote and protect the safety of railroad employes the so-called Safety Appliance Law of March, 1893, was passed, providing, among other things, for an improved brake and car-coupler system. The act also provided, that in case the railroad companies did not comply with its provisions any employe, receiving an injury in consequence thereof, should not be deemed to have assumed the risk even though he continued in the employment after the failure of the company to comply with the provisions of the law. The scope of the act was enlarged and strengthened by the act of March 2, 1903, and still further greatly enlarged and fortified by the act of April 14, 1910. The three acts combined make a strong and broad safety appliance code for the relief and protection of railroad employes. The safety appliance laws have also been supplemented by the so-called ash pan act of March 3, 1908, requiring locomotives to be equipped with an ash pan which can be emptied and dumped without the firemen crawling under the locomotive.

For years the federal courts had been applying harsh and arbitrary rules against railroad employes when they or their families sought to recover damages for injuries or loss of life occurring in the service, and as a consequence all railroad companies that could do so transferred the suits brought against them into the federal courts, where it was exceedingly difficult, in most cases, to secure compensation, by reason of the fact that the courts applied the fellow servant rule, and the rule of contributory negligence with great strictness, and by also applying the assumption of risk doctrine. These were all court-made rules that had no direct statutory basis. To cure this evil and to afford the railroad employes a fair show for recovery Congress passed the so-called Employers Liability act of June 11, 1906. But the supreme court held, by a bare majority, this act to be invalid because it covered state as well as interstate traffic. To overcome the effect of this decision, the Congress passed the Employers Liability act of April, 1908, which is not open to the defect discovered by the court in the earlier law. Under this last act, as under the former, the fellow servant rule is eliminated and contributory negligence is no bar to recovery, but only bears on the measure of damages, and not even on that when the injury occurred through the failure of the railroad company to comply with the safety appliance laws. The rule as to assumption of risk is eliminated and the railroad companies cannot limit their liability by any contract, rule, regulation, or other device. This act is a just one, and has accomplished a most vital reform. In this connection I will also call your attention to the fact that Congress, at its last session, passed an act creating a commission to investigate the subject of providing a method for compensating employes of interstate carriers for injuries received in the service, and to report a plan, or bill, on the subject. If such a scheme can be worked out it will obviate the necessity of resorting to the courts and will furnish a speedy and inexpensive way of securing compensation.

Government Employes.

The Federal Government cannot be sued without its consent, and hence those who are injured, or lose their lives, in the government service have no remedy, as in cases outside of the public service. To afford a limited and partial relief in such cases Congress passed the act of May 30, 1908, giving to government employes, in case they are injured in the service, and to their families in case the injury results in death, a limited compensation, payable without suit or litigation. The law, in view of the fact that the government cannot be sued, is undoubtedly just and necessary, for it is intoler*able that the* government employes should be without any relief. But the law is fairly open to the criticism that the compensation given is too scant, as it is practically limited to one year's salary of the employe injured, even where death is the result of the injury. I have no doubt but that Congress will, in the near future, remedy this defect and allow a more adequate and just compensation. In 1882 Congress passed a law along similar lines for the benefit of the life-saving service. The limit under this law cannot exceed two years' salary of the employe injured in the service.

Miners.

For the protection of laborers and workmen engaged in mining, Congress, at its last session, passed the act of May 16, 1910, establishing a Bureau of Mines in the Department of the Interior. This bureau is especially charged with the duty of investigating the methods and appliances of mining, with a view of ascertaining and prescribing the best methods and the best appliances conducive to the health, safety and welfare of the miners. The bureau is also charged with the duty of ascertaining the causes of mine explosions, and of prescribing the best means of preventing the same. This legislation will prove of great value to those who are engaged in the hazardous work of coal and iron mining, and for that matter to all other classes of miners.

Anti-Trust Law.

While public service corporations, such as railroads, can be regulated and controlled by legislation even to the extent of prescribing rates, that is not the case with other corporations. As to these, in the matter of rates, relief must come by keeping the door of competition open. Through consolidation and absorption a considerable number of great industrial corporations, with immense capital at their command, and aiming at monopoly in trades and manufacturing, were organized and put into operation during the eighties, and before. It became evident that a few great corporations aimed at nothing less than to monopolize and entirely control the trade in their respective lines. This was notably the case with the so-called sugar trust, and the Standard Oil trust; and these cases, though the greatest, were nevertheless typical of many others. The public, as soon as they felt and realized the effect of these great combinations, looked about for relief. And it was found that the common law was insufficient, that state legislation was too limited and incomplete, and that full and comprehensive legislative relief could only come through Congress. Congress was appealed to and the appeal resulted in the great anti-trust act of 1890, passed by a Republican Congress during Harrison's administration. This law has oftentimes been called the Sherman Act, but this is a mistake. The bill he introduced did not pass, but a substitute therefor, reported by the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, was the bill that passed and became the law. Senator Edmunds was undoubtedly the author and father of this substitute. The law was drawn with great skill and has been found to be more far-reaching, more searching, and more effective than was at first supposed to be the case, and it has stood the test and successfully run the gauntlet of the courts. It prohibits all monopolies and all combinations in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, and while it cannot on constitutional grounds, technically reach corporations engaged exclusively in manufacturing, yet inasmuch as all great manufacturing concerns are also engaged in vending their products throughout the country and thus engaged in interstate trade and commerce, they can undoubtedly be reached, restrained and prosecuted under this law. The prohibitions of the act are broad and of the most comprehensive character. It makes no distinction between good and bad trusts, as some in these later days would have us do. All combinations in restraint of trade and all monopolies in trade, however fatherly the purpose may have been, are absolutely prohibited and the courts have rightfully declined to consider whether a trust is reasonable or unreasonable. The law makes them all unreasonable. Not only is the law drastic in its prohibitions but it gives ample remedies for violations of the same. Four classes of remedies are provided: (1) by criminal prosecution, (2) by injunction, (3) by seizure and confiscation of trust made goods, and (4) by civil action for triple damages in behalf of any party injured. All these remedies have been invoked and successfully sustained by the courts. The enforcement of the law has been aided and fortified by the following acts of Congress, namely, the act of February 14, 1903, establishing the Department of Commerce and Labor, the act of February 11, 1893, in regard to procuring testimony; the act of February 25, 1903, granting immunity to witnesses for the purpose of compelling them to testify in cases under the anti-trust law and the Interstate Commerce law; the act of February 11, 1903, providing for expediting the trial cases under the anti-trust and Interstate Commerce laws; and the act of March 2, 1907, giving the government, for the first time, the right of appeal to the supreme court in criminal cases. A considerable number of appeals have been taken under this law, and in a great majority of the cases so appealed the supreme court has reversed the lower court, thus showing the great value of law. Several violators of our public land laws would have received immunity and escaped but for this law. All of the acts I have cited, except the act of February 11, 1893, were passed by a Republican Congress under a Republican President. As I have already stated, Cleveland made but slight effort to enforce the anti-trust law. Under the administrations of Presidents Roosevelt and Taft numerous suits have been instituted and brought to a successful issue for the enforcement of the law, and several most important cases are now pending in the courts, such as the tobacco case, the Standard Oil case, and the case against the Southern, Central, and Union Pacific railroads. The only big trust that has not yet been prosecuted is the so-called steel trust, which effected a merger with its main rival, the Tennessee Iron & Coal Company during the panic of 1907. But I have no doubt that as soon as the supreme court has rendered its opinions in these other great cases, to which I have called your attention, if the opinions are favorable to the government, proceedings will be instituted against the steel trust too. The Democratic party can show no such record in legislation and prosecutions against trusts and monopolies as the record of the Republican party, to which I have thus briefly and in mere outline called your attention. In fact the record of the Democratic party is well-nigh a total blank on the subject, both from a legislative and administrative standpoint, in the realm of Federal affairs and Federal jurisdiction.

Public Land and Conservation Legislation.

Most of the remaining public lands that can be utilized for agricultural purposes are within the arid and semi-arid belts of the country and embrace very extensive areas. Irrigation and reclamation, under the desert entry law, and the so-called Carey law, have been quite limited and sporadic, so that it became evident years ago that in order to promote the settlement, reclamation, and development of these large bodies of arid land and thus open a broad avenue for home-making for our rapidly increasing population, a comprehensive system of national irrigation and reclamation was urgently needed. To meet this great want and need Congress passed the act of June 17, 1902, setting apart the proceeds of the sale of public lands in the arid and semi-arid states as a special fund to be devoted to the reclamation of the arid lands within those states. There has come into this fund, from the source named, upwards of sixty million dollars, of which all but about six and one-half millions have already been expended on some thirty different projects, some of which are completed, but the major portion of which are still in an incomplete state. Inasmuch as many settlers have located on the lands to be irrigated by these several projects and are there anxiously awaiting a supply of water, and could make no progress until such a supply was furnished, it became important, for the relief of these settlers, that these projects be speedily completed, and they could not thus be completed from the limited amount of available money in the fund, or likely to come into the fund from the source named in the immediate future. In view of these facts it became evident that additional funds should be speedily provided. To meet this demand, Congress, at the last session, by the act of June 25, 1910, authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to transfer, from time to time, from the funds of the treasury to the reclamation fund such sums of money, not to exceed twenty million dollars in the aggregate, as may be required to complete worthy pending projects, and the Treasury Department, for the purpose of obtaining the necessary money for transfer to the reclamation fund, was authorized to borrow the money upon five year three per cent certificates of indebtedness. All the funds, thus advanced by the Treasury Department, are reimbursable from the future income of the reclamation fund. This important legislation will result in the speedy completion of the several projects and will lead to the rapid reclamation and development, for agricultural purposes, of millions of acres of fertile land.

There are in many localities in the arid and semi-arid states, where water is not available, or cannot be found for irrigation purposes, many thousand acres of land, quite fertile in themselves, which can only be reclaimed by a system of so-called dry farming. To aid in the settlement and development of these lands Congress passed the act of February 19, 1909, providing for enlarged homesteads of 320 acres of non-irrigable land. The theory on which this legislation was based was this, that such land, to be successfully farmed, must be summer fallowed and as a consequence, a crop could be raised only every other year, and therefore a larger quantity of land than the ordinary homestead was needed, as only one-half of the cultivated land could be cropped each year.

Considerable areas of fair agricultural land in the west are underlaid with more or less valuable deposits of coal, and under the law such coal lands could not be entered as agricultural homesteads, but only by purchase at a high figure under the coal land laws. To meet this problem, and to make such lands available for

CAPITAL PENALTY

Some Curious Methods of Executing Criminals.

MOROCCO USES THE LASH.

Flogging to Death Is Still In Vogue Among the Moors—Strangulation Is Employed In Austria, and Spain Clings to the Garrote.

There are many curious methods of inflicting capital punishment in the various countries of the old world, some of them tinged with the cruelty of the dark ages.

Morocco is perhaps the most mediæval country in existence. Flogging to death is still in vogue. It is not so very long ago that Mulai Hafid had the Shereef Kittain executed in this horrible fashion.

The ameer of Afghanistan has peculiar methods of making the punishment fit the crime. A baker, for selling short weight, was roasted in his own oven, and a man who had started a scare that the Russians were advancing on Kabul was placed on a stool fastened on top of a tall pole and kept there on sentry go till he died of sleeplessness and exhaustion.

Political crimes are not uncommon in Persia and the revolutionists, when caught, are dealt with summarily. Four conspirators who were recently caught in the net of throwing a bomb in the crowded bazar at Teheran were hanged and quartered in the same fashion that prevailed in England up to the seventeenth century. The remains of the wretched men were hung at the city gates as a horrible warning.

An Austrian officer convicted of poisoning his superior officers in the attempt to win promotion was sentenced to be strangled.

Austria is the only country which employs this particular method of execution, but Spain's garrote is very similar. The original method of garroting was, in fact, nothing but strangling. The criminal was seated on a chair fixed to a post, a loop of rope was placed encircling his neck and the post, and by means of a stick or cudgel (Spanish "garrote") inserted between the post and the condemned man's neck the cord was tightened until strangulation ensued.

The modern garrote consists of a brass collar containing a sharp pointed screw. The executioner turns the screw, and its point penetrates the spinal marrow, causing instant death.

Every civilized country does its best nowadays to make the dreadful task of execution as rapid and painless as possible. Hanging as at present performed is a very different matter from what it used to be in England.

Till nearly the end of the eighteenth century the condemned man was made to stand in a cart with a rope around his neck, and the cart was then driven away from under him. In 1783 parliament abolished this practice as being too barbarous, and a platform was substituted for the cart. In 1874 this method was improved by proportioning the length of the drop to the weight of the body.

The state of New York inaugurated the electric chair many years ago, but its only advantage over hanging is that the man who switches on the current is out of sight of the death chamber and so escapes the gruesome title of public executioner.

Formerly all criminals in England died by the ax, and undoubtedly the ax in the hands of a skillful headsman was as merciful an instrument of death as any which exist today. In Prussia decapitation by the ax is still the recognized method of execution, but the rest of Germany follows the example of France and uses the guillotine.

Execution had almost become obsolete in France until public sentiment was so aroused by the ever increasing number of brutal murders that in January, 1909, "the widow," as the French term the instrument, was dragged out of its retirement and four miscreants were publicly executed at Bethune, in the north of France.

The guillotine was invented by a doctor named Guillotin more than a century ago, but it is not true that the inventor fell a victim to his own device. He died quietly in his bed. The guillotine consists of two upright posts grooved on the inside. An immensely heavy and sharp steel blade is fixed to slide in these grooves, and the executioner has nothing to do but pull a rope, when the blade drops and decapitates the victim instantly.

There are a few countries where capital punishment has been abolished, notably Switzerland. In Italy also there have been no executions for civil offenses for many years past.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The First Gentleman.

Who was the first gentleman?" The Prince of Darkness has been pronounced one, but only mortals can fairly count. According to John Bull's rime, there was no gentleman when Adam delved and Eve span. The first of them soon arrived, however, for, according to Dame Juliana Berners, writing upon coat armor in 1486, "Cain became a churl from the curse of God and Seth a gentleman through his father's and mother's blessing." That is to say, Seth was the first man who could boast of "family," Cain having been cast out of the pale, while Abel presumably perished too young.—London Chronicle.

The apparel oft proclaims the man—to be what he is not.

PRANKS OF CUPID.

Celebrated Men Who Married Their Domestic Servants.

Many celebrated men have married their domestic servants. Sir Henry Parkes, premier of New South Wales, is an example. One night when dining at a friend's house he was struck by the appearance of a servant girl who waited upon the table and persuaded his host to allow her to enter his employ. This she did and for a short time held the position of cook in Sir Henry's household. Then he made her Lady Parkes.

But more illustrious than this is the case of Peter the Great. One day he was dining at the house of Prince Menshikoff. He noticed one of the servant maids particularly, and, though she was not handsome, she caught his fancy. Her name, the prince told the czar, was Martha. She had been a servant in the house of a Lutheran minister of Marienburg, and when that city was captured by the troops of Russia she had been taken prisoner by General Bauer, who had passed her over to the prince, whose servant she was. The count politely made a present of her to the czar, who eventually married her.

William Cobbett, the great writer, when he was only twenty-one years of age, one morning chanced to see a buxom servant girl busily engaged in washing the family linen. The girl was pretty, so Cobbett spoke to her, learned her name and the same evening called upon her parents and said he would like to marry their daughter. The parents of the girl informed the young man that they had no objections to him as their son-in-law, but that he would have to wait until their daughter was of a marriageable age. Five years later Cobbett, true to his early love, married her.

A WEIRD INCIDENT.

Chopin's Funeral March Was Inspired by a Skeleton.

Late one summer's afternoon, said Ziem, Chopin and I sat talking in my studio. In one corner of the room stood a piano and in another the complete skeleton of a man with a large white cloth thrown, ghostlike, about it. I noticed that now and again Chopin's gaze would wander, and from my knowledge of the man I knew that his thoughts were far away from me and his surroundings. More than that, I know that he was composing.

Presently he rose from his seat without a word, walked over to the skeleton and removed the cloth. He then carried it to the piano and, seating himself, took the hideous object upon his knees—a strange picture of life and death.

Then, drawing the white cloth round himself and the skeleton, he laid the latter's fingers over his own and began to play. There was no hesitation in the slow, measured flow of sound which he and the skeleton conjured up. As the music swelled in a louder strain I closed my eyes, for there was something weird in that picture of man and skeleton seated at the piano, with the shadows of evening deepening around them and the ever swelling and ever softening music filling the air with mystery. And I knew I was listening to a composition which would live forever.

The music ceased, and when I looked up the piano chair was empty, and on the floor lay Chopin's unconscious form, and beside him, smashed all to pieces, was the skeleton I prized so much. The great composer had swooned, but his march was found.

An Empire Sold at Auction.

The Roman empire was once sold to the highest bidder. On the death of Pertinax in 193 the Prætorian guards put up the empire for sale by auction, and after an animated competition between Sulpicianus and Julian it was knocked down to the latter for 6,250 drachmas. The Romans held auctions of various kinds, the proceedings being much the same in all cases. The auctio sub hasta, which was a sale of plunder, was held under a spear stuck in the ground. The magister auctionis, or auctioneer, was chosen from among the argentarii, or money changers, and his assistants were the cashiers.

Those Little Dishes.

Tommy ate his first meal at a country hotel when he was nine years old, and the experience was an event. He was especially interested in the collection of small, thick dishes containing side orders scattered about his place. When he went home he gave a graphic description of the meal.

"And what do you think, mamma," he concluded, "we ate most of the things out of birds' bathtubs."—Woman's Home Companion.

Clearing Houses.

The function of a clearing house is to enable bankers to exchange drafts, bills and securities, thereby saving much labor and trouble and at the same time curtailing the amount of floating cash that would otherwise be required. By means of the transfer system made possible by the clearing house transactions to the amount of millions are settled easily and expeditiously.

Speech and Writing.

"Many people talk much more agreeably than they write," said the literary person.

"Yes," replied Mr. Ostington. "My tailor does that."—Exchange.

Proposed Amendments

—TO THE—

Constitution

—OF—

Minnesota

—BY—

The Legislature

General Session 1909.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1, 1910.

Hon. Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State—

Sir: As required by Section 25 of the Revised Laws as amended, I have the honor to furnish you herewith a statement of the purposes and effects of the respective amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota by the Legislature of 1909 and which are to be submitted to the electors in said state at the general election in 1910.

FIRST PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The first proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 506 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to authorize the payment by the State from the State Road and Bridge Fund of one-half of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein, and is an amendment of Section 16 of Article 9 of the Constitution, which now reads as follows:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided further, that in no case shall more than one-third (⅓) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund," and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund, to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided, further, that in no case shall more than one-half (½) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund."

EFFECT. The present Constitution authorizes the payment by the State, out of such fund so created of ONE-THIRD (1-3) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein. If this amendment is adopted the State could then pay ONE-HALF (½) of the cost of constructing any such road or bridge, and the effect of the amendment is thus to increase the amount which the State may lawfully pay toward such purpose.

SECOND PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The second proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 507 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to repeal the provisions of Section 11 of Article IX of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. There shall be published by the treasurer, in at least one newspaper printed at the seat of government, during the first week in January of each year, and in the next volume of the acts of the legislature, detailed statements of all moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, for what purposes and to whom paid, and by what law authorized; and also of all moneys received, and by what authority and from whom."

EFFECT. The Constitution requires the treasurer to publish yearly a detailed statement of the moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, giving the names of the persons to whom paid and the purposes for which it was expended. It also requires a like statement of the names of the persons, and the sources, as to money received, and in both cases a statement of the law under which payments were made, or money paid into the treasury. The effect of this Amendment, if the same be adopted, will be to repeal the section of the Constitution mentioned and insofar relieve the treasurer from such publication. This change in the Constitution, however, would not prevent the legislature from hereafter directing by law that such, or a different publication, of the same or other information should be made by the Treasurer.

THIRD PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The third proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 508 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 17, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment, by the State of Minnesota, of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, including the necessary expenses of giving effect to this act, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment, if adopted, will be to authorize the State to become a trustee in the collection and disbursement of a fund for the payment of damages to growing crops by hail or wind, or either. This fund is to be created and maintained by a specific tax imposed by the legislature upon the lands of such persons, ONLY, as shall voluntarily list the same with their respective county auditors for that purpose. Under it there could be no tax for such purpose imposed on the lands of any owner who does not consent thereto. The legislature is also authorized to include in such fund the necessary expenses of administration of the law. The adoption of the amendment will authorize the legislature to direct that the taxing machinery of the state be used to levy and collect the tax necessary to raise such fund and to provide for the disbursement of same by the officers of the State; but any payments to be made by the State, by reason of damage by hail or wind will have to be made from such fund and from no other. In the settlement of any such damages the State would assume no liability beyond the amount of such fund, and could not further be rendered liable. A similar amendment was offered at the general election of 1908, but not adopted. The amendment then offered read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment by the State of Minnesota of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

The main difference between the amendment now offered, and the one last quoted, being that the legislature is now to be authorized, in addition to providing a fund for the purpose of paying damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, to further provide an additional tax upon the lands of the persons so listing the same, to meet the necessary expense incurred in the administration of the law and thus relieve the State therefrom. This last provision was not included in the amendment offered in 1908.

FOURTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fourth proposed Amendment is contained in Chapter 509, General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Section 23 of Article IV of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and every tenth year thereafter. At their first session after each enumeration so made, and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section second of this article."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year 1915, and every ten (10) years thereafter. At any session after any enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made pursuant to law and also at any session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or any of the same, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section 2 of this article."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment will be to direct the legislature to provide for a census of the inhabitants of the State in the year 1915, and every tenth year thereafter, and will also authorize the legislature to change the boundaries of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or of any one of such districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts at any session after any State or Federal census. If adopted, the legislature might therefore, if it deemed best, change the boundaries of such districts and apportion anew the senators and representatives and thus redistrict the State every two years.

FIFTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fifth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 510, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 18, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 18. To secure a sustained yield of timber for the use of the people of this state, the proper officials shall annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property within this state, the proceeds of which shall be used for the purchase of land better adapted for forestry purposes than for agriculture for the state at not over $2.00 per acre, and for the production and maintenance thereon of forest according to forestry principles.

"Unexpended balances shall not lapse but constitute a fund for forestry purposes.

"The timber produced thereon shall be sold at a fair valuation and the revenue therefrom or from other source shall be paid into the state treasury, except that one-quarter of the net revenue shall be paid to the towns, or if unorganized, to the county, in which the land is situated, in aid of public schools and roads.

"Should any tract acquired be found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, it may be sold and the proceeds used for acquiring or developing forestry land.

"Until otherwise directed by the legislature, which may supplement these provisions with necessary enactments, the state forestry board shall draw and disburse the money hereby provided and purchase, manage and control the lands and forests.

"No money shall be paid for any tract until the attorney general shall certify to the validity of the title.

"It shall be competent for two successive regular legislatures, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to repeal any of these provisions."

EFFECT. This proposed amendment, and the proposed amendment hereafter mentioned should be read together. They constitute the foundation for a plan of State reforestation. As the constitution stands today, while the legislature might pass laws providing funds to be used for the purchase of lands, and the cultivation of the same for reforestation purposes, yet it is not directed to do so. The effect then of this amendment is to COMPEL the taxing officers of the state to annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property in the state, to be used as the legislature shall direct, for the purchase for the state of land adapted to forestry purposes, but at a price not to exceed $3 per acre. All unexpired balances in the fund at the end of each fiscal year shall not lapse, but shall be carried over into the fund thus raised for the succeeding year and shall be an addition thereto. It also directs the sale, at a fair valuation, of the timber produced on such land so purchased, the payment of three-fourths of the money received therefrom into the state treasury, and the payment of the remaining one-fourth to the town, if organized, or otherwise to the county in which the land is situated, and that the same shall there be credited to the public school funds. If after the land is purchased it is found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, authority is contained in this amendment to sell it, but the proceeds must be used for acquiring or developing forestry land. Until the legislature provides otherwise, all purchases shall be under the direction of the State Forestry Board. The title to all lands purchased must be approved by the Attorney General before purchase is made. It is further provided that two successive regular legislatures shall have power by a two-thirds vote of each house to repeal any of the foregoing provisions. That is to say, if after a trial, such plan for any reason is found to be impracticable or undesirable, and it so appears to two successive legislatures, any or all of the foregoing provisions of the amendment may be repealed. The legislature does not now possess such power and the same is a distinct change in the methods heretofore in vogue in Minnesota, in the making and revising of the Constitution. Heretofore an amendment might only be made to the Constitution or a provision of that instrument eliminated by direct vote of the electors. Under this amendment, if it be adopted, that power is not taken away and also exists. But a new power, that of repeal by the legislature, as to this amendment, is created. Such power, however, would extend to no other provision of the Constitution and affords an easy method of change in case of necessity or advisability.

SIXTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The sixth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 511, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution to be known as Section 17a, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17a. Laws may be enacted exempting lands from taxation for the purpose of encouraging and promoting the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon."

EFFECT. The effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to enact laws exempting from taxation lands of private persons to be used in the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon, and thus supplement where the lands of such private persons are devoted to reforestation, the purposes contemplated as to public lands by the fifth proposed amendment. The authority so granted is part of a general plan for the reforestation of land within the state. If the legislature does not pass such laws, such lands will not be exempt and the power to repeal such a law, when enacted, remains with the legislature. Power to pass a law to exempt such lands from taxation the legislature does not now possess, and it is, therefore, an additional grant of power.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE T. SIMPSON,
Attorney General.

St. Paul, May 1, 1910.

Mr. Julius A. Schmahl,
Secretary of State.

Ottilie Adaline Liljenkrantz Dies at Chicago Following an Operation. Majority of Norwegians Opposed to Norwegian-Danish Book Language. Booker T. Washington Well Received at Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

Thousands of Swedish-Americans will be pained to learn of the death of Ottilie Adaline Liljenkrantz, who passed away a few days ago at the Streeter hospital at Chicago following an operation. She was born in Chicago Jan. 19, 1876, and was graduated from the old Dearborn seminary when she was only seventeen years old. Early in life she evinced literary ability and she had not been out of school but two years before her first book, "The Scrap That Jack Built," appeared, a work which was at once recognized as one of high merit and which was widely read among the school children in Chicago. When she had attained the age of twenty-five her two most important works appeared, "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky" and "The Ward of King Canute." All of Miss Liljenkrantz' works were published in the English language, but the scenes of her stories always had their setting in the land of the North. Later on she wrote "The Vinland Champions" and "Randvar the Songsmith" and also a series of short stories and sketches which have appeared from time to time in the American magazines. Ottilie Liljenkrantz was the daughter of a civil engineer, Gustaf A. M. Liljenkrantz, who is a Swedish nobleman and in the employ of the United States government in Chicago. Miss Liljenkrantz was a member of many literary societies both in America and England and critics recognized in her one of the leading fiction writers among the modern set of America's authors.

The emigration records were broken the last week in September, when not less than 1,074 persons departed for America. The members of the Anti-Emigration society are nonplussed and do not know what to think of the situation. In spite of their aggressive campaign people seem to emigrate in larger numbers than ever before. One prominent official in Gothenburg threw up his hands the other day and exclaimed: "Sweden is losing some of her best people and the government does not seem to care anything about it." There is a general feeling that the government should have taken hold of the emigration problem long years ago and prevented the exodus which is now going on at a more rapid rate than ever before. America seems to be the goal of the younger Swedish people and a notable feature of the emigration situation is that a large number of those now emigrating remain in the large cities. The agricultural classes have already gone in large numbers and now it is the men and women who have a trade that are starting to emigrate. Thus America is getting the very best that Sweden has to offer.

When Baron Cederstrom made his flight over the sound between Malmo and Copenhagen some time ago he naturally drew the conclusion that he would be exempt from paying any duty on his rigging in passing from one country to the other. It would seem that when he flew in the air he would be entitled to its freedom. This was, however, not the case, for the customs officials charged him 2,000 crowns for crossing the boundary. It appears that aerial navigation is subject to the same rules as that on terra firma.

Lektor Waldenstrom, who recently returned from the United States, delivered a sermon in Stockholm. He spoke to an audience of 3,000 people and criticised the Sunday sports very severely, especially the way they were being conducted in America. The "lektor" took particular delight in criticising the Americans for their love of the sensational in their newspapers and also warned his countrymen against emigrating to the United States.

Dowager Queen Sofia will remain at Eriksberg until the latter part of this month, when she will return to Stockholm and make her home for the winter at Ulriksdal. The aged queen is now enjoying comparatively good health and when in Stockholm takes great pleasure in moving about among the hospitals and the schools. Wherever she sees an opportunity to render some financial aid to the worthy poor she will do so.

Stockholm has at present over 1,000 registered automobiles. Two hundred of them have been added to the list since April 1. German, American and French automobile firms are doing a land office business in all the large cities of Sweden at present. The country roads of Sweden are ideally adapted for autoing and it will only be a question of time until they will be generally introduced in the country districts.

The public schools of Stockholm observed the 350th anniversary of the death of King Gustavus Vasa Sept. 29. All the public school buildings were decorated in the national colors and appropriate exercises were held.

A wireless telegraph station is being installed at Gothenburg and will be completed around Nov. 15. When it is completed Gothenburg can receive messages from vessels in the Mediterranean sea.

General frosts appeared all over Central and Southern Sweden during the latter part of last month. There is snap in the air and people are commencing to prepare for the long Northern winter.

NORWAY.

Bjorn Bjornson, a son of the late Bjornstjerne Bjornson, has come out strongly in favor of the so called Norwegian-Danish book language, but his methods of defending his favorite language have been so harsh that his many friends have been criticising him severely of late. He is not meeting with a great deal of success in his contentions, for the language reformers are making a headway that unmistakably points to success within the next few years. It seems that most people in Norway are in favor of returning to the pure Norwegian and some time ago Halfdan Koht, the new professor of history at the university, made a great hit when he chose the pure Norwegian for his inaugural address. It is reported that he put so much feeling in his delivery that the audience almost forgot the language that was used. At any rate the pure Norwegian is gaining much headway all over the country and its champions believe that they already have the intricate language problem solved.

Former Consul General Herman Gade, who has been at the head of the Norwegian consulate in Chicago for a number of years, has been succeeded by Oscar H. Haugan, a son of the late Helge A. Haugan, who was for a number of years the president of the State bank of Chicago. Mr. Haugan is thirty-eight years old and a graduate of Northwestern university at Evansville, Ill., and has for some years been connected with his father's bank.

Captain Roald Amundson, who was on his way to the North polar ice regions with the Fram, has informed a friend in Christiania that he has changed his mind and will start for the South polar regions instead. This has caused a great deal of surprise in Christiania, as it was generally believed that he had started on a seven-year journey in the direction of the North pole.

Bishop Bang, credited with being Norway's greatest church leader, celebrated his seventieth birthday Sept. 18. Bishop Bang is enjoying excellent health and has just completed his Memoirs, which will undoubtedly be very extensively read over the country.

Consul General Christian Thams has resigned from his position as general manager of the Orkla Mining company. Consul Thams has been interested in that company during the past twenty years.

There were forty-two arrests in Christiania Sept. 10. In connection with this the Verdens Gang says "the time is about ripe for corporal punishment here as well as in Paris."

DENMARK.

Booker T. Washington, who arrived in Copenhagen week before last, has been received with open arms in the Danish capital. A week ago Monday he was given an audience by King Frederick and, together with Maurice Egan, the American minister, he was invited to dinner at the royal palace. Queen Louise evinced a great deal of interest in the negro leader and told him that she had followed his career in America with a great deal of interest. Mr. Washington delivered a lecture on the negro problem before the students of the Copenhagen university and there was a large and distinguished audience present, which, while it did not altogether understand the English language, expressed surprise and admiration for the speaker's oratorical abilities. It was the first time in the history of the university that the faculty and student body had listened to an address from a colored speaker. Mr. Washington will also visit Stockholm and Christiania.

Divers from Anholt have been busy the last few weeks at Knoben, near Anholt, trying to excavate a number of old cannon which have been lying at the bottom of the sea since the latter part of the Sixteenth century. Thus far they have succeeded in getting hold of five cannon, which, it is believed, at one time belonged to a Swedish man-of-war. A number of copper plates and a number of copper coins were also found in iron boxes. There were also some silver coins dating back to 1632. The cannon and the coins have been brought to Copenhagen, where they will be placed in the national museum.

The Young Men's Christian association, which was organized in Copenhagen in 1885, when about fifteen young men joined the society, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary Sept. 25. The Y. M. C. A. of Copenhagen now has 1,500 members and is steadily increasing in point of membership. The anniversary festivities were held in Bethesda hall and were conducted by Rev. Olfert Ricard. In the evening there was a reception at the Odd Fellows palace, in which at least 15,000 young men and women participated.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

The entire New York establishment of the five Duveen brothers, known the world over as dealers in rare art objects and antiques, was seized by federal officers and Benjamin J. Duveen, the only member of the firm now in the city, was arrested charged with conspiracy to defraud the government out of customs duties. Henry A. Wise, United States district attorney, in asking for heavy bail when the prisoner was arraigned, said that the frauds would reach more than $1,000,000 and that all five brothers were implicated.

Federal authorities visited the extensive offices of the Redeemable Investment company at Boston and came away with Manager Charles H. Brooks, the books of the company and several thousand dollars in cash, all taken under a warrant charging the company with the use of the mails in a scheme to defraud. Officers are hunting for Rev. Norman Plass, president of the company.

Stanley Ketchel, champion middleweight pugilist of the world, died at Springfield, Mo., as a result of being shot by Walter A. Hurtz, a ranch hand. The shooting took place on the ranch of R. P. Dickerson, a friend of Ketchel, near Conway, Mo. The trouble between Ketchel and Hurtz is said to have started when the pugilist upbraided the ranch hand for beating a horse.

Wilson B. Evans, receiving teller of the Farmers and Merchants' bank of Los Angeles, failed to report for duty at the end of a two weeks' vacation, starting Sept. 17, and a preliminary investigation of his books reveals irregularities. Cashier Charles Seyler estimates that the total sum will approximate $50,000.

Charges of murder in the first degree were formally laid against John F. Deitz, the Cameron dam defender; Leslie Deitz, his son, and Mrs. John F. Deitz, his wife, by the verdict of a coroner's jury which met at Winter, Wis., to investigate the killing of Deputy Oscar Harp during the assault on the Deitz cabin.

After killing one, fatally wounding two and five others seriously, George, alias "Red" Johnson, a negro, lies a corpse in a morgue at Huntington, W. Va., having been shot and killed by Chief of Police Clingenpool, after a pitched battle lasting several hours.

Leo Wilson, a prominent and wealthy farmer living south of Des Moines, shot and killed himself after firing five shots into the body of Claude Masters, a dairyman. Masters is in a dying condition. Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the tragedy.

Porter Charlton, the confessed murderer of his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, was ordered turned over to the federal authorities in proceedings which have been instituted for his extradition to Italy.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

Theodore Roosevelt made an aeroplane flight at St. Louis and said it was the finest experience he ever had had. He traveled twice around the aviation field at Kinlock park in 3 minutes and 20 seconds. He waved his hand at the crowd of thousands on the field below, most of whom were too dumbfounded to move. When the machine alighted easily a few feet from the starting point a mighty shout of applause and relief went up.

In a narrow street, upon a selected spot, after an aerial flight of more than six miles across Washington, Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, dropped his aeroplane at the side door of the White House. The flight occupied only ten minutes. On the way thither, at a height of nearly 500 feet, he circled the dome of the Capitol and passed the lofty Washington monument level with the apex.

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

DOWNPOUR ENDS FOREST FIRES

Now Believed Total Loss of Life In Disaster Will Not Exceed Thirty-five.

A heavy thunder storm that passed over Baudette and Spooner and was followed by a heavy downpour, quenching the forest fires, swept eastward from this locality and it is learned that it reached as far south as Bemidji and also covered the Kellihor district, where apprehension for the safety of towns and settlers' homes was felt.

The rain will greatly facilitate the work of the searching parties that have entered the area that was swept by fire. It will mean also that the refugees will be able at once to return to their lands to erect shacks and begin work of clearing their property of the burned timber. A ready market will be had for all timber that can be utilized for lumber.

While the rain caused some physical discomfort among the refugees, and also those who are here to provide for their welfare, it was received joyously and the optimism that has been prevalent among even those who have not a cent with which to start anew took a further leap upward.

There is going to be much to do in the rebuilding of the town that is planned by the refugees of Baudette and Spooner and the lumber companies have much work ahead at mills and in the woods. With this in prospect there will be opportunity for the needy to recoup their fortunes, but until the work is well under way there will be much need of outside assistance. Hence the appeal of Governor Eberhart, who is here in touch with the situation, for a large fund and the kind of supplies that will help the fire sufferers to help themselves.

Clothing, tents, bedding, general household effects and workmen's tools were distributed from the relief cars.

The loss of life in the fires, it is now said, will not exceed thirty-five, while the property loss is estimated at several millions of dollars.

WAGE WAR ON TYPHOID FEVER

Health Officers Busy In District Swept by Forest Fires.

The national guardsmen in the fire district, who had become exhausted by constant patrol duty, have been reinforced by the arrival of fifty men and six officers from Companies C and E of Duluth.

In addition to guarding against disorder and patrolling the relief stores sent in for the forest fire sufferers the entire body of men in khaki, under General Fred B. Wood, will put through with a vigorous hand the plan of sanitation adopted by Doctors H. W. Hill and G. D. Haggard of the state board of health and Major T. C. Clark, senior surgeon of the Minnesota national guard.

Following the sanitary overhauling of Baudette and the inauguration of anti-typhoid measures Spooner was invaded by the soldiers of health. All plague spots are being literally torn out by the roots. The militiamen are ordering residents and refugees to drop everything and clean up their respective territories. Suspicious wells are being boarded over. Pumps located in unhygienic places are being pulled up or broken off. All collections of refuse are being covered with chloride of lime.

There have been fifty-seven cases of typhoid in Baudette since spring, and there are now twelve cases in charge of the two visiting nurses. Dr. Hill says, however, that no cases were reported to the state board of health from Baudette.

IN NEED OF MUCH ASSISTANCE

Destitution Widespread Among the Fire Sufferers.

W. H. Gemell, general manager of the Minnesota and International railway, who accompanied Governor Eberhart to Baudette, has returned to Brainerd.

"While the loss of life, fortunately, is much less than at first reported," he said, "there is, of course, much suffering from destitution, and the people of Minnesota will have plenty to do all winter to assist in rendering aid to those who lost their all in the recent disastrous fire.

"Evidences of the willingness of the people of Canada to assist in doing what they could to relieve suffering made me doubly proud of my former fellow citizens, the Canadians, and made us realize that after all the brotherhood of man recognizes no imaginary boundary and that whenever needed we can always depend on one another for help.

"At the present time the committee is well supplied with food. What is most needed now is lumber and other material for building purposes, hay and other fodder for cattle, clothing, shoes and warm underwear for children and women. Governor Eberhart was much impressed with the generous sympathy expressed all over the state for the sufferers in the northern part thereof and greatly cheered by the generous offers of aid he has received from all quarters."

FOR PROTECTION OF FORESTS

Governors of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota to Confer.

Governor Eberhart of Minnesota will ask for a conference with the governors of Wisconsin and Michigan, together with forestry experts of those and other states, to determine on a policy for the protection of the forests of Minnesota from devastating fires. This conference will likely be held in November or December of this year and it will result probably in a special message to the Minnesota legislature recommending a sufficient appropriation to patrol adequately the forests of this state. It is estimated that a standing appropriation of $100,000 and the employment of at least 100 fire rangers in the woods would be sufficient.

This was the decision of Governor Eberhart upon his return from Baudette. Adjutant General Wood will remain in charge of the relief work, assisted by Attorney General Simpson.

WANTS OF FIRE REFUGEES

Clothing, Lumber, Money and Building Supplies Needed.

The destitute residents of Baudette, Spooner and that vicinity have provisions enough to last them for two weeks, but they are in need of clothing, lumber, money and building supplies of all kinds, according to W. A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railway, who headed the relief expedition which went to the border on a special train and who has returned to Duluth.

The railroads have responded generously to the needs of the occasion. The Canadian Northern and Missabe roads have practically turned over their lines to the relief work, and are rushing supplies free, and carrying away settlers who want to go without charge. Special trains and special cars are supplied without question. The Great Northern has also notified the committee that it will rush free of charge any supplies marked relief.

UNDER THE VREELAND ACT

Banks of the Twin Cities Form Currency Association.

The preliminary steps in the formation of a national currency association for the Twin Cities and contiguous territory were taken by representatives of fourteen national banks at a meeting held at St. Paul. The bylaws of the organization were drawn up and will be presented to Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury for his approval before final adoption. This action has been taken at the request of the secretary of the treasury.

While only fourteen banks were represented at the meeting the organization will include such banks in Minnesota and Western Wisconsin as may desire to join and are qualified under the law.

Bigger Relief Fund Needed.

With reports coming into the governor's office at St. Paul of some additional cases of families made destitute by the recent forest fires in Northern Minnesota, the determination has been made to put forth every effort possible to secure an adequate fund for relief purposes. Governor Eberhart was notified that thirty families in Roseau county, near the village of Calol, had been overlooked in former reports that had been sent out from the devastated district. It was said they have received no help whatever.

Restaurant Man a Suicide.

Paul Juckel, proprietor of a lunchroom at St. Paul, was successful in his third attempt at suicide, shooting himself through the heart with a revolver in the presence of his wife and four small children at their home. Several years ago Juckel jumped from the Wabasha street bridge, and was rescued by the police only to try it a second time from the Robert street bridge, this second attempt being also unsuccessful. He was forty-five years old.

The awards embrace 314,785,000 feet of timber, which will be sold for $2,709,330, an average price of $18.59.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

St. Louis county officials have filed their assessment levy with the state tax commission and, after the deduction of the increases made a year ago by the order of the commission, an increase of more than $500,000 in the real property values is shown. On the face of the figures returned in 1909, which amounted to $211,000,000, as against $244,227,719 in 1910, it would seem that the increase was over $35,000,000. The tax commission, however, added $24,000,000 a year ago and over $10,000,000 in additional ore tonnage was placed on the rolls by the commission.

E. P. Peterson of Litchfield, Democratic candidate for the state senate, who withdrew from the race a few days ago, has decided to continue in the field, after many voters in different parts of the county had urged him to do so. He is in favor of county option, as is the Republican candidate, J. W. Wright. The anti-optionists have placed J. A. Martner in the field, which makes the contest three cornered.

Farmers around Winona, while not laying claim to particular wisdom as weather prophets, say that from observations they have made the fur bearing animals in these parts are cultivating unusually beautiful heavy coats for the coming winter, which is said to be a sign of plenty of cold weather.

The annual convention of the Minnesota Woman's Suffrage association will open the morning of Oct. 24 in the convention hall of the Hennepin county courthouse. The principal speaker of the gathering will be Mrs. Florence Kelly, who has served on the national board as vice president for four years.

Fifteen thousand boys and girls from all parts of the state will enter exhibits at the state industrial contest, conducted by the extension division of the department of agriculture, to be held at St. Paul Nov. 3, 4 and 5, in conjunction with the meeting of the State Educational association.

Advance reports indicate that the output of ore from state iron mines will be in excess of 1,000,000 tons this year. Last year 827,000 tons of ore was mined on state property. The revenue to the state will be nearly $400,000.

An amendment to the state automobile law fixing the minimum age of a boy or girl driving a machine, either for hire or pleasure, is recommended by Secretary of State Julius Schmahl in his biennial report to the governor.

The twenty-fourth conference of the Unitarian churches of Minnesota was held at St. Cloud last week.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Carl Olness, tending a conveyor at the Crookston sawmill, stepped a few feet from his regular position and sat down on a plank with his back against a shaft. His clothing caught in the shaft, which was whirling seventy revolutions a minute. Within three minutes, and before the machinery could be stopped, both legs had been torn off to the knees. He regained consciousness and spoke, but died shortly after he was taken to St. Vincent's hospital.

James R. Canterbury, former chief of the Minneapolis fire department, has been made defendant in a suit brought by the city to recover $3,000, the difference between the price Mr. Canterbury paid for the site of the fire department repair shop and the price which the city eventually paid for the property.

Mrs. Bernard Hinnencamp, aged fifty-eight years, while attempting to cross the Great Northern railroad tracks at Melrose was struck by a passenger train and hurled thirty feet from the track. Death resulted instantly, her neck being broken.

Samuel A. Phillips was granted a parole from state prison by the state board of control. He had been convicted at St. Paul of retaining money from the sale of stock in an air line company and was sentenced in 1908 to seven years at Stillwater.

Cyril C. White of Minneapolis was fatally injured by being run over by an automobile driven by R. D. Kingshorn of that city. Mr. White died at the city hospital about an hour after the accident from a fractured skull.

The annex to the Hubbard-Palmer elevator at Beaver Creek fell, throwing 11,000 bushels of oats over the Northwestern tracks, delaying traffic. The structure was filled to the top and gave way under the load.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

In the death of Julian Nodin, also known as Vivian Jackson, the oldest man in the upper peninsula of Michigan, if not in the entire state, has passed away at the Assinins missions, in Baraga county. The deceased was an Indian, 104 years of age. He was born in Minnesota and removed to Assinins fifty years ago.

Dr. D. R. Greenlee of Minneapolis, for many years and until recently surgeon of the Soldiers' home, died suddenly while on the stair leading to his office. Dr. Greenlee was injured in a fall a few days ago and that with his age is supposed to have hastened his death.

Albert E. Clarke, one of the most prominent members of the Minneapolis bar, is dead. He was sixty-three years of age and a Civil war veteran.

HERE IS A CHANCE FOR THE GAZETTE

Down River Sheet Can Do Some Debating if Anxious.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette issues a challenge to the divisionists for a joint debate on the county division proposition, claiming that the people should know the facts. This challenge is as the Gazette says, "a big bluff", and is part of the plan of the shrewd beneficiaries of the present terrible financial condition of Red Lake county to create a diversion in the last days of the campaign to distract the attention of the voters from the real issues of high taxes.

The divisionists have been carrying on an open campaign all summer and fall in their own way and shall continue to do so to the end. A general debate at this late date would uncover the causes of the present high taxes, would disclose who is getting the rakeoffs and would devise ways and means for lowering the tax rates about as well as a duel would.

Those who benefit by their close relation with county matters are on the run for the first time in their career; they are on the defensive and for the last three weeks have been "explaining" county finances and the divisionists intend to keep them on the job. This embarrassing task is new to them; they never did it before and hate to do it now. They seek, under cover of a debate in the fleeing days of the contest, to get on an equal footing with the divisionists and be relieved from carrying on a losing defensive fight. The worried south enders want anything but the facts. They want some sort of a rough and tumble contest, any kind of a hip hurrah time, under the excitment of which the real issues would be lost sight of, and merely the retorts, the invective and thrusts and other incidents of the debate be remembered.

It is well known that on occasions in years past the south end has made division propositions to Thief River Falls, all of wich have been turned down. Today they favor division if the of division were moved further north than where it is now laid out, so the Gazette's challange to discuss division at this time is really "a big bluff" and worthy of the crowd with whom it originated.

Division meetings are being held in every town in Pennington county. They are well advertised and everybody is invited, even the Red Lake Falls challengers. They will receive as courteous treatment as they did at the St. Hilaire meeting and will be given ample opportunity to criticise the speaker's arguments and figures. This invitation surely shows that the divisionists are out in the open, as they have always been in the papers and in their public meetings.

The Gazette says the people want the facts. The divisionists are giving them some and the Gazette and its allies can add a few more. No one is preventing them from doing so, and no one is so competent as they to disclose the "facts". But some of these "facts" which the people would like to learn could not be pulled out of certain individuals in Red Lake county with a team of horses. Their publicity would insure their boarding at the state's expense at Stillwater.

The Gazette of Red Lake Falls is receiving 60 cents per folio for the county printing for 1910, though the commissioners could have given the work to another paper on a submitted bid for 25 cents. This means a loss to the taxpayers of about $1500 a year, as the printing will amount to at least $3,000. This is a fair sample of the crookedness which infects every move of the men behind the scenes at the county seat.

Caught with the goods in its hands and condemned by its own dishonesty, this clown of northwestern journalism has the brazen nerve to issue challenges to the divisionists to discuss the honesty and efficiency of the present county administration. It states that the people "want the facts". There is a good strong fact in the above sentence, but the Gazette has had its feet too long in the trough and its nose too deep in the swill to see the absurdity of its false position. If it wants to go into the Jackson—Johnson challenging business, here are a few queries for its consideration;

1. We challenge you to explain why the county revenue tax, which is used almost exclusively for the payment of the county officials' salaries, has jumped from $6,365, $6,765, $6,908 and $7,259 for the first four years of Red Lake county to $16,620 and $18,723 for the last two, and in addition there are outstanding warrants against the revenue fund of $13,045.99. The last figures are given by County Auditor Latendresse as being correct for July 1. 1910.

2. We want you to tell why the average tax rate for the county is 45 mills, Beltrami county 47, both leading the whole 85 counties of the state for these high rates. Everybody knows what Beltrami's condition is and since the "facts" are being brought to light in Red Lake the public is learning to know our own plundered county also.

3. Tell why the taxes since organization have increased 550 per cent while the property has increased only 300 per cent.

4. We challenge you to explain why the taxes on a quarter section are just twice as high as they were a few years ago.

5. We challenge you to tell if the activity of certain interests at the county seat against division has anything to do with the following taken from the financial statement for Red Lake county for 1909; the two Red Lake Falls banks received $9,201.25 interest on county warrants and bonds, while all the interest paid to others consists of three items to the state of Minnesota and Polk county.

6. State to the farmers why Red Lake Falls gets over $9,000 from the road and bridge fund, while all of Pennington county gets about $5,000 in six years and Hickory, Wyandotte and River Falls get not a cent.

7. We challenge you to tell the farmers why all the fat fees for viewing, examining and reporting on the county ditches go to anti-divisionists in every case, nearly all of whom live in the south end. Why can the farmers who pay all these expenses not share in the fat fees?

8. We challenge you to show why the commissioners grant contracts to the highest bidders at certain times.

9. We challenge you to explain why the Red Lake Falls attorneys receive large amounts from the county for performing the county attorney's work, when he stands ready and is competent to care for the same.

10. Tell where the south-enders have ever suggested a single move which might lower county taxes.

11. We also want you to tell this "fact": Who stole the county seat removal petition from the files of the state supreme court, and later and for good, from the office of County Auditor O'Brien?

12. Who also burned the court house and why was no serious effort made to quench the flames?

13. We challenge you to deny that on more than one occasion the south end workers have suggested dividing the county, all of which suggestions have been turned down.

14. Thief River Falls has deeded its city hall and jail to Peter Wold to hold in trust for Pennington county. It was claimed this could not be done. We challenge you to show that it has not been done.

15. In the search for facts, we challenge you to show why your crowd has never redistricted the county. A lot of farmers with votes to use on election day would like some "facts" along the line indicated.

16. We challenge you to show why the commissioners were compelled to return to ditch fund the $35,000 which they took therefrom for county revenue purposes. If they were honest why d[illegible] they reverse themselves at once when the public examiner got after them? Tell the farmers who raised this ditch money, what would have become of their ditching funds had the interests got a whack at it.

GOVERNOR EBERHART.

Gov. Adolph O. Eberhart will address the voters of Thief River Falls on Monday evening, Oct. 31, at the auditorium. The governor will arrive at Red Lake Falls Monday morning at 10 o'clock over the Great Northern and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon will address the voters there. He will then at once be taken in an automobile to St. Hilaire where he will deliver an address at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after which he will be brought to Thief River Falls for an evening meeting. These political rallies are the only ones to be held in Red Lake county by the Republicans this year and all should turn out. The Governor is a fluent speaker and discusses the issues of the state campaign in a frank and open manner.

HOW PROPERTY WILL BE DIVIDED.

Portion of Debt Pennington Will Have to Assume.

The present debt of Red Lake county, according to County Auditor Latandresse's last financial statement, is $93,339.13, consisting of $37,000 court house bonds and $56,339.13 of former bonds. This does not include the ditch bonds, which are local and are assessed against the property benefitted by the drainage.

By remaining in Red Lake county the taxpayers of Pennington county will have to pay their share—about 60 per cent—of this debt, or $56,003. By dividing the county and in accordance with the opinion of Attorney General Simpson to Michael Bakken, Pennington county will have to pay its share, about 60 per cent, of the difference between the county debts, and the value of the county buildings added to to the cash in the county treasury.

The court house is being erected with $38,800 of bonds and premium on same, and the 4 mill building levy made in 1909, which latter produces $14,979, making a total cost for court house of $53,779. According to County Auditor Latandresse there was $10,524 cash on hand on Dec. 31. 1909, so it is safe to say that there will be at least $10,000 on hand Dec. 31, 1910 (If it is not there one of the best attorneys in the state will hunt it up) The county jail cost $3,000, paid for by a bond due in the far distant year, 1921. The sheriffs residence is valued at $2,000 by the county auditor in his report, but is worth at least $1,000 as it is not a new building.

The total value of the county buildings and cash are therefore $67,779. This does not include the lots, furnishings and furniture, about the value of which there would be dispute.

Deducting the value of the buildings and cash from the county debt, just as the law states, there is left $25,560 to divide between the 2 counties according to assessed valuations. As Pennington owns about 60 per cent of the property it will have to assume $15,336 of this debt. This is less in proportion than Red Lake had to assume when she seceded from Polk and she had only $1,254,900 of taxable property, whereas Pennington has $2,113,256 to pay this debt. Red Lake in 1897 assumed $16,325.05 of Polk county debt.

The choice for the Pennington taxpayer is simple. By staying in Red Lake county he will have to pay $56,003 of debt; by voting for Pennington county he will have to pay only $15,336. The south end will have the court house and the big debt and Pennington will have a small debt and a free court house and jail.

All the "big bluffs" ever issued by the bluffers in the south end cannot deny or change the above figures. For they are all from the financial statment of the county auditor for 1909 to the county board and are absolutely correct. If there is any doubt in the mind of any voter he had better write to County Auditor Latandresse before election and find what figures are wrong.

HOW YOUR TAXES DO GROW!!

A Short ummary of Some Important Tax Matters of Red Lake County is Herewith Submitted.

Taxes levied in 1897 - $11523

" " " 1899 - 12640
" " " 1900 - 14753

The county funds were also overdrawn $17912.40 July 1, 1910. This should be added to the taxes of 1909, making $80116.40 total taxes.

Assessed Valuation of County in 1897 - - - $1,254,900

Assessed Valuation of County in 1909 - - - $3,744,59

Taxes have increased about 600 per cent from 1897 to 1910. In the same time the property in the county has increased only 300 per cent. Debts are increasing twice as fast as property. Where will this end and what does it mean to the property owners?

The laws state that no county can tax the people more than one per cent for all county purposes. Red Lake is taxed 1.4 per cent; almost half again as much as the law permits.

A 4 mill tax for building a court house was levied last fall. The sum of $38,800 was also raised by selling county bonds for the same purpose. The law states that a double tax such as this is illegal. The courts will be asked to compel the commissioners to return this amount to the taxpayers of Pennington county.

These figures are furnished by State Auditor Iverson.

Office of the Attorney General

Mr. Michael Bakken,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Dear Sir;

In your favor of recent date you asked, what the liability is of a new county formed out of a part of an existing county for the indebtness of and what right, if any, the new the old county at the time of division, owned by the old county, and in any county has in any county buildings money in the treasury of the old county.

I beg leave to advise you, that the rights of the two counties, in case of division, are fixed by Section 393 of the Revised Laws. This section relates exclusively to the creation of new counties, or to the transfer of territory from one county to another. The material part is as follows:

All property so transferred shall continue liable for its proportion of the excess, if any, of the indebtness of the original county above the value of its county buildings and the balance of the funds in the county treasury. Such share shall be based upon the last assessment, and the value of the building, unless agreed upon by the respective county boards, shall be fixed by the sworn appraisal of three disinterested citizens none of whom shall be a resident or a taxpayer in either county, and who shall be appointed by the Governor, upon the written application of the board of either county.

This provision of the law is so plain that it leaves no room for doubt or misinterpretation. The value of the county buildings asserained in the manner stated, is to be added to the amount of the cash balance of funds on hand, and the aggregate thus obtained is to be subtracted from the outstanding indebtedness of the old county. The remaining indebtedness, if any, is to be proportioned between the old and new county in proportion of their respective valuations at the last preceding assessment.

Yours very truly,
(signed) George T. Simpson,
Attorney General.

Why Thief River Favors Division.

Thief River Falls pays exactly one-fifth of the taxes of Red Lake county. The heavy taxpayers are in Thief River Falls and all favor division. When Pennington is organized all this taxable property will be helping to pay the county taxes in a smaller territory. The farmers taxes will be reduced by this very change, for Thief River Falls will pay exactly one-third of the Pennington county taxes. This will help to lower the taxes in the country. And this is why the south enders are working tooth and nail to keep this taxable property in the county of Red Lake. Their efforts are not put forth to aid the farmers.

Foot Ball Game Saturday.

A foot ball game will be played here between the Thief River Falls High School and the fast Fertile aggregation. A good game is promised and every one should turn out and help cheer for the home team.

School Notes.

And still new pupils continue to enroll. The need of the Lincoln building is now clearly seen and at the present rate of student increase the present facilities will be taxed in a year or two.

The football score at Fosston last Saturday was no indication of the relative merits of the locals and Fosston boys. Three of the largest high school teams in the valley were defeated last Saturday by teams from three of the smallest schools. This shows the uncertainty of the new game as played by amateur high school teams.

The botany class is acquiring a practical knowledge of plants at first hand. The students have a large collection of plants in the laboratory for inspection and development.

Several of the high school classes number from 25 to 30 and even over that in a few cases. The state high school board suggest 20 as the maximum number which can be successfully cared for by one teacher in high school. Growing towns cannot always be bound by the hard and fast rules of the high school board, no matter how much they would would be pleased to do so.

The normal students are teaching reading in Miss Larson's room in the Central this week.

The October report cards will be issued next Monday. Parents are requested to examine them carefully and note just what they tell of the child's school life. The standings will be somewhat higher than those of September.

One of the domestic science classes with their teacher, Miss Ward, will serve lunch to the rural students and their friends who hold a rural school contest at the high school building next Saturday. The supplies will be furnished by County Superintendent Anderson. This contest is not open to city pupils. A literary program will be presented in the assembly room at 3 o'clock, immediately followed by the lunch.

The manual training boys are beginning to produce many useful articles. A few boys are making mail boxes for their homes in Thief River Falls, in anticipation of the free delivery in the city. Mr. Schmitt, the instructor, with the aid of some of the students is constructing cabinets and cases for work and tools and when the equipment is completed the room will be one of the best in the state.

A local exhibit of work along industrial lines will be held in the Lincoln shortly after the building is occupied

A teacher's meeting was held Tuesday evening.

Electricians Glen Richardson and Irving Carter have greatly improved the electric bell service in the high school this week. These boys, as well as several others in the high school, with a mechanical bent of mind, possesses more than ordinary knowledge of electricity and its uses and control.

KILLED AT LAKE CITY

Remains Brought to Thief River Falls and Buried Here on Tuesday.

Ole Fensand, the 27 year old son of Ole Fensand, of this city, was instantly killed last Saturday at Lake City by being struck by a locomotive while at work painting a railroad bridge. The remains were brought to this city Monday morning on the Winnipeg flyer and buried Tuesday afternoon in the Greenwood cemetery.

The deceased had been a resident of this city about four years, coming to this city with his parents from south of Red Lake Falls where they had formerly resided upon a farm. He was engaged in the painting and decorating business here and in June went to Lake City with the local Militia company. Finding work in his line of trade good at Lake City he had decided to remain there. There are no particulars as to how the accident happened.

One Good Reason.

The following from the Red Lake Falls Gazette is the best reason yet advanced by anyone, either divisionist or anti, for the low taxes during the first few years of the county's history:

> The county tax was small for a number of years for the reason that it was felt that the people of the new county could not afford to pay more taxes than were absolutely necessary to keep the county government going.

How the taxpayers yearn for this same experience! They pray for the good old times of low taxes and honest, efficient county government, when expenditures were kept within receipts and when county warrants were not issued that some one might profit by the county's troubles. Sometimes the poor old Gazette tells the truth, but fails to recognize the same when it meets it in its own columns.

Want a New Jail Now.

The present county jail is unfit for use, though it is not yet paid for. Like all county debts, no provision is made or ever has been made to meet this jail bond. The commissioners intend, if division does not carry, to issue bonds (as they have the power to do in this case) and construct a costly jail and sheriff's residence. That they will do it no one doubts. This impending danger should make every doubter stop and consider his position on the division proposition. Pennington county will start out with both a jail and a court house, costing not one cent to the taxpayers. The choice between the two propositions can be easily made.

Pennington County Means Lower Taxes.

When Red Lake county was organized in 1897 it had an assessed valuation of $1,254,000 to support county expenses. Everybody, the south enders included, all admit that for five or six years following this the county had very low taxes and at the same time a good county government. There were as many county officers elected then as now; not one more or less. Pennington county will have an assessed valuation of $2,113,256, almost twice what Red Lake had at the start. These are the figures obtained by the county board of equalization for 1910. With the same number of county officers as Red Lake had, why can Pennington county not have the same low taxes? Those who fear high taxes should bear in mind that today Red Lake county is taxed about 1.5 per cent on the valuation, though the law says that one per cent is the limit. The county board of Pennington will at least get within the legal limit and this of itself assures lower taxes on each quarter section than now exists. This reduction was secured when Red Lake seceded from Polk and it will occur again when Pennington secedes from Red Lake.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:-"I suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley Kidney Pills I had severe backaches and pains in my kidneys with suppression and a cloudy voiding. On arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and again feel like my own self." Sold by all Druggists.

"It Beats All"

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contractd all bad cold and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completly cured me." Contains no opiates. "Golden Hair and The Three Bears"

Anybody who has recollections of reading such fairy tales as Little Red Riding Hood, and Cinderella and the Glass Slipper will as readily recall the story of "Golden Hair and the Three Bears." This is the story Prof. Houle has chosen to be dramatized for the benefit of the band in the Auditorium on Friday and Saturday evening, Nov. 11 and 12 th.

"Golden Hair and the Three Bears" is a juvenile operetta, written by J. Astor Broad, author of numerous other well known fairy tales, and the cast is represented by twelve principal voices and a chorus of 35 which Prof. Houle has carefully selected from local talent and is now undergoing a most thoro drill in preparation for the opening night.

The play, altho of a juvenile character will hold as much interest for the "grown-up's" as it will for the children, and it is especially urged of those who have the welfare of the City and band at heart to attend and visit something, the likes of which has never been produced in the city, for the money, and it is with this anticipation that the committee has deemed it wise to present the play two nights in succession so as give everybody a chance to witness the play without the discomfort of a packed house, which would be sure to arise if played only one night.

Miss Bourque's School Sends Fine Sum.

The following, taken from the Warren Sheaf, refers to the school taught by Miss Josephine Bourque, of this city:

The basket social given in the Boxville school house District No. 40 proved a great success.

The evening being a very pleasant one brought a large crowd in attendance including a bunch of Warrenites.

There were some 38 baskets sold which netted the neat sum of $103.

The proceeds were forwarded to the treasurer of the Red Cross society for the relief of the Beaudette-Spooner fire sufferers.

THE NEWS

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Published Every Thursday.

FOREIGN RATES:
Including the Dominion of Canada and Mexico .... $1.50 Per Year.

Just twelve more days and then you can vote for Pennington county.

To use a word made popular by T. Roosevelt, we have the Red Lake Falls gang beaten to a frazzle.

John King says that Gov. Eberhart is a standpatter. The trouble with King is that he too is a standpatter—at least he would like to hold office for another two years.

Every voter in this section should make it a point to be in Thief River Falls next Monday evening and listen to the speech to be delivered by Gov. Eberhart.

And when you get down to the fine point. the only thing that can be said against county division is that C. A. Lindquist will be a resident of Pennington county. But he will not have as much "inflons" as he does in Red Lake, however.

Voters should remember that the name Pennington county does not appear upon the ballot. At the bottom of the blue ballot, however there will appear 'For a new county—yes—No.—Be sure and mark an X after yes.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette says that the court house Thief River Falls presents to Pennington county will be burned up inside of a few years. Evidently the Gazette thinks that a whole lot of Red Lake Falls people will remove to Thief River Falls after division carries.

MAKES SUGGESTION

The Farm, Stock and Home, published in Minneapolis, is among the many to see the futility of the present state land policy, and in an editorial in a recent issue, makes suggestions as follows:

The first essential in the conservation of the resources of Minnesota is a knowledge of the nature and extent of these resources. There is but one way to arrive at the matter, and that is for the state to order and make a thoro survey of the land, timber and mineral still in its possession. There is but one appropriate time to begin that work, and that time is in the immediate future, before future riches are flung aside by the present grab bag policy. No one now living is to blame for the inception of this existing policy, or, to be more exact, lack of policy. It belongs to the old days of the timber thief, big and little, the ore pirate, and the land stealer. As we now view things it is out of date as a business measure, and evil in principal. It fosters graft, it makes for speculation rather than settlement, it favors the strong, and crushes the weak.

We lose sight of many things by holding them too close to the eye. This the state has done and is now doing when it estimates the total of its growing school fund, and misses the simple fact that under present methods of administration of the state land, the fund grows only by wringing blood money out of the settler thru a method of opening up that does not develop markets, that does not provide roads, nor schools, nor society, that does not acquaint the settler with the possibilities of his land, but that does levy upon him and upon his children the unseen but no less gigantic tax of creating all these things, to the enhancement of the values of adjacent state lands.

F., S. & H. stands squarley upon the ground that the present land policy of the state is wrong, first because it overlooks altogether the matter of human needs and both economic and social development, and again, because it is not based on business principals. Let a would be settler go to the state asking for the sale of a certain tract of land. The administrative rules may or may not allow him to bid upon this one day within the ensuing year. Will the real settler as a rule stand around for that day to come, bringing with it a chance that some one with a longer purse will—outbid him? Suppose he does, and asks the state what his prospective farm is—the lay of the land, the kind of soil, the crops he can raise, where he can market these crops. Can the state tell him? Not at all! I know no more about the real values of its land than does the settler, and not a fraction as much as do the pulp interests, the land companies, the steel trust. To auction off land under the present absence of knowledge as to its agricultural possibilities is worse than wrong—it is foolish.

There should be a state soil, timber and mineral survey of the state lands undertaken at once. This survey should be in the hands of competent men, not political appointees. The Forestry Board, the State School of Mines, the School of Agriculture, the State Agricultural Society, each should be represented on a commission empowered to survey and open up tracts adjacent to existing settlements. Such a commission should have the power, after making its survey, to specify the terms upon which the land should be sold. The timber should go with the land, under close restrictions as to its cutting and sale, and the land should be on the market, at a list price, every day in the year. This may not be politics, but it is good common sense, and that commodity is peculiarly essential to any conservation that is not primarily political in character and purpose.

The Farmers' Club.

Like all other instrumentalities intended for the betterment of human conditions, the Farmers' Club depends for its success upon the manner in which it is used. Given a group of families all anxious for the mutual improvement which comes from the attrition of mind with mind, each individual eager to contribute something to the general advancement—yet each as willing to listen as to hear; to applaud as to criticise—and we have the material for a club whose success is partically assured from the start. Given another group, most of whose members are stolidly content with things as they are — who are inclined to resent any disturbance of their inertia, and to look upon the act of joining a club as a personal favor to the persuasive organizer—and the bond of union is so weak that little surprise is occasioned when some member reports, as in a recent case, that "Our club seems to run to interment instead of to discussions." The "interment" is never far off from such a club.

Perhaps, however, the most beneficent work is done by a club which has a sufficient number of live, progressive members not only to make its privileges beneficial to themselves, but to so drag along the inert and unaspiring as to make them contribute bulk at least to the community's advance.

One thing that is sure: Whenever a Farmers Club is sufficiently long continued, the advantages accruing from its organization become so clear that few will consent to its abandonment. As soon give up the school or the postoffice! For it develops not only as the radiating center of advanced ideas in agriculture and household economics, or as a means of reinvigorating social intercourse, but as the nucleus of all manner of co operative undertakings, which are to add to the wealth and prosperity of the farmer and make country life more than ever "worth living."

Says the secretary of one new Farmers' Club, in sending his report to the Extension Division, "The Club has not acomplished anything in the line of business; but it has brought neighbors together that did not hitch before." Now, is that not the very best of beginnings? Does it not indicate that these neighbors, now "hitched," will ere long find the strength of unity, and accomplish before undreamed of and impossible things "in the line of business?"——C. R. Barns, Extension Division University Farm.

County Division Talks.

(From the Eleven Towns.)

Pennington County has a larger population than Red Lake and pays nearly two thirds of the taxes. Why should they not be allowed to say where the taxes they pay shall be expended.

Is it not true that a small farm can be managed at much less expense than a large one and is it not also true that a small farm can be made to give much better returns per acre than a large one. The same rule applies to large and small counties.

County Division means that the Eleven Towns will have the taxes they pay into the road and bridge fund for use in their own territory on their own roads and bridges instead of donating it to Red Lake Falls and the adjoining neighborhood. Vote for division.

Every trip made to Pennington County on ditch business costs you about double what it would if the county seat was at Thief River Falls. The surveyor, viewers, chainman, axemen, Livery teams and drivers all require two days more to make the trip and there is also 25 miles extra mileage to pay. This does not come out of the county but out of your pocket and the worst of it is Red Lake Falls men get it all. Is that not worth thinking about.

Quite frequently, interested parties call at this office to inquire about ditch matters of which no information can be had except through the County Auditor or Red Lake Falls Gazette, both of which are 30 miles away. This is one of your reasons for wanting county division. There are but few farmers living in the north end but what could make it convenient to visit Thief River Falls at any time he wanted information from the court house and with but very little expense, besides there will not be one in twenty but what can find all the official proceedings in some one of the papers he is now taking.

The Pennington County Court House and county jail is now an assured fact. Thief River Falls has made the county a present of it and it is a much better one than Red Lake County has ever had. There is no disputing the fact that the city will be greatly benefited by securing the county seat but our interests are indentical with theirs. Let no man become alarmed over the assertion that Thief River Falls will ever obtain control of the management of the county. As now divided into commissioner districts the farmers have four of the commissioners to Thief River Falls one and there is no way it can be re-districted except by the commissioners themselves kept as good honest men in the office as you will have in the beginning and there will never be any reason for complaint. Remember that Thief River Falls is obliged to depend upon the farmers of Pennington County for prosperity and the business men of the city have too much sense to willfully incur your displeasure and loose your patronage. Stand by your neighbor and vote for division.

Boys Are Warned.

Thief River Falls boys are warned by Chief of Police Lang not to perform mischevious pranks on Hallowe'en night which this year falls upon Monday evening. The chief has no objection to the boys having some fun, but any who destroy property in any way will promptly be arrested. A number of men in plain clothes will be doing police duty Monday evening.

Case Postponed.

The case of the city against Charles Arthur Beard, the Salvation Army man who is accused of creating a disturbance on the streets, was not tried last Saturday. Judge Bishop postponed the hearing to the 27th of November.

Automobile Burned.

Word received from Prince Albert, Canada, is to the effect that Karl M. Hanson's automobile was burned up recently. Mr. Hanson had $400 insurance upon the machine and as he won it at a raffle this spring on a $1 ticket he is not a heavy looser.

Ditches Not Established.

The county commissioners held a meeting last Friday, the object being to consider the establishment of three new ditches in the town of Silverton. A large number of the residents out there went down and protested against having the ditches established and the petition was knocked out.

Brings a Big Suit.

James Meehan, Jr., of Minneapolis, formerly of this city, recently commenced a suit for $10,000.00 against the P. Meehan estate. It is understood that he claims P. Meehan was to leave him this amount in his will for looking after certain interests of the latter when he was living.

The Great American Play "Paid in Full"

For local playgoers the treat of the season comes next when at the Auditorium the United Play Company will present Eugene Walter's drama of New York life of today, "Paid in Full"

Not to know of this most celebrated play of the time is to confess one's self uninformed as to the exceptional features of the American stage; not to have seen it is to be outside the 2,500,000 who had witnessed 2012 performances up to the end of last season.

No play ever produced in this country or abroad has the brilliant record of "Paid In Full". It has been seen by more persons, it has been played by more companies and more times than any other, it has had longer runs. Two years straight away and several return engagements are to its credit in New York, where as in Chicago it won celebrity as the only drama ever to go through a summer. Five companies appeared in it all last season, and the same are touring the country this year. It is the only play ever acted by so large a number of companies at the same time.

All this goes to show that "Paid in Full" generously merits its fame as the greatest play of the age. "A triumph" is the tribute paid to it by Rennold Wolf, the clever writer of the New York MORNING TELEGRAPH, "real play of real life, with real human beings," he said, which is a fitting summary It is a play of America, with strong characters and strong situations. It is singularly lifelike and of engrossing interest. Those who have seen it are its most enthusiastic admirers; those who have not will surely welcome this opportunity. It will be acted by a magnificent cast and every detail of the performance will be precisely the same as in New York.

Every character in "Paid in Full" is a striking type, every scene and situation holds deep emotion or gay humor. To see these characters played and these effects produced by a talented New York cast is a good fortune that local theatre patrons will surely aim to enjoy. Next Friday evening, Oct. 28th.

Soo Train Crew Made a Mistake.

Breckenridge Gazette: Rather a peculiar, and as it turned out, costly incident occurred yesterday morning. Train No. 3 was stopped at the interlocking plant east of Yarmouth, and handed a message which had been left by trainman on the Soo line to the effect that the bridge about five miles east of Elbow Lake on the Tintah & Evansville division of the G. N. had been totally destroyed by fire. The message was immediatly transmitted to division headquarters here and arrangements were at once put under way to get material to the scene of the supposed fire and to start the work of rebuilding the bridge, so as not to delay traffic any more than possible. Men and supplies were picked up all around this vicinity, and a trainload of material was also wired for from the Fergus division and sent in from Evansville. Later on, and after the train off the Fergus division had run clear in from Evansville, it developed that the bridge was alright and had never caught fire. The only explanation for the Soo trainman making such a report is that possibly one of the bridges on the old Soo line, which was abandoned by that road when it sought a new grade, and which lies between the present Soo tracks and the Great Northern, had caught fire and been destroyed and was what the Soo train crew saw and mistook for the G. N. Anyway, it cost the G. N. a pretty penny.

Why Meat Is High.

Thirty-five per cent is the amount of profit Armour & Co., forced the public to pay last year. This became known through a statement submitted by Armour & Co., in connection with the listing of a bond issue of $30,000,000 on the stock exchange. The company by its own showing made a gross profit of $10,582,000 for the year 1909 on a capital stock of $20,000,000 and earned a surplus of $7,127,025, or the equivalent of a dividend of 35.5 per cent. As the price of beef was boosted with the beginning of 1910 it would appear that in the opinion of Armour & Co., a 35.5 per cent profit on capital stock is not ample, even though the commodity involved is one of the necessaries of life.

Earnest P. Lindgren has begun suit in the district court of Otter Tail county against the Soo Railway Co., on account of injuries sustained in an accident March 17. 1906. The accident occurred near Vergus. Mr. Lindgren, who was at that time a minor, was employed as a student brakeman and fell between two cars. It is alleged that his fall was due to a defective running board. Mr. Lindgren had his left arm cut off, three toes cut from one foot and one from the other, his eye was badly hurt, and he sustained other injuries. It is claimed further that he suffered mentally and that his earning capacity is reduced at least one half He settled for $1,000. The complaint alleges that this was grossly inadequate, that he had no right to settle, being a minor, and he now demands damages in the sum of $54,000. Of this, $22,000 is for reduced earning capacity; $500 for doctors bills and $35,000 for his injuries.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

STATE FILES ITS EXCEPTIONS

Objection Made to the Decision of Judge Otis, Master in Chancery in the Rate Cases.

The general and special exceptions of the state to the findings of Charles E. Otis, special master in chancery in the Minnesota rate cases, have been filed with Judge Otis. The master's decision, in which he recommended that the United States circuit court, before which the cases are pending, decide in favor of the railroads in every material point, was filed Sept. 21.

The general exceptions, contained in thirty-three closely typewritten pages, were prepared by former Attorney General E. T. Young. The special exceptions, of about the same length, were prepared and submitted by Edmund S. Durment. Both appeared as special counsel for the state in the preparation and trial of the case, and in the exceptions filed they acted for C. F. Staples, Ira B. Mills and Charles E. Elmquist of the Minnesota state railroad and warehouse commission and for George T. Simpson, attorney general.

Inasmuch as the case is one of vital importance to the people of Minnesota, involving principles of state sovereignty and the rights of the state to regulate and control the affairs of public service corporations, the state's attorneys have incorporated in their exceptions every material point affecting the merits of the case, which may be the possible subject of contention in the supreme court of the United States. The reasons for each exception are set forth at length.

ROBBER KILLS MOTORMAN

Unidentified Man Shoots St. Paul Street Car Employe.

In a desperate pistol fight with a highwayman at the end of the Grand avenue street car line at St. Paul Motorman James E. Alexander was shot through the heart and instantly killed after he had fired five times at his assailant, who was armed with a repeating rifle. When Motorman Alexander fell, Conductor Walter H. Gross, who was unarmed, took shelter behind a tree, but managed to get a fair view of the murderer, who fled down Cretin avenue to Summit, where an automobile awaited him. Although the police detailed every available man on the case no trace of the assailant has been discovered.

The evident purpose of the murder was to hold up the street car crew, for the switch frog at the end of the line was found obstructed with a rock. It was with the intention of clearing this away that both Alexander and Gross left the car, although both suspected that robbers were lurking in the shadows of the trees. The sound of the fusillade of shots attracted several residents of the vicinity, although they arrived too late to be of any aid to the conductor.

WALKER AND VICINITY SAFE

Drenching Rain Puts an End to Threatening Forest Fires.

A blinding rain, driven by a fifty-mile wind, has quenched forest fires at Walker and vicinity and those who have been fighting flames for three days have turned their attention to saving gasoline launches, rowboats and other property on Leech lake.

Two launches, one a forty-foot passenger boat, the Alert, and the eighteen-foot pleasure launch owned by Dr. Wilcox, have gone to the bottom in the storm, which blew from the north directly toward the Walker shore. The storm was the worst of the year and the village dock recently finished was considerably damaged.

The rain has come as a great relief to Walker and Cass county residents, notwithstanding its severity, and though many settlers were driven from their homes by the smoke and flames no lives have been lost.

Woman Killed in Runaway.

Mrs. Peter Hintz was killed in a runaway two miles southeast of Mazeppa, near which place the unfortunate woman lived with her husband. There were four people in the rig and while descending a steep hill one of the tugs became unfastened and frightened the team. They ran away, tipping the rig over and throwing all the occupants out. Mrs. Hintz' head was crushed and she lived only a few minutes.

Minneapolis Man Drowned.

Ralph Johnson of Minneapolis, fifty years of age, a farmer and stonemason, working at Sixth avenue and the river, lost his footing while working near the water and fell into a millrace. When he was pulled out of the water he was dead.

Killed by His Companion.

Harry Johnson of Minneapolis, nineteen years old, was shot and killed near Osakis, this state, when he was mistaken for a wolf by Harry Romain of Minneapolis. The two boys, with James Brown of Minneapolis, were duck hunting.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE ACTS

Endorses James Gray for Governor of Minnesota.

James Gray, Democratic candidate for governor, received the endorsement of the Anti-Saloon league at a meeting in Minneapolis. It was announced that the decision in favor of Mr. Gray was practically unanimous.

The headquarters committee of the Anti-Saloon league met in executive session at Dayton's tea rooms. All of the members of the committee were present.

The question of endorsing the gubernatorial candidates was at once taken up. It developed that there was some opposition on the part of two or three members of the committee to endorsing either Gray or Eberhart. This opposition was brushed aside.

LONG CONTEST IS ENDED

Minnesota Supreme Court Decides Fight Over Estate.

The state supreme court has handed down a decision in which it held that the marriage of Miss Ida Oberg of St. Paul, formerly a nurse at St. Joseph's hospital, to Dr. David Lando in Vienna Sept. 27, 1907, was legal and that she is entitled to the $16,000 estate of the former St. Paul physician.

The case was tried in the district court of Ramsey county, Judge Bunn holding that the evidence did not fully substantiate the facts of the marriage. He held for Dr. Lando's father, who was contesting the young widow's claims. The supreme court reversed that decision.

BOYS ARE CAUGHT IN A BELT

Two Youths in Sawmill Are Dashed to Death by Flywheel.

A double fatality occurred at the Pine Tree Manufacturing company's sawmill at Little Falls, when Jesse Thompson and William Woehlert were killed in the machinery. The lads fell into the belt leading from a huge flywheel and were killed almost instantly.

It is believed that the lads lost their balance while playing above the tightener and were dashed to their death. Both boys were residents of the city and were about seventeen years old. The mill was immediately closed for the day. Both bodies were horribly mangled and dismembered.

OUTSIDE HELP SUMMONED

Fire at Warren, Minn., Causes Loss of $150,000.

A loss of approximately $150,000 was caused in a fire which destroyed the E. J. Tarleseth company's department store at Warren.

The city hall was several times endangered, but was saved by the united efforts of the Warren, Thief River Falls and Argyle fire departments, although there was a shortage of water with which to fight the flames.

Former St. Paul Alderman Dead.

Frank J. Huber, aged fifty-three, former councilman and proprietor of the Huber cafe at St. Paul, is dead in the St. Peter state hospital for the insane. He had been confined at the hospital since August. Mr. Huber, up to last June, was a member of the common council for ten years, having for several terms been president of the board of aldermen, in which body he represented the Fourth ward.

Boy Hunter Drowned.

Bradford Johnson, the nineteen-year-old son of J. B. Johnson, a farmer of White Bear, was drowned in Bald Eagle lake. He and his brother-in-law, Ernest Bacon, went out on the lake after ducks. The boat soon began to fill and the men were forced to jump into the water. Bacon managed to keep hold of the boat, but Johnson let go and before help could come was drowned.

Boy Accidentally Killed.

Less than eight hours after the body of his father had been buried in Calvary cemetery at St. Paul Richard Dzierzon, seventeen years old, died at the city hospital from a revolver wound in the head, inflicted by a friend, George Bednar, sixteen years old, who is now held by the Rondo street police. The firing of the deadly missile is believed to have been accidental.

Duck Hunter Killed.

While hunting at Coon lake Oscar Radmann of St. Paul was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. The charge struck him in the stomach. The victim of the accident was sitting down changing his boots for the day's hunt, and as he arose he drew the gun toward him by the muzzle. In some way the hammer caught and the gun was discharged.

Rebuilding Burned Towns.

Forty-one new [illegible] have been erected in Baudette and Spooner since the forest fires and they are going up at the rate of one a day. This is made possible by lumber that is being rushed in from the Bemidji mills, which are running night and day to get building material to the two stricken towns in the northern part of Beltrami county.

Leading Prohibitionist Dead.

George W. Higgins of Minneapolis, chairman of the Prohibition state central committee, candidate for governor on that ticket in 1908, member of the legislature in 1907, died suddenly of heart disease. A slip on the sidewalk a few blocks from his home brought on the attack which caused death.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe is dead at her summer home at Middletown, R. I. Death was due to heart failure resulting from advanced age and a severe cold recently contracted. She was ninety-one years of age. During her many years of activity in various fields Mrs. Howe published more than a dozen volumes, including books of poems, travel, reminiscences and views of life and men. Although Mrs. Howe's achievements in any one of a number of fields of activity have been sufficient to bring her worldwide fame it is as the author of the inspired lines of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" that she is most intimately known to the people of her own and other lands.

David B. Hill, ex-United States senator and former governor of New York, died suddenly at Wolfert's Roost, N. Y., his country home. About two weeks ago Mr. Hill was seized with a bilious attack while at his law office in Albany and although his condition was not considered serious at the time his physician advised him to remain at home until he recovered. A cold developed and a few days later alarming reports of his condition were circulated. These reports, however, were denied by friends. In fact, the patient appeared to be improving until just before the end, when he suffered a sinking spell which resulted in his death.

Cable dispatches announce the death in Palmanes, India, of Rev. Dr. Jared W. Scudder, one of the oldest and most distinguished Americans in the foreign missionary field. For more than fifty-two years he had been one of the principal representatives in India of the Reformed church of America.

William Vaughn Moody, poet, playwright and critic, is dead at Colorado Springs, Colo. Although but forty-one years of age Moody had achieved unusual distinction in literary fields and as a playwright. One of his best known plays was "The Great Divide," played for several seasons by Henry Miller.

Willard Stephen Whitmore, inventor of the papier mache matrix process of stereotyping, used by nearly every newspaper in the country, and from which he gained no material benefit, is dead at Washington, D. C., aged sixty years.

John Geoffort, seventy-five years old, and his wife, aged sixty-eight, were found dead in bed in their residence in Vandalia, Mo. A coroner's jury decided the man had died of heart disease and his wife of indigestion.

Thomas T. Eckert, former president of the Western Union Telegraph company, is dead at West End, Long Branch, after an illness of several days. Mr. Eckert was born at St. Clairsville, O., April 23, 1825.

David Rankin, aged eighty-five, millionaire farmer philanthropist, owner of the largest farm in the world under cultivation and one of Missouri's wealthiest men, is dead at his home at Tarkio, Mo.

Rev. Winfield Scott, former national chaplain of the Grand Army of the Republic, died at his home in Scottdale, Ariz., following an operation.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

Contributions of $1,000,000 for a worldwide expansion of the Young Men's Christian association, $450,000 of which was given by John D. Proposed Amendmeuts

Constitution

—OF—

Minnesota

—BY—

The Legislature

General Session

1909.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1, 1910.

Hon. Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State—

Sir: As required by Section 23 of the Revised Laws as amended, I have the honor to furnish you herewith a statement of the purposes and effects of the respective amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota by the Legislature of 1909 and which are to be submitted to the electors in said state at the general election in 1910.

FIRST PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The first proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 506 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to authorize the payment by the State from the State Road and Bridge Fund of one-half of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein, and is an amendment of Section 16 of Article 9 of the Constitution, which now reads as follows:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided further, that in no case shall more than one-third (⅓) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund," and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund, to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided, further, that in no case shall more than one-half (½) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund."

EFFECT. The present Constitution authorizes the payment by the State, out of such fund so created of ONE-THIRD (1-3) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein. If this amendment is adopted the State could then pay ONE-HALF (½) of the cost of constructing any such road or bridge, and the effect of the amendment is thus to increase the amount which the State may lawfully pay toward such purpose.

SECOND PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The second proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 507 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to repeal the provisions of Section 11 of Article IX of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. There shall be published by the treasurer, in at least one newspaper printed at the seat of government, during the first week in January of each year, and in the next volume of the acts of the legislature, detailed statements of all moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, for what purposes and to whom paid, and by what law authorized; and also of all moneys received, and by what authority and from whom."

EFFECT. The Constitution requires the treasurer to publish yearly a detailed statement of the moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, giving the names of the persons to whom paid and the purposes for which it was expended. It also requires a like statement of the names of the persons, and the sources, as to money received, and in both cases a statement of the law under which payments were made, or money paid into the treasury. The effect of this Amendment, if the same be adopted, will be to repeal the section of the Constitution mentioned and insofar relieve the treasurer from such publication. This change in the Constitution, however, would not prevent the legislature from hereafter directing by law that such, or a different publication, of the same or other information should be made by the Treasurer.

THIRD PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The third proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 508 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 17, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment, by the State of Minnesota, of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, including the necessary expenses of giving effect to this act, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment, if adopted, will be to authorize the State to become a trustee in the collection and disbursement of a fund for the payment of damages to growing crops by hail or wind, or either. This fund is to be created and maintained by a specific tax imposed by the legislature upon the lands of such persons, ONLY, as shall voluntarily list the same with their respective county auditors for that purpose. Under it there could be no tax for such purpose imposed on the lands of any owner who does not consent thereto. The legislature is also authorized to include in such fund the necessary expenses of administration of the law. The adoption of the amendment will authorize the legislature to direct that the taxing machinery of the state be used to levy and collect the tax necessary to raise such fund and to provide for the disbursement of same by the officers of the State; but any payments to be made by the State, by reason of damage by hail or wind will have to be made from such fund and from no other. In the settlement of any such damages the State would assume no liability beyond the amount of such fund, and could not further be rendered liable. A similar amendment was offered at the general election of 1908, but not adopted. The amendment then offered read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment by the State of Minnesota of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

The main difference between the amendment now offered, and the one last quoted, being that the legislature is now to be authorized, in addition to providing a fund for the purpose of paying damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, to further provide an additional tax upon the lands of the persons so listing the same, to meet the necessary expenses incurred in the administration of the law and thus relieve the State therefrom. This last provision was not included in the amendment offered in 1908.

FOURTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fourth proposed Amendment is contained in Chapter 509, General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Section 23 of Article IV of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and every tenth year thereafter. At their first session after each enumeration so made, and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional senatorial and representative districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section second of this article."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year 1915, and every ten (10) years thereafter. At any session after any enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made pursuant to law and also at any session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or any of the same, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section 2 of this article."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment will be to direct the legislature to provide for a census of the inhabitants of the State in the year 1915, and every tenth year thereafter, and will also authorize the legislature to change the boundaries of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or of any one of such districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts, at any session after any State or Federal census. If adopted, the legislature might therefore, if it deems best, change at any session the boundaries of such districts and apportion anew the senators and representatives and thus redistrict the State every two years.

FIFTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fifth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 510, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 18, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 18. To secure a sustained yield of timber for the use of the people of this state, the proper officials shall annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property within this state, the proceeds of which shall be used for the purchase of land better adapted for forestry purposes than for agriculture for the state at not over $3.00 per acre, and for the production and maintenance thereon of forest according to forestry principles.

"Unexpended balances shall not lapse but constitute a fund for forestry purposes.

"The timber produced thereon shall be sold at a fair valuation and the revenue therefrom or from other source shall be paid into the state treasury, except that one-quarter of the net revenue shall be paid to the towns, or if unorganized, to the county, in which the land is situated, in aid of public schools and roads.

"Should any tract acquired be found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, it may be sold and the proceeds used for acquiring or developing forestry land.

"Until otherwise directed by the legislature, which may supplement these provisions with necessary enactments, the state forestry board shall draw and disburse the money hereby provided and purchase, manage and control the lands and forests.

"No money shall be paid for any tract until the attorney general shall certify to the validity of the title.

"It shall be competent for two successive regular legislatures, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to repeal any of these provisions."

EFFECT. This proposed amendment, and the proposed amendment hereafter mentioned should be read together. They constitute the foundation for a plan of State reforestration. As the constitution stands today, while the legislature might pass laws providing funds to be used for the purchase of lands, and the cultivation of the same for reforestration purposes, yet it is not directed to do so. The effect then of this amendment is to COMPEL the taxing officers of the state to annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property in the state, to be used as the legislature shall direct, for the purchase for the state of land adapted to forestry purposes, but at a price not to exceed $3 per acre. All unexpired balances in the fund at the end of each fiscal year shall not lapse, but shall be carried over into the fund thus raised for the succeeding year and shall be an addition thereto. It also directs the sale, at a fair valuation, of the timber produced on such land so purchased, the payment of three-fourths of the money received therefrom into the state treasury, and the payment of the remaining one-fourth to the town, if organized, or otherwise to the county in which the land is situated, and that the same shall there be credited to the public school funds. If after the land is purchased it is found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, authority is contained in this amendment to sell it, but the proceeds must be used for acquiring or developing forestry land. Until the legislature provides otherwise, all purchases shall be under the direction of the State Forestry Board. The title to all lands purchased must be approved by the Attorney General before purchase is made. It is further provided that two successive regular legislatures shall have power by a two-thirds vote of each house to repeal any of the foregoing provisions. That is to say, if after a trial, such plan for any reason is found to be impracticable or undesirable, and it so appears to two successive legislatures, any or all of the foregoing provisions of the amendment may be repealed. The legislature does not now possess such power and the same is a distinct change in the methods heretofore in vogue in Minnesota, in the making and revising of the Constitution. Heretofore an amendment might only be made to the Constitution or a provision of that instrument eliminated by direct vote of the electors. Under this amendment, if it be adopted, that power is not taken away and also exists. But a new power, that of repeal by the legislature, as to this amendment, is created. Such power, however, would extend to no other provision of the Constitution and affords an easy method of change in case of necessity or advisability.

SIXTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The sixth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 511, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution to be known as Section 17a, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17a. Laws may be enacted exempting lands from taxation for the purpose of encouraging and promoting the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon."

EFFECT. The effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to enact laws exempting from taxation lands of private persons to be used in the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon, and thus supplement where the lands of such private persons are devoted to reforestration, the purposes contemplated as to public lands by the fifth proposed amendment. The authority so granted is part of a general plan for the reforestration of land within the state. If the legislature does not pass such laws, such lands will not be exempt and the power to repeal such a law, when enacted, remains with the legislature. Power to pass a law to exempt such lands from taxation the legislature does not now possess, and it is, therefore, an additional grant of power.

Yours respectfully,

GEORGE T. SIMPSON,

Attorney General.

St. Paul, May 1, 1910.

Mr. Julius A. Schmahl,

Secretary of State.

Dear Sir:—Referring to proposed Constitutional [illegible]

Yours respectfully,

J. T. MANNIX,

State Expert Printer.

SAM GORDON TALKS TO CROWDED HALL

FULL COUNTY OPTION PROMISE IS ROUNDLY APPLAUDED AT ANOKA REPUBLICAN RALLY.

S. Y. Gordon, republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, spoke to a crowded house in Anoka on Tuesday evening, Oct. 18, and met with a grand reception. The following were his remarks:

We of Minnesota have but recently settled our differences within the parties in the primary election and have now set about to settle at the polls our differences between the parties. All of us are American citizens and most of us have the welfare of the state and nation at heart, but differ honestly as to the proper political course to pursue, and this divides us into parties. Some of us are Republicans, some Democrats, other Prohibitionists, and when we align ourselves with a party we ought to have a reason for doing so. This reminds me of the story of the school master in a western Tennessee settlement who had drilled a number of his brightest pupils in the history of contemporary politics, and to test their faith and their knowledge, he called upon three of them one day and demanded a declaration of personal political principles.

"You are a Republican, Tom, are you not?" inquired he of the first. "Yes, Sir," was the reply. "And Bill, you are a Prohibitionist, I believe." "Yes, Sir," said Bill. "And Jim, you are a Democrat." "Yes, Sir," said Jim. "Well, now," continued the school master, "the one of you who gives the best reason why he belongs to his party can have this live squirrel which I caught on my way to school this morning." "I am a Republican," said the first boy," because the Republican party saved the country in the war and abolished slavery." "And I am a Prohibitionist," rattled off the second youth," because rum is our country's greatest enemy, and the cause of our overcrowded prisons and poorhouses." "Very excellent reasons, boys, very excellent reasons," observed the school master, encouragingly. "And now, Jim, why are you a Democrat? "Well, Sir, was the reply, "I am a Democrat because I want that squirrel."

And I have been wondering if our friends Frank Day and James Gray and other leading Democrats don't have about the same plausible reasons as Jim had for being Democrats. The Republican party has been the party of advancement, progress, achievement, and I am convinced that it is destined to continue to be such a party, while the Democratic party has been the trailing party, never advancing in its own right, never constructing.

The Tariff.

I do not claim that the Republican party is infallible, for its membership is human and it has been known to err. I am not here to defend the Payne-Aldrich bill in its entirety. There is no use in mincing matters on questions of this kind. I do not believe the tariff law is just what the Republicans of the country would have it be, and I glory in the spunk of those Minnesota senators and representatives in congress who refused to stand hitched and swallow the dose, but the responsibility of the Payne-Aldrich law must not be made to rest entirely on the shoulders of the Republicans. As Senator Clapp emphatically declared in his Mankato speech: "Let those without sin in this tariff matter cast the first stone and I am not fearful that the so-called progressive Democrats will be at liberty to do any casting."

Had this element of the Democratic party voted with the progressive Republicans in congress the Payne-Aldrich law could have been defeated, or at least so amended as to give us a measure more in keeping with the eternal fitness of things.

This tariff controversy proved a notable event in the political history of the country and marked the beginning of another demonstration of proof of the fact that the Republican party invariably in the end yields to the will of its great body membership and keeps pace with the needs and demands of the times. It was a fight between the progressive Republican representatives in the congress aided and urged by this constituency, who demanded a carrying out, word for word, of the pledge of the Republican National Convention, opposed by those men in congress who are there as the paid representatives of the big interests seeking special privileges, who know no political party but who sail under the banner of Republicanism in accordance with the political allegiance of a majority of the voting population of their home districts, who sought under the guise of protection to American labor and American industry to establish unfair and unreasonable tariff schedules to the end that the interests which they represented might obtain unfair and unreasonable profit. The latter class temporarily succeeded, but the true representatives of the Republican party in congress, aided and urged by the great body membership throughout the country, kept hammering away. When the tariff law was enacted a clause was inserted after much effort which authorized the President to appoint a sort of a tariff commission, but no appropriation was made for defraying the expenses of the commission, and but little could be accomplished under the act. When the last session met President Taft asked congress for an appropriation of $250,000 for the commission and for an increase of authority for it in the preformance of its duty, and through the intelligence and force and persistent efforts of such men as Senators Clapp and Nelson and others of the Republican members of the Minnesota delegation, aided by others of similar views throughout the country, the representatives of the System were forced to recede from their positions, the President's recommendations were adopted and the way paved for correcting whatever errors may have been made in the framing of the Payne-Aldrich law, by providing for the real tariff commission clothed with authority to collect facts and figures relative to tariff schedules, fix upon maximum and minimum rates, and submit the matter to the next congress for its intelligent adjustment, schedule by schedule. This puts the tariff where it belongs—in a way to be considered schedule at a time upon its merits and in so considering it, no congress is likely to make much headway flying in the face of statistical evidence furnished by a tariff commission made up of high grade men. Theodore Roosevelt in a recent speech at Saratoga, after reviewing and commending the long list of laws enacted by the last congress and approved by the President, such as the Inter-State Commerce law amendments, the appointment of a commission to frame measures to do away with the evils of over-capitalization and excessive issues of stocks and bonds, the law providing for the publicity of campaign expenses, commended in high terms the inauguration of the policy of providing for a disinterested revision of tariff schedules through the high-class commission of experts which will treat each schedule purely on its own merits, with a view both to protecting the consumer from excessive prices and to securing the American producer and especially the American wage-worker, what will represent the difference of cost of production here and abroad. Mr. Roosevelt said: "This and similar laws, backed by executive action, reflected high credit upon all who aided in putting them in their present shape upon the statute books. They represent an earnest of the achievement which is yet to come."

But the tariff law as it exists today, whatever may be its short-comings, has some good and salient features. The principle of protection is there. It produces revenue for government expenses, protects American industry and does such as bring about the condition whereby the American laboring class is the best paid of laboring classes in any country of the world. You may have heard this talk before, but it is as true today as it ever was. The protective principle is right and proper, as years of experience have taught us. The Republicans instituted it, they have advocated it in the past and will continue to perpetuate it in the future when in power, and I do not believe the time will ever come when a majority of the people of this country will favor a free trade policy as advocated by the opposition party. But in order that the protective principle may be properly established and perpetuated, so as to bring about the most benefit to the most people, I am free to say that it behooves individuals of the Republican party—the great mass of the voters of the party—to be ever watchful and see to it that they support for nomination and election candidates in their party for congress who will not submit to the demands of scheming trusts and corporations for the abuse of the protective principles, in order that they may obtain unfair and unreasonable financial benefit to the detriment of the great mass of consumers of the country. A square deal in tariff law, as well as in other things is the only kind of a deal that Republicans should stand for, and I am convinced that it is the only kind of a deal that they will stand for, and in this connection I wish to heartily commend to the voters of this state our Republican U. S. senators and our Republican nominees for congress who are standing for the square deal in tariff as well as in other legislation. I consider it of more importance to the future welfare of this state and nation that the great body of toilers in the various walks of life have a full dinner table and a good living withal, good schools for their children and the opportunity to make comfortable homes for themselves than that rich men and big corporations have more profits. Corporations are all right as such. Concentration of capital for the purpose of carrying on large manufacturing, the developing and working of mining industries and other large enterprises, is not only right and legitimate, but in many and varied instances is essential for the development and progress of the country, the employment of labor and the carrying on of big enterprises such as are conducted by the most progressive of civilized countries of the world, but such corporations, while they are entitled to a square deal are not entitled to subsidy in the form of special privilege in the matter of legislation or in any other form. That man either in public or private life who rails against corporations simply because they are corporations is either a fool or a demagogue, but that man in public life who works and votes to give corporations special privilege or unfair franchise is an enemy to his party and the people as a whole, and the sooner he is voted the privilege of remaining at home the better it will be for the majority of all concerned, for he becomes the fawning tool of special and unwholesome interests and is not a fit representative of a fair-minded and impartial constituency. We don't want laws to hamper corporations engaged in wholesome business enterprises, be they great or small. On the contrary, we want to legislate for them as far as we can do so and at the same time preserve the honest rights and privileges due to other enterprises and the people as a whole. That is a "square deal," that is what the Reppublican party stands for in Minnesota, as exemplified by its leaders, and I know that is what the great majority of the party membership wants it to stand for. That is the Roosevelt policy. I believe it is Taft policy, and it will be Eberhart policy.

Republican State Officials Make Good.

The Republican party of Minnesota goes before the voters with candidates, from United States senators down through the state and congressional tickets, pledged to such a policy, and for the most part men who have been in the some positions, and not wanting in the policy I have briefly outlined. On June 21st, these candidates, outside of Congressional nominees, were placed in nomination in one of the most harmonious conventions ever held in the state. The man who succeeded to the office of Chief Executive, by reason of a most sad circumstance, was nominated without opposition because he had made good and Gov. Eberhart will be triumphantly elected in November. With exception of Walter J. Smith, St. Louis county's favorite son, and your humble servant, the nominees need no other recommendations than their own splendid official records. So far as the handsome ex-mayor of Eveleth is concerned, whom St. Louis county delights to honor and who in turn is an honor to St. Louis county, he has been simply running away ever since he hit the political trail and will probably have to be hobbled before election day, if his associates on the ticket keep within hailing distance. Not only have the present Republican state officials been proficient and painstaking in the performance of their duties, but it has been the policy of the Republican officials for years past to guard well the people's interests. The timber board was created by a Republican legislature in 1895 and ten years ago the attorney general was added to this board. Attorney General E. T. Young was in office at the time and he at once began action under the new law to enforce collections from timber barons who had previously stolen or illegally taken timber from state lands. During his four years in office Mr. Young had forced the collection of $39,207 and handed over to his successor several judgments against timber thieves. During Mr. Simpson's incumbency of the office, $65,140 have been collected from this source. Attorneys General Young and Simpson collected over $100,000 in unpaid taxes from the Western Union Telegraph company. In 1903 through the persistent efforts of Hon. J. F. Jacobson and other Republicans the 4 per cent gross earning tax for railroads was established by the legislature. The railroads fought this law in the courts but Attorney General Young pushed the suits and as a result the state won, and $674,375 was paid into the treasury from this source. A Republican legislature in 1905 passed the Inheritance Tax Law. In the five years since that time the state treasury has been enriched to the tune of $1,054,720 under the enforcement of the one law. The grand total collections made by Attorneys General Young and Simpson during the past five years amount to $2,330,735. Of course these officials did no more than their duty, but it is a satisfaction to the voters and the tax payers of the state to know that they had officials in this department who would not shirk when duty called. What is true of the Attorney General's department is likewise true of the other state departments. The secretary of state's office, that of state auditor, treasurer and the judiciary department have been wisely administered. Through the shrewdness and ability of the man at the head of the state auditor's department, Minnesota has recently recovered a large acreage of swamp lands which contain on the surface a vast amount of valuable timber and underneath a rich bed of iron ore, so that the aggregate sum to be realized in the future on this will reach into the millions. Through the careful conservation of our natural resources under the guidance of a Republican legislature and the administration of Republican officials, Minnesota's permanent school fund has swelled to the gigantic amount of $26,977,335 and it continues to grow at a rapid rate.

In all the years of Republican rule in this state there may have been some mistakes but in the main and on the whole, we believe that all will agree that the public affairs of this great commonwealth have been wisely administered and we dare assert that no other state in the Union can produce a better record. These are some of the reasons why we appeal to you for the support of the Republican candidates in the election soon to come.

We have no quarrel with the Democrats as individuals—they have been busy enough at that business in their own ranks. The nominees, as far as I am able to learn, are a nice lot of good citizens, but then you know good citizens will be useful in private life after election. The Democratic nominees, like all other good Democrats, seem to have only one real bad point about their political make-up. Their hearts are usually right but they seem to have a mania for picking and marking the wrong ballot on election day. Their late unpleasantness held in Minneapolis may well be termed an aviation meet, for they have been in the air ever since and are not likely to alight on terra-firma until after Nov. 8th, when they will alight with that old time dull, sickening thud which you have heard about. You remember at the Democratic convention a Prof. Anderson tried in vain to introduce a mild resolution on County Option and how he was howled down and refused a vote on his proposition. Mr. Gray, the Democratic candidate for governor, is now out on a county option platform, although the resolutions adopted by the Democratic state convention on the liquor question, re-apportionment and other state issues are about as meaningless and ineffective as anything could possibly be. They remind me of the resolutions of a town council down in a Pennsylvania community. The city fathers decided that the time had come for the erection of a new jail, so they adopted the following resolutions:

1st—Resolved by this council that we build a new jail.

2nd—Resolved that the new jail be built out of the materials of the old jail.

3rd—Resolved that the old jail be used until the new jail is finished.

The Democrats of Minnesota are certainly in a bad mix-up, not agreeing on the issues, and their platform is about as meaningless as the jail resolutions of the Pennsylvania town council.

On the contrary, the Republican party of Minnesota is a re-united party. As individual members of the party we may hold some different views on certain things, such as how best to conduct a campaign, etc., but in the main and on the whole the Republicans of the state stand for the ticket nominated and the platform adopted.

Re-Apportionment.

We have declared for re-apportionment, and I interpret re-apportionment in this instance to mean that the people of any section of the state shall have equal legislative representation with the people of any other section of the state, regardless of whether they are engaged in wheat raising, dairying, manufacturing or iron mining. The matter of re-apportionment of legislative representation has been too long delayed, but the responsibility for the delay cannot be truthfully charged entirely to the Republican party. During the last session, a Republican senator introduced a re-apportionment bill and on a roll call every one of the Democratic senators—18 in number—voted against it. Had they voted in favor of the measure it would have passed. Many of those same senators were delegates in the late Democratic state convention and are candidates for re-election. Can the friends of re-apportionment have any hope of aid from Democratic sources? Re-apportionment is only simple justice and if the next legislature is Republican I sincerely expect the pledge of the party in this particular, to be fully redeemed.

Roads, Consolidated Rural Schools and Agricultural Instruction.

The Republican platform has declared for a one mill tax for public roads, for consolidated rural schools and for the extension of manual training and agricultural instruction. In a large measure these three things should be considered together. No expenditure of money judiciously used, could add more to the value of farm real estate and consequently the taxable property of the state, than an expenditure for the improvement of the country highways, and I sincerely hope to see the next legislature pave the way for liberal state aid in this matter. With improved highways we will at once increase the settlement of our communities, instead of having one family on each section or half section—as is now the case in many portions of the state—we would soon have one family on every quarter section or 80-acre tract. More settlers would mean improved social conditions in the farm communities, better telephone service, better mail service, better schools, better church advantages, more social gatherings for the young and old alike and a much better satisfied, happier class of people. And let me say that with the beginning of the fulfillment of these conditions, would come, as a natural consequence, the consolidated rural school. People, generally, are awakening to the fact that manual training and agriculture for the boys and domestic science for the girls should be a part of our educational course in the schools of the state. The cities and villages find but little difficulty in taking up this work, but the only way it can be successfully carried on in the strictly rural communities is through a consolidation of rural schools. The consolidated school means, a large, comfortable building with an established system of grades, such as a building to be equipped with a room for normal training, another for domestic science, another for a gymnasium, and the grounds to be sufficiently large to enable the carrying on of experimental agriculture, the expense of such latter branch to be partially borne by the state. I have dwelt on the subject at length, but I consider it one of the important, if not the most important, issues before the people of Minnesota today. It is all right to have an agricultural college, like that at St. Anthony Park, and two or three branches like those at Crookston and Morris, where we may train instructors for the work, but in order to benefit the great body of young people in the rural communities, the agricultural, manual training and domestic science school well equipped must be brought to the farms. Permit me to relate a story by way of illustration. An Englishman visiting in this country for the purpose of studying economic conditions, while near New York City came upon a sturdy son of Erin who was driving some beef cattle to market. "Pray," said the Englishman, "what will you get for that beef in New York?" "Four cents the pound," replied Pat. "Heaven bless me, man, if you had that beef in hold Lonnon you'd get 10 cents for it." "Be the same token," replied Pat, "if I had Lakes of Killarney in Hades I could sell the whole of it for a dollar a pint."

And so with agricultural schools; they must go direct to the people where the demand is the greatest, when the need is greatest, and the Republican party of Minnesota is to be commended for having taken the initiative step in this matter.

Immigration and State Lands.

Our platform further declares for a law that will encourage immigration and for a more liberal policy in dealing with settlers on state lands. The state owns large tracts in the northern part upon which it desires settlement by farmers, but owing to the lack of schools, roads and proper drainage, settlers cannot be induced to locate in sufficient numbers to make a creditable showing. If this clause in the platform is upheld and carried out as it should be, it will be the duty of a Republican legislature to adopt some effective plan to relieve the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs. In this great, broad, progressive state, we cannot afford to tolerate a condition whereby some children are permitted to grow up without school advantages.

Railroad Rate Discrimination.

We have further promised in our platform to keep a watchful eye on transportation companies to the end that fair rates may be maintained and discrimination between individuals and communities prevented, and in this connection I believe it will be one of the duties of the legislature to investigate conditions in order to ascertain whether manufacturers, jobbers and business interests in the smaller cities and villages of the state have equal advantage in railroad rates with similar business interests located in the big commercial centers, and if it is found that they do not, set about to provide a remedy if possible, for the existing evil. I believe that the future welfare and prosperity of the commonwealth is dependent largely upon the increase in population and continued prosperity of the rural communities, which includes the various business and manufacturing interests of the smaller cities and villages as well as the farms.

County Option.

In the matter of the control of the liquor traffic, our platform pledges a "fair, full and free consideration of all measures." All temperance legislation, or all legislation for the control of the liquor traffic, now on the statute books of Minnesota, was put there by the Republican party, and let me say to that strong and respectable wing of the party that is seeking for further extension in the form of county option that it will have to come, if it does come (and I expect that it will come eventually) through and by the grace of the Republican party, and county option Republicans should, and I believe will, stand for and vote the Republican ticket.

In the Republican state convention 468 delegates voted for a county option resolution and its advocates were permitted to be heard at length. In the Democratic state convention county option was booted bodily out of the back door and no voice was permitted to be raised in its defense. Mr. Gray is not to be condemned for his stand for county option, but he is so much in discord with his party on the issue that he is to be pitied, and comparatively speaking, he is drifting about like a ship without a rudder, as ineffective in making progress as a mast without a sail, and should he ever land it will be at a port without an entry.

As regards my own candidacy and my position on this issue, you doubtless have heard various and conflicting reports. It is easy for reports to get in circulation regarding candidates for office, but not always so easy to fix the source or responsibility for them. It came to a fond young mother in a round-about way that her little five-year-old hopeful, Willie, had fallen into the bad habit of using swear words. She acquainted her husband with the report, and after finishing his evening meal he called Willie to his knee and cautiously questioned him regarding the matter. "Willie, do you ever say swear words?"

"Oh, no, Papa, I don't swear."

"Don't you forget sometimes and swear just a little when playing with the neighbor children?"

"No, Papa, I don't swear, but Johnnie Jones sometimes swears. Who said I sweared, Papa?"

"I don't like to tell, but it was just a little bird that told me."

"A little bird, what kind of a little bird, Papa?"

"I don't like to tell, Willie.

"I know," said Willie, "I'll bet it was one of those damn sparrows."

This would indicate, of course that reports though not well founded may sometimes be true, and as Frank Eddy used to say when campaigning for congress in the seventh District, he never tried to refute any charges made against him by the opposition for fear that they would prove them true.

However I believe that I was the first candidate for a state office to take a position on the question of county option and some of the other issues now before the people. Long before the nominating convention of my party, I stated in effect, plainly that if elected to the office of Lieutenant Governor and I was permitted to name the committees of the next state senate, I would appoint a committee that would report out without delay a straight out county option bill and force the senate members to vote a "yes" or vote a "no" on the proposition. I have not changed my views since that first declaration and do not intend to change them after election. You send men to the legislature to vote and represent you, not to dodge and deceive you. I believe in open legislation and wish to be counted as an enemy to the nefarious system of pigeon holing or suppressing in committee proposed legislation on well defined issues such as county option, re-apportionment, amendment for road tax, and similar measures. As I have said before, the Republican platform declares for a "fair, full and free" consideration of liquor traffic legislation, which means that county option must have a square deal. Gov. Eberhart has publicly promised that he will sign a county option bill if it is passed by the legislature; throughout the state Republican candidates for the legislature in large numbers have declared for county option and on the whole the Republican party stands ready and willing, stands pledged, if you please, to give county option a fair hearing in the next session of the legislature. If I did not believe this to be true I would not be here asking your support for the candidates on the Republican ticket, for I will not knowingly support any candidate other than a fair-play and square-deal candidate, I care not what office he seeks or what party brand he wears.

Republicanism is Progression.

There have been suggestions in some quarters that the time was ripe for the formation of a new party, but for one I can see no necessity for such a movement in order to bring about desired reforms. The Republican party may have made some mistakes, for it is made up of human membership and it is human to err, but on the whole it has been the party to reform, the party of progression and the party of grand achievement, and there is every reason to believe that it will continue to be such a party. A political party, in my opinion, is just what its membership body permits it to be. Left entirely to aspiring, self-benefiting politicians and individuals representing interests seeking special privileges to the detriment of the great mass of people, a political party will become corrupt and unworthy of trust. Party platforms amount to nothing, high sounding praises of them and resounding promises made from the platform and in the party press less than nothing, unless men are nominated and men are elected who will stand true to their colors and in the performance of their official duties make good their party pledges. The Republican party membership, and especially in Minnesota, has ever insisted upon the redemption of the party's pledges and the candidates of the party in this state for the most part are men who have been in a position where they have proven that in the performance of their official duties they have carried out the will of the voters and made good their party's pledges. This is my political conviction and I stand with the Republican party.

As stated in the national platform, in history the difference between Democracy and Republicanism is that the one stood for debased currency, the other for honest currency; the one for free silver, the other for sound money; the one for free trade, the other for protection; the one for the contraction of American influence, the other for its expansion; the one has been forced to abandon every position taken on the great issues before the people, the other has held and vindicated all.

In experience the difference between Democracy and Republicanism is that one means adversity, while the other means prosperity; one means low wages, the other means high; one means doubt and debt, the other means confidence and thrift.

The darkest days in the history of this country since the civil war, were the days of the last Democratic congress and Democratic president, when Coxey armies were parading the country and cheap soup houses were a necessity to save them from starvation.

In my opinion, Progressive Republicanism is the only kind of true Republicanism. Progression is Republicanism. Advancement has been the party's watchword, achievement has been its accomplishment. During all its years of existence in the onward march of time it has kept pace with the needs of the hour and the demands of the people, and I have faith to believe that it will continue to do so, for the reason that I have faith and confidence in the honesty and patriotism of the party's membership. Any great movement meets with reverses, any great organization finds some obstacles, but I will not wholly condemn this great party for a single fault or a single failure to conform to my ideas. When it ceases to do the bidding of the people in the main, when it ceases to accomplish things, when it ceases to progress; when it comes to a standstill, then will I desert it, but not until then.

GOVERNOR EBERHART.

GOVERNOR WAS HERE

Addressed a Large Audience In the Auditorium Monday Evening.

Made a Very Convincing Speech and Told His Position on Public Matters.

Perhaps the largest political gathering ever held in Red Lake county was addressed by Gov. Adolph O. Eberhart Monday evening at the auditorium. The governor is no spread eagle orator, but he is an earnest and sincere speaker and in plain, straightforward language he told the voters of Thief River Falls his position on all matters of public importance. As all of our readers have without doubt either read or heard the speech, we will attempt to give no resume of his Monday evening address.

The meeting was presided over by D. P. O'Neill, and he introduced the speaker after a short address. The governor paid a fine compliment to Thief River Falls upon the progressive spirit shown by its public schools and the erection of the fine auditorium and said that no city in the state outside of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth had such a fine meeting place.

Before coming to Thief River Falls, the governor addressed a large meeting at Red Lake Falls at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and at St. Hilaire at 3 o'clock. The St. Hilaire meeting was a decided success and the school children there contributed in no small way towards the entertainment of the governor.

Will Cut Insurance.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—Notice of a reduction in insurance rates which will apply to a greater part of Minnesota, was made by J. A. Hartigan, state insurance commissioner, this morning. The statement issued from his office said:

"About Nov. 15 all exposure charges on dwelling houses in Minnesota, outside of the timber country, will be removed. These charges run from 5 cents to 25 cents per 100. The average reduction on account of removal of these charges will be from 10 per cent to 15 per cent.

This reduction is the result of the investigation of dwelling rates made by the insurance department and is a voluntary reduction by the companies on the showing made by the department.

"The companies will in the future allow greater reduction of rate for use of the co-insurance clause. This reduction runs from 12½ per cent on fire proof buildings to 5 per cent on ordinary brick buildings and from 10 per cent to 6 per cent on contents. A 15 per cent reduction will also be made on tornado policies where the co-insurance clause is used.

LAND IS WITHDRAWN

New Legislation to Be Secured Before Balance of Land Is Sold.

Under Original Act Land Should Have Been Offered for Sale This Fall.

New legislation is to be secured before the remaining land open for settlement on the eleven towns is offered to the public. The original law provided that all land not entered be sold this fall at auction and title be given by the government without residence or cultivation. The department has decided to take no action at this time, however, and the following letter written by Fred Dennet, commissioner of the general land office to the register and receiver of the Crookston land office explains itself:

I have to advise you that on October 12, last, the Department approved a recommendation of this Office postponing the sale of the eleven townships in the western part of the Red Lake Diminished Reservation, opened under the Act of February 20, 1904 (33Stats. L. 46,), pending legislation by Congress.

This action was taken at the request of Senator Clapp and Representative Steenerson.

You will inform the newspapers of the postponement as a matter of news and not an advertisement.

What Did the Claim Agent Do?

Mr. Olson had a cow killed by a railroad train. In due season the claim agent for the railroad called. "We understand, of course, that the deceased was a very docile and valuable animal," said the claim agent in his most persuasive claimagentlemanly manner, "and we sympathize with you and your family in your loss. But, Mr. Olson, you must remember this: Your cow had no business upon our tracks. Those tracks are our private property and when she invaded them she became a trespasser. Technically speaking, you, as her owner, became a trespasser also. But we have no desire to carry the issue into court and possibly give you trouble. Now, then, what would you regard as a fair settlement between you and the railroad company?"

"Vell," said Mr. Olson slowly, "Ay bane poor Swede farmer, but Ay shall give you two dollars."

Brown Balks Petty Graft.

Judge Calvin S. Brown, of the state supreme court, is well known to many of the residents of Thief River Falls, and the following taken from the St. Paul Dispatch will therefore be of local interest:

"It has remained for Calvin L. Brown, associate justice of the state supreme court to produce a classic refusal of tickets.

"Candidates for office are looked upon as legitimate prey those arranging social affairs having a financial side. The sending of tickets to candidates and requesting a check in exchange is as customary as the receipt of mail. The members of the bench suffer the least from this, but one such appeal came yesterday to Judge Brown, contains ten tickets to a dance.

"The judge returned the tickets with the following letter:

"Dear Sir—I return herewith the ten tickets to the first annual ball of the 'People's Independent Republican club, appointed to be held in Minneapolis on October 21, which I received from you yesterday. I am unable to dispose of them.

"The truth of the matter is that the people over here in St. Paul are loath to go so far to attend a dance, and they decline to buy the tickets. Am out of the habit myself, and therefore return the tickets that you may not be delayed in disposing of them to those who enjoy entertainments of this kind. Very respectfully, "C. L. Brown."

GETTING HIS NEEDING

F. A. Grady, Finds Farmers Who Are Well Posted on County Division.

Meetings Held in the North End of the County by Red Lake Falls.

One Mr. F. A. Grady, of Red Lake Falls, who had bills posted in St. Hilaire for a meeting recently and invited the speakers of Thief River Falls to be present and ask questions (but took good care that none of the bills found their way to Thief River Falls) has been getting all of the "debating" he desires of late.

The St. Hilaire meeting went off very smoothly. Mr. Grady made so many untruthful statments that even those supporting his side of the proposition became thoroughly disgusted and then Mr. Farley made a short talk.

Last Friday evening this party held a meeting in the town of Sanders, and when they commenced to make wrong statements, the farmers objected and they were concerned at every stage of the game. They became so disgusted with the intelligence displayed by the farmers that they left the platform in disgust and Mr. Farley suddenly remembered that his chickens at Red Lake Falls needed attention and went home. Mr. Grady stayed in the enemy's country and held a meeting Saturday evening in Rocksbury where the same experience was had as at Sanders.

Sunday Grady was out to Kratka and so were the Thief River Falls Speakers and they beat the Red Lake Falls crowd to a frazzle.

Our Financial Condition.

Red Lake county was created out of a part of Polk by the election of 1896 and started doing business Jan. 1, 1897, making it nearly fifteen years of age. It would seem that fifteen years would be time enough to put even a county on a firm financial footing. And it is now timely to look over and see how much it has cost us to run our county. It is needless to tell you about our taxes during this time. They have been heavy burdens to the average taxpayer, in fact, were about as high as the law would allow. But they were NOT HIGH ENOUGH to pay the county bills.

To start with we had to assume a part of the Polk county debt. We have paid interest on this for the fifteen years and today owe Polk county just as much as we did at the time of division. In 1897 we issued $10,000 in bonds to pay current expenses. In 1899 we issued $20,000 in bonds to fund outstanding county warrants. In 1901 we issued $14,000 in bonds to fund outstanding county warrants. Since that time we have "borrowed" first $14,000 and later $6,000 from the county ditch fund to pay current expenses. At present there is something over $12,000 in county revenue warrants not paid for want of funds and drawing interest at 6 per cent. We have also issued bonds to the amount of $3,000 to build a jail and $37,000 to build a court house.

To sum up, the cold hard fact remains that we have run over $75,000 behind in fifteen years, and the present year will be no exception, but probably worse.

What of the future, friends? Bankruptcy? Confiscation of property? The law of Minnesota does not allow our county to levy a higher tax. Shall we have the law changed, or—what?

Harry E. Ives.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., Oct. 25, 1910.
—St. Hilaire Spectator.

(The above explains why Red Lake Falls is so strong against division. They have been milking the taxpayers for so long that they dont want to quit.

Who Get The Interests.

The following is taken from County Auditor Latendresse's financial statement for 1909. It shows where every cent paid by Red Lake county for interest on county bonds and warrants goes. This tells most conclusively why certain south end interests are so bitterly fighting division.

The large amounts shown above are all the interest items which the financial report shows have been paid. This financial statement of the county should be carefully studied by the taxpayers at this particular time and attention given to the payment of the county funds. This will disclose why a number of persons who are receiving large sums of money from the county are either openly or covertly fighting division.

Wyman Goes to Superior.

The Soo line has enlarged upon the duties of Division Superintendent Michaels, of this city, and has added to his territory the Brooten and new Thief River Falls line of the Soo. This makes it necessary for a branch office to be established at Superior, Wis., and Chief Clerk W. A. Wyman left Sunday evening for Superior to take charge of the new office. Mr. Michaels will continue to make his headquarters here, but will spend part of his time at the Superior office. Louis Rison has been promoted to the position of chief clerk of the local office.

It is with regret that the people of Thief River Falls learn of the departure of Mr. Wyman who has been popular in lodge and social circles of the city for a number of years, and has made many friends here.

anyone who had formed the "bank habit" anyone who knew from personal experience and realizes the convenience and many real advantages as well as the actual safety of paying his bills by check, to voluntarily go back to the old habit of carrying his money in his pocket, or hiding it around the home, and paying his bills with cash.

Doesn't the fact that those who have tried both methods continue to use the bank convince YOU that the "bank habit" is a good one to form?

Mill Closed Down.

The Thief River Falls saw mill closed down Saturday evening for the season. Although there was a supply of logs on hand for about one weeks run, the water in the river is so low that it was with difficulty they were floated to the mill.

Monday morning most of the men employed in the mill were put at work making repairs and they will be kept busy for sometime. The mill is to be practically rebuilt this fall.

One Lie Nailed.

When F. A. Grady spoke in St. Hilaire he insulted the intelligence of the voters by making a statement that was entirely false. He said that according to the provisions of a law passed at the last session of the legislature, it was compulsory for all county commissioners in the state to redistrict their respective counties into five equal commissioner districts after the federal census of 1910 had been announced. No such law as this was passed and Mr. Grady knows it. The following letter from Former Attorney General Young explains the matter:

October 31, 1910.

Mr. Wilhelm Michelet,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:—

I have your favor of the 28. th inst. in which you state, that certain attorneys speaking for Red Lake Falls in the county division fight, are claiming that a law was passed by the last legislature COMPELLING the Board of County Commissioners to redistrict a county after each state or United States census. You state further, that you are unable to find any such law, and you ask, for greater certainty, whether I know of the enactment of any such law.

I beg to advise you, that no such law was passed at the last session of the Legislature. The only laws referring to the re districting of a county are Section 420 of the Code, and Chapter 5 of the General Laws of 1907.

I helped Mr. O'Neil of your county prepare a bill last winter to compel the redistricting of counties but it did not become a law.

Your construction of the law as it stands is, in my opinion, correct; the County Board MAY redistrict, but are not compelled to do so.

Very truly yours,
(Sgd.) E. T. Young.

Seven Year Old Boy Burned to Death

Monday evening Willie Allwordon, aged 7, son of a Great Northern section man at Middle River, with two other boys, 10 and 13 years old, was setting prairie fires on land near that village and suddenly found themselves surrounded by flames. The two older boys dashed through the fire, but Willie fell and was dead when his companions returned and tried to stamp the fire out. He was burned beyond all recognition, nothing being left but a charred mass when the little fellow was brought to the village a little later. Coroner Beiderman, of Argyle, was called and arrived at Middle River that afternoon, but decided death was purly accidental.

The unfortunate lad was the second son of a family of five children, and his parents are nearly distracted with grief over the terrible tragedy.

The land was being burned off by the owner, who intended to break it up in the spring. Therefore the blaze attracted no attention, as it was supposed the fire was being set by the owner.

The two boys who escaped said it all happened so quickly they could do nothing. They state that as soon as they saw their companion had not escaped, they rushed back but he was beyond help then. They dragged the body from the fire and tried to stamp the fire from his clothing.

The tragedy has cast a deep gloom over Middle River, where everyone knew and loved the sturdy little fellow who met such a terrible death. The boys who escaped are grief-stricken, as they thought of course, Willie could escape as they did, till it was too late to offer him aid.

Bad Fire This Morning.

Fire was discoverd in the rooms of the Antlers Club in the Masonic building at about 3:30 this morning and had it not been for the good work of the fire department and favorable conditions this handsome block and a good portion of the city might have been destroyed by fire.

The origin of the fire was undoubtedly due to a fire that had been burning in the fire place of the Antlers Club the evening before and had gained considerable headway before discovered. The furniture in the club rooms was nearly all destroyed and a great deal of damage was done to the building and to the stock of F. J. Stebbins' drug and jewelry store, which is on the first floor of this building. It will be hard to estimate the entire loss for a few days.

The building, which is owned by the Masonic lodge and F. J. Stebbins, is entirely covered by insurance, as is also the stock of Mr. Stebbins. Although there was supposed to have been insurance upon the Antlers Club room furniture, no policy can be found, and the loss to the club will be total.

DECADENCE OF TENANT FARMING

Government Experts Make Investigation of Rural Conditions in Sweden, Norwegian-American Steamship Company to Begin Business Shortly. Copenhagen Alarmed Over Russian Cholera Situation.

SWEDEN.

A committee of experts appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the cause of the decadence of tenant farming in Sweden has come to the conclusion, after making careful investigation, that special instruction in farming on a small scale ought to be given to those who are interested in husbandry. It is a remarkable fact that the young men and women in Sweden are beginning to take little or no interest in farming and are all the time turning their eyes to the city to enter other avocations. Farm life to most of them has become a great drudgery and they see such small returns in it, especially the way that it has been conducted and is conducted, that it is a difficult thing to make them see it in any other light. It is just this element that is all the time turning its eyes on America and Canada, which countries have been well advertised to them in the Swedish-American newspapers and through their relatives. When relatives come home to visit, it does not matter from what part of the United States that they come, they at once tell the folks at home what splendid opportunities young people have in America and it does not take very much coaxing to have them make up their minds to leave the mother country. The government is really at a loss as to what to do to make people stay on the farms of Sweden. It is not so bad in the southern part of the country, for there they have better farming methods and better soil, but in the northern sections of the country it is vastly different. There, a renter of a farm has only a small show to make a living, for the rentals are too high and the soil yields but comparatively little. In the timber country the lumber companies have by far the best of the situation, for they have bought up the pine forests long ago and, according to a law in Sweden, a man who has sold the timber on his land is not allowed to pasture his cattle there. So the conditions are not at all favorable and that is perhaps the best reason why so many Swedish people seek homes in America and Canada.

Owing to the prevalence of cholera in Russia the Swedish importing organizations have concluded not to import any more fruit from Russia. This has been an exceedingly poor fruit year in Sweden and therefore large quantities of fruit have had to be imported from Russia. The importers have, however, come to the conclusion that they will cut short all fruit imports because of the rapid spread of cholera in all parts of Russia. Professor Alfred Peterson, a medical authority in Stockholm, declared that there can really be no danger that the disease can be carried in fruit, but there has been such a protest among the people in general in Stockholm, because of the fact that importers have taken their fruit from Russia, that it has been decided best to cut it off altogether.

Bishop Personne, the new bishop of Linkoping diocese, was installed in his new position during the latter part of last month. The installation services were held in the Upsala cathedral and were very impressive. The installation address was delivered by Archbishop Ekman. Among those present were the minister of foreign affairs, Count Taube, and Governor Hammarskjold, together with a number of high functionaries from Stockholm and Upsala. The professors and students of the Upsala university attended in a body.

Professor A. I. Sefve will make a trip to South America in the near future, where he will engage in some extensive geological research. He will at first spend some six months in Bolivia and will afterwards visit Peru and the Argentine Republic. He contemplates to be absent from his native land about three years. He and his companions are well equipped for the journey and some interesting geological data will undoubtedly be forthcoming when he has finished his trip.

Herr Martin Rosendahl, secretary for the King Oscar II. traveling library, returned a few days ago to Stockholm after a trip through Canada and the United States. He will write a series of articles on his trip in the States for one of the daily newspapers and has also agreed to write a sketch of Swedish American farm life for one of the magazines.

Attorney Romanus is seeking a pardon for the notorious murderer, Alfred Ander. A number of Ander's relatives are also seeking to secure a pardon for him and several other organizations are using their influence to at least ameliorate the sentence, which is that of death.

NORWAY.

The organization of the Norwegian-American Line Steamship company was a move in the right direction and, judging from the present outlook, the company will be doing a great business from the very start. The only American director is Consul T. H. Hobe of St. Paul, who is at present engaged in selling stock to a number of wealthy Norwegians in the Northwest. The company will soon have three large passenger steamers in commission, besides three freight steamers. Owing to the fact that there is a steady emigration from Norway to America this line will certainly be patronized. During the past five years about 20,000 Norwegians emigrated annually to the United States and there is no sign that emigration to that country is abating.

Twenty-five horses were recently imported from Iceland to Kristiansand and sold there at public auction. They are small, but exceedingly tough. The object of this move was to give holders of small farms a chance to get suitable horses cheap. If the result is satisfactory more horses will be imported from the same country. Once the Iceland horses are introduced they will prove a valuable asset to the farming districts.

Professor Bodding, the present leader of the Norwegian mission in Santalistan, India, has returned to that country after a long sojourn in Europe, where he has appeared as a lecturer in many of the leading cities. A farewell reception was given him in Christiania, which was attended by a very large number of those who are interested in his work. There are at present 16,000 Christians in Santalistan.

There is much poverty among the working people in the Norwegian capital at present. A large number of families have been compelled to seek aid from the charity organizations and they are certainly doing a great and good work. When the winter arrives in earnest these organizations will undoubtedly be taxed to the utmost.

Aksel Maurer is giving a series of lectures on scientific agriculture and his lectures are well received wherever he appears. Mr. Maurer delivered a series of lectures in the United States some years ago, but they proved a failure from a financial standpoint.

Professor Jesperson, for many years superintendent of the Borger and Real school in Christiania, is dead. He had been in the harness for sixty years and was considered one of the country's leading educators.

The authors' stipends have not as yet been distributed by the storthing. There are a good many applicants for these stipends, some deserving ones and others who perhaps are not so deserving.

The International Oceanographic union, representing nine countries in Europe, has just held a conference in Copenhagen. There were three representatives present from Norway.

DENMARK.

They are thoroughly scared in Copenhagen at the ravages of cholera in Russia and every person that comes from there is detained at all ports in Denmark for at least five days for observation and disinfection of baggage before they are allowed to land and in many instances they are not allowed to land at all. The coast quarantine, especially at the harbor of Copenhagen, is known to be adequately able to cope with any possible dangers. The guard at the Copenhagen port of entry is being doubled and every quarantine officer in the service has received special instructions for the examination of vessels from ports suspected of infection or of carrying passengers from suspected districts. There has as yet been only two cases of cholera in Copenhagen, and that was about two months ago, but the guards at the port of entry are not taking any chances. There would be very little chance for any Russians to land in Denmark at present and escape the quarantine authorities.

Burmeister & Wain, shipbuilders, have decided to use the Diesel motors in their ships and have already given the motor a trial in one of their big liners and find that it works to perfection. The invention is a very ingenious one and will save thousands of tons of coal, besides providing room for several hundred tons of baggage. If these motors are once generally introduced they will revolutionize steamship traffic and none of the great steamship companies operating the large ocean greyhounds can afford to be without them.

Says the Politiken (Copenhagen): In each of the Scandinavian countries an enlargement of the suffrage has taken place during the past three years. It is estimated that about 300,000 of the 550,000 Norwegian women above the age of twenty-five have the right to vote in national elections. The elections of October and November 1909, was the first general election in which women took part and it is estimated that from 40 to 50 per cent of the qualified female voters cast their ballots at that election.

It is reported that a Danish squadron has for some time been maneuvering at night in connection with the Copenhagen fort. The submarine Dykkeren has taken part in the movement and has thus far given excellent service, proving that it would be of immense value in time of war. The government is so well pleased with the submarine boat that it will order at least three more of the same type to be built during the coming year.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

A startling article on "The Looting of the Chippewas' Land," by Warren K. Moorhead, member of the United States Indian commission and curator of the Peabody museum of Andover academy, is contained in the Boston Transcript of recent date. It charges that the whites have been guilty of outrages in dealing with the Indians of the White Earth reservation and tells how the swindling was detected by the Indian department and how the guilty are being prosecuted.

Believing that New Orleans, as the central point and distributing market of the great Mississippi valley system of waterways, is more directly in touch and sympathy with the "inland empire" than San Francisco, the board of directors of the St. Paul Commercial club passed resolutions strongly endorsing New Orleans as the site for the Panama exposition in 1915.

Plans for the enlargement of the state farm school at St. Anthony Park are being discussed by Dean A. F. Woods, members of the agricultural committee of the board of regents and professors at the school. After the plans are in shape and approved by the committee they will be submitted to the board of regents at a meeting Dec. 12.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

The dead body of John Caldwell, who has been missing from his home ten miles from Northome, was found near Sand lake, twenty miles southeast of Northome. He was stabbed to death. Reports are meager, but the nature of the wounds indicate that he was murdered. It is not known positively who committed the crime, but Indians living in the vicinity of Sand lake are suspected.

Willis Dale, working as a carpenter at Ortonville for twenty years, committed suicide by hanging himself at the ball park. The cause of the suicide was probably ill health. He paid all his debts about town before ending his life. He was forty-four years of age.

Ray Smith of Spencer Brook, Mille Lacs county, lost his barn, six horses, three cows and his poultry by fire. The barn loft was full of hay where the fire started, but it is not known how it originated.

A. E. Gauvreau of Bemidji was sentenced by Judge Wright to serve six months in the penitentiary on the charge of having sold liquor to a person of Indian blood.

The three-year-old daughter of Daniel Dahlberg of Canby is dead, being burned in a gasoline stove explosion. The mother and a babe were seriously injured.

Six people have been killed in Minneapolis since June 7 by being run into by automobiles. Several others were killed in automobile collisions.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Willard Stephen Whitmore, formerly well known in newspaper circles in Minnesota, is dead at Washington at the age of sixty-eight years. Mr. Whitmore was born in Laporte, Ind., May 3, 1842. He was founder of the Stillwater (Minn.) Gazette and had been employed as editor of several other newspapers in the West before moving to Washington. He also founded the Minneapolis Chronicle, then the only paper published in Minneapolis.

Andrew Wicklund, chairman of the board of county commissioners of Isanti county and one of the pioneer residents of the county, died at his home in Springvale after an illness of several months with tuberculosis. Deceased was born in Sweden in 1853 and came to this country in 1877.

John J. Robertson, a resident of Stillwater for more than half a century, is dead. Mr. Robertson was eighty-six years old and was a veteran of the Civil war and pioneer lumberman.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, eighty-one years old, a pioneer of St. Paul, is dead. She had been a resident of the Capital City since 1850.

A CASK OF GLYCERIN.

The Admiral Had to Prove That It Was Harmless.

Life in Ireland is never devoid of the humorous, and when Admiral, then Captain, John Moresby was stationed at Queenstown, in 1869, he had his full share. He narrates in "Two Admirals" that it became his duty to survey a damaged ship laden with casks of glycerin. For purpose of repair he directed a portion of the cargo to be landed and stored and thought no more about it.

What was my astonishment next day, he says, to find the whole town in a panic and to be informed that every life was in danger from the deadly compound stored under one of the principal offices of the place.

The town council assembled and sent their health officer to stop all discharge of cargo and to remove the vessel to the outer anchorage, and the people gathered at the street corners in agitated crowds to meet their doom in comfortable companionship.

I vainly contended that it could be nothing but pure glycerin.

"Pure glycerin, is it?" said the chairman. "Well, there's mighty little difference between pure glycerin and impure glycerin, and the ship must be off before we have the place blown about our ears."

All I could say was: "Well, gentlemen, if it is nitroglycerin a blow will explode it. I propose that a cask should be put in a field, and I will fire a shot at it. Will this satisfy you?"

After much deliberation, this handsome offer was accepted. I shall never forget that procession nor the agonized countenances of the bearers who lifted the cask to a cart as softly padded for its reception as if it had been an invalid in the last stages of disease.

"Patsy and Jim Dempsey had great courage entirely," was the comment of the crowd as they followed at what they believed to be a safe distance.

We wended our way into the country attended by the prayers and blessings of all the old women of both sexes whom we met en route, and the gilded pinnacle was put on the terror when in lifting the cask into the field, far from all human habitation, one of the bearers stumbled and almost fell. He turned a face of wan appeal to heaven as he recovered himself.

But we got it there. I can still recall the town council crouching among the brambles of a distant hedge and watching with expectant eyes and manifest intention of instant flight.

The shot hit the cask fair and square, and amid an awful silence a few slow tears of glycerin oozed out and trickled down its side. That was all.

A MAN AGAINST A NATION.

The Most Curious European War That Was Ever Waged.

The most curious European war ever waged was that which in the sixteenth century, the period of the reformation and the renaissance, was carried on single handed for between five and six years between a bankrupt grocer of Berlin and the elector of Saxony, who was the most powerful German prince of the period. The grocer's name was Hans Kohlhase, and the immediate cause of the quarrel was the arresting of two of his horses in the elector's territory, he being a subject of the elector of Brandenburg. Failing to get redress, he adopted what was then a perfectly legal expedient and declared formal war on the realm of Saxony. The declaration was accepted in due form, and the war began.

The extraordinary part of the story is that the grocer kept the war up for nearly six years practically single handed and even went to the extremity of declaring war on his own sovereign in the meantime before he was caught. He burned farms and even villages, employed mercenaries after the fashion of the times and made himself the terror of the district. He was finally influenced to stop hostilities by Luther, and after he had taken the sacrament from his hands he was betrayed into a further act of hostility by treachery and, being captured, suffered death on the wheel after refusing an act of grace which granted him the painless and honorable death of the sword. The story is perhaps the strangest of all the romances of that romantic age.—Westminster Gazette

For Body and Soul.

Here is a curious advertisement, republished in the Cornhill Magazine from an eighteenth century paper: "Wanted—For a family who have bad health, a sober, steady person, in the capacity of a doctor, surgeon and apothecary. He must occasionally act in the capacity of butler and dress hair and wigs. He will be required to read prayers occasionally and to preach a sermon every Sunday. The reason of this advertisement is that the family cannot any longer afford the expense of the physical tribe and wish to be at a certain expense for their bodies and souls. A good salary will be given."

Truth Will Out.

Hubby (with irritation)—Why is it that you women insist upon having the last word?

Wifey (calmly)—We don't. The only reason we get it is because we always have a dozen arguments left when you stupid men are all run out.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The question to decide next Tuesday is whether a board of county commissioners controlled by the farmers will give a lower tax rate than a board controlled by John Duffy.

It is reported that several suits will be started against the Soo railway as a result of the fire that destroyed so much hay a few weeks ago. The railway company has offered to settle with some of the losers at $1 per ton. With hay selling at $10 and $12 the interested parties do not care to settle at that figure.—Mahnomen Pioneer.

Letter From Andrew Trovoten.

Town of North, Oct. 28,1910.
Editor "Thief River News";

As the present campaign is drawing to a close, allow me space for expressing my views regarding a couple of pending propositions.

The first is the proposition of dividing the county. This is the most important one for it effects our own county government, and it is our first duty to attend to our local affairs.

Some bitter feeling has naturally been engendered during this campaign, which of course is bad, but is a thing that can hardly be helped in a political campaign anymore than in war, as the two are quite similar. Now, I would like to have every taxpayer in the county lay aside every prejudice and decide this question soley on its merits.

My first reason for favoring county-division is that I am convinced that Red Lake County is too large to be governed economically as there is a very great waste of money for mileage, and some of the commissioner districts are so large that the commissioners are not acquainted with the needs of their respective districts.

It is also very hard for the average taxpayer, and voter, to acquaint himself with the character and ability of the men running for county offices here, so it happens that we do not elect the best men to serve us. This is a very important point, tho it has been nearly forgotten during the later part of the campaign.

In Pennington this evil will be greatly reduced if not entirely eliminated, as Thief River Falls is the trading-point for nearly all of the county, and the voters would have an easy way of getting acquainted with the differet candidates, and thus select the right ones.

I have found a few people who are afraid it will cost the taxpayers more to "support two sets of officers than one", but that is entirely a mistake in this case as the auditors office has taken nearly $3000 for himself, his deputy and clerks in 1909, (not including ditch fees) and for 1910 it will be over $3000 for this office alone, and the ditch fees already amount to over $1,000 so that before the year is up, the receipts in this office alone will amount to over $5000 very likely. Now, as far as the ditch fees are concerned, the commissioners cannot help that, directly, but they certainly should not furnish him with clerks to do the ditch work at the county's expense. In Pennington county the auditor would cost about half as much and we have two thirds of the valuation.

The sheriff's office in the two counties will cost less than it now does in the one. Take for instance a trip to Thief River Falls of the sheriff, now costs the county mileage for about 40 miles both ways, and after division he would get for only 2 miles. Well, my article would be too lengthy if I should go into detail about each office, so I will only call your attention to what happened to the county-revenue fund levy (the fund for paying county officers, court expenses etc) in Polk county when Red Lake County was set off in 1886. I had just got the figures from the State Auditor, as I was a taxpayer in Polk county at the time. Here they are: In 1891 it was $47,315.92, in 1895, $32,760.84, in 1896 $22,933.60, in 1897, $19,804.01, in 1898 $18,785.56.

Red Lake county was set off from Polk in 1896, and Polk only lost 18 than one fourth, but still it reduced organized towns out of 74 that is less taxes (revenue fund) one half. This was caused by reduction of mileage and county officers salaries, and increased economy all around.

Later on, as the east end got more thickly settled and valuation increased generally, the expenses of course, began to increase.

My second reason for favoring county division, is that, "the conditions are peculiar in Red Lake county" as was stated some time ago in an article in one of the Thief River papers. I live in one of the districts that has no more representation than when most of it belonged to the Indians, and I object to paying taxes without representation.

I notice some of the Red Lake Falls campaigners promises to redistrict after election. Well, that promise might fool a man who did not know the real cause of why they (Red Lake Falls commissioners) refused to give us representation after the census of 1905, when our people had a legal petition and even went to law about it. They dare not give us proportionate representation for they know the county seat would go to Thief River Falls as soon as we got representation. That would be death to Red Lake Falls, and it would not be the proper solution as it would still leave two factions in the county, that would give the shrewd politician a chance to work himself into office regardless of his ability.

No, my dear people in southern Red Lake, I think you aught to take what you now have, as if you could succeed in defeating division, you will ultimately lose your county seat, and it will be altoghter your own fault, as over 90 per cent of this northeast part will vote for Pennington county. You should not forget that this county-seat fight is costing the county money, and is conducive of bad county government.

—The other proposition I wish to call the voters attention to is the Sixth Proposed Amendment to our State Constitution. This is one of the most damnable propositions that was ever put before the people of our state. It was simply a scheme of the Lumber barons that want to hold their cutover pine lands exempt from taxation, under the guise of "Conservation." Be sure to vote this down, or the lumber interests will take their cutover lands off the market, and they will lay in the way of any progress in settling the northeast part of our great state.

Very respectfully yours,
Andrew Trovaton.

Sees a Blessing in the Fire.

Following a personal inspection of the fire swept district between Warroad and Baudette and Spooner, Donald Robertson, of Argyle, state representative from the Sixty-third district, announces that he will endeavor to obtain an appropriation from the coming session of the state legislature to purchase timothy and clover seed to be distributed to the settlers.

As a result of his observations, Mr. Robertson has come to the conclusion that the fire district is destined to become the greatest dairying district in the district. He believes the fire marks the beginning of real prosperity for this region inasmuch as it will make the clearing of the land easy and predicts that within the next five years the farms here will have more than tripled in number.

He is convinced that by the planting of timothy and clover the settlers wil reap rich rewards as, he says, there is no district anywhere better adapted for the vigorous growth of these grasses and that it will result in keeping the brush from growing up again.

"I shall ask the legislature to make a reasonable appropriation to buy grass seeds," said Mr. Robertson, "and I believe that, when I explain the great good that will result from the sowing of timothy and clover, there will be no serious opposition to a free disposition of the seeds. I already have assurances from some of the most influential members of the legislature and if it is my privilede to represent the people from this district again, I shall consider it one of my first duties to see that the state shows this much attention to the unfortunate inhabitants of the ash blackened district through which I have just traveled."

"Golden Hair and the Three Bears."

The delightful operetta of "Golden Hair and the Three Bears" will be presented at the Auditorium under the auspices of the band and the citizens band committee on the evenings of November 11th and 12th.

This opperetta requires two hours for its presentation and is not a juvenile performance by any means. The plot is built about the well known story of childhood, but it introduces new characters, new scenes and actions Some forty persons, comprising the best voices in the city and the high school take part in the operetta. The costumes are expensive and will be secured in St. Paul. The music is catchy throughout and the chorus is already well trained and strong. The scenes are attractive and every moment of the two hours is repleto with song, pleasing scenes and action.

As these two entertainments are for the benefit of the city band, which has so loyally and generously aided every movement and interest of the city it is hoped that the public will not fail to hold one evening at least open in order to attend the entertainment. The two evenings are required to present this operetta that everyone, large and small, may have an opportunity of hearing the music and seeing the fun.

The usual prices for admission will prevail.

To The News:

A thin sheet of the "white beautiful" on the ground and the cold crisp atmosphere above during the closing days of the month has served to temper the inhabitants of these camps for the inevitable four or six weeks hence.

Among the latest "runners" to visit our burg were Wm. Forsberg and Fred Bakke, candidates for sheriff and county treasurer.

The creamery closed for the present season last Saturday and will remain closed until spring. This is one of the bad habits that the institution unfortunately has fallen into and which yet remains to be overcome. Ole Rhodegard, the buttermaker, left Monday for Thief River Falls to spend the winter.

Will Jones and Henry Paulson came down from Warroad last week with their well drilling rig and have commenced sinking a well on the Longevan farm east of town. After the past dry season none but artesian wells are holding water and consequently there is all kinds of work for a drilling outfit.

Leif Jordishaugen returned from Hoople N. D., last week, and have since busied himself with re-building his house, it having burned to the ground during his absence. Kattel Jordishaugen who was at home at the time of the fire succeeded in getting out most of the contents, but the house burned complete.

O. P. Nelson was down to Thief River Falls last Friday after his son John, who left home some over a month ago, and had just been located on a farm near town.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church held their annual auction sale Saturday and sold goods for $40.80. The proceeds of the sale are to be used to help defray the cost of the new steeple that has been finished this fall.

Miss Annie J. Fallman, teacher of the Germantown school, was a Thief River Falls visitor Saturday, attending the Red Lake county industrial contest and looking after business matters.

The nearer we approach election day, the more important it becomes for the voter to reach a conclusion as to where he shall put the crosses on his ballot. It would be all the better for the country the sooner each and every voter will realize that parties are made by men, and that men are never made by parties. To vote for a candidate for a county office simply because he is a Democrat or a Republican is as ridiculous and meaningless as it would be to insist on having the cream poured into your coffee from a certain one of two vessels, only because one is a pitcher and the other a mug.

While in Thief River Falls last week Arne Overby bought a $350 team of horses from O. Ramstad.

Martin J. Berg and family, of Silverton were in attendance at the Ladies Aid society's auction sale here Saturday.

A number of our citizens went to Thief River Falls Monday to hear Gov. Eberhart and become stronger Republicans.

Martin Olson went to town the first of the week to commence proceedings to make final proof on his homestead.

A. K. Haggy has secured the contract for hauling freight for the Co-operative store from Thief River Falls for one year ending in October 1911.

Without casting any reflection on the opposition we believe that Louis Hamre will appeal to the voters of this commissioner district as the logical candidate for county commissioner on the ground that he is competent to perform the duties that the office entails, that he is centrally located and thus in the right position to keep posted on the needs of the district, and last but not least that he has never before appeared before the voters with a request for political favors, which reason undoubtedly has some weight, considering the fact that there are enough capable men in the country to make possible the right and ideal condition of having the honors passed around. In this day and age there is no need and still less demand for a perpetuation of favors in any one single direction.

The presentation of "Paid in Full" at the Auditorium last Friday night has brought forth an abundant supply of comment and praise from local theatre goers who had the good fortune of taking it in. This play is one of the best, if not the best, of its kind that has been produced in this city, and is a most elevating and moral drama, being as it is, minus the vulgarity that is so eminent in the general run of plays and is nearer the mass of the people.

FIGHT AGAINST PEAR BLIGHT.

There is probably no enemy which the orchardist has to fight that is a more serious one than pear blight, commonly called—a disease which attacks not only pear trees, but the apple, quince and loquat and wild members of the pome family, such as the mountain ash, hawthorn, service berry and others. The disease was discovered in New York more than a century ago, but it was not until the late seventies that its bacterial nature was discovered, and only within the past three or four years has a practical method been found for its eradication. It is spreading over the west, and only a few sections in northern Oregon and Washington have not yet been visited by it. The United States department of agriculture has been waging a very effective campaign against the blight on the Pacific slope under the direction of P. J. O'Gara, expert pathologist of the bureau of plant industry. The disease works in the sap, affecting chiefly the cambium layer and bark, but in rapidly growing limbs also affects the adjoining sapwood to some extent. Infection, which is always brought by bees or other insects from holdover cases, which begin to ooze as soon as the warm weather sets in in the spring, usually appears first in the fruit spurs shortly after the blossoms have fallen. Later on the water sprouts may become infected from insects walking on them whose feet have been in the ooze. Wet weather, the use of fertilizers, heavy pruning during the dormant season—in fact, any factor which tends to cause rapid growth and an increased flow of sap aggravates the blight and makes it the more destructive. For this reason it works more rapidly in young and vigorous trees than in old ones. The infection may stop of its own accord when the base of a twig or shoot has been reached. On the other hand it may continue down a larger limb to the trunk and finally to the root, when the death of the tree is but a matter of a short time if the knife is not applied. The research work which has been done demonstrates conclusively that there is one and only one successful method of eradication. This is the cutting out of affected fruit spurs and twigs or other spots below or beyond the point of infection and disinfecting the pruning instrument and cut after each operation with a one one-thousandth solution of corrosive sublimate. This is most easily applied by a sponge kept moistened with the solution and fastened with a short string to the left wrist, so that it will be within easy reach. If the infection is spreading rapidly a slimy whitish ooze exudes from the bark, which soon changes to a rusty red or deep brown after exposure to the air.

In cutting out infected parts it is very necessary to cut well beyond the discoloration, as shown in the cambium layer, and also the more recently infected portions, which may show merely a clear or briny appearance. Some of the worst cases of the blight which the writer has noticed have been infections in the trunk or root systems communicated through insignificant fruit spurs or water sprouts, which quickly died and shriveled, the blight not being discovered until it had infected a considerable area and begun oozing through the bark. To guard against cases of this kind all water sprouts and fruit spurs should be cut away from the base and trunk of the tree and well up into the larger branches. Infection sometimes occurs through growth cracks, and this will necessitate frequent and close inspection and control of the orchard all through the growing season so as to head off infections at the start. As in the case of many rodent, insect and fungous pests, effective results can only be looked for where there is complete co-operation among the fruit growers of a given section. Their attention should be directed not only to a cleaning up of all cases of blight in commercial orchards, which are usually given the closest attention and best possible care, but in the family orchards on ranches where fruit raising is not the prime business. Where the outlying territory is wooded search should be made for any wild members of the pome family which may harbor holdover cases and are often the source of infection of nearby orchards, bees carrying the germs a distance of two miles or more from their hives. The spread of infection from place to place in a tree is often the work of ants that throng them in search of plant lice, the destruction of which will greatly simplify the problem. Strangely, the Spitzenburg apple tree, the most highly regarded of all commercial varieties grown in the west, is especially subject to the disease, frequently being more seriously infected than the pear itself. Of the pear family the Kieffer and Winter Nelis show greatest immunity. There is no injection dope, spray or other method of treatment that is effective in controlling pear blight. Pear blight should not be confused with sour sap, which, though an affection of the sap, is brought on by unseasonable warm weather in the spring, followed by frosty nights, and is not the result of bacterial infection. Pear blight is a most serious menace to the growing of the pome fruits, but it can be kept in check and eradicated by persistent, vigilant and united efforts along the lines indicated.

REVENUE CUTTERS.

Varied Duties of These Life Savers of the Seas.

No men in the employ of Uncle Sam render more efficient service than do those of the revenue cutter service. The term "revenue," which would indicate that their duties were restricted to those pertaining to the proper enforcement of the revenue laws, can give but a faint notion of the varied duties of this splendid corps of men. As a matter of fact, revenue cutters are the life savers of the seas. They patrol the coasts on regular beats, on the watch for vessels in distress. They must suppress mutinies, prevent smuggling and illicit seal hunting; they must examine ships' papers, enforce quarantine regulations, supply lighthouses and in general do all kinds of police work. Then, too, they have been dubbed "the messenger boys of the seas."

Alexander Hamilton was the father of the revenue cutter service, for it was under his administration of the treasury department that, in 1791, ten cutters were built and put in commission under rules of his own devising. In time of peace the cutters are under the supervision of the treasury department, but in times of war they are transferred to that of the navy department. Since the war of 1812 they have always rendered excellent service in the event of armed hostilities. Every one remembers the remarkable work done by the McCulloch, under Dewey, at the battle of Manila Bay.—New York Press.

A GEM OF POESY.

Maybe It Was the Heat That Made It Burst Into Being.

Stewart Edward White, William Kent and myself were hunting mountain sheep in the ranges of Mexican California. Perhaps because the savage heat of the desert which we were crossing had somewhat gone to our brains we fell to making poetry upon various aspects of desert life. White rhapsodied upon the tarantula; Kent dithyrambed over the pack mule; I sang the dispraises of the jack rabbit. Finally White, who was cook for the day, offered a special prize of duff with raisins (the last remnant of our store) for the premier verse to be turned out before sunset. At noon we met up with a wandering prospector, who introduced himself as J. Noel Benson, native son of California, and observed upon learning of our literary efforts that he was some poet himself. On being invited to enter the list he retired to the top of a mesa, where the thermometer was something like 110 in the absence of shade, and after half an hour of self communion returned with the following gem of poesy:

THE GNAT.

The gnat he is a noisome mite.
He loves to buzz. He loves to bite.
He crawls upon you when you're hot.
I love the naughty gnat—nit—not!

The duff was awarded to him without protest from the other contestants.—Success Magazine.

How Leap Year Started.

Hampson, in his "Medii OEVI. Kalandarium," quotes the following quaint tradition from an old Saxon treatise: "Some assert that the bissextus or leap day comes through this, that Joshua prayed to God that the sun might stand still for one day's length that he might sweep the heathen from the land that God had granted him and his followers. It is true that the sun did stand still for one day's length over the city of Gebaon, but the day went forward in the same manner as other days. And the bissextus is not through that, as some do think."

In France and some parts of Spain and Portugal there exists a tradition known as "the ghost of leap year." Believers in this say that a marvelous monster annually appears on leap day and disarranges human affairs for the remainder of the year.

A Royal Apology.

King Edward VII. was never at a loss for a quick, suitable answer. One day he was coming around a street corner on one of his periodical walks in London when he collided with a very stout person, who, being nearsighted, did not recognize the king, took him by the lapel of his coat and gave him a tongue lashing.

"Do you know, sir," finished the irate man, "that I am a member of the London council?"

"In that case I beg your pardon," replied the king, "for I am only the king of Great Britain."

Just the Other Way.

Rudyard Kipling was once visiting at a country house at which Miss Dorothy Drew, the famous granddaughter of Mr. Gladstone, then a little girl, was also staying. She was sent out into the garden with the distinguished author.

Later on, when the other grownups joined them, little Miss Dorothy was asked, "I hope you didn't bore Mr. Kipling?"

"No, but he bored me frightfully," was the unexpected and resigned reply.

Wait a Bit.

Flirtation.

"What really constitutes flirtation?" asked the young one of the experienced one of the world.

"Attention without intention," replied the experienced one.—Scraps.

CROCODILE TEARS.

Old Legends That the Brutes Shed Them Over Their Prey.

There was an old story, to which we find constant reference in Elizabethan writers, that crocodiles wept over their prey. No doubt the legend arose because the crocodile possesses largely developed lachrymal glands, but it appears in various amusing forms.

As early as the fourteenth century, in "Mandeville's Travels," we find: "In that contre ben great plentee of Cokadrilles. Theise serpentes slen men, and thei eten hem wepynge."

An odd turn is given to the tale by the narrator of one of Sir John Hawkins' voyages. Whether he was a married man or not we do not know, but he writes: "His nature is ever, when he would have his prey, to cry and sob like a Christian body, to provoke them to come to him, and then he snatched at them! And thereupon came this proverb, that is applied unto women when they weep, Lachrymae crocodili, the meaning whereof is that as the crocodile when he crieth goeth them about most to deceive, so doth a woman most commonly when she weepeth."

In Fuller's "Worthies" there is the added information that "the crocodile's tears are never true save when he is forced where saffron groweth." Shakespeare, Spenser and Dryden allude to this old world fancy.

LOVELY LUCERNE.

The Tourist Center of the "Playground of Europe."

Lucerne, situated in the heart of Switzerland, stands, as it were, enshrined amid the grandest and most picturesque features of Alpine scenery and is, of course, the tourist center par excellence of the "Playground of Europe," three main lines of railway converging on the famous town beside the lake. Nor could nature, indeed, have well done more for "Lovely Lucerne," as all the world acclaims it (declares a writer in London Sketch). On one side stands the Rigi, on the other Pilatus (7,000 feet high), with between them the fair, shimmering expanse of the Lake of the Four Cantons and beyond it again a widespread panorama of the glaciers and snow peaked ranges of the Alps.

From the Rigi (6,000 feet), easily climbed by aid of its famous "mountain train," the view takes in the Bernina, Gothard, Unterwalden and Bernese Alps, stretching far and wide, from the Sentis in the east to the Blumlisalp in the west, and to northward the Jura mountains, the Black forest and the Vosges barrier between Frank and Teuton. From the Rigi some fourteen lakes are visible on a clear day, among them Sempach, by the shores of which was fought the famous battle where the Swiss won their freedom.

Naming a Yacht.

The naming of a book is no holiday task, and authors particularly proud of a title are tolerably sure to discover that it has been already used. But the naming of a yacht is almost a greater perplexity. Plagiarism may in this case result in practical confusion carrying the most awkward consequences, and not all titles to which, in search of variety, recourse has already been had are satisfactory from all points of view. Not long ago, for instance, a very grave British cabinet minister, perhaps wishing for once to be sprightly, called his yacht Flirt. He had not consulted his family, who were, however, quite sure, he thought, to delight in his outburst of gayety. However, his daughters naturally remarked how very disagreeable it would be to go ashore with that label around their hats.

Where Ears Grow Sharp.

A French balloonist has recorded the clearness with which sounds coming from the surface of the ground can be heard at a high altitude. At the height of 5,000 feet the ringing of horses' hoofs on a hard road was clearly audible. At 4,000 feet the splashing sound made by ducks in a pond was heard. The barking of dogs and the crowing of cocks could be heard at seven or eight thousand feet. These sounds penetrated through a white floor of cloud that hid the earth from sight, says Harper's Weekly. In the perfect silence of the air the investigator was startled by what seemed stealthy footsteps close at hand. It was ascertained that this noise was caused by the stretching of the ropes and the yielding of the silk as the balloon continued to expand.

A Synonym.

"Being a printer, Mr. Dash," said the hotel proprietor, "maybe you can advise me. I want to get a sign painted, 'Writing Room Free to Our Patrons,' or something like that."

"I don't like 'patrons,'" said Mr. Dash.

"No? Maybe that doesn't sound just right. What would you suggest?"

"'Victims.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lucky One Way.

Jackson—Your daughter plays on seven instruments? Man, you're lucky. Grouche—I often think so—when I consider the number of instruments there are.—Chicago News.

The Right Solution.

The reason why newly wedded men are called "Benedicts" is because they are supposed on marriage to give up all the bad habits to which they have "benedicted."—Lippincott's.

ANOTHER STEAL UNEARTHED

The stratling discovery was recently made that $20000 had been "borrowed" from the county ditch fund and had been transferred to the revenue fund. This last piece of bold financiering is an exact counterpart with the transfer of the $35000 of ditch funds in 1909 to the revenue fund. Under the pressure of an action in the courts and the presence of a public examiner this $35000 was transferred back to the ditch fund and is now digging the farmer's ditches. This $20000 "loan" has no business anywhere else but in the ditch fund and it is not intended to do anything but dig farmer's ditches. It is raised by taxing the farmers' land, but now the Lord only knows where it will go and to what purpose it will be put. An action at law will be necessary to cause its return to the ditch fund where it should be busy digging ditches. IT IS THIS JUGGLING WITH COUNTY FUNDS AT THE EXPENSE OF THE TAXPAYER WHICH IS THE EXACT CAUSE OF THE TERRIBLE CONDITION OF THE COUNTY FINANCES AND THE HIGH TAXES. It is safe to guess that the commissioners did not ask the opinion of a single farmer whether he wished his $20000 ditch taxes "loaned" to the revenue fund. And still the antis expect the farmers to support them in their honest(?) efforts to conserve the county finances for themselves.

CLEVER BLUFFING.

The clever gentlemen from the county seat- one of them an "employe in a county office and the other holding a brief for the county seat banks which received over $9000 of interest on county bonds and warrants in 1903- are entertaining Pennington county this week with talkfests and joint debates. These apologists for the high taxes and mismanagement in county business utterly forget that they are seeking support from the taxpayers whom their allies have persistently plundered ever since the county was organized. Whatever else may be said about these genial bluffers and their connection with south end interests, everyone is compelled to admire their superb nerve. TO PICK A FELLOW'S POCKET IS BAD ENOUGH, BUT TO ROB HIM OF HIS CLOTHES, HIS INCOME AND EVEN HIS CREDIT, AND THEN TO TRY AND MAKE HIM BELIEVE YOU ARE THE ONLY AND BEST FRIEND HE HAS IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD, IS THE PERFECTION OF DUPLICITY AND THE ACME OF UNADULTERATED NERVE. Yet this is exactly the game these gentlemenly confidence men are trying to work on the taxpayers of Pennington. Next Tuesday will disclose how many of the farmers bit on this gold brick proposition offered by these smooth fellows who are so anxious to have the "facts" —kept quiet.

BEWARE OF SPOOKS

Every voter should refuse to give credit to any eleventh hour story or canard concerning division of the county. There is no doubt but absured and alarming reports will be circulated by the antis at the last moment before election. This is an old practice of theirs and is a cheap dodge to catch the unwary. It frequently works. Anything for or against division which has not been brought to the light by this date is not of value in this fight. Don't be fooled by this worn out scheme of the dishonest worker to deceive the voter.

NO HOPE OFFERED.

To date, not one solitary word or suggestion from the antis has been offered the taxpayers anywhere in the county which might lower his heavy taxes or help arrange for the payment of the ever increasing county debt. The antis working in the north end of the county frankly and openly tell the taxpayers that the county has been running behind from $7000 to $9000 per year since organization. They also state that no hope is held out in the future that anything better can be done. This, too, in spite of the fact that the assessed valuation has increased from $1,254,900 in 1897 to $3, 744,900 in 1909. The taxes and county debt combined have increased 600 per cent in these years while property has increased only 300 per cent. The county is on the verge of bankruptcy and no one denies it. Still the antis refuse to propose any relief nothing but more and more taxes. They state that the reason for the illegal issue of county warrants is that the county simply cannot be run otherwise. This sort of reasoning has gotten other northern county officials into jail in times past and a lesson in this direction might make some careless county officials nearer home cut their garments according to the cloth provided them by law, and not by the diction of some outside ufluence which may fatten on this sort of graft.

The antis profess to have a great regard for the farmers and the other workingmen of the county. On August 18, 1910, the Red Lake Falls Gazette, the official mouth piece of the anti-divisionists, hand the railroad employes and other workingmen of Theif River Falls this low and cowardly insult:

THE HUNDREDS OF HOMELESS SHIFTLESS MEN WHO WORK IN THE MILL AND ON THE RAILROADS, WHO PAY NO TAXES, AND CARE NOTHING FOR EXPENSES -- THEY WILL VOTE LIKE A FLOCK OF SHEEP.

The railway employes in this city are a numerous class of homeowners and home renters, some of them occupying the costliest houses in Thief River Falls. They also own farms or in some cases are the sons of farmers in the country. They constitute the backbone of this community and hold places of trust and honor in the local secret societies, the churches and in social life. They all earn good Salaries, pay heavy taxes and generously suppo t any interest of Thief River Falls. These hundreds of men possess good votes and are going to march to the polls next Tuesday and for ever sink into oblivion the creatures back of the coarse and brutal attack contained in the above lines.

TAXATION WITHOUT RETURNS

Hickory, Wyandotte and black River have been paying road and bridge tax ever since they were organized. For the last six years they have not received one cent for their roads from the county road and bridge fund. As one Wyandotte farmer expressed it. "They have not given us even a scraper full of dirt or a load of popple poles to fill a mud hole in all these years. Red Lake Falls has besn spending our taxes on the roads in their town". All of which is true. These plunderd farmers will have the opportunity of their lives to teach a lesson to all in authority that wrongs will finally have a hearing. Their chance comes next Tuesday.

EXTRAVGANT TOWNS AND SCHOOLS.

The antis tell the farmers that though Red Lake county really has the second highest tax rate in the 85 counties of the state, still it is caused by the high school and town taxes. This means that the farmers should cut down their school expenses and their town taxes if they want lower taxes. JUST THINK OF SHORTENING THE SCHOOL YEAR a month or two, or of doing less road work merely to help out the county tax rates which are so high, This kind of stuff might have fooled some farmers long ago but to day they know the "facts".

WANTS TO BE GUARDIAN

The final and concluding argument of the antis is that the division people don't know what they are talking about. This profound clincher should convince every foolish Pennington county worker that he is wrong and should meekly submit to be guided by the wisdom of the interests who see nothing in division but their own defeat. The county seat leaders and their tools have led the county to the very edge of bankruptcy, the average county rate being 45, the next to the highest in the state. They persist that their leadership is the only safe leadership in the county. They want Pennington county, which pays 60 percent of the total county tax, to submit tamely to the dominion of the minority which pays only 40 percent of the tax. They can well afford to pay $1 when they can collect and spend $2 supplied by Pennington county.

GANG MISLEADS SOUTH END TAXPAYERS

The people of Red Lake Falls and the south end of Red Lake county are a law abiding and industorius people. The division articles have stated this before and repeat it now. The division movement has never attacked the taxpayers in the south, for they are bearing the same heavy burden which Pennington county is, and it is not for their choosing either. These taxpayers are not office seekers nor do they recive any rakeoffs. They want to live and to let live, just as do all other honest citizens. They deplore the heavy burdens of taxation and the hopelessness of the future of Red Lake. The county officials tell them that there is no relief in sight, that taxes must remain high. The division people have a just quarrel, though, with those certain interests persons and commissioners, who have gotten the county into the present deplorable state. They have spent all the taxes the law allowed: they have issued warrants beyond the maximum tax levy, have "borrowed" funds; have carelessly granted contracts for county work to the highest bidder; have recklessly thrown the public funds about until the north end of the county is in a state of rebellion, and the south quietly smoldering. There is absolutely no hope of relief except through division.

Sensitive to Art.

Said the art gallery guide, "Just watch the crowd awhile and see which of their antics impresses you most."

Presently the visitor said, "I think it is the queer attitudes so many of them strike."

"Exactly," said the guide. "They are imitating the poses of the figures in the portraits. Anybody who sits for a portrait is supposed to strike a graceful attitude. All these people who have never been painted realize the grace there is in the poise of the head, the turn of the wrist, the slope of the shoulders. They wish they could look like that, and unconsciously they try it. The men are as bad as the women. They straighten up; they droop; they tilt their heads; they arrange their hands and feet in imitation of the figures they admire most. Sometimes their attempts are very clever; again they are simply ridiculous."—New York Times.

The Waiting Championship.

An Atchison woman who looks for good in everything is glad she married. "It has taught me patience," she said. When a girl she flew into a temper if she had to wait five minutes for something she wanted, but now she waits and waits and waits and says nothing. She waited nine years for her new front porch, six years for her husband to take her to the theater and eleven years for him voluntarily, when there was no company around, to offer her a rocking chair. "This," she said recently to a friend who heard she was sitting up half the night waiting for her husband to come home, "is nothing. I can wait longer and say less about it than any woman who ever lived. I am glad I married; otherwise I could never claim the waiting championship belt."—Atchison Globe.

Work of the Beavers.

The formation of the plateau on which Dubois is built is a matter of great curiosity. Beavers are responsible for it. Long before the white men saw that section of Pennsylvania beavers built a huge dam in a well set valley. Year by year the stream washed rich mud into the dam, and when the body of water was destroyed 640 acres of land flat as a table top were left. On this stands Dubois.—Altoona Tribune.

Extravagant Economy.

CURIOUS COLOR NAMES.

There Was Once an Extensive Group of Flea Shades.

"Puce," which was for a long time the name given an exceedingly popular hue, is when translated from the French simply "flea." It appears that the accidental admission of a flea at a court festivity in France and the subsequent discovery and capture of the uninvited guest gave rise to a host of jokes and anecdotes, and so a new color was jocularly named in the insect's honor. Indeed, there was an extensive group of flea shades—old flea, young flea, flea's foot, lively flea and others. Puce, which was a kind of drab, is still familiar to the reading public through its frequent mention in literature, drama and letters of noted personages in the past.

Few of us, however, know anything of the following colors, each of which was a favorite in its day and as familiar to the speech of fashionable ladies and gentlemen as are the cerise, old rose, etc., of our own time. Here is a little list of them:

Marathon blue, drooping poppy, green of the Oreads, triumph of Aspasia, robe of Venus, bridal blush, canary's tail, merry hunter, flying chaff, dolphin about to die, thundercloud, innocent infant, caterpillar brown, fading hope, Cinderella russet, smoke of Vesuvius, penitent hermit, dissolving pearl, Cupid's feather, captain's glory, beautiful savage, ambushed wild beast, rose of Eden, faithful shepherd, weary traveler's shoe, agitated nymph and dream of the beloved one pink.—Exchange.

SLIPS IN WRITING.

Curious Blunders Made by Reporters and Correspondents.

Every once in awhile some schoolteacher comes forward with a list of ludicrous mistakes made in composition by her infant charges. The following laughable "breaks" were not made by school children, but by newspaper reporters and correspondents. Writing is their business, but they often make ridiculous mistakes in the haste of "catching an edition."

In a story about a mad dog scare on Staten Island the reporter wrote, "Policeman Jones drove the dog into ambush and killed it."

The head of a prominent Wall street house, in telling about the action of the directors of a certain company, was quoted as saying, "It came like a cannon ball out of a clear sky."

The report of the result of a damage suit: "Carmini Carusini was awarded a verdict of $2,000 for injuries received by the jury from the Erie Railroad company."

This from a Brooklyn reporter: "He tried to end his life by suicide."

This one might have been due to an error in typewriting: "The girl was affiliated with typhoid fever."

A correspondent in a small town on Long Island, evidently laboring under great excitement, wired, "Mrs. George K. Blank was the heroine of the holocaust." (She played a garden hose on a burning barn.) In further describing the blaze he said, "The flames swept into furious environment."—New York World.

Word was received here last evening of the death of Mrs. Helen Hoffman, of the town of Excel, at the ripe age of 77 years. She was conceded to be one of the oldest residents of Marshall county.

Judge David F. Simpson.

By the action of the Republican State Convention two new names in the list of Supreme Court judges were placed before the voters for their approval this fall. P. B. Brown, of Luverne, and David F. Simpson of Minneapolis. Both have served long on the District bench and the character of that service has demonstrated that both are qualified by training, character and ability to fill positions on the Supreme bench. Judge Brown being nominated for the term beginning January 1st, 1912, has no opponent. Judge Simpson is nominated with Justice Jaggard for the terms beginning January 1st, 1911, and for those terms the Democratic convention nominated candidates. Because of this Democratic opposition and because of the fact that the voters of this district have not heretofore had occasion to investigate the qualifications of Judge Simpson we take it that our readers will be interested in any facts concerning him.

That the state convention nominated him by acclamation, without a dissenting vote, in itself is a high assurance as to his fitness for the position.

Judge Simpson is 50 years of age, and his life has been spent under conditions favorable to the development of judicial character and ability.

For 21 years his home was at his birthplace, a farm in Dodge county, Wisconsin. By self-denial and effort he obtained a liberal education, graduating from the University of Wisconsin and the Columbia Law School in 1884. Young Simpson then came to Minnesota and engaged at Minneapolis in the practice of his profession.

In 1893 he was appointed city attorney of the city of Minneapolis, which position he held through reappointments for four years. In 1896 he was elected judge of the district court in the 4th judicial district, then consisting of Anoka, Isanti, Wright and Hennepin counties. By two successive reelections he has held this position since.

The fact that his life has been about equally divided between the farm and the city, has made him familiar at first hand with the conditions that exist and the questions that arise both in country and city.

To the training of a lawyer in general practice he added the experience and knowledge to be acquired from representing the public as city attorney, and this has been followed by fourteen years of service on the district bench.

While Judge Simpson has always voted as a Republican, there has never been any partisanship in the discharge of his official duties. This is shown by the facts that he was appointed to his second term as city attorney by the unanimous vote of the Democrats as well as the Republicans, and that two years ago, before becoming a candidate for re-election as District judge substantially all the Democratic lawyers of the District in writing requested Judge Simpson to be a candidate for re-election and pledged him their support.

Not only has he been a nonpartisan politically but he has by his fairness earned and holds the confidence of all classes. He has repeatedly received the endorsement of labor as well as that of the business interests.

In addition to his work as judge he has been interested in many public movements for the general good throughout the state, and at present is president of the Minnesota Academy of Social Sciences, an association devoted to the investigation of all political, social and historical questions affecting the state of Minnesota.

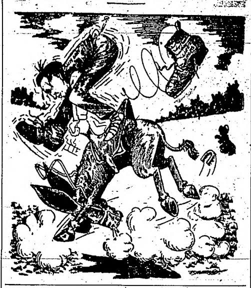
A TROUBLESOME BURR UNDER THE SADDLE.



THE KEY WABBLES.

Those who were waiting for John Lind's key-note speech at Albert Lea, were surprised at the way it wabbled when applied to the democratic party lock. After expunging from it his remarks on national politics and one or two personal flings, his speech would make very fair republican campaign reading.

He said that Senator Clapp was doing as well, if not better than he could do himself if he were in the senate. He said that Governor Eberhart was a good man at heart, and that even Senator Smith was a "prince of a fellow." Then he went on to say that in his opinion county option did not mean prohibition; that if a county should vote out saloons it did not prevent anyone from keeping a grog shop in the cellar, or words to that effect. In fact one would infer from his remarks that the only thing to be gained by county option is to estop the brewers from doing a public business in counties where the local option measure might be adopted. Such a position must be truly encouraging to those who are advocating the option cause.

He went on to tell what a fine man his substitute was, but made no promises as to what he could or would do in case he as elected governor.

Mr. Lind is an able and pleasing speaker, but his Albert Lea address had the stamp upon it of half-heartedness all the way through.

EBERHART TOTES SQUARE.

One of the most praiseworthy things that can be said of Governor Eberhart is that recognizing the fact that he was completing a term of office that the people had placed in the hands of a member of the opposite party, he recognized that choice by continuing in office those men appointed by his predecessor. Had he been of the narrow minded kind and inclined to play personal politics, there would not today be a single one of those appointees on the pay-roll of the state. He was too big and too conscientious a man to follow such a course, hence we find each and every one of them continuing in office until the expiration of their terms. On the other hand what gratitude are those appointees showing the Governor. Do we not find them out spending the time that belongs to the state in their utmost effort to accomplish the governor's defeat? We would simply ask the voters, who is showing the disposition to give you a square deal?

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE U. S. SENATORSHIP.

With all the loud noise being made by the leaders of the Democratic party in launching their candidate for Governor, Mr. Gray, into the field, the republican state committee would caution the republicans of Minnesota to keep a watchful eye on the U. S. senatorship. It will not do to rest easy on the fact that a republican state convention has endorsed Senator M. E. Clapp for re-election, for in the selection of Mr. Gray as the democratic candidate for governor, and his hearty endorsement by the Hon. John Lind, shadows are cast that may portend a defeat of the wish of the people of the state in case of a combination, whereby the next legislature may be controlled by elements antagonistic to Mr. Clapp, or later on to the senior senator. It is always the part of wisdom to keep a careful eye on the enemy and republicans should not be cajoled by soft speech, and promises that are impossibilities in themselves, such as are being made by the opposition in regard to what will be done in regard to the issue now being strenuously urged before the people. Oftentimes deep deception lies behind a flimsy veil, therefore, make it safe by voting straight from governor down.

A GLANCE AT THE PAST.

Those who are rabidly claiming that Governor Eberhart is not and never has been fairly disposed toward temperance legislation, are either doing it through ignorance or with intent to wilfully misrepresent.

As far back as the legislative session of 1903 we find a bill introduced by Mr. Sundberg, numbered 298, which was referred to the Temperance Committee. On April 3rd Senator Cole, as chairman of the Temperance Committee reported the bill for indefinite postponement. Mr. Sundberg moved as a substitute that Senate File No. 298 be placed on General Orders, moved a call of the Senate, and asked for the yeas and nays, resulting in the motion being defeated by a vote of 40 to 14. Among the fourteen voting in favor of the Sundberg motion were Senators Eberhart and E. E. Smith. It is easy to pervert fact, but sometimes in politics, as well as in law, the record is the best evidence.

Reactionary Democracy and Joe Baileyism in state affairs, the continued mulcting of corporations for political plunder and the Tammanyizing of Minnesota, with all its hateful boss rule and corruption.

"EBERHART HAS MADE GOOD."

The above quotation is being made a watchword all over the state. Ever since he assumed the duties of the governorship he has looked upon the entire state as something for which it was his duty to strive for its betterment and advancement.

He has never missed an opportunity to put forth his best endeavor for its material advancement. The great conservation gatherings which he has been personally instrumental in bringing to the cities have focused the gaze of the nation on the resources and advantages of the state to a far greater extent than any move ever before made by an official or other citizen of this state. In matters pertaining to the rights of the laboring class he has ever been found ready and willing to mediate for just and equitable settlements, to such an extent that today the labor organizations are found singing his praises and advocating his cause.

He has added his influence to those who were striving for honest and economical municipal government and the election of the present mayor of St. Paul may, to a certain extent, be attributed to influences emanating from his upright state administration.

He has made good his promise to carry out the meritorious projects of of his predecessor.

He has made good his promise not to play political positions for the purpose of building up a political machine in his own interest; hence we see the Johnson appointees all being allowed to serve out the terms for which they were appointed.

He has made good in his every effort to establish equitable relations between the cities and the rural part of the state and advocated measures that will establish a more general friendly feeling.

He has made good in looking after the state's rights in the way of inheritance tax, mineral taxes, timber preservation and conservation.

He has made good in the way of advocating and encouraging more advanced theories in the way of agriculture and has urged, at all times, the uplifting of farm life.

He has made good in watching with care the conduct of the state's public institutions and urged them to strive to attain the highest point of perfection.

He has made good in caring for the state school lands, and urging a jealous care of the state school fund, which is now and has been the boast of Minnesota and is the envy of every state in the Union.

He has made good as a statesman and carved out for himself a most complimentary reputation among the great men of the country.

He has made good to such an extent that Theodore Roosevelt points to him as one of the most prominent men in the progressive move of the day.

He has made good in the way of gaining the respect and confidence of the people of the state and a desire on their part to see him continued in office for another term to the end that he may be enabled to carry out the many worthy projects which he has inaugurated.

In fact Governor Eberhart has made good in every instance and the people of the state should and will join in the glorious verdict that will be rendered on Nov. 8th by putting his majority so high that they can point to it with the utmost pride.

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

Sam Y. Gordon, the republican candidate for Lieut. Governor opens his campaign tonight in Anoka.

In many respects Mr. Gordon is the most important candidate on the entire ticket. As presiding officer of the senate, the lieutenant governor has more immediate and effective influence in the course of legislation than any other officer named on the state ticket.

There is much controversy around the state at the present time as to the attitude of Gov. Eberhart and Mr. Gray toward County Option. They are splitting hairs in an endeavor to determine which has the advantage of position in the matter by weighing the public declarations of each. And still it cuts but little figure what either has to say in regard to the matter as it is the legislature which must grapple with the problem.

Any temperance legislation must first be considered in committee and Mr. Gordon as president of the senate will have the appointment of that committee, and in his original statement he came out manfully and declared that he would see to it if elected that the temperance committee would be composed of men who would give a county option measure the consideration its importance deserved.

Mr. Gordon is entitled to the full and ardent support of all republicans.

It is claimed that his interests are being overlooked in the campaign. We do not believe it. We know the state committee will give him the fullest assistance, but it is up to the papers throughout the country to come to Mr. Gordon's aid and assist him in waging a successful and vigorous campaign.—Albert Lea Times-Enterprise.

The Republican party asks you to vote for Governor Eberhart on his and its past record, and what it proposes to do in the future.

The opposition asks you to vote for Mr. Gray, not on his record, but because he purloined the democratic badge to wear while he proclaimed principles contrary to the wish of his party.

The Republican party and Mr. Eberhart have accomplished things, while Mr. Gray and the Democratic party seem to be flipping a copper to see which shall say what that party will only promise to do.

Mr. Eberhart is alive to all public issues, while Mr. Gray seems to have lost track of everything but a theory borrowed from a set of men whose leaders have been outside of both parties for years.

You are called to make choice between these men. Voters! Which will it be?

If straws show which way the wind blows, the withdrawal of Mr. Wheaton as the democratic candidate for clerk of the Supreme Court would lead one to believe that the opposition candidates at least have abandoned all hope of success this year.

Remarkable Violin Test.

An ingenious test of old and new violins, in which an instrument of modern make was voted the finest, has been made in Paris. During the performance both critics and performers were in complete darkness, so that it was impossible to see which one of the seven violins selected for the test was being played. Then immediately after being used the instrument was placed under a cloth, and the lights were turned on for a few moments to enable the critics to write down the votes. All the violins were played by two musicians of high standing, and the compositions were written especially for the test. The two violinists tried to bring out the best in each violin, and the result, decided by the votes, was interesting. The modern make of violin led the list with 102 votes, and its nearest rival for favor was a Stradivarius with 96 votes. Other old and famous makes of violins received 82, 85, 83, 82 and 80.—London Telegraph.

Tender Hearted Maid.

Once upon a time there lived a child of gentle mien and manners mild; she was so tender and so kind she wept to see window blind. She feared it might give the window pain to leave it standing in the rain. Her maiden aunty she would beg not to stone raisins, beat an egg, or from potatoes take the eyes. Oh, how this maid did agonize! And when she saw her whipping cream with horor she would sob and scream. The very thought of killing time appeared to her a dreadful crime, and, though to music she inclined, to beat a measure seemed unkind. To see the cowslip by the river with apprehension made her shiver; to cut a page or turn it down would cause a deprecating frown. And when she saw them shivering in the chill autumn air she knitted stockings for the trees because their limbs were bare. Her heart so oft with anguish wrung caused this poor maid to die quite young.—Widow.

On next Monday, Nov. 14, regular passenger, mail and freight service will be inaugurated on the new Soo Line through Bemidji, from Moose Lake to Plummer.

PENNINGTON COUNTY

Wins Out By Majority of Between 250 and 300 Votes.

The result of the election of last Tuesday voices the sentiment of the people of this county reletive to the question of county division in spite of the protests and bitter opposition of a few individual factions who has ever had the interest of their own selves at heart.

The results, which are somewhat incomplete, will undoubtedly result in a victory of between 250 or 300 majority for county division. Some 40 voters in this city alone missed their chance to express themselves on the question of county division on account of the manner it was placed on the ballot.

Our Legal Holidays.

"Constant Reader" is again asking the old question: What are our national holidays? And the answer is the old one—there are none authorized by Congress. Only July 4 and Christmas are the legal holidays in all the states and territories. Even Washington's birthday is not a legal holiday in Mississippi tho having observance there. Thanksgiving is observed all over the country, but it is not legal in some states. Labor day is generally observed and is a legal holiday in all the states except, we believe, North Dakota and Louisiana. Memorial day is a legal holiday throuout the North but not in the south. Some 14 states make Lincoln's birthday (Feb 12) a legal holiday. New year's day is a legal holiday in all states save Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Mississippi. Columbus day is now a legal holiday in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and two or three other states.

An interlocutory injunction restraining the enforcement of the order of the interstate commission for a blanket rate on lemons shipped from the Pacific coast was granted in the United States circuit court at St. Paul. The order of the court, which was brief, enjoined the enforcement of the commission's order until the matter is brought before the new federal commerce court.

Presentation of evidence by the shippers who are opposing the proposed advance in freight rates was concluded before the interstate commerce commission at Chicago with the testimony of Governor Stubbs of Kansas, who asserted his opposition to an increase in rates and his belief, as a practical builder of railroads, that valuations have been placed at too high a point.

It was definitely decided at a conference in New York that the railroads and express companies of the entire country will unite in an attack through the courts on the Mann-Elkins act, which was passed by congress last June at the urgent solicitation of President Taft. The act provides for an interstate commerce court to which railroads and shippers alike may appeal.

Reduced railroad rates became effective Oct. 26 in a large area of the Middle West. After fighting an order of the interstate commerce commission the railroads have decided to make operative rates which the commission held to be reasonable and which were approved recently in a decision of the supreme court.

That the proposed advances in railroad rates which forty-seven roads of the Chicago district are seeking authority to make might not be the only "boost" in the near future was admitted at the rate hearing before the interstate commerce commission at Chicago.

The Illinois Central Railroad company, sued by the state of Illinois for back taxes tentatively placed at $15,000,000, was defeated in a preliminary of the case by a decision of the state supreme court. DEPOSITOR LOSES HIS CASH

Daring Robbery in Gothenburg National Bank at Stockholm—Captain Amundson Explains His Change of Plans Regarding His Exploring Expedition—New Building at University of Copenhagen Dedicated.

✠ ✠ ✠ SWEDEN. ✠ ✠ ✠

A daring robbery took place in the Gothenburg National bank in Stockholm the other day, when one of the bank's well known depositors was relieved of 4,000 crowns in the twinkling of an eye. There were plenty of people in the bank at the time, but before any of them had time to look about the thief had made his way out through the front door and, in spite of the most vigilant search on the part of the detectives, he has not been found. He must have stood in the row of depositors and so skillfully did he take the pocketbook out of a side pocket of the depositor in question that when the latter ran his hand in his pocket to give the money to the cashier it was not there. He had not even felt that it was taken away from him. A number of persons have been arrested, but the police feel almost certain that they have not got hold of the right man. There are some clever pickpockets operating in Berlin, Copenhagen and Stockholm and it is believed that the thief must be an international character.

The watering places and summer resorts in this country this year have been patronized by thousands of people and hotel keepers and others who are interested in looking to the comfort of summer guests have been doing a land office business. ✠ ✠ ✠ NORWAY. ✠ ✠ ✠

The much talked of Amundsen letter has at last been made [illegible]. It will be remembered that not long ago Amundsen's friends fitted him out for a North polar expedition which was to cover a period of at least seven years, but now a letter has followed, dated at Madeira, in which Amundsen explains his determination to investigate the South polar regions instead. The letter reads as follows: "From Madeira the Fram will sail south for the Antarctic regions to participate in the race for the discovery of the South pole. It would at first glance seem peculiar that I have decided to make this sudden change in the route originally mapped out, but I have come to this conclusion after much careful consideration. I have all alone decided to go south instead of north and alone I will stand the responsibilities. A number of the members of the expedition wish to land and return to Norway, but a number again stand ready to make the long journey southward." Together with those who have decided to remain with the expedition Amundsen will start in search of the South pole and will lead the sleigh expedition over the ice fields in person. By February, 1912, Amundsen calculates to be back at Lyttleton, from whence the first communication can be sent. Professor Fritjof Nansen expresses faith in Amundsen's determination to reach the South pole and gives it as his opinion that he will succeed, barring, of course, all accidents. Professor Nansen also approved of Amundsen's decision to change his plans and Amundsen's friends who backed the expedition are now satisfied with the change of programme, although there were many of them who were disappointed when they learned that he was going in the opposite direction.

A cruel murder occurred in Haugesund the other day when a sixteen-year-old boy killed a nineteen-year-old apprentice at a shoemaker shop by running a long knife into his breast, the edge of which pierced the heart. The name of the unfortunate young man who was murdered was Severin Eide. The sixteen-year-old murderer, whose name is Austen Gea, has been placed under arrest and his trial will occur during the latter part of November.

The Studenter Forenings new building was dedicated Oct. 1 in the midst of great ceremonies. The festivities began at 2 o'clock p. m., in the presence of the crown prince, all the members of the faculty, "honoratiores," scores of friends of the institution and hundreds of students. Attorney Harboe delivered the dedicatory address, after which followed addresses by the crown prince, the rector of the university, Professor Carl Salomonsen, and others. In the evening a great reception was held, in which at least 500 students participated. The evening's programme wound up with a popular dance, in which about 200 couples participated. The new students' home is a fine building, consisting of a great library, clubrooms and an assembly hall and has been erected at an expenditure of 350,000 crowns. It has taken years to collect this money, but at last the students of the University of Copenhagen have a home of which they can well feel proud. In the future there will be lectures from some of the leading educators of Europe in this building and it will also be the home for the great male chorus events, which are so popular in the Scandinavian countries.

The loss of an entire cargo of fish occurred Sept. 30 on the North sea, when a schooner was accidentally set on fire. The crew fortunately managed to save themselves, but the vessel sank with all the fish on board. The interesting part of it was that all the fish were alive and there is not a great deal of fears expressed regarding their present condition.

It is said that a thousand colonies of bees are called into service annually in the cucumber greenhouses of Massachusetts to carry the fertilizing pollen from blossom to blossom.

A soil supplied with humus is not only richer and better suited to producing plant growth than one that is not, but holds the moisture which it receives far better and does not pack or bake.

In latitudes where the snowfall is not usually heavy and the winter weather severe it will be better for the lawn grass if the leaves are allowed to lie during the winter as they fall from the trees.

There is no particular connection between the manure spreader and the telephone, yet both have had a whole lot to do with making farm work more endurable and life on the farm more cheery and enjoyable.

Blackleg is a disease which usually affects calves and young stock only. It is incurable by any treatment known at present, but may be prevented by vaccination, a job that should be performed by a competent veterinarian.

There is little excuse that can be made for the type of shiftlessness and poor management so often noticed in the use of a good part of the worth of the winter fire drying out green wood that ought to have been cured and seasoned in the summer sun.

When alkalis are present in the soil of semiarid sections in quantities which will cause trouble when water is applied on the land the fact is often indicated by the presence of the greasewood, while the presence of the creosote bush is usually accepted as evidence that alkali is not present in harmful quantities.

Now that the leaves will soon be off the apple and other fruit trees it is a good idea to make a tour of inspection for the purpose of bolting up any splits in the trunks or big limbs as well as painting over scars left by heavy pruning in order to prevent checking and decay of the exposed wood.

An observing chap down in Rhode Island—we think it is—claims to have noticed that a hen housed near some pigeons gradually laid smaller and smaller eggs until they were but little larger than those of the pigeons. He thinks it is a case of imitation and a bad environment and has decided to confine her near the geese to see if he can get her to reverse the process.

The chief defect with this socialistic idea that all property ought to be divided equally is that if it were thus distributed tonight by tomorrow night there would be a large number of witless, improvident, shiftless chaps who had squandered all they had and would be asking for another distribution or hanging around at their neighbors' back doors, asking for a handout.

To an exceptional degree hog raisers of the country have sustained fewer losses from hog cholera or plague the past year than for a long time past. The situation is doubtless due to the high prices of corn, moderate feeding of immature corn last fall, but perhaps more than all to greater care in the matter of providing sanitary quarters and giving intelligent care, while the prompt inoculation of affected herds with the new hog serum has quite likely headed off epidemics in many localities.

That the Plymouth Rock breed still ranks as the most popular fowl in the United States is shown in the report of the secretary of the American Poultry association for the year 1910, which states that in the poultry shows of that year there were 12,000 entries of Plymouth Rocks, 10,000 Wyandottes and 8,000 Leghorns, with Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons ranking next in order. It is likely that these exhibit entries are fairly representative of the total number of these several varieties kept in the country.

The health of the home during the winter months does not depend half so much on having a competent physician engaged as it does in making the house sweet and clean from cellar to garret—particularly cellar—and letting in just as much of the health giving outside sunshine and fresh air as possible. They are the worst competitors the medical fraternity have yet, and mighty few folks are awake to the fact. There should be abundance of fresh air in all the sleeping rooms at night and a thorough airing out of the living rooms at least once a day.

A TIMELY BULLETIN.

At the close of a season when forest fires have exacted the heaviest toll in forest wealth, buildings and human life in many years the bulletin recently put in print by Chief Forester Graves is very timely, treating, as it does, of forest fires and the best methods of effective control. After stating that, while the conditions can never be eliminated which make forest fires possible, they can be largely prevented and the damage kept down to a very small amount Mr. Graves says:

"A careful supervision of patrol during the dry season is one of the most important measures in organized forest protection. This makes possible carrying out one of the most fundamental principles in fire protection—namely, detecting fires and attacking them in their incipiency." After pointing out the value of lookouts, telephone and signal communication and the several methods of control the forester continues: "The principles of fighting forest fires are essentially the same as those recognized in fighting fires in cities, the following points being of great importance: First, quick arrival at fire; second, an adequate force; third, proper equipment; fourth, a thorough organization of the fighting crew, and, fifth, skill in attacking and fighting the fires. The efficiency of a fire fighting crew depends very largely on its skill and experience, and particularly on the skill and experience of the man directing the work. It is not only a matter of knowing how to assign each man where his work will be most effective, but judgment must be exercised in determining the general method of attack. This will depend upon the character of the forest, the condition of the atmosphere and strength and direction of the wind.

"Surface fires may be extinguished by beating, by throwing loose earth on them and by other methods, but when under headway the heat is so intense that it is impossible to meet it directly. One method under such circumstances is to direct the course of the fire. The attack is made on the sides near the front, separating the forward portion of the fire from the main wings. A part of the crew attacks the forward part, and others run down and extinguish the wings. The front of the fire attacked from the sides is forced gradually and constantly into a narrow path. Usually the front can be directed toward some cleared space, stream or other fire barrier. This plan of giving direction to a fire has often been successfully carried out when the fighting crew has been too small for a direct attack. In case of fires which have gained headway and are moving rapidly back firing is often necessary, but this method should be used only when absolutely necessary. In such cases a point should be selected in front of the fire from which to set the new fire. This must be a point where it is safe to start a back fire, such as a road, fire line, stream or other barrier. The leaves should be ignited at intervals of from five feet to a rod covering a distance not greater than the estimated width of the head of the fire. The small fires meet and form a continuous line, eating back against the wind. A part of the crew is stationed across the road or other break to extinguish small fires started from the back fires. This usually stops the head of the main fire, when the wings can be put out in the ordinary manner." The bulletin concludes with the statement that "a fire is never out until the last spark is extinguished, as often a log or snag will smolder unnoticed after the flames have apparently been consumed, only to break out afresh with a rising wind. After the fire fighting crew has left the ground it is always well to assign at least one man to patrol the edge of the burnt area until it is certain that the fire is entirely out."

CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING.

Now that a sort of birdseye view of the season's crop operations can be had it is clear that the effects of the widely extended midsummer drought were not so serious as anticipated. While the yield of small grains was materially reduced in some sections, not in a couple of decades has grain quality been better than that harvested in the season just closed, while in many sections the yield also was all that could be desired. The great staple, corn, is up to record levels in the matter of yield, while an unusually long ripening season will insure an excellent quality. If seed corn in abundance and of excellent germinating powers is not on hand next spring it will not be chargeable to the weather or Providence, but to carelessness in storing in a damp place. Instead of potatoes going to the two dollar mark, as seemed likely the first week of August, when they were $1.40, the late rains came just in time, and hundreds of fields from which little return was expected yielded bountiful crops, and prices for the producers are now hanging around 50 cents. Whatever earlier promise of field and garden may have been, there will be the usual real grounds for rejoicing at Thanksgiving time, while in a vast majority of households there will be the conventional trimmings of turkey, or fit substitute, and plum pudding and cranberry sauce. As the day is celebrated it should prove a reminder of the blessing of living in a land of prodigal fertility, of favorable climatic conditions and an economic order which makes it possible for the laborer as a general rule to reap a fair return for his season's labors.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

Physical valuations made by the state railroad commissions of the property of railroads in Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Texas show an aggregate overcapitalization of over $400,000,000, according to a statement filed with the interstate commerce commission at Chicago by Attorney Clifford Thorne, representing the live stock interests of Iowa and other Western states.

The sharp decline in wheat prices the last few weeks has resulted in a big "killing" on the part of the leading bears. It is the general belief on the Chicago board of trade that A. J. Lichtstern and the Armour interests have made millions on the short side of the market.

Stanley H. Johnson, assistant freight traffic manager of the Rock Island lines, testified before the interstate commerce commission at Chicago that certain state railroad commissions are causing most of the trouble between the shippers and the railroads.

American packers are invading Western Canada with a view to controlling the trade. Under various names branch companies have been formed and information is to the effect that the companies are owned by Chicago and other American packing concerns.

Freight rates average lower today than ten years ago, according to a statement made at the rate hearing in Chicago by Stanley H. Johnson, assistant freight traffic manager of the Rock Island.

The population of Iowa is 2,224,771 according to the enumeration in the thirteenth census. This is a decrease of 7,082, or .3 per cent, under 2,231,853 in 1900.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

While an accurate estimate of the total fire damage of the past season will never be made enough is known according to the American Forestry Magazine for November, to place the damage to standing timber in round figures at from $175,000,000 to $200,000,000. This year was the worst forest fire season of several decades and the estimate of such an enormous loss is taken to be conservative when it is considered that the government's figures for losses during normal years have been $50,000,000 and upwards.

President Taft and Postmaster General Hitchcock have reached an agreement on the recommendations the president will make to congress regarding a change in the second class postage rates as affecting magazines and other periodicals. Mr. Taft will recommend that the magazines be required to pay the present rate of 1 cent a pound on all reading matter and a much higher rate, to be determined later, on the advertising pages. Newspapers will not be affected by the change.

Dismissing a complaint filed by the Omaha Grain Exchange against the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, alleging unreasonable rates from points in South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa to Omaha as compared with rates from the same points to other markets, the interstate commerce commission announced that competitive conditions do not affect Omaha as they do Minneapolis.

Postal receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30 were $224,128,657.62, an increase of 10 per cent over last year.

Charles J. Fyffe, an actor of distinction more than a quarter of a century ago, is dead at the Edwin Forrest Home for Actors in Philadelphia. He was eighty years old. Mr. Fyffe supported Booth, Barrett and other great tragedians during a period of about forty years.

FIRE THREATENS A TOWN

Ashby in Danger of Destruction by Flames.

Fire broke out in the Walter E. Herald livery barn at Ashby and quickly spread to surrounding buildings.

The livery barn was destroyed, together with Edward T. Risbrudt's large general store, Mr. Risbrudt's machinery warehouse, Andrew O. Stoa's lumber yard and the Farmers' Exchange elevator, the fire wiping out a large section of the business portion of the village.

A terrific wind prevailed and when the fire was at its height an appeal was made to Fergus Falls for assistance. A special train was made up at Barnesville and ran down to Fergus Falls, where the fire apparatus was loaded and ten firemen were aroused and sent to Ashby. The fire was extinguished.

The Fergus Falls firemen on return from Ashby said the fire would have destroyed the entire village had the wind not been blowing away from the main section. Sparks were carried long distances and set fire to haystacks a mile out in the country. The wind died away about the time the fire burned itself out.

VICTORY FOR TWIN CITIES

Interstate Commerce Commission Decides Rate Case.

A substantial victory for the grain men of the Twin Cities in one of the most important of the rate cases now being fought in the courts was gained when the interstate commerce commission dismissed the case of the Omaha Grain Exchange against the Chicago and Northwestern road, alleging unreasonable rates to Omaha as against the Twin Cities. The large productive country that lies in a competitive position, embracing South Dakota, between the Missouri river and the Minnesota state line, is affected by the ruling.

TRAINING SHIP IS ASHORE

Minnesota's Naval Vessel Aground Near Belle Isle.

The training ship Gopher, manned by a number of Minnesota naval reserves, ran hard aground at the head of Belle Isle, opposite Detroit, Mich. She was bound from Duluth to Toledo, where a new engine was to be installed.

A tug and a ferryboat pulled at the ship all day but she refused to stir from her berth in the mud. She is not thought to be in danger. The Gopher was formerly the United States steamship Fern.

ORE SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Heavy Gain This Season Over Same Period of Last Year.

Iron ore shipments for the present season to Nov. 1 from Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors amounted to 28,655,622 gross tons, as compared with 25,690,375 tons for the same period in 1909, a gain for the present season of 2,965,246 gross tons. Shipments were divided as follows: Duluth and Iron Range, 7,764,107; Great Northern, 7,802,254; Duluth, Missabe and Northern, 13,089,262.

Policemen Save Child.

Bewildered in a room full of smoke and her escape almost cut off by flames little Nora Hague of St. Paul, eight years of age, would probably have lost her life in a fire which partly destroyed her home had it not been for quick work on the part of Lieutenant Frank Peterson of the Margaret street station. He and Patrolman Peter Paulson crawled into the burning room and carried her out.

Saves Money, but Loses Life.

Determination to save a small amount of money he had locked in a safe cost the life of Adon Morris of Minneapolis, whose restaurant was destroyed by a gasoline explosion. After reaching the safe through the flames and smoke Morris fought desperately with Matthew Madigan, a fireman, who rushed in to save him. Morris was dragged out after securing his money, but died three hours later.

Attempt to Blow Mine House.

An attempt was made to blow up the engine house at the Fayal mine in Eveleth with dynamite. A heavy charge was exploded, but it had not been properly placed to work as much damage as was intended. Ill feeling on the part of some workmen is supposed to occasioned the attempt. None of the engine crew were seriously hurt, but two of them were seriously shocked.

Minneapolis Candidate Dead.

Al J. Smith of Minneapolis, county attorney of Hennepin county and candidate for re-election to that office on the Republican ticket, is dead at his home in the Mill City. He had been ill for some time with an attack of rheumatism, which affected his heart.

Wound on Head Fatal.

Ira Pratt of Redwood Falls is dead, having been wounded by a bullet in the head several days ago. Berg Hallied, bartender of a North Redwood saloon, has been arrested on complaint of the dead man's brother, charged with assault.

Custodian of Capitol Dead.

Thomas Downs, custodian of the Minnesota state capitol, former Minneapolis alderman and member of the legislature is dead in the Mill City. He had been ill for a week and death was not unexpected.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

There is still a considerable sum left of the big surplus of money the state had on hand last spring. At the close of business for October, according to a statement prepared by State Treasurer E. S. Pettijohn, there was $39,976.48 left in the revenue fund. A year ago at the same date the fund was short nearly a million. The state had begun borrowing money at that time, the loans from banks then aggregating $520,677.92.

On the advice of their legal departments the railroads with headquarters in St. Paul have instructed their agents to ship liquor to all points outside of the Indian reservations. This is in accordance with the authority of the interior department at Washington. Previously the roads refused to make such shipments to points considered in territory adjacent to the reservation.

Divorces are on the increase in Ramsey county, according to the number which are to be taken up during the November term of court. Last November a total of seventy-two applications for divorce were filed, while this year applications have been made for separation by seventy-nine persons, an increase of seven over the corresponding month in 1909.

J. O. Cederburg, deputy public examiner, claims that mineral leases and rights in Minnesota are not taxed as they should be. His criticism applies to big leases and rights where no ore has yet been taken out. He says a number of tracts where the mineral leases and rights were formerly assessed have been dropped.

Residents in Washington who are familiar with the growth of Minnesota in the past ten years are looking for an increase in the state population at least equal to that of the Twin Cities. This will mean a total population of nearly 2,500,000 for the state. Minnesota will thereby gain one and possibly two congressmen.

Sweeping charges of the sale of impure and adulterated drugs in Minnesota were made before the Northwestern Pharmacists' association at Minneapolis by Professor Edwin L. Newcomb, a member of the teaching staff of the college of pharmacy at the state university.

Enrollment figures for October compiled for the school board show the total number of pupils admitted to the St. Paul schools this year to be 25,972, as compared with 25,620 last year, an increase of 352. The average daily attendance is 23,595.

Statewide inspection of weights and measures in Minnesota is advocated by the bureau of standards of the federal department of commerce and labor at Washington.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by creditors of the MacBeth & Gardner Co., proprietors of a packing plant at Mankato.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

While cleaning the walls of the light shaft running from the basement of the Minneapolis courthouse to the jail on the fifth floor, M. E. Dunn, twenty years old, lost his footing on a temporary platform and plunged to the bottom sixty feet below. He struck a pine board, which lay across a pile of piping and rubbish and this saved the man from instant death. His skull was lacerated and his body badly bruised, but he will recover.

Downhearted because his sweetheart refused to marry him Franklin Q. Hunter, electrician for the Tri-State Telephone company, killed himself in front of the home of Miss Rose Kryzer at St. Paul. Hunter killed himself after the girl had broken the engagement. He was twenty-six years old.

May-zhueg-ke-ge-shig, head chief of all the Chippewa Indians, sold his right to allotment No. 1 at the allotting of the pine lands at White Earth on April 24 and the mixed blood Indian who bought it sold the pine for $22,000. The chief was paid $100 as he stood in line.

Ole Christianson of Pulaski, Morrison county, while on a hunting trip a few miles from his home, sat down to rest. His gun slipped to the ground and was accidentally discharged. The full charge entered his thigh and side.

Oscar Swedenborg, aged twenty-three, embalmer for Gleasner & Washburn, Minneapolis undertakers, committed suicide in the rear of the undertaking establishment. No motive is known for his act.

Charles Yergin, manager of the Public Service Operating company of Owatonna, was electrocuted while working behind the switchboard at the lighting plant.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Myrtle Frost, wife of Nathaniel Frost, one of the earliest settlers of Jackson county, is dead at the age of seventy-nine years. Mrs. Frost and her husband reached Jackson county in 1860 and witnessed the Indian massacre.

Nic Fredericks, a well known farmer of Blue Earth county, is dead, aged eighty-two years. Thirteen married sons and daughters, eighty-two grandchildren and twenty great grandchildren survive.

Allen Bughee, a well known veteran of the Civil war, is dead at Fergus Falls after a long illness. He was a member of the Twenty-fifth Wisconsin volunteer infantry.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

FOUND BY ST. PAUL POLICE

Linden (Minn.) Girl and Boy Alleged to Have Been Kidnapped by Italian Laborer.

Locked in a room above the notorious "Bucket of Blood" saloon at St. Paul Malinda Mosher, the sixteen-year-old girl, who, it is alleged, was kidnapped from Linden was found by Sergeant Mattocks and Patrolman Branca, the latter an Italian. In the room with her, the police say, was Sam Russo, an Italian laborer, who was seen to board the train with her at St. Cloud on the morning of Nov. 1. Albert Mosher, twelve years old, was locked in an adjoining room.

The officers raided the place, after breaking down several doors, and placed Russo and Minnie Martin, who runs the rooming house, under arrest. The children also were taken to Central police station.

The room in which Russo and the girl were found showed evidence of a struggle and the police express no doubt that the girl was kept against her will. They think she has been held there for two and a half days.

The father of the children is said to be wealthy and it is believed that the children were taken for purposes of ransom.

Although admitting that she was lured to St. Paul through promises of money, furs and good clothes from the Italian, the girl refuses to say a word against the man and says that she will marry him if she gets a chance. She says that she was willing to come with Russo after he had told her what a good time she would have with him.

ACCUSED OF VIOLATING LAW

State Game Warden After President of Great Northern.

Louis W. Hill of St. Paul, president of the Great Northern Railroad company, and Prince Alexander Friedrich von Hessen and his royal suite are all wanted by H. A. Rider, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, for killing deer out of season.

While the scion of the imperial family of Germany was a guest of Mr. Hill one of the features of his entertainment was a deer hunt on the game preserve at Fair Oaks, the summer home of the Hills.

The law provides that there shall be no shooting of game out of season and that no one shall be allowed to conduct a game preserve without a license. The state game commission has been unable to find any record of a license being taken out by the Hills for conducting a private game preserve.

GIRLS ALLEGED BURGLARS

Said to Have Confessed to Numerous Robberies.

Two Stillwater young women, Clara Jeremy, aged thirteen, daughter of John Jeremy, widely known as "Fisherman John," and Clara Beyl, aged fifteen, daughter of the late Gus Beyl, who was drowned at St. Paul a few years ago, are alleged by Chief of Police Roland F. Barnes to have confessed to him the robbery of nine dwellings in Stillwater in a period of three days, from Oct. 18 to Oct. 21, last.

Although the robbery of only three of the houses was reported to the chief the girls are said to have told of entering six other residences. The recovery of large quantities of jewelry, fine underclothing and household linen has followed.

TWO HUNTERS ARE DROWNED

Minnesota Men Attempt to Ford Lake in Gale and Perish.

George Thompson, aged nineteen, and Joe Myers, aged twenty-six, both single, were drowned while driving their wagon across the narrows of Whitefish lake, forty miles north of Brainerd.

No one saw the accident, but it is presumed the men drove through the treacherous narrows of the lake to save a ten-mile detour of the country. It was very windy and it is supposed that the men lost their bearings, struck deep water and drowned. The horses also were drowned.

Stabbed by Footpads.

Michael J. Malloy, manager of the Red Wing baseball team and one of the stars of the Minny league during the season of 1910, was attacked by two footpads in Chicago and stabbed a half dozen times about the chest and left unconscious on the pavement by his assailants. He is in a very weakened condition from loss of blood, but will recover.

Live Stock Shipments Heavy.

October receipts of live stock at the South St. Paul stock yards show a decided increase throughout the lists amounting in the aggregate to 1,3[illegible] cars more for October, 1910, than for the corresponding month of 1909. The shipments have advanced to nearly the same figure, showing a balance in favor of this year of 1,252 cars.

Notes on Potatoes.

The average yield of potatoes in Minnesota for the ten years, 1899 to 1908, was 86 bushels pea acre.

The average yield of potatoes in the state of Maine for the same ten years was 171 bushels per acre.

There are about ten thousand hills on an acre of potatoes planted in rows 3½ feet apart and 14 inches apart in the row.

One 8-ounce potato in each hill will produce a yield of about 88 bushels per acre.

Many times, one hill will produce six 8-ounce potatoes; which is at the rate of 520 bushels per acre.

The low yields secured, on the average must be due to the failure of a large number of hills to produce.

Some of the things that cause the failure of hills are poor soil, improper preparation, poor seed, irregular planting, poor cultivation, bugs, diseases and poor weather. Many of these conditions are controllable; all of them may be influenced by proper methods of culture.

A hill of potatoes stripped by bugs, or on which the leaves are injured by blight, cannot give a satisfactory yield.

Paris green or some other poison should be used to destroy the bugs before they have had a chance to seriously injure the vines. A few days' delay means the loss of a great many hills.

The most successful growers spray from two to six times each year, with Bordeaux Mixture, to prevent injury to the leaves from blight. Paris green may be mixed with the Bordeaux, thus spraying for bugs and blight at the same time.—A. D. Wilson, Extension Division, University Farm.

A Farmers' Meat Club.

Near Hancock, Minn., twenty farmers have organized themselves into a "Meat Club," through which they are enabled to have fresh meat at all seasons, in hot as well as in cold weather. On Friday of each week a beef is killed and cut up in to twenty pieces; each piece being numbered. Each person takes a different number each week, so that, at the end of twenty weeks, each one has had a whole beef. The beeves are furnished by the members of the club, and the meat is sold at from five to eleven cents per pound; the owner retaining the hide and paying two dollars for the killing and cutting. The killing and delivering is all done at a central point in the neighborhood. The beef is hung up in a cool cellar Friday night and cut up for delivery Saturday morning.

A New Meat Market.

The New Meat Market was formally opened on Monday in the building next south of Wold's jewelry store on La Bree avenue, and the proprietors are Mr. Hilson and Mr. Effenger.

Mr. Hilson needs no introduction to the people of this city, he having been engaged here in the butcher business for a number of years, while Mr. Effenger recently moved here with his family from Kimball, this state, where he had been engaged in the same business, and is a brother of Frank Effenger, one of the popular proprietors of the pool hall in this city.

These gentlemen have installed the best of fixtures and apparatus and will give the people first class accomodations and would be pleased to have anyone call or telephone 277 and give them a trial.

Mr. Otto Paul, Milwaukee, Wis., says Foley's Honey and Tar is still more than the best. He writes us, "All those that bought it think it is the best for cough and colds they ever had and I think it is still more than the best. Our baby had a bad cold and it cured him in one day. Fire Victims Can Sell Their Timber.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7.—Congressman Steenerson has received a reply from Fred Dennet, commissioner of the general land office at Washington, regarding his request that fire sufferers in the fire-stricken area of northern Minnesota be permitted to sell their dead and down timber this winter. The commissioner says that after due application to the chief of the field staff, J. S. Coulter of Duluth all homesteaders on government land who have not proved up may dispose of the damaged timber upon their claims and log it this winter.

This action is taken in accordance with rulings of the department after similar fire episodes in the west, and means that the homesteaders will be enabled to save much of the timber which has been partially destroyed by the flames.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars will be saved, it is estimated, by the sale of burned over timber in the affected districts. Timber cruisers of the big milling companies are making preparations for estimating trips into the burned over country.

Saloons May Go Says Way

C. F. Brents, who is to have charge of the work for the Indian department in Minnesota, has arranged for his headquarters in Bemidji and Special Agent Way, who has been stationed at Akley, will also work out of Bemidji. The government has designated this city as a sub agency and much of its business will be transacted from this point.

Special Agent Way is authority for the statement that the work of the department is to be prosecuted with greater vigor than ever before. He says the Indians will be protected and that unless the liquor dealers and local authorities are able to keep liquor from the Indians the order to close up every saloon in the territory may be expected. -Bemidji Pioneer.

Hindu Juggling.

The Hindu jugglers and acrobats are the most skillful in the world. One of the latest stories told of them is about a performer who went through many wonderful feats perched on the top of a single bamboo stick about fifteen feet in height. The top of the stick was tied to a girdle around his waist, and a leg rest was provided by a cushion a few feet down the pole. Perched on this slender stick he hopped and danced about in the liveliest way, accompanied by the tapping of a drum. It would be considered a skillful feat to walk about with ease on a pair of stilts fifteen feet in height, but this Hindu showed a marvelous power of equilibrium on a single stick. He did other things even more wonderful. For example, he balanced a light stick on his nose and a heavy one on his chin and then threw the heavy one into the air with his head and caught it on the end of a light one. While balancing the two sticks thus, end on end, he made one revolve in one direction and the other in the opposite direction.

FUN THAT FAILED.

Mark Twain's Burlesque of Emerson, Longfellow and Holmes.

IT SHOCKED THE IMMORTALS.

W. D. Howells' Description of the Dismal Effect of the Humorist's Attempt to Make Game of the Dignified Literary Trio at the Boston Dinner.

In his memories of Mark Twain in Harper's W. D. Howells tells of the dinner in Boston when Mark Twain, with fatal effect, made game of Emerson, Longfellow and Holmes:

"He believed he had been particularly fortunate in his notion for the speech of that evening, and he had worked it out in joyous self reliance. It was the notion of three tramps, three deadbeats, visiting a California mining camp and imposing themselves upon the innocent miners as respectively Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and Oliver Wendell Holmes. The humor of the conception must prosper or must fail according to the mood of the hearer, but Clemens felt sure of compelling this to sympathy, and he looked forward to an unparalleled triumph.

"But there were two things that he had not taken into account. One was the species of religious veneration in which these men were held by those nearest them. They were men of extraordinary dignity, of the thing called presence for want of some clearer word, so that no one could well approach them in a personally light or trifling spirit. I do not suppose that anybody more truly valued them or more piously loved them than Clemens himself, but the intoxication of his fancy carried him beyond the bounds of that regard and emboldened him to the other thing which he had not taken into account—namely, the immense hazard of working his fancy out before their faces and expecting them to enter into the delight of it. If neither Emerson nor Longfellow nor Holmes had been there the scheme might possibly have carried, but even this is doubtful.

"I was the hapless president, fulfilling the abhorred function of calling people to their feet and making them speak. When I came to Clemens I introduced him with the cordial admiration I had for him as one of my greatest contributors and dearest friends. Here, I said, in sum, was a humorist who never left you hanging your head for having enjoyed his joke, and then the amazing mistake, the bewildering blunder, the cruel catastrophe was upon us. I believe that after the scope of the burlesque made itself clear there was no one there, including the burlesquer himself, who was not smitten with a desolating dismay. There fell a silence, weighing many tons to the square inch, which deepened from moment to moment and was broken only by the hysterical and blood curdling laughter of a single guest, whose name shall not be handed down to infamy. Nobody knew whether to look at the speaker or down at his plate. I chose my plate as the least affliction, and so I do not know how Clemens looked, except when I stole a glance at him and saw him standing solitary amid his appalled and appalling listeners, with his joke dead on his hands. From a first glance at the great three whom his jest had made its theme, I was aware of Longfellow sitting upright and regarding the humorist with an air of pensive puzzle, of Holmes busily writing on his menu with a well feigned effect of preoccupation, and of Emerson holding his elbows and listening with a sort of Jovian oblivion of this nether world in that lapse of memory which saved him in those later years from so much bother. Clemens must have dragged his joke to the climax and left it there, but I cannot say this from any sense of the fact. Of what happened afterward at the table where the immense, the wholly innocent, the truly unimagined affront was offered, I have no longer the least remembrance. I next remember being in a room of the hotel where Clemens was not to sleep, but to toss in despair and Charles Dudley Warner's saying in the gloom, 'Well, Mark! You're a funny fellow.' It was as well as anything he could have said, but Clemens seemed unable to accept the tribute.

"I stayed the night with him, and the next morning after a haggard breakfast we drove about, and he made some purchases of bric-a-brac for his house in Hartford, with a soul as far away from bric-a-brac as ever the soul of man was. He went home by an early train, and he lost no time in writing back to the three divine personalities which he had so involuntarily seemed to flout. They all wrote back to him, making it as light for him as they could. I have heard that Emerson was a good deal mystified and in his sublime forgetfulness asked, 'Who was this gentleman who appeared to think he had offered him some sort of annoyance?' But I am not sure that this is accurate. What I am sure of is that Longfellow a few days after in his study stopped before a photograph of Clemens and said, 'Ah, he is a wag!' and nothing more. Holmes told me, with deep emotion, such as a brother humorist might well feel, that he had not lost an instant in replying to Clemens' letter and assuring him that there had not been the least offense and entreating him never to think of the matter again. 'He said that he was a fool, but he was God's fool,' Holmes quoted from the letter with a true sense of the pathos and humor of the self abasement."

A New Game.

William is the only son of a pious minister, and, though he is only three and a half years of age, his father considers it quite time he learned properly to observe grace on coming to the table. His parents have more than once endeavored to explain to him the reasons for his so doing, but the little boy regards it as no more than an amusing game.

The other afternoon his older sister made another attempt to interest him in this duty. All were seated at dinner, and on the first words of the grace William's small head dropped in his hands in apparent reverence. His sister, secretly pleased with her success, stole a glance at him, when, to the consternation of the family, he sprang up, shouting gleefully:

"Oh, Sis, you're it! I saw you peep!" —Woman's Home Companion.

Barred Them Out.

A proprietor of a cotton mill in England who is something of a philosopher posted up on the factory gates the following notice:

"No cigars or good looking men admitted!"

When asked for an explanation he said: "I'll tell you. The one will set a flame agoing among my cottons and the other among the girls. I won't admit such inflammable and dangerous things into my establishment at any risk!"

The Ink That Homer Used.

Ink of various hues was used by the ancient Romans, that of a purple tint being considered the exclusive fluid for the execution of all royal writings, as it was distinctively the royal color. It is said that Homer's works were written in letters of gold on a roll 120 feet in length, formed of the intestines of serpents, but we are left in ignorance as to the method of preparing this ink.

Trying to Prove It.

Angry Father—Great Scott! What are you doing, Johnny? Why, confound it, you've got my new watch all to pieces! Johnny—Yes, dad. Teacher told us today that a good watch ought to have at least 170 parts, so I thought I'd see if yours was a good one.

November gets its name from the Latin novem (nine), and was originally the ninth month of the year. This brought Thanksgiving around two months earlier than we have it now, and it became very unpopular. The insurgents, who constituted a majority in the agricultural districts, were bitterly opposed to it. They made two contentions: First, that young turkeys were not old enough to market; second, that crops had not progressed to the point where it was possible to make out whether there was anything to be thankful for or not. In 713 B. C. the storm broke. The insurgents carried Gault, Britannia and 17 other doubtful states, and the Forum immediately assembled and made November the eleventh month of the year.

Making the Hen-House Ready for Winter.

One great essential in getting winter eggs is to make the hens entirely comfortable. The first thing to do is to get busy now and clean out the house thoroughly. Remove every useless article and leave the floors entirely free from anything that will obstruct their free use as a scratching place. Clean down the walls; and, if necessary, whitewash or spray thoroughly. Clean the droppingboards, and make repairs on them and the roosts, so that droppings can be easily removed at all times during the winter. Remove every bit of litter from the floor; and, if it is a dirt floor, take out at least a couple of inches of the old dirt, which should be replaced with clean loam. Make ready a corner in each pen, that can be used as a dusting-box. This can be kept supplied with fine siftings from hard-coal ashes, and will be much enjoyed by the whole flock. If it can be placed where the sun will shine on it, so much the better.

Do not close the windows until the weather gets real cold. Let there be one glass window for each pen of 10x12 or 16 feet, and one muslin-covered frame, with at least 12 square feet of surface for each pen. This may look like a cold proposition, but it will be found the muslin does not make the pen any colder than does the same amount of glass surface, and at the same time gives a steady supply of fresh air. This muslin will help greatly in keeping the poultry-house dry during the winter, and will make it much more comfortable than a closely shut up house can ever be.

For colder nights, have a curtain of cheap sheeting running across the front of the roosting space. This does not need to fit tightly, except at the top, and may hang out some inches from the dropping-boards, giving plenty of room for the fowls to pass to and from the roosts. On the very coldest of nights the roosting-place will be found to be entirely comfortable and in the morning the hens will come out ready to scratch and hustle for their breakfast.

Above all things, be sure to keep a good six inches of perfectly dry straw on the floor, for scratching material. There can be very little comfort for the hen in scratching through a pile of dirty, damp litter that has been on the floor for a month or more.

CHILDREN'S DAY IN STOCKHOLM

Mme. Nicholsen, Wife of Norway's Former Premier Dead—Infantile Paralysis in Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

Children's day in Stockholm this year proved to be a grand success in every particular. There were moving picture shows in many sections of the city; there were floral booths, where lots of money was taken in for the poor children's cause, and there were benefit performances at the theaters, where such stars as Rosa Gruenberg, Klericker, the tenor, and Berentz, Barklind and others participated. There was the children's parade, which was an imposing spectacle, when it is taken into consideration that there were not less than 10,000 of them in line. There were races at Idrotts park and everywhere money was being collected through some attraction or another for the good cause. The net receipts of the day amounted to over 75,000 crowns. In the evening there was a great display of fireworks and there was a benefit performance at every theater in the city. Business men evinced an unusual interest in the day and contributed large sums of money, some of them practically donating their day's sales to the good cause. The idea of making "Children's day" a permanent institution has struck a popular chord in Stockholm and it is safe to state that it will be celebrated in a very hearty manner every year for now on.

D. A. Sunden, author of the much dreaded Sunden's grammar, which has kept thousands of students on the anxious seat for years, is dead. D. A. Sunden attained an age of eighty-two years. He was born in Transtrand, Dalarne, where his father was a minister. He became an instructor in philosophy and the Swedish language in Vesteras, but resigned from this position in 1898. Most Swedes who have gone to school within the last thirty years have made the acquaintance of Sunden's grammar, which enjoys the distinction in Sweden of being the hardest textbook on the list for students to tackle. In 1885-92 Sunden compiled his dictionary of the Swedish language, which has been in much use all over the country ever since.

The Swedes use more than 50,000,000 crowns worth of shoes every year. But the peculiar part of it is that all the shoe factories put together do not manufacture more than about 26,000,000 crowns worth. The rest are imported from Germany. The shoe industry in Sweden has increased at a remarkable rate during the past ten years and there are still great opportunities open. The shoe factories are all loaded down with orders and cannot begin to fill half of them. A number of new factories have started recently in various parts of the country and within a short time Sweden will be manufacturing 30,000,000 crowns worth of shoes every year.

Sweden is using a great deal of American tobacco and the other day there arrived in the steamer Queen Olga a consignment of American tobacco which is valued at 1,700,000 crowns. It took 210 freight cars to transport the tobacco from Kentucky to New York. The American tobacco companies now have the best of the tobacco business in Sweden and are doing an enormous business.

Count Carl von Puckler, Germany's minister to Stockholm, has tendered his resignation and will retire from diplomatic life entirely and spend the remainder of his days in Germany. During the three years that he has occupied the Stockholm post he has made many friends and has been on an extremely sympathetic footing with the officials of the Swedish court.

The great church meeting which was held in Stockholm during the early part of the month was well attended and some of the country's leading clergymen were present and delivered addresses and participated in the discussions. Owing to the illness of the archbishop the great meeting was presided over by Bishop Billing.

On the afternoon of Oct. 9 a party of three persons in a sailboat attempted to cross Munparud bay, west of Carlscrona, and were drowned. Those who perished were Captain C. J. Johanson, about sixty years old; Madame Anna Swenson and the twelve-year-old son of Inspector Lindberg of Karlshall.

Count E. A. Ehrensvard, the newly appointed Swedish minister to Washington, will not assume charge of his duties at the American capital before New Year's. He is at present in Sweden, where he is attending to his business affairs prior to his departure for America.

The Swedish swimmer, Harald Julin, captured first prize at a swimming contest in Sunderland, Eng., and now holds the championship for fast swimming in that country. Julin also won first prize at a swimming contest in Berlin last summer.

NORWAY.

Madame Benny Michelsen, wife of Norway's famous ex-premier, is dead. She was a woman of rare attainment and came from an old patrician Bergenser family. She was popular in Stockholm, too, where she resided for about two years prior to the crisis of 1898. She was a very diplomatic woman and was perhaps one of the best informed women on politics in the country. Madame Michelsen took a deep interest in her husband's affairs and during the time that he was prime minister it is believed that Mr. Michelsen relied as much on his wife's advice as he did on that of his closest political advisers. At any rate there are some people who profess to believe that Madame Benny Michelsen had a great deal to do with the bringing about of a peaceable dissolution with Sweden in 1905. She also was the one who conducted the negotiations in Stockholm regarding the disposition of the much talked of "ministershotellet" in Stockholm.

Rev. Peter Olson resigned from his congregation in Lynge the other day. At the same time he resigned from the ministry, all on the ground that he had been preaching to empty seats. Rev. Olsen became so disgusted with the indifference of his congregation that he decided to leave congregation, ministry and all. There is a religious indifference throughout Norway that is noteworthy and does not augur well for the future. The ministry is writing about the matter and discussing it at their meetings and many of them openly threaten to do the same as Rev. Olsen has done. The matter of church indifference is, according to reports, worse in Sweden.

Sweden and Denmark will be largely represented at the great Christiania fair, to be held in 1914. The two countries together will occupy a space of 5,200 quadratic meters each on the exposition grounds and have been accorded the privilege of making the first selection. Sweden will have an exceptionally large art exhibition and will also have a considerable industrial exhibit.

Norway is exporting large consignments of building stone and stone adapted for streets to the Argentine Republic. The other day the steamer Artemis departed from Christiania with a cargo of 7,500 tons of building stone for Buenos Ayres. Large quantities of Norwegian herring, lumber and berries are also sent to Argentina.

The Swedish aviator, Baron Cederstrom, made a successful flight with his aeroplane in Christiania Oct. 14, which was witnessed by thousands of people. He sailed around Hovedon and back again over Ekeberg. Weather permitting Baron Cederstrom will give another aerial exhibition during the latter part of this month.

The body of Johan Sverdrup has been removed to Our Savior's cemetery in Christiania, where a monument will be erected over his burial place. The removal of the body was conducted in the presence of two sons of the deceased.

Rev. F. M. Ericksen has been appointed pastor of the Valerengen's church in Christiania and as he is a strong Socialist leader it is believed that he will be chosen as storthing's representative from that district.

The Socialists in Christiania were defeated in the election Oct. 11. They elected one man and showed some gains in certain precincts.

DENMARK.

In Copenhagen at present there are a great many persons who are suffering from infantile paralysis. Several persons have died and there are as many as a hundred cases on record now. It seems that old as well as young persons are susceptible to the disease and physicians stand absolutely puzzled. They are not even certain that it is the so called American disease known as infantile paralysis, but its symptoms have been so similar that the newspapers have given the disease this name.

Two railway employes, who received decorations of honor for saving the lives of some men who were about to be run over in a tunnel by a railway train some time ago, have been disowned as members of the Social-Democratic society on the ground that said society does not approve of any of its members carrying any decorations of honor for meritorious service or anything else. The two men in question, however, decided to leave the society and kept the decorations awarded them.

While conducting some excavations at Charlottenlund the other day some workmen came across skeletons, which, according to experts who have since examined them, date back to 1807. It is believed that the skeletons are those of Englishmen who were killed there in the aforementioned year. At that time it was not considered such a terrible thing to kill a few people in Denmark and it is very possible that the skeletons are those of murdered Englishmen.

Swedish emigrants are arriving at Copenhagen in large numbers. There are now over 35,000 Swedes in Denmark and in Copenhagen there are 18,000. It is, however, a class of emigrants that are welcomed with open arms in Denmark and the tone of the Danish papers seems very friendly to the Swedes.

Editor Heyman, who publishes the Middagen, was arrested the other day and sentenced to pay a fine of 1,000 crowns or imprisonment for 100 days for publishing a questionable story entitled "[illegible]."

An Island of Black Cats.

"The Island of Black Cats" is a name often applied to Chatham Island, one of the Galapagos. It is in the Pacific ocean, about 730 miles west of the coast of Ecuador. It is overrun with black cats, and cats of no other color are seen there. These animals live in the crevices of the lava foundation near the coast and subsist by catching fish and crabs instead of rats and mice. Other animals found on this island are horses, cattle, dogs, goats and chickens, all of which are perfectly wild.

A Startling Reply.

"It is very detrimental to the conversation if you play bridge while talking. A gentleman once entered a room and walked up to a lady who was deeply engrossed in correcting her score. 'How d'ye do, Mrs. So-and-so?' he exclaimed. 'I have just met your children with the nurse. By the way, how many have you got?'

"The lady looked up and replied, 'Sixteen above and twenty-four below.'"—From "The Confessions of a Bridge Player," by Quilon.

How Stupid!

Mrs. Jones (reading)—It says here that a nautical mile is 6,080 feet and a statute mile is only 5,280 feet. Why is that? I thought a mile was a mile.

Mr Jones (without looking up from his paper)—Well, a mile is a mile, but a statute mile is measured on dry land, while a nautical mile is measured on the water, and you know most things swell when in water.

Mrs. Jones (resuming her reading)—Why, of course! How stupid!—Ladies' Home Journal.

How It Looked.

"Why don't you eat your caviare?" asked the host.

Queen Elizabeth's Amulet.

Queen Elizabeth during her last illness wore around her neck a charm made of gold which had been bequeathed to her by an old woman in Wales, who declared that so long as the queen wore it she would never be ill. The amulet, as was generally the case, proved of no avail, and Elizabeth, notwithstanding her faith in the charm, not only sickened, but died. During the plague in London people wore amulets to keep off the dread destroyer. Amulets of arsenic were worn near the heart. Quills of quicksilver were hung around the neck and also the powder of toads.

No Swelling at All.

"Do you mean that there was no swell even in midocean?" asked her companion, who had never crossed at all.

"No, no swelling at all," was the reply.—New York Press.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Three suits have been begun in the United States court at Fergus Falls against the Canadian Northern Railway company for damages sustained by the recent fires in the northern part of the state. The suits are brought by William A. Smith, Frank B. Emery and William Haugen. The complaints allege that the Canadian Northern operates between Warroad and Baudette and that it negligently permitted dry grass, weeds and other combustible materials to accumulate on its right of way; that these grasses and weeds took fire from sparks from the passing engines and the fire spread and destroyed the property of the plaintiffs, who own adjacent farms.

The Minneapolis ordinance preventing establishment of amusements or industries within proscribed limits has been upheld by the state supreme court. Theophil Basting, trustee for Matilda A. Basting, sought to restrain Minneapolis officials from enforcing an ordinance passed in 1907 to such end. The supreme court held the ordinance valid and its enforcement necessary upon the part of officials.

Grace Hayward Gatts has been awarded a verdict in the Hennepin county district court for $51,200.47 in her suit against Richard J. Ferris, her former husband, whom she accused of defrauding her of the profits from the play "Graustark, or Love Behind the Throne," the plaintiff's dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's novel, "Graustark."

The state board of control has placed an order for 9,000 barrels of flour to be used in state institutions the remainder of the fiscal year, nine months. This is the biggest order ever given at one time by the board and was given to escape the possible higher price in flour, if the supposed shortage of grain affects the milling.

Railroads of the Northwest brought more cars of live stock to South St. Paul one day last week than on any previous day in 1910, the records at the chute house at the stockyards showing an actual count of 610 cars, with a total stock run of 1,226 cattle, 4,950 hogs and 23,940 sheep.

The Duluth and Northern Minnesota road, the policy of which is controlled by the big lumber firm of Alger, Smith & Co., will, it is stated on good authority, extend to Grand Marais, the capital of Cook county, and a harbor of refuge on Lake Superior 104 miles east of Duluth.

Work has begun on a new ten-story hotel at Minneapolis. The building will cost $1,500,000.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Thomas Francis Clark, fifteen-months-old son of T. M. Clark of Minneapolis, fell down between the chimney and wall of his home, a distance of three stories, escaped with a few minor scratches and had to be chopped out at the bottom of the wall by the firemen.

Edward Shields, who was scalped by the Winnipeg flyer near Sauk Rapids, died twenty-four hours later from the effects of his injuries without having regained consciousness. Besides the scalp wound the man had also suffered a concussion of the brain.

Hugo Hyme of Mankato, a carpenter in the employ of the Ambursen Hydraulic Construction company, was instantly killed by falling from the top of the high power dam now in course of construction at Rapidam, on the Blue Earth river.

Captain John J. O'Connell, who disappeared mysteriously from Fort Snelling a month ago, is alleged to be short between $1,200 and $1,500 in his accounts with the government.

Mathilda, four-year-old daughter of Peter Kvenbo of Akeley, while playing around the burning rubbish pile of a neighbor got her skirts in the flames and burned to death.

Margaret Lavalle, aged twenty, who swallowed several poisonous tablets at St. Paul Oct. 12, following a quarrel with a man of her acquaintance, is dead.

Mrs. John Klies, landlady of the Gardner House at Hastings, died as a result of burns from a gasoline explosion. Mrs. Kleis was forty-seven years old.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

L. B. Paine of Duluth, acting captain of the Cornell (N. Y.) freshman foot ball team, died at the Cornell infirmary from supposed internal injuries received while playing football. The boy was injured on Oct. 15 in a practice scrimmage, but the attending physician did not think the injury dangerous.

William Crawford Bailey, one of the men who helped to make Minneapolis the leading lumber market of the country, is dead, aged seventy-four years. Mr. Bailey was a direct descendant from the family of Thomas and Joseph Dudley, both early governors of Massachusetts.

Alex Dalziell, one of the oldest pioneers of Traverse county, died at his home in the town of Taylor. Mr. Dalziell had been one of the leading men in that county in public affairs.

Mrs. Marie McKenney, wife of Charles R. McKenney, enrolling clerk of the national house of representatives, is dead at the family home at North St. Paul.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

FOR KILLING STEPCHILDREN

Le Sueur County Farmer Declared Guilty by Jury and Sentenced to Be Hanged.

Less than four hours after a jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree Martin O'Malley, a prosperous farmer of Deroynane township, Le Sueur county, tried at Le Sueur Center for the poisoning of his stepchildren, Frances Bergel, aged five, and Mary Bergel, aged three years, was sentenced by Judge P. W. Morrison in the district court to be hanged.

Counsel for O'Malley immediately asked for a transcript of the evidence and it is understood that an appeal for reduction of sentence to life imprisonment will be made. O'Malley appeared unmoved when sentenced. His demeanor throughout the trial has given the impression that he is not mentally sound. When taken to jail O'Malley remarked:

"I did not do it, but I will tell who did."

Evidence, however, was strong against the prisoner and included a signed confession, which O'Malley, in testifying at his trial, contended was wrung from him by threats of lynching. O'Malley will be confined in the county jail for ninety days, pending the fixing of the date of hanging by the governor.

O'Malley was arrested on July 16, a month after his marriage to Mrs. Bergel, a widow of Montgomery, with three children, the oldest of whom was six years old. O'Malley was a widower with eight children. Soon afterward two of the Bergel children died and were buried. A Le Sueur Center doctor diagnosed their disease as spinal meningitis, but suspicion was aroused, the bodies exhumed and the stomachs sent to the state university for examination. The chemists' report was that the children had been poisoned by arsenic which was found in their livers and stomachs.

FIGHT DUEL TO THE DEATH

One Man Killed and the Other Seriously Wounded.

Peter Redovitch, twenty-six years old, is dead, and Sam Katich, twenty-seven years old, is seriously wounded, the result of a pistol duel between the two at Hibbing. The men had been chums and bunkmates at the Leetonia mining location near Hibbing for the past three years. They arrived in town apparently the best of friends, but shortly got into a dispute and agreed to settle their differences by fighting a duel.

They purchased two revolvers and together walked down to the Missabe railroad tracks, a quarter of a mile outside the city limits. They separated and without further ceremony began firing simultaneously, and both were hit at the same time, a bullet from Katich's revolver striking Redovitch in the mouth, killing him instantly, while Katich was struck in the arm, shattering the elbow.

After standing over his victim for a minute to determine that he was dead, Katich walked into town, where he gave himself up and told of the duel.

Both are Montenegrins and apparently above the average in intelligence.

DUCK HUNTERS ARE DROWNED

Body of One Found Near an Overturned Boat.

Charles Shiep and Stanley Wells, Litchfield young men, were drowned in Lake Washington while hunting ducks. The men had been missing two days and the body of Wells was found in the lake near the overturned boat, standing upright in the mud with the head but a few inches below the surface of the water.

Searching parties are scouring the lake for the body of Shiep.

JOHNSON DESIGN REJECTED

Members of Minnesota Commission Take Action.

The John A. Johnson memorial design, which has aroused such widespread public agitation, has been rejected by the commission at a meeting held at the St. Paul institute.

In executive session the commission threshed the matter out for three hours. There was no hesitation whatever in refusing to accept the sculptor's preliminary offering.

Overby Held for Murder.

Christian K. Overby was arraigned before Justice J. A. Flynn at Caledonia for the alleged killing of Thorne O. Hemey at Houston on Oct. 23. He waived examination and was held to answer for the charge of murder in the second degree, to appear before the district court at its next general term in Houston county.

Auto Driver Is Indicted.

Dr. A. H. Goodrich, the St. Paul dentist who ran down and killed Mrs. Caroline Wilson, while driving his automobile in Minneapolis, was indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree.

RANGERS BLAME RAILROAD

Official Inquiry Into Recent Destructive Forest Fires.

General C. C. Andrews of the state forestry board has received a comprehensive report from George S. Chapin and Frank Curtis of Roosevelt, two forest rangers whom the board ordered to investigate the forest fires which destroyed Baudette and Spooner and devastated the surrounding country.

The report places the blame for the fires on the Canadian Northern railroad and the carelessness of many locomotive engineers. It says that the country through which the fires traveled is wild and sparsely settled; that the fires in many places did not entirely destroy the trees, merely scorching them enough to kill them. These trees will fall this winter, according to the rangers, and make conditions as dangerous next year as they were this if the debris is not cleaned up. The dry weather of the summer also is responsible to a great extent for the fires, "for at no time," according to the report, "was there water enough to put out the fires in the peat bogs, which were burning frequently to a depth of two feet."

DULUTH CRIPPLE BURNED

Bed Against Door Forms Death Trap When Fire Occurs.

W. B. Wood, a cripple with both legs cut off at the knees, was burned to death in a fire at Duluth which broke out in a house where he roomed. The blaze is thought to have been started by a pipe which he was smoking.

Wood set his own death trap. When he got into his room he pushed the head of the bed in front of the door to prevent any one robbing him or disturbing him in the night.

The body was found against the door with the hand vainly striving to reach the doorknob. Suffocated by the dense smoke he had fallen back unconscious and was enveloped by the flames.

FOUR KILLED IN WRECK

Stockmen Meet Death Near Montevideo, Minn.

Four stockmen from Montana and South Dakota were killed, two injured so seriously that there is slight chance of their recovery and an engineer and fireman badly crippled one mile west of Montevideo when section 4 of the Milwaukee road's eastbound passenger No. 6 from Butte, Mont., crashed into the rear end of the stock train as it was endeavoring to back on the siding to let the passenger by. The dead are:

William B. Hill, Miles City, Mont.; Thomas Hill, Miles City, Mont.; George Leper, Hosmer, S. D.; J. D. Dechtee, Greenway, S. D.

George Rahseld, Aberdeen, S. D., and William Downing, Miles City, Mont., are not expected to live.

SUFFRAGISTS OF MINNESOTA

Hold a Rather Lively Convention at Minneapolis.

Resembling the disorder and word battles attending a good, hot political convention the Minnesota suffragist convention at Minneapolis for the first time in its history ran up against the troubles of mere political man when an attempt was made to endorse James Gray as the gubernatorial candidate, while friends of Governor Eberhart stood steadfastly by him and the resolutions as originally presented were adopted. No action was taken in regard to endorsing either candidate for governor.

FALLS INTO A BURNING BOG

St. Paul Child Probably Fatally Injured.

The Van Buren street burning bog at St. Paul has claimed another victim. He is little Anton Derk, four years old, and he probably was fatally burned when he fell from a fence on the edge and rolled down the steep bank into the fire. The bog has been burning since early in the spring and it is known that four other people have been injured in three months.

No Witness to Tragedy on Farm.

When Peter Johnson, a farmer residing near Pipestone, went over to the adjoining farm where his son, James Johnson, lived alone, to see why his son had not called at his home, he was horrified to find the young man lying dead with his head and shoulders crushed beneath a heavy hayrack. It is believed that Johnson was attempting to lift the hayrack from the wagon trucks and that it fell, striking him and breaking his neck.

St. Paul Merchant Dead.

Channing Seabury, for fifty years a business man of St. Paul, died suddenly in that city of heart disease. Mr. Seabury was sixty-nine years of age. He was the senior member of the grocery firm of Seabury & Co., and was head of the commission which controlled the building of Minnesota's new capitol.

Mill City Shows Big Gain.

Minneapolis on April 1, 1910, had a population of 301,408, according to the census bureau at Washington. It gained 48.7 per cent, or 98,690, in ten years. As a result the Mill City moves from nineteenth to seventeenth place, passing Jersey City and Louisville.

HE ASKED THE TIME.

A Question and Answer That Changed a Clerk's Position.

How many clerks measure up to the standard of the young bookkeeper in this story from Human Life? He was employed in the passenger department of a great railroad. It was just a little before lunch. Some of the clerks were putting on their coats, some leaving for the washroom, some consulting the clock; some were still busy. Suddenly the "boss" entered. He glanced about him and then approached the young bookkeeper.

"What time is it?" he asked.

The young man kept on figuring, and the boss put a hand on his desk and repeated the question.

Instantly the other looked up, surprised to see the chief at his elbow.

"I beg your pardon, were you speaking to me?" he asked.

"Merely inquired the time—that was all," said the other.

The bookkeeper glanced about the room, located the office clock and said, "It's ten minutes to 12."

"Thank you," said the general manager and vice president, and strolled out.

That conversation cost the young bookkeeper his place—in the passenger department—and put him under a higher officer "on the firing line." Nine years later he was assistant general manager, and while still in the thirties became a general manager, full fledged.

RAPID STORY WRITING.

A Boast That Dumas Made, a Wager and the Result.

For rapidity of composition the prize among novelists must be awarded to Alexandre Dumas, who died with over 3,000 books to his credit, in all of which he had some share. According to Mr. Arthur F. Davidson, one of his biographers, he often declared that when once he had mapped out in his mind the scheme of a novel or a play the work was practically accomplished, since the mere writing of it presented no difficulty and could be performed as fast as the pen could travel. Some one disputed this; the result was a wager.

Dumas had in his head the plan of the "Chevalier de la Maison Rouge," of which he had not yet written a word, and he made a bet of 100 louis that he would write the first volume of the novel in seventy-two hours. The volume was to be formed by seventy-five large foolscap pages, each page containing forty-five lines and each line fifty letters. In sixty-six hours Dumas had done the work in his fair, flowing hand, disfigured by no erasions—and the bet was won with six hours to spare.—London Chronicle.

Danced In Court.

An unusual scene was once witnessed in a French law court, the civil tribunal at Nantes. The proprietor of a local theater had engaged a young lady dancer, whose performances at rehearsals did not come up to his expectations. He therefore would not let her appear, and the fair dancer took action against him for breach of contract. The defendant alleged that she had not even learned the first steps of her art, and, there being a plain issue, the judge determined to decide for himself. A space was accordingly forthwith cleared on the floor of the court, and in these unusual surroundings the young lady duly went through her steps and pirouettings. In the result the judge felt justified in certifying that she was quite an expert dancer and decided the case in her favor. Henceforth she advertised herself as the only dancer in the country with a legal certificate of proficiency.—London Tit-Bits.

Poets and Dogs.

Poets have always loved dogs. In this poets and boys resemble each other. Walter Savage Landor was devoted to his dog Giallo and Byron's epitaph upon his dog Boatswain we all remember:

To mark a friend's remains these stones arise.
I never had but one, and there he lies.

Cowper was very fond of his dog, and we know how Charles Lamb, who was a prose poet, loved his Dash and how Mrs. Browning appreciated the little Flush to whom she indited a poem. The Earl of Shaftesbury kept his noble collie in his library with him at all times and Samuel Rogers always walked out with his dog. Scott declined an invitation to dinner when his dog died, saying that he could not accept on account of the "loss of an old friend."—St. James' Gazette.

The Cassowary.

The cassowary is a natural boxer and the only bird, except perhaps the ostrich, whose method of defense and attack in warfare is the forward kick—straight out, like a man—is calculated to arouse envy in the breast of any save a crack athlete. Another peculiarity of this bird is his ability to perform a sort of war dance over any particular object, a bit of rag, a stick or a stone, that attracts his attention.

Why He Is Called "Pussyfoot".

W. E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson special agent of the government who has figured so much in the inforcement of the Indian treaty of 1854 forbidding the sale of liquor on certain lands in the northern part of the state, refuses to comment on how he acquired his feline nickname. A friend who became quite intimately acquainted with Johnson during his Indian territory campaign volunteered the story which follows:

"After four officers had been killed in Johnson's efforts to clean up the federal law violators, the special officer received a message, the sender threatening to shoot him on sight. The message was signed and came from one of the worst gun men in that section. The day following the receipts of the letter Johnson changed his makeup and rode into the town where the would-be bad man owned a poolroom. Walking up to the bar he perceived that his man was armed with two grim looking 30 caliber Colts. Johnson purchased some drinks and in a short time persuaded the proprietor to step down to the end of the bar and shake a game of dice. The moment the man was off his guard Johnson sneaked up behind him, took both pistols from their holsters and arrested him with his own firearms.

"Next day the Muskogee Phoenix published a long story of the arrest referring to Johnson's cattle movements in crawling up to his man. Since then he has always been known in the southern section of the United States as Pussyfoot Johnson".—Minneapolis Tribune.

To Stop Sale of Cheap Literature.

There will be much good come out of the decision of Pres. Louis W. Hill to stop the sale on his trains of cheap literature, the Jesse James style of novels, blood and thunder, yellow stuff that is likely to be sought after by the boys and young men that travel. Much of the literature presented to the traveling public on trains has been a disgrace to civilization and we are pleased that President Hill has taken a stand for cleaner and better reading matter.

AUCTION STORIES

Unexpected Prizes That Have Been Won by Bidders.

A GREAT BARGAIN IN EGGS.

How Two Specimens of the Great Auk Species Were Bought For $9 and Sold For $2,000—An Old Picture That Had a Valuable Lining.

"Of course I have met with a good many interesting experiences during my career as an auctioneer," relates Henry Stevens in a London magazine, "but the most striking of them all occurred, I think, in connection with a great auk's egg.

"Some years ago a young fellow rode over to an obscure furniture sale at the country village in the hope of securing a bargain to help in furnishing a home in view of his intended marriage. And a bargain he did get, though not of the kind he originally thought of.

"One of the lots put up for sale was a basketful of shells, eggs and other ornaments which had attracted the attention of an old lady who happened to be present. Just as they were on the point of being knocked down to her the young man was struck by the appearance of two large eggs in the basket, and, thinking he might as well have them as curiosities, he started to bid, with the result that the lot was knocked down to him for $9.

"Upon examining the eggs it occurred to him that he might be able to make a profit on their sale. He accordingly wrapped them up in a handkerchief and brought them to me.

"As soon as they had washed off the grime which covered them I discovered that they were eggs of no less a bird than the great auk, and as a result of their sale a few weeks later I handed the astute young bargain hunter a check for $2,000.

"At another sale which I conducted there was an old picture so covered with dirt and grime that it was almost impossible to see what it was like. This was hung upon the wall in a prominent position, but did not apparently find favor in the eyes of any of the dealers who were present. No reserve price was placed upon this picture, which had been put into the sale by a local pawnbroker to whom it had been pledged and not redeemed.

"In spite of every effort on the part of the auctioneer, it was eventually knocked down to a young man who had looked into the sale quite casually in order to waste half an hour during which he had to wait for a train. Taking a great fancy to the frame, which was of oak, blackened with age, he hazarded a bid of $5, at which price it was knocked down to him without any competition.

"As he did not want the picture, he asked the auctioneer whether he would mind trying to get a bid for it if he cut it out of the frame, and, being answered in the affirmative, he took out his knife and neatly cut through the canvas all round the edge.

"Imagine the astonishment of himself and all present when, hidden behind the canvas, he discovered five bills for $100 each. Evidently the picture had been used to conceal the savings of some previous owner, who had died without disclosing the secret and whose hard won fortune thus came into the hands of a total stranger.

"I should quote as very interesting a sale at Rutland Gate, where there were only the remains of the furniture, a firm having been allowed to take what they chose to their rooms. It was accordingly after the nature of a rummage sale, but in one cupboard which had been overlooked were what the junior clerk described as three silver cups. The auctioneer was sitting in his office when a gentleman drove up in a hansom cab, anxious to speak about these cups, for which he offered no less than $1,500.

"The auctioneer was so much surprised that he thought his visitor must have some reason for this high bid, and he wisely determined not to take the first offer he received. 'Oh, I don't think they will take that,' he said, and with this answer the gentleman had to be content. An expert was called on to examine the so called cups, and he discovered them to be in reality sixteenth century chalices, for which he himself made an offer of $2,400. The three cups were subsequently sold for $5,750, but it was only by the slightest chance that they had not gone for a mere song.

"I shall never forget an incident which occurred in connection with the sale of some valuable shells. The bidding for one large shell in particular was much more brisk than I had anticipated, but the reason for this became apparent when at last it was knocked down to a gentleman in a very excited condition, who directly it was handed to him flung it upon the ground and trampled it to atoms, at the same time shouting out in a loud voice that now that one was destroyed he possessed the only specimen in the world."

LIQUOR ORDER ENFORCED

ST. PAUL Historical Society

Absolute Prohibition to Be Enforced by Interior Department's Orders.

Agent Johnson's Orders, Recently Suspended, to Be Revived.

The following order sent out from the Interior Department at Washington to the Minneapolis Journal of Nov. 12 explains the recent developments in the now notorious Indian Liquor order:

Absolute prohibition against the introduction of liquor in the Indian country in Minnesota is to be enforced by the interior department, if it is possible to do so. Violaters of the law are to be prosecuted and the department proposes to fight for the enforcement of the law in all the courts.

Commissioner Valentine, by direction of Secretary Ballinger, has notified Special Agent Johnson and his assistants to prevent the introduction of liquor in the Indian country by railroad through express companies or otherwise, and to present evidence of the violation of the law to the United States district attorney for prosecution of the offender.

It will be recalled that Special Agent Johnson several days ago directed his assistants to seize liquor going into the Indian country by express, but that his order was afterward suspended. Now, however, that order has been revived by special direction of the secretary of the interior.

The radical order enforcing prohibition in the Indian country, is a complete reversal of the understanding here of the department's intention in the matter of enforcement of the law. Following the conference between the department officials and the delegation from Moorhead and Cass Lake, department officials made it known that the saloons in these and other towns would be permitted to run, with the understanding that they would co operate with the government officials in keeping liquor from the Indians.

No attempt was to be made to prevent white men from getting liquor, but the municipal authorities and the saloonkeepers in the Indian country were to be held strictly to account for any violation of the law.

The fact that such an understanding had been reached was published broadcast, and it resulted in a storm of protests to President Taft and to Secretary Ballinger. These protests, together with reports from Special Agent Johnson and Inspector McLaughlin, stated that the only way to keep liquor from the Indians was to prevent its introduction in the Indian country, although the municipal authorities were doing their best to see that the law against the sale of liquor to Indians was being enforced.

If there is to be any modification of this policy it will have to be brought by congressional action. The treaties under which the interior department is operating say that prohibition shall be in force unless otherwise ordered by congress and that body will be given an opportunity to change the law in the coming session, which begins a month hence.

Several treaties also provide that the president may permit the introduction and sale of liquor by executive order, but it is stated here that he is not likely to take that action, but will leave the whole question to congress for disposition.

Both Secretary Ballinger and Commissioner Valentine made emphatic statements today of the government's intention to enforce the law.

"The law is to be enforced," said Secretary Ballinger. "The details of enforcing it are necessarily in the hands of the commissioner of Indian affairs. As the enforcement of the law entails prosecutions it would hardly be proper for me to discuss the matter at length at this time."

Commissioner Valentine made this statement:

"You may make this statement as emphatically as you can express it. We are going to enforce the law. The law prohibits the introduction of liquor into a certain section of Minnesota. If we find that the law is being violated, the evidence obtained will be submitted to the prosecuting officers. That is about all I care to say on the subject at this time."

The explanation of the apparently vacillating attitude of the interior department is explained here in a political way.

In all the turmoil over this question both the liquor and anti-liquor interest have tried to make political capital out of the situation. Secretary Ballinger and Commissioner Valentine have declared they are not siding with either party, but have had in mind simply the keeping of liquor from the Indians. But, during the recent campaign, any radical step that might have been taken would have looked as if the department was siding with the anti saloon people, and the announcement of the department's intention of enforcing the law in the way indicated today, was delayed until after Tuesday's election.

Now that political capital cannot be made out of it, the department is going ahead with the enforcement of the laws as indicated in Secretary Ballingers' letter to the commissioner in October, in which he directs his subordinate to inforce the law, "without discrimination as to localities."

Commissioner Valentine said today that with the strict enforcement of the order against the introduction of liquor into the Indian country it will not be necessary to proceed against the saloons.

"If the saloons cannot get liquor certainly they cannot sell it, and the whole traffic will be stopped," said the commissioner.

Department officials were vague on the question whether they would attempt to put the breweries in the Indian country out of business.

Much of northern Minnesota, comprising about one-sixth of the state, is made completly "dry" by the latest order of W. E. Johnson, agent of the bureau of Indian affairs at Washington. Railroad and express companies operating through that district are refusing all liquor for shipments. Notices to this effect were mailed yesterday from the railroad and express offices to agents wholesale liquor dealers, brewers and others.

No person is allowed to take liquor within the region designated.

The district includes Becker, Hubbard, and Cass counties and parts of Crow Wing, Atkin, Pine, Carlton, St. Louis, Itasca, Koochiching, Beltrami, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Polk, Norman, Clay, Ottertail and Wadena counties. The chief cities and towns affected are Brainerd, Hibbing, Ada, Bemidji, Halley, Lake Park, Detroit, Frazee, Perham, Cass Lake, Grand Rapids, Park Rapids, and Walker.

F. W. Zollman, attorney for the Minnesota Brewers' association, when asked what he thought of the new order said: "I do not know yet what we shall do. I am going to Washington in the near future to have a conference on the whole question with Secretary Ballinger. I wish to consider every phase carefully before taking any action."

Indians Progressive.

The annual report given out by the Carlisle indian school at Carlisle, Penn., shows that institution as progressing rapidly and the attendance increasing every year at a marked pace.

It will be noticed by the report that out of the 514 graduates, who are living 300 are successfully engaged in vacational activities away from the reservation, and have been forever severed from federal supervision. No longer content to be wards they have speedily become citizens. The 200 engaged at work on the reservations are leaders among their people, and examples of probity and industry.

The report goes on to show that that institution combined with the thriftiness of the students can be and is conducted on a most economic basis, that for every dollar of government appropriations students produce nearly a dollar in return.

Parents Should Warn Children.

We would advise parents to warn their children from going on the ice on the river, as a safeguard from what often results. The ice is yet unsafe in many places and children will often venture in the most dangerous places and break through the ice and that is what causes so many drownings at this time of the year. Older boys, who ought to know better, will "dare" younger boys to step out on ice that is weak, and if the child falls in, the boy on shore will be helpless at the moment to render assistance and the child drowns. Boys, keep away from the river until you are certain the ice is frozen thick enough to carry a horse.

Both Speedy And Effective

This indicates the action of Foley Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, Battle Creek Mich. illustrates: "I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backaches and severe shooting pains with annoying urinary irregularities. The steady use of Foley Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my former troubles. They have my highest recommendation." Sold by all Druggists.

Thanksgiving Proclamation Issued By President

By the President of the United States of America—A Proclamation:

This year of 1910 is drawing to a close. The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress, show vigorous national growth and the health and prosperous well being of our communities throughout this land and in our possessions beyond the seas.

These blessings have not descended upon us in restricted measure, but overflow and abound. They are the blessings and bounty of God.

We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world. In all essential matters our relations with other peoples are harmonious, with an evergrowing reality of friendliness and depth of recognition of mutual dependence. It is especially to be noted that during the past year great progress has been achieved in the cause of arbitration and the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

Now, therefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wise custom of the civil magistrate since the first settlements in this land and with the rule established from the foundation of this government do appoint Thursday, Nov. 24, 1910, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, enjoining the people upon that day to meet in their churches for the praise of Almighty God and to return heartfelt thanks to Him for all His goodness and loving kindness.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this fifth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten, and of the independence of the United States the hundred thirty-fifth.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

DEATH'S HEAVY HAND

John Walker Eastman died Wednesday morning at the age of 37 years, 9 months and 11 days.

His death came almost without warning, following a very brief illness from typhoid, with complications from the lungs and heart.

For fourteen years he was editor and proprietor of the News and during these eventful years in the history of this city he has been a potent factor in its progress and prosperity. His earthy work is closed and the record made. It is a record of honest, fearless endeavor, aggressive for the principles he belived —clean and honorable.

He was ever loyal to his City and institutions and to her Citizens and to his friends he was always helpful and faithful.

Knowing him, and appreciating his sincerity of purpose, his high ideals of public duties and private character, his courage and independence, we feel that he has taken up his new life with the same love for his fellows and faith in the ultimate purpose of the Great Father, and is not afraid.

Mr. Eastman was born in Anoka Minn., Feb. 5, 1873, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Eastman pioneer settlers. He was married to Miss Baraba Browning of Anoka in June, 1898, and she has the deepest sympathy of the entire community in her great bereavement. Not So Large.

The conclusion reached by the canvassing board, which met Tuesday at Red Lake Falls shows the majority for county division not as large as was expected in the first place.

No More Darkness

Unless the old proverb "the best laid pl ans of men and mice gang oft' agleo" happens to come true in this instance the city will no more be compelled to remain in darkness.

The scarcity of water in the Red and Thief Rivers has not been so marked in history as it has this fall and the early freezing helped materially in backing it up.

The work of getting things in readiness for running the dynamos by steam was completed the latter part of the week, and henceforth the big mill engines will produce the power.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

Financial circles are manifesting a lively interest in a series of questions which have just been put to all the great railway systems of the country in a circular issued by the interstate commerce commission on account of the proposed advance in freight rates. If all the questions are answered the public will get an opportunity to learn about all the commissions and profits on security issues which have been exacted from the railroads by banking houses which float these securities from time to time.

Freight and passenger rates in the West were discussed at length by some of the leading railroad magnates of the West, who met at St. Paul. It is generally believed the question of advancing rates were considered, but none of the conferees would divulge any information on it.

The value of the United States export trade to China has been sinking gradually in the last five years, but the end of the present year is expected to show the lowest total for many years, according to a bulletin from the department of commerce and labor.

The population of the state of Alabama is 2,138,093. This is an increase of 309,296, or 16.9 per cent, over 1,828,697 in 1900.

The Cause of High Prices

Students of economical conditions of this and other countries are beginning to realize more than ever that the welfare of business instutions and individuals depends at present more upon the increase of agricultural products than upon any other single development. A census bulletin soon to be issued by the federal authorites, according to a Washington report, will show that although the present valuation of all the farms in the United States is about $50,000,000 as compared with a valuation of $20,500,000 ten years ago, there has been little if any increase in the total acreage. This in a word explains to a large extent the present high cost of living. Foodstuffs have been gradually ascending in price, and although recently there has been some reaction, the level is still much higher than it should be when measured by the average income.

Agriculture is the basis of industry, fiance, and commerce. If our farm products are abundant the induvidual prospers; and if individual thrives, business will expand. Our agricultural products have been growing larger year after year, due mostly to better farming methods, but not in proportion to the demand from a rapidly increasing population. There has been renewed interest taken in the agricultural industry the past year, and speculation in western farming lands has been on a large scale. It is consequently hoped that next year will see a largely increased acreage, larger crops, and lower prices.

HUMAN SACRIFICE.

It Appears to Be an Ordinary Occurrence in Liberia.

Of certain aspects of Liberia Captain Braithwaite Wallis writes in the Geographical Journal: "The population of Jane is large, almost untouched by the so called civilization on the coast. It is typical of western Africa. The men have fine physiques and very black skins, and most of them plait their hair, which is worn about six inches to eight inches long. They appeared to be well armed with rifles, guns, spears and swords. While in this town I saw even slaves, who were held by the leg in wooden stocks. They had been in that position for some months. One of them told me through the interpreter that he had been kept thus for two years. He was a man of poor physique, and a purchaser could not therefore be easily found for him.

"That night, while asleep in my little hut in the town, I was awakened by hearing a gentle chorus of women's voices singing some yards away. After a few minutes the chorus ceased and a single voice began, in Bande, an African song. The voice was soft and melodious, and the tune was fascinating and weird and harmonized with the wild environment to which it belonged. After a few lines the other singers joined, and the result was most attractive and beautiful, containing as it did such delicate harmony with excellent taste. During the years I have been in Africa I do not remember having heard anything quite like this singing before, and I shall never forget it. The interpreter told me the next morning that the song was to the good spirits, asking them to guard and protect the white man and his followers on their journey."

Another incident: "A few yards outside the first stockade I noticed an empty grave, the newly turned earth of which showed it had been recently dug. This grave, it appeared, had been used for the purpose of burying a man alive as a sacrifice, and I was informed in a most matter of fact way and as if the occurrence was quite an ordinary one that the unfortunate victim's body had lately been exhumed to obtain certain portions for the purpose of manufacturing fetish medicines."

THE LION'S HEAD.

Origin of Its Use as a Decoration For Fountains.

"The sun glows in the Lion," says Seneca, meaning that when the sun enters the sign of Leo at the summer solstice the highest temperature of the year is experienced. We may say, on the other hand, that the Babylonian astrologers thousands of years ago placed the king of beasts, the fiery and ferocious lion, in that part of the zodiac which the sun enters at the summer solstice.

The constellation which is called Leo bears very little resemblance to the outline of a lion. Probably the name was originally applied only to its principal star, Regulus. It is to this constellation in the zodiac that we owe the countless water spewing lions' heads which are found in ancient and modern fountains, because in the latter part of July, while the sun is still in the sign of Leo, the Nile is at its highest level.

Furthermore, the lion's head with widely open jaws is in itself very suitable for the mouth of a fountain or waterspout. This decorative motif was employed universally throughout the Greco-Roman world. Lions' heads are found used in this way at Athens, Ephesus, Olympia, Agrigentum and countless other places. It is not quite certain that this employment of the lion's head originated in Egypt. Curtius describes an Assyrian bas-relief from Balran showing water streaming from a ring shaped vessel. A lion stands as if on guard on either side of the fountain.

The water clock, which was used in judicial proceedings, had the form of a lion and a name which means the guardian of the stream. Hence the idea of protection may have been the origin of the association of lions with fountains, and this custom may have originated in Asia.—Scientific American.

The Rival Roses.

Perhaps the two most famous flowers in history are associated with the Temple gardens, for, according to tradition, it was in the gardens in 1430 that the two leaders plucked the red and white roses which became the badges of the rival houses of Lancaster and York. The gardens were for centuries famous for their roses. Among their floral curiosities one finds in the accounts for 1700 an expenditure on two perimic box trees and wonders what a perimic tree is until one remembers the custom of trimming box trees in a symmetrical or "perimetric" fashion.—London Chronicle.

Beginning at the Foundation.

The progressive people of the parish were anxious to reconstruct and adorn the ancient church, and the senior warden wrote to the bishop about it.

"There are but two things to be done in St. Gregory's," wrote the bishop in reply. "Let the sexton keep it clean and the parson keep it full."—Youth's Companion.

When France Washed In Holland.

In the sixteenth century clothes were sent from all parts of France to be washed in Holland, where the water of the canals was supposed to have special cleansing properties. The cost of transport was about ten times greater in those days than at present.

A MARY ANDERSON POSE.

Falling Robes That Resulted In a Most Graceful Attitude.

Harry Furniss tells a story of Mary Anderson's initial season in London. "Her first appearance was as Perdita," he says in the Strand Magazine, "and I thought her the most charming figure I had ever seen on the stage.

"She kindly posed for me after a performance at the Lyceum, and when she asked me the position I would like her to take I mentioned one she had assumed in the second act, in which she stood holding the drapery in her hand, which was resting on her hip. 'Do you really mean that?' she asked. 'Yes; that attitude struck me as the most artistic of all your graceful movements.' 'Well,' she said, 'as a matter of fact, my robes had come unfastened and were falling off, and I was holding them on, but I shall now purposely make them slip in the same way.' And that pose was repeated nightly during the run of the play.

"On the first night at the Lyceum she was moved in the great scene by the rough, picturesque lover, played on that occasion by handsome Jack Barnes. As she rose to her feet it was perceived, to the delight of us all, but to the discomfiture of the actors, that Mr. Barnes' wig had caught in the shoulder clasp of Perdita and rose from his head with her and furthermore refused to be detached for some time.

"Even this popular actress could not escape the chaff of the gods. She was playing Galatea in Sir W. S. Gilbert's play—and a charming Galatea she made—when, in the critical scene in which she appeals to the gods to enable her to bring Pygmalion and Cynisca together again, the actress held up her arms and, unconsciously looking up at the gallery, cried out:

"'The gods will help me!'

"To Miss Anderson's surprise, all the occupants of the gallery, as if by prearrangement, called out with one voice, 'We will!'"

THE BIGGEST SMUGGLERS.

They Are Not the Society People Who Get the Advertising.

"Society people are supposed to be the biggest offenders," said a treasury official, "but it is simply that they get more publicity. We had a Harlem butcher who smuggled in $1,000 worth of jewels and then got trapped because he took an orange from the table after lunch. He put the orange in his pocket, and the bulge drew the inspector's attention. He was searched and the jewels found.

"There was, too," he continued reminiscently, "a noted musician who goes back and forth every year to Paris and who bought a Stradivarius violin one year. He sold his old one and brought the famous Strad back in his own case, covered as it was with custom stamps. Naturally the inspectors passed it, but the musician boasted of his violin, and a dealer who went to see it heard the story of its purchase and notified us.

"There was a man from Naples who came in with his shirt fairly lined with jewels, and there are the Syrians who smuggle in laces and handkerchiefs, and there are the manufacturers who declare half or three-quarters in and smuggle the rest.

"There are automobile men who bring their machines in with faked certificates of value, and there are buyers of cheap jewelry who bring in great cases of plated brooches and bracelets, etc., with magnificent sapphires, rubies and even diamonds set in with bits of glass, and these necessitate weeks of work for the jewel experts in the appraiser's stores."—Washington Times.

It Looked Suspicious.

"As I was coming out of a store this evening I saw an amusing sight," said a shopper. "A light rain was falling, and as the woman in front of me stepped out she opened her umbrella. Out of it fell a jeweled hatpin, a pair of gloves and two men's handkerchiefs. On its face it seemed like a case of shoplifting, but as she gathered up the articles the woman said:

"'Well, if here isn't Mary's emerald hatpin and the gloves I was looking for last week and two of George's best handkerchiefs. I never thought of looking in the umbrellas for them.'"—New York Sun.

Got His Reply.

A funny man indulged in a practical joke recently. He put an advertisement in a paper for a wife and requested each candidate to inclose her carte de visite. It was a foolish thing to do, but one of the candidates served him out very well by sending the following letter: "Sir—I do not inclose my carte, for, though there is some authority for putting a cart before a horse, I know of none for putting one before an ass."

Aching Voids.

"Brooks," said Rivers, "that's the second time I've heard you use the phrase 'aching void.' I wish you would tell me how a void can ache."

"Well," said Brooks, reflecting a moment, "not to speak of a hollow tooth, don't you sometimes have the headache?"—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Sagg—She sho' is! Bless goodness, she's done got a husband dat's skeered to death of her!—Woman's Home Companion.

AUCTION STORIES

Unexpected Prizes That Have Been Won by Bidders.

A GREAT BARGAIN IN EGGS.

How Two Specimens of the Great Auk Species Were Bought For $9 and Sold For $2,000—An Old Picture That Had a Valuable Lining.

"Of course I have met with a good many interesting experiences during my career as an auctioneer," relates Henry Stevens in a London magazine, "but the most striking of them all occurred, I think, in connection with a great auk's egg.

"Some years ago a young fellow rode over to an obscure furniture sale at the country village in the hope of securing a bargain to help in furnishing a home in view of his intended marriage. And a bargain he did get, though not of the kind he originally thought of.

"One of the lots put up for sale was a basketful of shells, eggs and other ornaments which had attracted the attention of an old lady who happened to be present. Just as they were on the point of being knocked down to her the young man was struck by the appearance of two large eggs in the basket, and, thinking he might as well have them as curiosities, he started to bid, with the result that the lot was knocked down to him for $9.

"Upon examining the eggs it occurred to him that he might be able to make a profit on their sale. He accordingly wrapped them up in a handkerchief and brought them to me.

"As soon as they had washed off the grime which covered them I discovered that they were eggs of no less a bird than the great auk, and as a result of their sale a few weeks later I handed the astute young bargain hunter a check for $2,000.

"At another sale which I conducted there was an old picture so covered with dirt and grime that it was almost impossible to see what it was like. This was hung upon the wall in a prominent position, but it did not apparently find favor in the eyes of any of the dealers who were present. No reserve price was placed upon this picture, which had been put into the sale by a local pawnbroker to whom it had been pledged and not redeemed.

"In spite of every effort on the part of the auctioneer, it was eventually knocked down to a young man who had looked into the sale quite casually in order to waste half an hour during which he had to wait for a train. Taking a great fancy to the frame, which was of oak, blackened with age, he hazarded a bid of $5, at which price it was knocked down to him without any competition.

"As he did not want the picture, he asked the auctioneer whether he would mind trying to get a bid for it if he cut it out of the frame, and, being answered in the affirmative, he took out his knife and neatly cut through the canvas all round the edge.

"Imagine the astonishment of himself and all present when, hidden behind the canvas, he discovered five bills for $100 each. Evidently the picture had been used to conceal the savings of some previous owner, who had died without disclosing the secret and whose hard won fortune thus came into the hands of a total stranger.

"I should quote as very interesting a sale at Rutland Gate, where there were only the remains of the furniture, a firm having been allowed to take what they chose to their rooms. It was accordingly after the nature of a rummage sale, but in one cupboard which had been overlooked were what the junior clerk described as three silver cups. The auctioneer was sitting in his office when a gentleman drove up in a hansom cab, anxious to speak about these cups, for which he offered no less than $1,500.

"The auctioneer was so much surprised that he thought his visitor must have some reason for this high bid, and he wisely determined not to take the first offer he received. 'Oh, I don't think they will take that,' he said, and with this answer the gentleman had to be content. An expert was called on to examine the so called cups, and he discovered them to be in reality sixteenth century chalices, for which he himself made an offer of $2,100. The three cups were subsequently sold for $5,750, but it was only by the slightest chance that they had not gone for a mere song.

"I shall never forget an incident which occurred in connection with the sale of some valuable shells. The bidding for one large shell in particular was much more brisk than I had anticipated, but the reason for this became apparent when at last it was knocked down to a gentleman in a very excited condition, who directly it was handed to him flung it upon the ground and trampled it to atoms, at the same time shouting out in a loud voice that now that one was destroyed he possessed the only specimen in the world."

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Published Every Thursday.

FOREIGN RATES:
Including the Dominion of Canada and Mexico........................$1.50 Per Year

It is the painful duty of the News to announce the death of its owner, John W. Eastman, which sad event occured at one o'clock Wednesday morning.

The deceased suffered an attack of typhoid fever some ten days ago and this was aggrivated by bronchial troubles. Despite skilled medical attendance and the anxious care of loved ones he failed to withstand the ravages of the disease. His condition had not been considered as serious until within the last two or three days, when he fell into a semi-conscious state and passed peacefully away as stated above.

Mr. Eastman came to Thief River Falls fourteen years ago and has owned and edited the News since that time. Professionally, he was a leader in his chosen work and was always a sturdy advocate of the good name and welfare of this city and the surrounding country. Personally, he had a close circle of intimate friends, to whom his sudden death is an irretrievable loss. The public generally will mourn his departure as they would the loss of a warm companion, who was ever ready to raise his voice and use his pen when the name or fame of his beloved home city was at stake.

Words fail to express the force and keennes of the shock of his death to his relatives and to those immediately associated with him in a business sense.

School Notes

There will be no shcool on Friday following Thanksgiving. School was held on election day, a legal holiday, in order that pupils and teachers might have the Friday named.

Janitor Bailey of the Knox is ill. His place will be supplied for a few days bp George Rice.

The state high school inspector's report has just been received. It shows that there are 207 high schools in the state, of which the Thief River Falls high school ranks 23 rd in size,--including the three large cities; leaving these out the local ranks 13 th. Hastings and Anoka had the exact enrollment which Thief River had last year, 1907.

With the exception of Hallock, Thief River Falls has a school tax rate lower than the average in the state, and the lowest in the northwestern part of the state. The local rates are as follows: Thief River Falls (not including the state one mill tax) 19.5 mills; Warren, 28.6; Argyle, 26.3; Stephen, 23.8; Hallock, 19.1; Badger, 33.7; Roseau, 24; Warroad, 50.7; Crookston, 23; East Grand Forks, 47; McIntosh, 26; Fosston 29.7; Bagley, 28; Bemidji, 20; Cass Lake, 37. Bemidji has exactly the same number of pupils as Thief River Falls, but had twice the assessed valuation to maintain them, and still has the higher rate. Crookston has twice the property of Thief River Falls and half again as many pupils and a higher rate. These comparisons speak for themselves as to the local management.

There are 54 normal training departments in the high schools of the state. Last year Crookston had the largest enrollment, 55, and Thief River Falls came next with 33. The others enroll from 8 to 15.

The increase of pupils in the local schools is disclosed by a comparative report of the attendance by years. October 1907 had 863 present, the October report for 1908 shows a total of 904 pupils enrolled in the schools for that month; the same month in 1909 shows 983 enrolled; October of 1910 has 1025 in attendance. New pupils are entering school almost every day this month.

Miss. Burton is organizing a mixed glee club in the high school This club will meet at the home of the club members for weekly practice, the hours of work being from 7:30 to 9. This will afford those who desire some voice training an opportunity for this culture This is in addition to the regular Music in High.

It is not easy for the taxpayers to realize, that the money put into the education of the people comes back in increased taxpaying property within fifteen years and continues a permanent income thereafter. A child, who gets little out of the public schools will pay little or no tax through life, and will be liable to make a personal draft on the taxpayers later as a pauper, a criminal or a weakling.

It is suggested that the public wait the completion of the Lincoln school before visiting it. A pleasing surprise is in store for the citizens, when they view the beauty, the convenience, and modern and complete equipment of this handsome school building. It is fast nearing completion and will ready for dedication in a few weeks.

INCREASED POSTAGE RATES

Those newspapers which are endorsing the Hitchcock plan of charging increased postage for the advertising of the magazines are only digging their own graves, for they will be the next sufferers. Administration proposes to save at the spigot, by advocating increased postage on second class mail matter and a reduction on first class mail from two cents to one cent for letters, while wasting millions at the bunghole. But very few people have been benefitted by the decreased postage on foreign letters from five cents to two cents, the banks and importers being the principal beneficiaries of the decrease. Comparatively few Americans write to or receive letters from foreign lands, so the reduction in postage is for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many who pay by far the most federal taxes in proportion to their incomes.

To increase the postage on magazines will be likely to force the ten cent magazine to increase the price to fifteen cents per copy, and the yearly subscription price will be increased from one dollar to one dollar and fifty cents or even to two dollars. There again those with small incomes will suffer.

While millions are annually wasted on extravagant appropriations for the army and navy; for expensive commissions for this thing and that thing; for highly paid attorneys to investigate corporations by the Department of Justice, which has never resulted in one malefactor of great wealth being put behind the bars, the saving by the Post Office Department is a mere flea bite. The evolution of the determination to make the postal service self-sustaining should be a lesson to newspaper proprietors.

The so-called reform began by refusing the cent a pound rate to what the department's 1908 report called "trashy publications, issued principally for advertising purposes." There was not much objection to that; but it was just the opening wedge, for the next reform was to curtail the issue of sample copies; the next, to cut off the giving of credit for subscriptions. Now the next "reform" is to charge extra rates for the advertising pages of magazines.

All this, however, is but preliminary to the real object, which is to cut off the free postage on the weekly newspapers within the county where published, and to increase the second class rate from one cent a pound to something near what the department declares is the approximate cost that is, 8 2-3 cents per pound. Why it costs so enormously to carry second class mail will not be considered at this time, but it is evident that there must be great waste somewhere for the express companies, which are notorious extortionists, do not average such high rates, and they call for and deliver parcels free to their patrons in the large cities.

It is of importance to newspaper publishers to investigate this proposed increase on the postage of magazines, for there is no reason why the Sunday papers, at least, should not be dealt with in the same manner. But the metropolitan papers are amply able, as are most of the magazines, to take care of their own interests, and it is the [illegible] and the weekly newspapers which must be prepared for higher postage rates in the near future unless they take the necessary steps to protect their interests.

If postage rates on magazines and newspapers are increased, the publishers must increase the price of their publications, and the public will have to pay the bill.

PROTECTING THE FARMER.

What has caused the state of Iowa to decrease 7,082 in population since 1900? Secretary Wilson has told us that the tariff is making the farmers prosperous, and yet thousands have moved away from this prosperity to seek other and more inviting fields. It is possible that the bleak prairies of Northern Canada, where corn will not ripen, offer better prospects for successful farming than the rich lands of Iowa?

The fact is, Secretary Wilson is mistaken and the farmers know it, else why their intense demand for real tariff revision. The only Iowa farmers that the tariff helps are those who raise sheep, for they benefit by the tariff of 12 cents per pound on wool. But there were in 1909 only 747,000 sheep in Iowa (see yearbook of the Department of Agriculture, p. 730), and the number is decreasing; for according to the same authority there were 800,000 sheep of shearing age in 1908 (see p. 732), which shows a reduction of 53,000 in one year.

In these same official statistics the price of sheep on the farm appears to be declining; for in 1908 the average price in the United States is quoted at $3.88 per head, while in 1909 the price had declined to $3.43 (see p. 729). This does not indicate that the farmers are getting their share of the prosperity which we are assured is due to the protective tariff. Even their sheep and wool on which they are protected do not seem to be adding to their prosperity; and on nothing else than wool is the Iowa farmer really protected by the tariff.

The price of wool has declined since the passage of the new tariff law, although the very high protection on wool and woolens was not changed. At St. Louis the highest price reached in January 1908 for best tub-washed was 33 cents a pound; while during December of the same year the price fell to 28 cents per pound. There are no later government statistics published but the Daily Herald of Quincy, Ill., November 4, 1910 in its market report of the price of hides and wool says: "Wool—Although prices are not advancing just yet the market is toning up. There is a better demand and the general feeling is better.

"Bright wool—21 to 23c per lb.

"Clothing wool—18 to 20c per lb —16 to 19c per lb."

While the Iowa farmer has been having good crops and getting good prices for them during the past years, the cost of living has advanced over 60 per cent with him as with every dweller in the cities, and those who have rented farms have had their rent raised as the price of land increased. These Iowa farmers who have immigrated—probably mostly ʇou pǝʌo˥ʇ ʎ˥ǝpı—ʞǝǝpoǝɹ ǝɹǝʍ ʎǝɥʇ ʎ˥ǝɹǝʌo-ry prosperous, or they would not leave their homes and their neighbors and their friends to go to new countries and began all over again with all the hardships of frontier life. No wonder that in Iowa and in all the Western states where similar conditions prevail there has been a general demand for tariff revision downward; for it is very evident that protection does not prtect th farmer, but plunders him.

SHORT CUTS TO BETTER THINGS.

Hold up your head. You are a man among men. And have something worth holding your head up for.

Aim to have some one thing about your farm a little better than other folks. If it is nothing but a little ewe lamb, let that be a lamb that people will want to see and say, 'that is the best one I have seen this year!'

You will have to scrabble hard to keep at the head of the procession, for this is a lively world. Do a good thing today and before morning some neighbor will be tight to your heels with a thing that is better. That is all right. It is an invitation to you to beat yourself tomorrow.

Do everything till it is right, then do so a little more.

Your own plans are good, but never be too big to take those that are better, no matter who passes them along

Keep posted as to what is going on in the world. None of us is the only pebble on the beach. Things are moving these days, and not moving slow, either. Whereabouts are you in the race?

Save strength by having the best tools you can get. We have wasted an immense sight of time and strength both in doors and out, tugging along with poor tools.

So far as you can, meet the folks that use your farm stuff face to face when you have anything to sell. They will like to see you and you you would to hire a man to go for you.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Every man in this world that is worth anything is working for something. When we got so we do not care for anything, just content to drift along, our place in the world might as well be filled by some one else.

With most men, mixed with all other hopes and dreams and ambitions, there is the longing for money. Say what you will, in the heart of us all always and everywhere this thought is present: "I would like to have a little money."

And that is not a wrong aspiration, provided it be kept within bounds.

Dwn in Pennsylvania not long ago a train carrying animals belonging to a menagerie had an accident and a lot of the wild beasts got loose and went out into the woods and fields of the surrounding country. What a time that was! Farmers turned out and helped hunt the animals and get them back into their cages as quickly as possible, for they knew their cattle their children and their own lives were not safe as long as those fierce creatures were at large.

The love of money for its own sake is a thousand fold more dangerous than was that train-load of tigers, lions and hyenas let loose to ravage the country. Unless kept within proper limits, the hunger for gold will kill no more than hurt the body. the very soul, while the beasts can do

Money cannot buy anything that is really worth having in this world.

As farmers, we will do well to get the right estimate of the value of money, as compared to things that are better. For instance, it is better to bring up the boys and girls to love the farm for the character it will help them to build, rather than for the dollars and cents it will bring in.

To be a good farmer is better than to have a million dollars.

To love right and truth, the dumb creatures of the farm and its trees, plants and flowers will do more for the heart than to own all the money th banks can hold.

To be a citizen who will be loved and respected by all will carry with it a sense of peace when the years slant toward the sundown of life that all the gold of the hills can not give.

The shine of a pure heart is far more to be desired than the glint of gold.

—Agricultural Epitomist.

QUACK GRASS ERADICTION WORK IN WINTER.

By the time this article reaches the reader it will be too late to do much effective work in the field in the eradiction of quack grass. Fields infested with quack grass may be given a shallow plowing just before freezing-up time. The underground stems that are left exposed to the combined action of frost and air will generally be killed, but any underground stem that is only partly exposed will usually live and grow in the spring. Careful observation indicates that in instances where part of the underground stem is above ground and part buried ever so slightly in the ground, the part exposed generally dies out, and the covered part retain life and will grow the following spring.

Quack grass spreads in two ways: first, by underground stems, and second, by seed. During the winter all growth in the plant is stopped, and spreading by the first method is impossible, but this is the time when quack grass spreads by jumps. About the only way quack grass has of getting from one field to another, or from one farm to another, is by its seed. As a usual thing, quack grass does not mature its seed in hay, or in winter grain crops, since they are cut too early; but, in hay that is left standing for seed, and in spring grains, it does become mature, and is carried from field to field, or from farm to farm, by the threshing machine, in manure, in hay and straw, or in seed-grain or grass-seed.

The first thing to do is to learn to know quack grass seed, and then refuse absolutely to use any grain for seed that contains it. As soon as the fall work is well out of the way, get the fanning mill in working order, and clean the seed grain so well that there is no weed seed of any kind in it. With oats and barley, the work must be done particularly well, since quack seed resembles these to a certain extent, although it is much smaller. Buy your seed grain and grass seed early and be absolutely sure that you get no quack seed in either.

There never would have been any quack grass in this country if some fellow haden't been careless and allowed some of its seed to get over the ocean from Europe. This happened a long time ago, but quack grass is still "on the job," spreading in summer, by underground stems, slowly; and in winter by seed, in jumps. If you have no quack grass on your farm, you don't want any; and, if you have quack grass on your farm, you don't want any. Look out for that quack grass seed.—A. C. University Farm.

Home Talent Play a Success.

"Golden Hair and the three Bears" given for the benefit of the Citizens band committee last Friday and Saturday evenings is deserving of an abundance of praise.

The characters were represented by some of the best singers in the city, who handled their parts, some extremely difficult, with comparative ease. The chorus was composed of 35 girls of different ages and sizes and made a most brilliant spectacle.

Prof. A. J. Houle, under whose direction the play was produced, in particular is justly deserving of no end credit for his efforts and the results gained in such a short time.

The attendence, altho quite large the first night, was not as large the second night as could be expected. The receipts the first night amounted to some $115.-75 and the second night about $42.80. The costumes necessary for the production of this play was secured at a very heavy expense; combined with the other expenses, this made quite a dent in the resources.

THE KING'S WATCH.

A Napoleonic Gift That Embarrassed Jerome Bonaparte.

Previous to his elevation to the sovereignty Jerome Bonaparte had formed a friendship with some young authors at that time in vogue for their wit and reckless gayety. On the evening after his nomination to the crown of Westphalia he met two of his jovial companions just as he was leaving the theater. "My dear fellows," said he, "I am delighted to see you. I suppose you know that I have been created king of Westphalia?" "Yes, sire, and permit us to be among the first"— "Eh, what? You are ceremonious, methinks. That might pass were I surrounded by my court, but at present away with form and let us be off to supper."

Upon this Jerome took his friends to one of the best restaurants in the Palais Royal. The three chatted and laughed and said and did a thousand of those foolish things which when unpremeditated are so delightful. It may be supposed that the conversation was not kept up without drinking. When the wine they had drunk began to take effect, "My good friends," said Jerome, "why should we quit each other? If you approve of my proposal you shall accompany me. You, C., shall be my secretary. As for you, P., who are fond of books, I appoint you my librarian." The arrangement was accepted and ratified over a fresh bottle of champagne.

At length the party began to think of leaving and accordingly called for the bill. Jerome produced his purse, but the king of Westphalia could only find 2 louis, which formed but a small portion of 200 francs, the amount of the bill. The new dignitaries by clubbing their wealth could only muster about 3 francs.

What was to be done? At 1 o'clock in the morning where could resources be found? They determined to send for the master of the house and acquaint him how matters stood. He seemed to take the frolic in good part and merely requested to know their names. Having told him, the restaurateur set his customers down as sharpers and threatened to send for the commissary of police. This alarmed Jerome, who, seeing that the restaurateur doubted them, handed over his watch in payment. This watch had been a present from Napoleon, and on the back was the emperor's cipher in brilliants.

On examining the watch the restaurateur concluded that it had been stolen and took it to the commissary of police. The latter, recognizing the imperial cipher, ran with it to the prefect. The prefect flew to the minister of the interior, and he in turn went to the emperor at St. Cloud. Next morning the Moniteur contained an ordinance in which Jerome was ordered to Westphalia at once and prohibited from conferring any appointments till his arrival at his capital.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

MIND YOUR TEETH.

The Value of Keeping the Mouth and Gums Perfectly Clean.

A man is known by the teeth he keeps. The worst thing that can happen to our teeth is for them not to have enough to do. It is the worst thing that can happen to us also. Spiritualized and cultured as we have become, we still fight the battle of life with our teeth, though we no longer chew our enemies' ears or throats. Bone cored, enamel coated and rock ribbed as the hills, our teeth are more absolutely under our control than almost any other structure of the body. Neglect them and they decay at once. Give them proper attention and they will go on repairing themselves for forty, fifty, sixty years.

Give children plenty of roughening food to chew, and they will get the pearly vigor of the savage tooth with the endurance of the Caucasian's. Above all, the food should be of such a character as to give exercise and massage to the gums. Part of this can be given by plenty of coarse food in addition to real food—not as a substitute for it—and part by intentional and vigorous friction with the toothbrush. To brush the gums well is half the value of brushing the teeth.

Keep the mouth and gums strictly clean, and the teeth will take care of themselves. There are thirty-three distinct named and labeled sorts of bacilli or bugs in our mouths as normal parlor boarders, but they'll behave with perfect propriety unless you give them carrion to get drunk on.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Survey.

Bill Lange's Long Hit.

In an article on "Batting" in the American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton describes as follows the longest hit ever recorded:

"Lange, who was of the middle ages of the game, made a hit in Cincinnati which is regarded by many as the longest hit ever made. The ball cleared the center field fence, which was on top of a high embankment, sailed across Western avenue, went through the window of a saloon and was found behind the bar. The hit made a fortune for the saloon, as big crowds went to see the ball on exhibition."

Domestic Economy.

"My wife threatened if I didn't get her a new hat she'd go home to her mother."

"Why didn't you let her?"

"Her railroad fare would cost more than the hat."—Boston Transcript.

POLICE OF GERMANY.

Privacy of the Home No Bar to Their Farreaching Authority.

To a foreigner no feature of German life is more striking than the prominence and almost unlimited authority of the police. Many of its functions are such as in the United States would be intrusted only to a court of law. What seems almost equally strange, the greater part of these functions are exercised quite independently of the local government.

The minuteness and thoroughness of the work of the German police are a constant surprise to the foreigner. The policeman not only preserves order in the streets, but exercises a farreaching authority in private houses. For instance, he undertakes the nightly locking of one's street door at a sufficiently early hour. He sees that one has his chimney regularly cleaned. He inspects at stated times one's stoves and heating apparatus, and while he is about it he will look into a few other matters of domestic economy.

One feature of his activity strikes a good many American visitors with favor. In some places singing and piano playing with open windows are forbidden, and it is a common house regulation in large towns that no pianos may be played after 10 o'clock in the evening. The German policeman is also something of a food inspector in his way, and he keeps a sharp eye on venders of food and of medicines. It is not an uncommon sight to see a German policeman halt a milkman's wagon and on the spot make an inspection of his wares. Should there prove to be anything wrong with them they are promptly seized and destroyed and the matter is immediately taken in hand by the higher authorities.—New York Press.

A BATHLESS AGE.

For a Thousand Years the People of Europe Went Unwashed.

When Egypt, Greece and Rome were at the height of their ancient power their citizens made bathing a social function, a municipal duty and a religious observance. The public baths of these nations were magnificent architecturally and important as centers of hygienic and municipal sentiment.

With the decadence of these countries the world seems to have reverted to a period of mental sloth and physical uncleanliness. As an authority on the matter puts it:

"For 1,000 years there was not a man or woman in Europe that ever took a bath, if the historian of these times, Michelet, is to be believed. The ancient love of the bath seemed to have disappeared from off the land.

"There was no Greece or Rome to hold up the ensign of cleanliness to the nations of Europe. Small wonder that the people of the continent became physical decadents, as indeed they were in spite of tradition to the contrary.

"It is not strange that there came the awful epidemics that cut off one-fourth of the population of Europe—the spotted plague, the black death, the sweating sickness and the terrible mental epidemics that followed in their train—the dancing mania, the mewing mania and the biting mania.

"The bath was banished and filth was almost deified. Indeed, it was then thought that the sanctification of the body was only accomplished when that body was indescribably dirty."—Physical Culture.

A Startling Reply.

An English country bookseller sent to London for a copy of a book called "Happy Husbands." The work was out of print, but the wholesale agent certainly might have intimated the fact differently. He replied that "There are no 'Happy Husbands' in London."—London Tit-Bits.

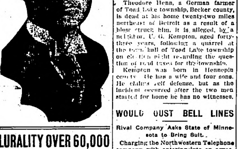
ADOLPH O. EBERHART.

Republican Re-Elected Governor of Minnesota.



PLURALITY OVER 60,000

Eberhart Carries Every County In State but One.

The exact size of Governor A. O. Eberhart's plurality over James Gray is still in doubt, but latest indications are that it will go something over 60,000.

The Republican candidate carried every county but one, Lyon, and there Mr. Gray's plurality was small.

But in spite of his big plurality Governor Eberhart did not lead his ticket, that honor going to George T. Simpson, attorney general. Walter J. Smith, candidate for treasurer, and S. G. Iverson, state auditor, are neck and neck for second place.

Justice T. D. O'Brien, Democratic candidate for the state supreme bench, is short the necessary votes to elect.

Sidney Anderson of Lanesboro will be the only new member of the Minnesota delegation in the next congress, as all of the eight members who were candidates for re-election were victorious. W. S. Hammond, in the Second district, the lone Democrat in the last delegation, had the closest run, but returns indicate his election by about 3,000 over Franklin Ellsworth, his Republican opponent.

Theodore Henn, a German farmer of Toad Lake township, Becker county, is dead at his home twenty-two miles northeast of Detroit as a result of a blow struck him, it is alleged, by a neighbor, U. G. Kempton, aged forty-three years, following a quarrel at the town hall of Toad Lake township on election night regarding the question of road taxes for the township.

Kempton was born in Hennepin county. He has a wife and four sons. He claims self defense, but as the incident occurred after the two men started for home he has no witnesses.

Russia, the worst plague stricken, is also one of the worst rat ridden countries in the world. Added to this there is widespread a disregard for sanitation which goes hand in hand with the rest and makes a terrible situation.

If looked into a bit many a case of so called luck will be found to be traceable to pretty good head work and a good deal of energy and application, while many a case of bad luck is due to shiftlessness and bad management.

Probably the biggest cheese ever made has lately been "cast" by a Wisconsin cheese factory. It weighs 2,400 pounds, required one milking of 2,100 cows to make it and is to be on exhibition at the national dairy show to be held soon at Chicago.

No higher word of commendation can be given of any home than to have said of it that the boys and girls of the neighborhood like to gather there to spend some of their evenings. It is an accomplishment, by the way, of which any homemaker may well be proud. The country needs more homes of this kind.

True, it's an old fashioned plant, but for the housewife who has little time to give to floriculture the geranium is one of the most satisfactory. It is a thrifty grower, free bloomer, no pests bother it, while if one gets slips of the finest kinds beautiful blossom effects may be secured. The requirements are rich soil and plenty of water and sunshine.

Graham bread takes its name from the fact that in the year 1791 a Connecticut doctor of the name of Sylvester Graham started a crusade in favor of making bread from whole wheat or brown flour. He gave lectures and wrote books on the subject, and so much emphasis did he lay on the new bread that from that time on to the present it has been known as "graham."

There are reports of late to the effect that a gang of tree peddlers, claiming to be working in co-operation with the forest service in distributing hardy catalpas, are circulating among the farmers of the country and taking large orders for these trees. They have been looked up, have been branded grafters, and if any of them should have the brass to come on your premises set the dog on him.

As showing the capacity of some of the well known pests to reproduce themselves may be cited the San Jose scale. A single female, which gives birth at one time to an average brood of 400 young and produces several such generations in a season, is estimated to be responsible as progenitor of 1,609,040,200 females. In view of such an outpouring of spawn as this, it would not be surprising if the horticulturist lost heart notwithstanding the aids at hand in the shape of parasitic bugs and spraying concoctions.

A friend who has fifteen or twenty acres in potatoes this fall has several mornings of late been finding a bushel or so of the tubers pulled out of the hills and lying exposed to the sun. While he has not, so far as we know, set a watch at night to see just who these "diggers" are, he has found the most hills molested where the fat white grubs have been very plentiful. Putting two and two together, it is probably safe to assume that this field was in meadow or sod last season and that the disturbance of the hills is the work of skunks or badgers, which view the white grub as a very luscious morsel.

Two years ago, following attendance at a big state fair where there was a fine display of pure bred beef cattle, the writer of these notes commented upon the fact that prevalent standards adhered to in the judging of the beef breed seemed to result in both sires and dams being put in a condition of flesh not only abnormal, but entirely detrimental to their continued usefulness as breeders and producers. A thick blanket of fat, like charity, can cover several bovine weaknesses; hence breeders of the heavy types would compete on a far fairer basis were their show animals not only expected to be, but required to be, in average breeding condition. More recently the need of the adoption of this more rational standard has been expressed concretely by a leading breeder who has won many blue ribbons at stock shows and who asserts that "three-fourths of the finest bulls in the country are ruined for breeders by being fattened for the show ring; fat cattle should be shown only in the steer class." This puts the thing in a nutshell. It is strange that breeders have been so slow in awaking to the importance of this simple fact.

Notwithstanding that it will be late in the season and will not prevent seed distribution it will be well worth while to take a couple of hours off some afternoon and cut those weeds along the roadside that escaped attention during the busy days of July and August, for by so doing the trouble incident to drifting snows will be considerably reduced.

Greeley county, Neb., has a Red Polled cow that has the unique distinction of being the mother of two sets of triplet calves, all of which are at present alive and thrifty, or were a short time ago, when her picture was taken with the entire bunch about her. From the standpoint of numbers, at least, this strain would seem to be worth while perpetuating.

The poinsetta, which was named after Joel Poinsett of South Carolina, is a shrub of Mexican origin which makes a very interesting and attractive house plant. The leaves are remarkably large and smooth and show a most interesting variation in outline, while the bloom is equally unique, the yellow blossom being borne just above a circle of beautiful crimson bracts or small leaves. The plant thrives under average conditions and has no pests which molest it.

During the past month cotton has seen the highest prices recorded since the civil war, a price of $18.00 per bale being bid therefor on the New York Cotton Exchange. This unusual price level was in part due to a general price inflation characteristic of all commodities, but even more to the issuance of the government cotton crop report, which showed a decided deterioration—about 5 per cent—in the condition of the crop from the showing of the preceding month.

The man who knocked the head out of a four dollar barrel of apples and just beneath found a message put in by the grower, "I got 75 cents for this barrel of apples—please let me know what you had to pay for it," uncovered in very simple manner two of the factors that are chiefly responsible for the present high cost of living—the profits exacted by the transportation companies and middlemen. The problem is certainly one that deserves investigation of a very thorough type.

For those who may not have had the fact brought to their attention it may be of interest to know that, while one may sell a relinquishment of his claim to a homestead, such sale does not convey title to the purchaser, but merely gives him first chance to enter the claim as a homestead. In case one does thus sell he forfeits thereby the right of entering another homestead, but he does not lose this right if he simply abandons the claim and allows the title to revert to the government.

The family bear, the pig, wild deer and occasionally game birds, like the imported pheasants, appear on the list of garden marauders, but not until the other day have we seen the snapping turtle, known to every boy who fishes for bullheads, put in this list. A Mississippi valley farmer noticed that something was raising hob with his tomato patch. He set a watch one night and found that eight or ten big snapping turtles came out of the nearby creek and feasted to their fill on his big juicy tomatoes. He also found that they had been going from these when the supply was short to his cabbage patch. It would seem about time for him to negotiate with some city cafe for soup stock.

Azoturia, a disease to which horses are subject and some of the effects of which are shown in the permanently swollen legs of so many otherwise good horses, is due to a clogging of the system—particularly the kidneys—with more albumen than they can oxidize and eliminate. Some horses seem to be more prone to the trouble than others, but in the main attacks of the disease are induced by the continuation of a hearty ration during a period of idleness to horses which have been doing heavy work, and acute cases are often precipitated by driving too fast or putting to too hard work horses which have been standing in the stable. The disease is much more likely to occur with horses fed a ration of clover, alfalfa or other feed containing considerable amounts of protein. It is for this account that wild hay, timothy and oats are preferable to other feeds.

In an instance that came under our notice the other day a county turned down a consignment of $20,000 worth of cement draintiles, large size, for the simple fact that quite a portion of the first thousand feet collapsed shortly after being covered with earth without waiting for frost, wet weather or other disintegrating cause. This failure was not due to the fact that cement tile may not be made so that they will be satisfactory and durable, but that the tile in question were not thus made. The incident simply emphasizes a suggestion made in these notes not long ago that there are a number of incompetents engaged in the manufacture of cement tile who not only use gravel with dirt or clay in it—and hence unfit—or scrimp in the amount of cement which goes into the mixing machine. Cement manufacturers need more thorough organization, not for the purpose of meeting the competition of the clay tile men, but to put out of business cement tile manufacturers, either greenhorns or knaves, who cannot or will not make cement tile that will stand up and do the business. As we have said before, a good cement tile is as durable as a good clay tile, but a poor one isn't worth a continental.

MADE NO DIFFERENCE

County Canvassing Board Met at Red Lake Falls Last week

Conclusion Reached Shows a Majority of 102 Votes

The gentlemen from this city, who attended the official estimating of the recent vote cast in Red Lake county arrived home last Friday. They have in their possession a certificate from the proper county authorities stating that the division proposition was carried by a majority of 102 votes. Practically no difference developed between the official returns and the unofficial announcements, but the manner in which the returns from the third ward in Red Lake Falls were handled created much comment. This ward alone polled 254 votes, according to a tally sheet, which was offered as an official record. The official poll list could not be seen and no one appears to know its whereabouts. So much has been said already with reference to the surprisingly large vote cast in certain sections, where for years a small vote has been polled, that further remarks are superfluous. Some hotheads in the south half advocate a contest, which, of course, would be no more than half way with counter contests. The fight is over and the people's will has been recorded. It is probable that wiser counsel will prevail in the south half and the inevitable be accepted.

Next Tuesday the state canvassing board will meet to foot up the total returns from the state. Within two or three days thereafter the result of the vote in Red Lake county will be announced by the secretary of state to Governor Eberhardt, who must within ten days proclaim the birth of the new county of Pennington. Immediately following this action the county commissioners of Pennington will have to convene and begin business.

Bound to Divide County.

The second petition in a week for the division of Polk county was filed with Secretary of State Schmahl Monday, and there undoubtedly will be an effort to have the petition which was filed last week declared illegal and void.

The petition filed last Monday asks for a vote on the question of creating Roosevelt county out of eastern Polk county with Fosston as its county seat. The petition filed last week asks for a vote on the creation of Columbia county with McIntosh as its county seat. The territory of the two proposed counties is nearly the same. Only one petition can be voted on at one time and that only at the general election in the fall. The first petition filed that complies with the law in every respect will have to be voted on and the other is cast aside.

The petitioners for Roosevelt county will allege that signers for the Columbia county petition were obtained on election day or before, and will endeavor to show that any signatures obtained before the result of the last election was known are invalid. A petition for the creation of Park county out of nearly the same territory and with Erskine as the county seat was voted on and defeated last Tuesday.

The petition for the creation of Roosevelt county was presented Monday by J. L. Umphrey of Fosston. The secretary of state received both petitions and placed them on file, and after it is determined which is the first valid petition the Governor will issue a proclamation calling for a vote on the division of Polk county at the next general election.

Thirty years ago Polk county embraced all of the territory in Polk, Norman, Red Lake, Mahnomen and the newly created county of Pennington. Norman county was the first to be set off. This county was divided four years ago when the people of Mahnomen had ambitions, and out of the original Norman county territory there are now two good-sized counties. In December, 1896 Red Lake county was born. At the last election this county was cut in two, creating the new county of Pennington. There are now four counties out of the original Polk county as organized forty years ago, besides the present Polk county, which is in an awkward shape and large enough for two or three more counties. The ambitious villages that aspire to county seat honors in the proposed new county kept the old county intact at the last election.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS ONCE ON EVERY DOOR.

Some years ago, a young man had $1250.00 in the savings department of a Pittsburg bank.
He had worked hard for this money had saved it out of a small daily wage.
Along comes opportunity in the shape of Steel.
It knocks, the young man opens, they have a long consultation.
That same day the young man goes to his bank, draws the $1250.00, invests it in Steel.
Today he is worth millions, and is making himself famous donating libraries all over the United States.
Prepare for opportunity; it is sure to knock on your door.

Retailers Had Best Beware.

Under a recent ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the attention of revenue officers has been called to the necessity of enforcing the statute which requires that all stamps, marks and brands on whiskey barrels shall be destroyed as soon as the barrel is emptied.

The new ruling applies not only to liquor dealers, but also to transportation companies who ship or handle empty spirit packages upon which any government marks, stamps or brands remain obliterated.

The penalty prescribed by the statute is a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $10,000 with from one to five years' imprisonment for emptying a spirit package without at once and completely destroying every stamp, mark and brand.

This ruling is one of very great interest to the retail liquor dealers of the entire country. There has been much carelessness in the past, and in all probability, as a result thereof, a thorough canvass will be made by the revenue officers and all violations reported to the United States District attorneys for prosecution.

Hay Badly Needed.

Figures in the hands of the relief committee for the fire sufferers in the northern portion of the state, shows that hay is badly needed to winter the stock in the fire stricken region, and in the burned district inside of Roseau county alone about 800 tons will be required.

Room For More.

Minnesota has a scant 2,300,000 population. Experts state that it is capable of multiplying this ten times, and still guarantee to all the same degree of prosperity, which at present exists. What the increase of rural population means in a state, where at present some counties have actually fallen off in population in ten years, should be obvious. To the farmer it means better roads, rural delivery, more money for local improvements, better social and better business conditions. To the towns and villages it means proportionate growth, for it is useless to expect in any state that the cities and towns will outstrip the agricultural districts to which they must look for their greatest prosperity.

Crookston Pastor Honored.

The Scandinavian Association of the Red River Valley held its annual Conference at St. Hilaire on November 3-5.

A large number were present from different parts of the district and the following officers were elected:

President—Rev. O. K. Moberg, Crookston.

Secretary—Rev. W. Drotts, Viking.

Assistant Secretary—Rev. Frank Larson, St. Hilaire.

Cashier—Chas. Gustafson, Thief River Falls.

This makes the fourth successive term that Rev. Moberg has been honored by election to the presidency of this Association.

The meeting was well attended and a great deal of work was disposed of. The different reports of the conference showed an excellent promise for good work in the future.—Crookston Press.

Saloons Must Go.

Sensational and serious developments today marked the government's determination to crush out of existence every saloon in the Indian treaty district, a raid and destruction of liquor at Bagley where two saloons were closed, revealing the fact that criminal prosecution faces saloonkeepers who obtained licenses after the closing order of Oct. 15 and afterward nullified by Secretary Ballinger, even though such saloonkeepers were granted a government license.

At Kellihor where seven saloons are operating, a carload of beer consigned by the Hamm Brewing company to A. A. McGill, mayor of the town, and also agent for the Hamm company, may be the cause of not only closing every saloon there but of causing government agents to dump all the liquor into the street.

The car of beer was unloaded. W. H. Gemmell, general manager of the Minnesota & International, on which line Kellihor is located, learned of this. He conferred with T. E. Brents in charge of the Indian bureau's sub agency in Bemidji, who told Mr. Gemmel that unless the beer was reloaded and on its way back to St. Paul by the time his men could get to Kellihor, he would close every saloon and confiscate every drop of liquor. Mr. Gemmel has wired this information to Mayor McGill.

The most important event of the day, however took place at Bagley the county seat of Clearwater, when Government Agent N. A. Way and two deputies confiscated every drop of liquor in that village with the exception of beer, took it out into the street and dumped it in the snow. Three barrels of whiskey, 24 cases of bottled goods and several casks of brandy and wine were destroyed.

The saloons to thus suffer the wrath of the government were operated by Charles Heiser and Mayers and Omdahl. Both places had been doing business for only fifteen days. On November 1 they each paid the village of Bagley a license fee of $1,500. At that time they also secured a government license to sell liquor.

Agent Way told the two saloonkeepers that the village had no authority to grant the licenses and that they both would have to answer to the government in court proceedings.

He said that all the saloons in Bemidji were to be treated in the same manner which took out license since the original order went into effect.

This is taken to mean that the government will prosecute every saloonkeeper who has obtained a liquor license since October 15, and that applies to every town in the redistricted territory.

About the most exciting incident in Bemidji of the day was the reloading of beer from the saloon at Minnesota avenue and Third street, conducted by Harry Gunsalus. This liquor was stowed away Sunday, the proprietor of the place presuming that inasmuch as the beer had been ordered previous to the thunderbolt of last Saturday, that he would be entitled to the property. Under instructions from W. E. Johnson Indian Agents compelled the beer to be sent back to the brewery.

"I just sold my last drop of brandy," said Frank Lane, one of the leaders of Bemidji's thirsty retail liquor dealers. Others report scant stocks.

A squad of secret service men and agents of the Indian bureau have arrived and the town is being watched closely for any attempt to smuggle in liquor.

He was enroute to Rochester where he was to undergo an operation, and death was due to heart failure.

Deceased leaves a wife and family to mourn his loss.

The remains were brought to Fox for burial.

Chas. Tedford Dead.

Many residents in this city will learn with regret the death of Chas. Tedford a prominent resident of Cass Lake, which took place last Saturday. Death being due to Bright's disease.

Mr. Tedford was formerly a resident of St. Hilaire, and was well known thru out this section of the state.

He is survived by a wife and one child.

Among other interesting features of the rebuilding of the burned villages of Spooner and Beaudette in the northern part of the state was the recent construction of the Methodist church in the first named town. This modest though neat church edifice is the first building of that nature to be erected in the place and the means of its accomplishment and the kind of carpenters, who completed it are matters of interest. It was found that labor was so scarce and carpenters so busy with other work in the burned district that no competent workmen could be secured to build the church. So, led by District Superintendent A. H. McKee of Fergus Falls, five Methodist preachers laid aside their dignity and shouldered their hammers, saws and squares, or borrowed their neighbors, and took train for Spooner the first of this month to try their hands at house building. For two or three weeks they labored, their work being laid out by one of them, who in former years followed the trade of carpenter. The result of their unusual efforts is a neat church 22 by 32 feet with 16 foot posts, all enclosed and ready to be plastered. While at work "on the job", the divines bunked in a shack of their own making and boarded with the mill hands at the grub house. The party consisted of Reverends A. H. McKee of Fergus Falls; W. Hodgson, Crookston; F. H. Barnett Badger; J. B. Smith, Thief River Falls R. G. Greenl, Akeley; J. S. Kingan, Breckenridge. They state that they enjoyed the outing, had aches and pains they never dreamed of before, and developed appetites, which threatened them with double price for their board with the mill hands at the mill boarding house.

They also say that the town of Spooner is being rapidly rebuilt, but that Beaudette is making slower progress. Some handsome and substantial business blocks are already erected. The people who lost their all in the terrible fire are at work erecting homes and preparing to gather up the threads of life anew in the section, which caused them so much suffering.

BAD FIRE LAST FRIDAY

Fire in Korstad Building. Does Damage to a Great Extent.

Firemen Did Good Work in Checking The Flames.

At shortly after seven last Friday evening fire was discovered in the Korstad clothing store in the Tupper block, and a hasty alarm was sent in, the fire department arriving on the scene and was instrumental in checking the flames after a determined fight before the fire had gained any great headway.

The exact origion of the fire is not known, but was first discovered under the office in the Korstad clothing store, and took an upward course between the walls which made it a most difficult task for the firemen to get at.

The heaviest loosers are Korstad Bros. and Ed Ashley, who had apartments up stairs. The Zeh & Curran confectionery store also suffered a light loss from smoke and water. The damage is generally covered by insurance.

Marshall County Hogs Sell High.

John J. Stromberg returned Monday from Benton, Iowa, where he had been with a carload of hogs and young shoats, which he offered for sale to the farmers in that vicinity. So well satisfied were the farmers of that vicinity with the high grade of these pigs that one lot of shoats averaging about 50 pounds each brought $8 a-piece, and the others prices in proportion, and had Mr. Stromberg 10 times the number he could have secured the same prices as the pigs offered were considered by the buyers to be the best. When we consider that only a week ago a carload of chickens, turkeys, geese and ducks were shipped out of Marshall County from Argyle and two more car loads of the same kind from Crookston, to Chicago, the fact must become evident to the outside world that this territory, and Marshall County in particular raises something beside wheat and other small grains, and, like the grain raised here, the other produce is of the highest class.—Stephen Leader.

THE OIL WELL SHOOTER.

Sometimes Blown Into Eternity With His Own Ammunition.

In certain of the petroleum producing districts it becomes necessary sometimes in opening an oil well—sometimes when the well has become clogged or apparently exhausted—to begin or renew the flow by exploding nitroglycerin at the bottom of the well. This explosive is employed because it is explodes readily by the dropping of a weight upon it. A man who carries nitroglycerin from well to well for this purpose is known in the oil regions as a "shooter."

The shooter has a wagon in which to carry his explosive. A square box under the seat is carefully padded, and when it has been solidly filled with cans of nitroglycerin, which is a molasses-like fluid, he fastens down the cover and drives slowly away to the well that he is to shoot. Usually he makes the trip very early in the morning to avoid the customary travel and so diminish the chance of danger.

For the most part the roads are bad, and the wagon jolts along in a way to make any one but an old shooter decidedly nervous. If it is dark there is great danger that a wheel may drop into a hole with force enough to detonate the explosive. Several wagons bearing shooters and their loads have been blown up, but no one ever lived to tell what sort of jar caused the explosion.

In such a case little is ever found except the great hole in the ground which the explosion has dug, with possibly a wheel of the wagon a quarter of a mile away in one direction and another in the opposite direction.

The shooter generally takes from 80 to 240 quarts of nitroglycerin in his wagon. The smaller amount is quite enough, if it should explode to leave no trace of the driver of the vehicle.

When the shooter reaches the well which is to be treated long torpedo tubes are placed within the casing of the well, and the nitroglycerin is poured carefully into them. The well may be 1,500 feet deep and is seldom less than a thousand. When one of the tubes is filled it is lowered with the utmost care to the bottom of the well. This operation is repeated until the shooter is satisfied that the load is heavy enough to accomplish the purpose. When all is ready a bar of iron, known as a "go-devil," is dropped into the well. The instant it leaves his hand the shooter takes to his heels, seeking a place of safety.

Suddenly the earth trembles; there is a crash, followed by a snap; a muffled sound arises and becomes louder and louder until a column of oil and water shoots from 75 to 100 feet into the air. The country for hundreds of feet around is filled with clouds of spray floating to leeward. When this subsides the well is in operation and the shooter receives his fee and drives away.—Harper's Weekly.

The Dead Man's Hand.

Charms as cures for sickness were common in England a century ago. Lady Wake, who was born in 1800, tells of a grewsome cure adopted for the removal of some birthmarks which disfigured her face. Her mother was persuaded that "a dead man's hand laid upon my cheek and hands would effectually remove the marks," she writes. "As a man could not be killed for the occasion, it was necessary to wait till some one died. An old man at last did die in one of the nearest cottages, and I was taken there in my sleep. I remember afterward being constantly stopped by the widow, who always examined my cheek in order to ascertain the state of her husband's body, as the marks, she told my nurse, would certainly fade away as he turned into dust. Whatever the cause of the cure, the marks in time disappeared."

"It's the Cut."

An aged country rector who had an old tailor as his clerk, returning from his church one Sunday with the latter, thus addressed him:

"Thomas, I cannot think how it is that our church should be getting thinner, for I am sure I preach as well as ever I did and ought to have far more experience than I had when I first came among you."

"Indeed," replied Thomas. "I'll tell you what; old parsons nowadays are just like old tailors, for I'm sure I sew as well as ever I did in my life, and the cloth is the same, but it's the cut, sir. Ah, it's the new cut."—Pearson's Weekly.

Flower of the Air.

There is a plant in Chile and a similar one in Japan called the "flower of the air." It is so called because it appears to have no root and is never fixed to the earth. It twines round a dry tree or sterile rock. Each shoot produces two or three flowers like a lily—white, transparent and odoriferous. It is capable of being transported 600 to 700 miles and vegetates as it travels suspended on a twig.

A Leading Citizen.

"Didn't you tell me Faro Joe was one of the leading citizens of Crimson Gulch?"

"Well," answered Broncho Bob, "he was. When he left town he led the vigilance committee by a quarter of a mile clean to the next county."—Washington Star.

S. T. DAKIN, PROP.

Considering the disastrous experience which a number of western fruit growers have had the past season through use of a lime-sulphur summer spray, it is safe they will give the subject some study this winter before applying the spray.

In the main, to be worth the price asked for it, land should yield net an annual crop return which will represent a fair interest return on investment price. If it does not do this it is on a speculative basis, which may or may not be well grounded.

A reader of an eastern agricultural paper recommends sprigs of arbor vitae, or white cedar, as an effective means of ridding the henhouse and nest boxes of lice. This may be the case, but the cautious poultryman will still keep his kerosene can and sack of sulphur handy.

If all of the railroads of the country have as large "car repair" bills as are being brought to light in the present Illinois Central graft inquiry and these have been systematically charged up to "operating expenses," it is not surprising perhaps that the farmers and other originators of freight are asked for an increase in transportation charges.

On Nov. 30 there will be thrown open for entry in Alabama a considerable portion of land which was withdrawn in the year 1909 in the creation of the Alabama national forest. A portion of the total area has been appropriated under existing land laws, while other portions of considerable extent will be withheld from entry because supposed to be underlaid with valuable mineral deposits.

That the tendency of corn to sucker is due more to inherited tendency than to character of soil was plainly shown this season in the case of two varieties of corn which were planted side by side on the same soil and at the same time on the writer's ranch. One variety which was home grown was almost entirely free from the sucker forming tendency, while the other, an imported pedigreed seed, produced from two to four suckers for each stalk.

The secret of winter eggs lies not in newfangled recipe or nostrum, to trap nests or swinging roosts, but to two very practical considerations—making the hens scratch for what they get and in feeding them such rations as will most readily supply the ingredients contained in the eggs which they are expected to lay—namely, bran, oats, a little oilmeal, tankage, clover and alfalfa, with grit for grinding, lime for eggshells and enough corn to provide the yolks. For the service which she is expected to perform the hen needs a balanced ration, as does the dairy cow, and neither should be expected to do much on a ration fit for the steer in the feeding lot.

A lot of farmers have considerable grief on their hands this fall in the shape of fields infested with noxious weeds of one kind or another through penny wise economy in the purchase of their grass seeds last spring. It seems to be a hard lesson to learn that there is nothing gained in the end by scrimping on the price of grass seeds, and the only way some fellows seem to be able to get the idea into their noddle is to have a dose of grief of the kind above referred to. Experience of this character is a mighty dear school, but there is a class of men who will learn in no other. The philosopher who originated the "experience is a dear school" epigram called them "fools."

In making plans for the new kitchen addition it is well to remember that it is just as easy to make the mistake of getting it too large as too small. Whatever else it is, it should be convenient, with as little space as possible just to chase around in and to keep mopped and swept. Of the improvements in the kitchen which have in view saving labor the most valuable will be an abundant water supply and drainage facilities from the sink which will do away with the necessity of emptying [illegible] the housewife's [illegible] in the [illegible] kitchen cabinet, [illegible] every day in the year [illegible] [illegible] steps. There are other [illegible] which may be included in the kitchen economy, but the three named will go a long way toward simplifying the work.

The Chinese or golden pheasant has proved an exception to the general rule that imported game birds have not thriven under conditions which prevail in the United States. In the instance mentioned, however, the mild climate prevailing on the Pacific slope has furnished a very congenial home for the oriental bird, and it is increasing in numbers rapidly under the laws which have been passed for its protection.

It is estimated that floods and freshets in the United States do damage totaling fully $100,000,000 annually. Doubtless a part of this loss is unavoidable. All too great a part, however, is traceable to the wanton stripping and denuding of vast forest areas on creek and river watersheds. Unfortunately the cure—reforestation—can only be effected by a slow and tedious process which will call for much faith and painstaking labor.

With one pound of corn worth four pounds of potatoes in point of feeding value, a bushel of potatoes would be worth as feed just one-fourth of the price of a bushel of corn. Were this 60 cents the tubers would be worth for feeding purposes 15 cents. Potatoes make an excellent ration for hogs and when fed should be given in a ration of about twenty pounds of potatoes to ten of corn, with a pound of tankage to furnish the needed protein. If the corn is fed ground the tankage should be mixed with it and the potatoes fed raw, or all may be cooked and mixed if one is fixed for it.

In the enthusiasm of the very wholesome and commendable "back to the land" movement which is just now receiving a good deal of attention it may be in point to suggest that a large measure of success will hardly be achieved in a tillage of the soil or in horticultural lines by those who through lack of brains, initiative or energy have made a dismal failure of every other business enterprise in which they have embarked. The returns from agricultural and allied pursuits are generous, but only in proportion to intelligent, persistent and well directed effort. The realm of agriculture is no place for weaklings or incompetents.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

RAILROADS GIVEN WARNING

Must Not Ship Liquor Into Minnesota Territory Covered by Indian Treaty of 1855.

A vast stretch of territory in the northern part of the state, comprising about one-sixth of the area of the entire state, is made completely "dry" by the latest orders of W. E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson, agent of the bureau of Indian affairs at Washington. This order is being carried out to the letter by the common carriers. Railroad and express companies operating through that district are refusing all liquor shipments. Notices to this effect were mailed to agents, wholesale liquor dealers, brewers and others from the railroad and express offices.

Prohibition, as the word is understood, never made a locality so "dry" as the latest order of the famous Indian agent, provided that order is carried into effect, and all signs point to the conclusion that it will be. Prohibition prohibits the liquor traffic from being carried on within certain territorial limits, but it does not prevent a man living in a prohibition town or state from buying liquor elsewhere and taking it to his home, or having it shipped there. But the latest order of Mr. Johnson absolutely forbids a man to step upon an inch of that Northern Minnesota territory with a bottle of liquor in his pocket. No person is allowed to bring liquor within that region at all.

Large Territory Embraced.

This vast district includes Becker, Hubbard and Cass counties, and parts of Crow Wing, Aitkin, Pine, Carleton, St. Louis, Itasca, Koochiching, Beltrami, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Polk, Norman, Clay, Otter Tail and Wadena counties. The chief cities and towns are Brainerd, Hibbing, Ada, Bemidji, Hawley, Lake Park, Detroit, Frazee, Perham, Cass Lake, Grand Rapids, Park Rapids, Aitkin and Walker. Three thriving breweries in this territory will be put out of business.

This district was ceded to the United States by the Mississippi, Pillager and Lake Winnibigoshish bands of Chippewa Indians in a treaty signed Feb. 22, 1855. This treaty contains the following section:

"The laws which have been or may be enacted by congress, regulating trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes, are to continue and be in force within the several reservations provided for herein; and those portions of said laws which prohibit the introduction, manufacture, use of and traffic in ardent spirits, wines or other liquors in the Indian country, shall continue and be in force within the entire boundaries of the Indian country herein ceded to the United States until otherwise provided by congress."

TRAIN HITS AN AUTOMOBILE

Two Members of Pleasure Party Killed.

A Great Western passenger train ran into an automobile containing a pleasure party of women and children about two miles from Waterville and as a result two were instantly killed and three were seriously and perhaps fatally injured.

Mrs. Eugene Speers of Faribault and her four-year-old son are dead, and Mrs. F. Gordon of Waterville, with her two sons, are badly injured. Mrs. Gordon cannot live and her boys are in a critical condition.

All the victims of the accident were taken to Waterville, where they were given medical attention.

Mrs. Gordon is the wife of a prominent business man of Waterville, and Mrs. Speers is the wife of a bookkeeper of Faribault. None of the victims is able to tell any of the details of the accident.

GIRL ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Said to Have Passed a Number of Bad Checks.

Charlotte Pooler, alias Kennedy, aged sixteen years, is under arrest at St. Paul charged with trying to pass a forged check for $25 on a down town department store.

The police say they had been looking for the girl several weeks for other forgeries.

According to the police the girl proffered a check with the signature of a St. Paul railroad official, claiming that she was his daughter. The cashier had been warned of a girl forger and called the alleged father on the telephone. The girl's arrest followed.

DULUTH ORPHANAGE ABLAZE

Children Rushed Out of Building and Flames Subdued.

The Catholic orphanage on the outskirts of Woodland, a Duluth suburb, was threatened with destruction by fire. The sleeping children were wakened and taken out safely and the fire was later controlled.

There were 100 children in the orphanage. The damage will not exceed $2,000.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The new president of the University of Minnesota will be chosen at the December meeting of the board of regents, according to Dr. Cyrus Northrop, and, also according to Dr. Northrop, President Albert Ross Hill of the University of Missouri has since election day become a much more prominent possibility for the office. Dr. Hill, through a promise, was bound to remain with Missouri if a certain amendment giving the university a greater income was accepted by the people of that state on election day. The amendment was lost.

The 1911 Minnesota legislature shows a slight gain for the minority parties over the last session, but the Republicans will have 131 members out of 183 on joint ballot for election of a United States senator, assuring the re-election of Moses E. Clapp. The Republicans also retain a two-thirds majority in each house. They have lost two members of the senate, one to the Democrats and one to the Prohibitionists, and six members of the house.

It is announced that about 400 men are to be brought to Duluth from Gary, Ind., to work on the new steel plant. The new arrivals will swell the number employed to about 1,000. Many of the laborers coming from Gary are skilled and were engaged in the construction of the steel plant there and all have had some special experience in the various departments of steel plant construction.

A delegation of citizens of McIntosh, Polk county, filed with the secretary of state a petition for the creation of the new county of Columbia. The question will be voted on at the next general election. The cause of this unseemly haste, with the election two years off, was the fear that the people of some other town in the county might get there first with a petition.

A new county was added to Minnesota's list as a result of the recent election and incidentally a long and interesting county seat fight in the northern part of the state was brought to an end. The new county is Pennington county, made up of a portion of Red Lake county, and the new county seat is Thief River Falls.

The Minnesota State Butter and Cheesemakers' convention at Crookston elected the following officers: President, James T. Pomeroy, Mapleton; vice president, James Melvin, Red Lake Falls; secretary, Edwin Hed, Nicollet; treasurer, James T. McCarthy, West Concord.

Having convinced themselves that liquor was being furnished to Indians, either directly or indirectly, government agents closed the saloon of Frank Gagnon at Bemidji. A large quantity of liquor was confiscated and taken out into the street and dumped.

Wholesale liquor dealers of St. Paul have received notices from the Northern Pacific railroad that no more shipments of liquor will be accepted for the district in the northern part of the state which is affected by the Indian treaties.

The Indian bureau has established a subagency in Bemidji, with C. F. Brents, who is to have charge of the work for the Indian department in Minnesota, at its head.

Monday, Nov. 14, a regular passenger, mail and freight service was started on the new Soo line through Bemidji, from Moose Lake to Plummer.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Ralph Donaldson, nineteen years old, a brakeman on the Milwaukee road, was caught between two cars of a train at Northfield and killed. Several cars ran over him before the train was stopped and his body was cut to pieces. The boy's father was killed in a similar accident several years ago.

Nels Larson, a farmer of Wyzata, was instantly killed by a fall from a load of hay he was bringing to Minneapolis. He fell headlong from the top of the load.

Louis McKenzie, a machinist, was almost instantly killed when he fell from the top of an engine he was repairing in the Great Northern shops at St. Paul.

Fire completely destroyed the working house of Calumet "A," Merchants' Elevator company, at Minneapolis, together with 90,000 bushels of grain.

Lewis Thomas, twenty years old, of River Falls, Wis., was burned to death in a box car in the railroad yards at St. Paul.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Dr. Jesse W. Phillips of Austin was found dead in the bathroom of his home. The cause of his death was presumably the result of an overdose of cocaine. Dr. Phillips was about thirty-six years of age.

Mrs. Halvor O. Haugen, one of the earliest residents of Otter Tail county, is dead. She was seventy-six years old and had lived in that county for the last forty-one years.

William Clark Allen, superintendent of the Masonic club and library at Minneapolis and prominent in Masonic circles, died suddenly of heart disease, aged sixty-five.

Cyrus H. Kellogg, one of St. Paul's pioneer business men, is dead. Mr. Kellogg was sixty-eight years old and had been retired from business for several years.

NEWS OF NOTED PERSONS

President Taft has sailed for the isthmus of Panama to get in personal touch with conditions along the big canal. Mr. Taft visited the isthmus just before his inauguration in 1909, but since then various executive and engineering problems have arisen and congress soon must frame legislation as to rates of toll, form of government, the regulation of the sale of coal, the disposition of the Panama railroad and many other things. The president expects to make various recommendations regarding the canal at the coming short session of congress.

Expressing the fear that the interior department will recommend the patenting of the Cunningham Alaskan coal land claims, which he believed to be fraudulent, Gifford Pinchot has appealed to the president to allow him to submit a brief before any such action is given executive approval.

Charles E. Hughes is President Taft's choice for chief justice of the United States supreme court. The president is still holding the appointment open, but there is no longer any doubt that Mr. Hughes will be named.

Friends of United States Senator R. M. La Follette of Wisconsin are trying to persuade him to go to Europe this winter, absenting himself from the coming short session of congress in the interests of his health.

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Published Every Thursday.

JOHN W. EASTMAN,
Late Editor of the Thief River Falls News.

The News requests the kind indulgence of a considerate public for a few issues of this paper until the management gathers up the scattered threads of business which were so suddenly and sadly shattered last week.

The county contest is over and the people in both sections are generally satisfied with the result. There are too many good folks in both north and south to maintain a state of warfare when the war has ceased. The bone of contention has for all time been removed, so let us have peace and be friends as we once were. He who would prolong the contest is not the friends of either Pennington or Red Lake. He has some ulterior object in view.

The Northern Minnesota Development Association meets at Brainerd next week. Local representatives will be in attendance. The deliberations of this great body will have a marked influence on the actions of the approaching legislatative meeting.

The result of the recent elections throughout the whole nation were not so much a hard earned victory for the Democrats as it was a sound rebuke to the Republicans. There will be more mourning in the Republican wigwam within two years if the G. O. P., which controls the congressional session convening in December, fails to accomplish some practical and satisfactory legislation along well known and needed lines.

The News most heartily commends the heroic actions of the loyal firemen in so successfully checking the recent threatening fires in the Masonic block and the Korstad store. These valiant volunteer fire fighters receive but a mere stipend for their services, but still they unselfishly risk life and limb, to say nothing of clothing and health, to save the property of their neighbors. Again let the News state that the fire boys have been the recepients of many deserving compliments for their brave and successful work at the last two fires.

Thanksgiving Today.

Ere the News reaches its readers today the usual ceremonies and formalities will have begun to commemorate one of the nations most sacre holidays—Thanksgiving—and to fulfil in a measure the custom that tradition has taught the people of this great commonwealth to honor and respect as a day set apart for feasting and thanksgiving.

Labor in its various forms will be suspended for the greater portion of the day, and the commercial world will be permitted, in a measure, to take a well needed rest.

The usual exodus to and from the city of those who wish to spend Thanksgiving at home, has been much in evidence the last few days.

Gov. Eberhart expresses the causes of the people's gratitude in the following proclamation:

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

"Another eventful year in the history of the state is drawing to a close, and it behooves a thoughtful and grateful people to take stock of the many blessings vouchsafed them by a wise and discriminating Providence.

"Growth and prosperity in all lines have marked the progress of the year as a whole, while the calamity of the past season has brought its compensations in splendid spirit and generous helpfulness that mitigated its horrors.

"Now, therefore, I, Adolph O. Eberhart, governor of Minnesota, in accordance with the custom of years and in conformity with the action taken by the president of the United States, do hereby designate Thursday, the 24th day of November, 1910 as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and further urge that all the people of the state, according to their preferences, assemble in divine worship as a part of this observence.

"Adolph O. Eberhart,
"Governor of Minnesota."

Certify To New County.

A new county was added to the list last Tuesday, when the state board of canvassers certified to Governor A. O. Eberhart the division of Red Lake county by a majority of 102. The total vote was 1,924 for the division to 1,822 against.

Governor Eberhart will in a few days issue a proclamation officially announcing the creation of the new county.

Trainmen's Dance "Swell" Affair.

The third annual Thanksgiving ball given at the Auditorium last night lived up to its reputation as usual in being the season's biggest social hit.

An enormous crowd was in attendance. In addition to the unusually large crowd from this city a great number of people arrived on the local and Wheatline trains in the evening.

K. Kiesow, one of the oldest resident, near Esplee post office, was in the city, accompanied by his family, yesterday. While in the city Mr. Kiesow made this office a very pleasant call.

Several hunters have arrived in the city from their annual outings in the happy hunting grounds in eastern Beltrami and Roseau counties. They fail to bring much game home with them for the reason that the game cannot be found in its usual haunts as has been the case in former years. The nimrods assign the fall fires and smoke as the reason for the dissapearance of the deer. Reports from the new Soo line indicate that the game hiked away from the country north of the Red lakes towards the woods of the counties mentioned. This was probably brought about by the fires. Some hunters who have been along the Tamarack state that there are several herds of caribou up there and that they must have sought safety in the bogs and swamps of that section during the summer and thus protected themselves from danger of forest fires.

Taxidermist Knute Bonnestrand has received a number of good deer heads for mounting and they nearly all come from south east of the city. A handsome one was secured east of Red Lake Falls. He also had sent him last week a magnificent golden eagle, which was shot near the Lake of the woods. This bird is beautifuly marked and its wings spread about eight feet. Some hunter down at Richville on the Soo sent him a snow white skunk, with instructions to mount the little animal, but to leave out the perfumery. This creature is a freak in the animal kingdom but will make a handsome mount. No moose have been secured so far in the Beltrami country, or if they have none have been brought to this city.

DE LA BRACHE STORY REVIVED

Aerial Flights Arouse Great Interest in Norway—Innovation in Military Service in Denmark.

SWEDEN.

The old De la Brache story is ever new. It seems that it increases in savor with age. A Stockholm correspondent, in reviewing the sensational Helga de la Brache affair, says: The keeper of the national archives has made efforts to find documents that might throw light on the case of Helga de la Brache against the royal house of Sweden. In a special letter to the king he states that the family archives contain nothing referring to four letters which it is claimed that Helga de la Brache handed to Crown Prince Oscar in 1842. But something else was found. The bulky volumes seem to indicate that King Karl XV., at a cabinet meeting held March 25, 1861, granted to Helga de la Brache an annual pension of about $300 out of the secret fund of the foreign department, "without making any investigation to find out whether Miss de la Brache's claims were based on facts or were merely an embryo of a confused imagination." In 1869 the pension was doubled. At a cabinet meeting held March 23, 1870, it was decided that the pension should be discontinued, because it had been ascertained that she was not a daughter of King Oscar IV., Adolf, but a daughter of a customs house officer named Magnussen and his wife.

A Japanese exhibit will be held in the Liberal Art's building in Stockholm during the month of January. There is a contingent of twenty Japanese students at Stockholm, who are at present engaged in arranging the exhibits and incidentally taking a deep interest in the Swedish school and industrial exhibit. A Stockholm journalist had made it a point to follow the movements of these Japanese students since they came to the Swedish capital and he has come to the conclusion that there are no class of foreigners who visit Stockholm who are so eager to observe and learn about everything as are the Japanese. While the Russian saw filers are engaged in drawing maps of Northern Sweden on the sly the Japanese are engaged studying the educational and industrial advancements of the country.

The leaders of the Church of England for a long time have been anxious to come in closer touch with the Church of Sweden. Some time ago the archbishop of Canterbury appointed a commission to meet a similar commission appointed by the archbishop of Sweden. An Episcopal church of the United States was also represented in the former commission. The leaders of this body felt perfectly at home in the Church of Sweden and the joint commission agreed on the necessity of the apostolic succession. The Swedish Lutherans of the United States are by no means eager to form a union with the Episcopal church, because such a union might hamper them in their work and in the free arrangement of their own affairs.

An exchange corespondent states that the breweries of the country are profiting from the law providing for a higher malt tax. According to latest observations it would appear that the consumption of malt was cut down from 30,000 tons to about 25,000 tons, but the receipts increased from about $700,000 to $1,350,000. As there are only fifteen breweries involved it would seem that they either went out of business or began to produce untaxed malt drinks.

The announcement that Herman Lagerkrantz, former minister to the United States, has been appointed vice president of the Swedish Export society, has aroused the sarcasm of a certain Swedish Chicago paper. Now that Minister Lagerkrantz has been retired it would seem that the paper in question would regard it proper to cease engaging in any further tirades against Herr Lagerkrantz' good intentions so far as his native patriotism is concerned.

NORWAY.

The sensation of the last week has been that at last a flying machine, an aeroplane of the Bleriot type, has made a flight in this country, something which has never happened before now. The Swedish aerial navigator, Baron Cederstrom, from Stockholm, is in Christiania and has made several successful flights, mostly around the aerodrome, a large drill ground called Etterstad, on the outskirts of Christiania; but one day he took a flight out over the harbor and rounded one of the islands in the Christiania fjord, called Hovedoen. A silver cup had been put up by the Aero club of Norway for this feat, but as the baron had started ahead of time, before the official judges had arrived, he could not obtain the cup. He received, however, two others for the first start of a flying machine in Norway and for the first successful landing. One amusing incident in connection with the first aerial flight in Norway is the loss of the Aero club's new balloon, Norway. It had been filled with gas and was to make an ascension for the entertainment of the spectators while they were waiting for the baron to get ready. It was a rather windy day and while the balloon was being filled with gas a gust of wind caught it from beneath and, lifting up the sand bags on one side, the big gas bag hurled itself loose from the netting and escaped. It ascended very rapidly, having no ballast, and disappeared into the clouds. Later in the day it was observed at Fredrikstad, making for the ocean at a rate of thirty miles an hour. It means a loss of 5,000 crowns to the club.

A Christiania correspondent of the Minneapolis Journal, in a recent issue, says: The Norwegian-American Steamship line can now be said to have stranded, owing to lack of means to float it. As usual on such occasions the "nachspiel" comes in the form of different parties to the transaction trying to put each other in an unenviable light before the public. The Schikau shipbuilding firm, which was to sell the first steamer to the company, has tried to get even with the representative here in Norway of the Germanischer Lloyd, because as a member of the board of directors he put certain conditions into the buying contract, which the builders could not or would not fulfill. They have published an article in German papers accusing him of demanding more than the Germanischer Lloyd themselves would demand. Mr. Conradi comes out in the Norwegian press and gives the company the lie in return. The fact of the matter is that the shipowners of Norway, as a body, held back from the undertaking and did not subscribe for the stock because they think that as freights are at present the line could not live. Without this contingent it is not possible to raise enough money in this country for a transatlantic line. Therefore the company will wait for a more favorable opportunity.

After all that has been said and written lately in the Norwegian newspapers it is quite evident that Roal Amundsen's change of plans as regards his polar aspirations has pleased the Norwegian populace. Both Mr. Amundsen and a great many of his supporters have felt for a long time that Amundsen could not reasonably have decided to make the change of route unless he had something definite in view. Amundsen's intentions to go on southward—rather in the direction of the South pole—have aroused a new interest in polar research, which is occupying the attention of most of the learned men of the Scandinavian peninsula.

DENMARK.

The so called "Academic Skytteforening," which, in a way, is similar to the American militia, has notified the war department that it will at all times be an available corps of fighting men to call on. This announcement arouses a good deal of interest in Denmark, by reason of the fact that military service is obligatory. The militia in Denmark is altogether an innovation and it may be that the establishment of this voluntary corps may be productive of splendid results in the country, so far as the compulsory military laws are concerned. It is a well known fact that many a young man leaves his native country in order to escape military service and this is true of all the Scandinavian countries. This question of military service has been a bone of contention all along the line, but there are signs that a new era will set in in this respect in the near future.

Enevold Sorensen, former minister of interior affairs in Denmark, made a successful run as "landstingsmand" and carried his district with a good majority. During the time that he served in the cabinet as a government official he gained a reputation for honesty of purpose and for careful judgment and hence it is rather easy to see why his district saw fit to honor him. Sorensen was at one time mentioned as premier, but owing to his advanced age it is doubtful if he will engage in any future plans for entering the cabinet. At all events he will be a strong figure in the "landsting" and there he will certainly come into his own.

Kr. Thomsen, a Danish engineer, has drawn up a plan for utilizing the water power of Gudenaa, the largest river in Denmark. The project calls for an expenditure of almost $1,000,000, and the capacity of the river is estimated at 3,000 horsepower. The government owns the river, so that no private concern can put obstacles in the way of the proposed improvements.

SWEDISH ARTISTS WIN LAURELS

Norwegians Aroused by Statements of Dr. Nansen—Fisheries Dispute for Court of Arbitration.

SWEDEN.

Henry Goddard Leach, in a recent article entitled "Making a Nation of Artists," says: Many young artists are growing up with the national crafts movement in Sweden. Among them Prince Eugene has yielded precedence to a great trio of painters who are truly sons of the people—Zorn, the son of a farmer; Liljefors, the son of a shopkeeper; and Carl Larsson, the son of a day laborer. Since 1900 a host of younger Swedish painters has arisen, whose works are winning recognition in the art centers of Europe. The industrial art movement, spreading among the rank and file of the people, has discovered dormant genius and enlisted it. As a by-product has come, together with the industrial arts, a sudden and unexpected outburst of the fine arts, of painting, sculpture and architecture. New statues and new public buildings are rising everywhere in Sweden today, testifying to her renaissance. In the Royal Museum of Art at Stockholm the visitor may see the inspired Carl Larsson decorating the walls with his gigantic mural paintings, depicting the history of Swedish art, rapidly working, as Kipling would say, "with brushes of comet's hair." And in the public and private galleries he will be impressed, not as in the art collections of other countries, by the works of the old masters, but by the productions of living artists, in whose freshness and virility lie the promise of a glorious future.

"It is gratifying to note," says a Stockholm paper, "that foreign countries are beginning to take an interest in our public school system. Recently Dr. Andrew Draper was sent to Sweden to make a thorough study of the public school system and he reported that he is convinced of the superiority of that system to the one followed in American schools. He holds that the Swedish system may easily be introduced in America. Dr. Draper found that there is no such a thing as ignorance in Sweden and he gives the schools of the country credit for that fact."

The National Anti-Tuberculosis association has decided that it will this year give stipends for nurses who wish to train themselves to care for patients afflicted with tuberculosis. Everything must be done to encourage nurses to take hold of this kind of work, which on the face of it cannot be very pleasant. There are, however, a large number of nurses who are availing themselves of these stipends and many of them are now taking a course at the various sanitariums throughout the country.

The rumor that the Hotel Rydberg had been sold to the Scandinavian Bank and Trust company is without foundation. The big hostelry will continue to do business at the old stand, but it is very probable that an immense new hotel building will take the place of the old one. Rydberg is still a popular place for the middle classes and has been doing a splendid business, especially in the last ten years, when the tourist traffic began to increase at such a rapid rate.

The Socialists of Stockholm are greatly pleased with the recent revolution in Portugal. Some of them predict that the same thing will happen in Sweden, but there is little indication of anything stirring at present, especially after the failure of the great strike, which was in full swing in Sweden about this time a year ago.

Professor Svante Arrhenius will depart for the United States in the spring, where he will deliver a series of lectures on cosmological subjects at Boston and New Haven, Conn. It is also possible that Professor Arrhenius may deliver a lecture at Augustana college at Rock Island, Ill., and at Bethany college, Lindsborg, Kan.

The first steamer from Stockholm bound for Cuba left Stockholm Oct. 24, via Gothenburg and Christiania. It was the Danish steamer Queen Olga and carried a cargo consisting of 1,000 tons of Swedish lumber bound for Havana.

Emigration figures continue to increase at what is regarded in Sweden as an alarming rate. During the first nine months of the present year 22,651 persons have left the country. Of these 15,511 were men and 7,140 women.

NORWAY.

Dr. Nansen has troubles of his own since he delivered that lecture in which he stated that the story about Leif Ericksen discovering America in the year [illegible] was a myth. His countrymen are up in arms against him and all the educators of the country have taken issue with him and the famous explorer struck the wrong key entirely with his unpopular statement. In his lecture it appears that Nansen declared that as early as the Seventh and Eighth century there existed an Irish myth about an island of grapes lying six days' journey westward into the great ocean. This island was peopled by the dead, who walked about in white robes. This story, he said, is the same as "Hvitremannaland" of the Norse sagas and Nansen's further claim is that the story was picked up in Ireland by Adam of Bremen and made use of in his story of the Norsemen and their travels. Altogether Adam of Bremen cannot, according to Nansen, be relied upon. On the other hand, Nansen admitted that it was not altogether unreasonable to suppose that the Norwegians had reached the American shore from their settlements in Greenland, but the voyages of Leif, he claims, as related in the Icelandic sagas, are only fakes. The Norwegians are up in arms against Nansen. One of those among the many prominent men who have taken a decided issue with Nansen is Professor Alexander Bugge, who supports the contention of the sagas, and Bugge, who is an historian and an expert on Norse saga literature, is fully equipped to take up the discussion with Dr. Nansen, who has spent most of his time upon the problems of the Arctic ocean.

The Norwegian press, which up to this time has never had what might be called a national organization, has made a move in that direction and every paper of any consequence in the entire country except the Aftenposten and the Social Demokraten have joined the movement. Representatives of the new national organization held a meeting in Christiania Oct. 29. An executive committee has been appointed and plans are now under way for having a great meeting in Christiania next summer, when a permanent organization will be effected. This organization, if once it receives the proper kind of a start, will prove of immense benefit to the newspapers of the country, both from a business and political standpoint.

The new Norwegian-Australian steamship line, which will operate in connection with Lundgren & Co. of Gothenburg, has ordered in England two eleven-knot steamers of 8,500 tons, which are to be completed and ready for service during the early part of May, next year. The company also plans to order two more steamers a year from now and keep four boats in service between Norway and Australia.

Toild Topelius, a daughter of the great Swedish-Finnish novelist, Zacharias Topelius, died at her home in Christiania Oct. 24. She had resided in the Norwegian capital about twelve years and owned a beautiful villa only a short distance from the city. She detested publicity and since early childhood has led a most quiet and exclusive life.

Not a drop of intoxicating liquors is said to be manufactured or allowed to be imported into the little island of the North called Iceland.

DENMARK.

A rather interesting conflict has developed between Icelandic and English fishermen, which may have to be settled by an international court of arbitration. An Icelandic fisheries inspector shouted to the captain of an English trawler, the Chieftain, that he was fishing within the territorial limits of Iceland. The latter claimed that he was operating outside the limits, but the Icelander boarded the trawler and tried all he could to make the trawler leave the place. Finally the trawler did leave the Icelandic waters, taking the Icelandic inspector along to England, however. Both parties claim that they are right and it will be up to an international court to settle the matter.

A peculiar accident occurred in Copenhagen a few days ago when a cyclist collided with an automobile, resulting in the almost immediate death of Asmus Hinrichsen, who, on his bicycle, was on his way to his work. Hinrichsen struck the automobile on the side and was thrown with such force through the glass that his head was crushed, the unfortunate man also receiving a large gash in his throat, which resulted in such loss of blood that he died in less than ten minutes.

The Swedish and Norwegian members of the court of arbitration, which is to settle the controversy between Sweden and Norway regarding the pasturing of reindeer of the northern part of the Scandinavian peninsula, have elected Amtmann Jonquieres of Sjaelland, Denmark, to succeed the late Professor Matzen of Copenhagen as president of the court.

Dr. Jessen, director of the Berlin Museum of Industrial Art, has been in Copenhagen recently for the purpose of arranging an industrial art exhibition for Denmark in Berlin this winter. The exhibit will consist of porcelain, gold and silver ware, bookbinding, furniture and all other kinds of Danish industrial art.

The cholera epidemic in Copenhagen continues and has been very fatal, especially among children. Recently the authorities reported 597 cases, or about six times as many as there were a year ago at the same time.

Chamberlain Bernsthof has been appointed chief of the foreign department and Count Grevenskop-Castenskiold has been appointed Danish ambassador at Rome and Vienna.

Peder Kostren, mayor of Copenhagen, died on Oct. 29 after a short illness. He attained an age of sixty-three years and was a popular official.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Four persons were drowned near Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., when a rowboat sank in the St. Marys river. They were Fred Parker, Cecil Brown and Reginald Levil, all prominent young men of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and John Sherward, night ferryman, who used the rowboat after the steam ferry had ceased operations for the day.

COURTS TO PASS ON "LID"

Liquor Interests Will Fight Order of Indian Bureau.

Although a meeting of many of the principal brewers and wholesale liquor dealers of the state held at St. Paul resulted in a formal announcement that the liquor manufacturers and dealers would obey to the letter the order of the bureau of Indian affairs, shutting all liquor out of a large portion of Northern Minnesota, there appears to be no doubt that the whole controversy will reach the courts in some shape. Just what form the litigation will take is not yet known. A statement given out by F. W. Zollman, attorney for the Minnesota Brewers' association, points plainly to the conclusion that there will be a legal battle.

Judge Crosby was one of the best known men in Minnesota. He was born in Wilmington, Vt., in 1830 and reached Hastings in 1852.

The robbers after their raid went to the barn of John Brooks, where they stole a horse and buggy and drove north toward the Twin Cities.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Supposed to be dead, and while the family and neighbors sat around a corpse supposed to be his corpse, Martin Maloney of St. Paul telephoned just in time to break up his own wake. Maloney disappeared a few days previous. A dead body being found in the river, a bullet through its head, it was promptly identified as Maloney. Friends and family declared it certainly was he and many were the lamentations. Everybody was sitting around most dismally when Maloney called over the telephone.

The demand for divorces has increased during the present year in the Hennepin county district court and there has not been a corresponding increase in the number of marriage licenses granted. The divorce record in Hennepin county has usually held a steady ratio with the marriage licenses, but this year there has been a gain on the divorce side. Up to Nov. 6 the court had granted 361 divorces. During the same period 3,028 marriage licenses were issued.

Patent for 6,570 acres of swamp land in the Cass Lake land district has been received by Governor Eberhart from the department of the interior at Washington. KILLS HIS WIFE AND HIMSELF

Otter Tail County Man's Reply to Papers Served on Him in a Suit for Divorce.

Henry Bauer, aged thirty-five, a farmer residing in Otter Tail county, entered the Lewis hotel at Detroit and deliberately shot his wife, from whom he had been separated, killing her almost instantly. He then turned the revolver on himself and fell dead at her feet.

Mrs. Bauer was about twenty years of age. The couple had been unable to agree and for several months past the woman had been employed as a domestic at the Lewis hotel. Nov. 7 she had papers served on her husband, starting an action for divorce, and this apparently angered him, for as he entered the hotel he remarked to the proprietress, Mrs. S. D. Lewis, "I have come to pay for that divorce." He then entered the kitchen, where his wife was, and the tragedy followed.

Bauer arrived in Detroit just before dinner with his brother Charles, from whom he borrowed $5 with the avowed intention of paying part of the costs of a defense in the divorce proceedings, but instead he used the money to purchase the revolver and ammunition.

Coroner Frasier decided that no inquest was necessary. The body of Bauer was turned over to his brother Charles. Mrs. Bauer's relatives reside in Virginia and they have been notified of the tragedy.

Bauer fired two bullets into his wife's body, the first passing near the heart and the second through her temple. As she fell to the floor he fired a bullet directly through his brain and expired immediately. Bauer was very much under the influence of liquor at the time he committed the act.

AGED WOMAN IS CONVICTED

Jury Finds Against Mrs. Eliza Goebel on Charge of Manslaughter.

Mrs. Eliza Goebel, seventy-seven years old, was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree in district court at Moorhead. She is so deaf that she did not hear the verdict as read by the foreman of the jury and did not know that she had been convicted until told by her attorney, J. M. Wotherow.

"The law will reward those who testified against me," said the aged woman, but she showed no emotion. She was removed to the county jail and probably will not be sentenced for several days.

Mrs. Goebel was charged with the performance of a criminal operation upon a young girl of Hitterdal, Minn., and was convicted upon the strength of an ante-mortem statement made by the girl in the presence of County Attorney N. I. Johnson.

TWO BOYS ARE DROWNED

Chisago City Scene of Fatality When Boys Fall Into Lake.

Andreas Row and George Peterson, both aged ten, were drowned in Green lake, near Chisago City, while skating. The Row lad had a pair of skates and his companion had none, to get around which difficulty the lads took turns about and pushed each other along the ice. They got too near the open water in the middle of the lake, however, and went in. Peterson died without a struggle and the Row boy swam for some time, making a terrific struggle to get on top of the ice, which persisted in crumbling at his touch. The bodies were recovered two hours after drowning. The boys were the sons of Simon Row and August Peterson, well to do farmers of this community.

Boy Eats Poisoned Cheese.

George, the eleven-year-old son of George Stritch of Winona county, is dead as a result of eating cheese poisoned with strychnine, which had been set out at his home by his mother to kill rats. How Eggs Are Hatched In China.

There is in China a curious method of hatching eggs. First the eggs are placed in tiers in a large basket, twice the size of an ordinary barrel, which is thickly lined with hay and carefully closed from the air by a tight fitting cover of twisted straw. In three days' time the eggs are taken out and replaced in a different order, those at the surface being put in the lower tier. This is repeated every third day for a fortnight, when the eggs are removed from the basket and placed on a shelf in another room, being carefully covered with bran. In a day or two the chickens chip the shells and make their appearance into the world. The success of this method is attributed to the fact that the animal heat of the egg, being retained by the basket which is formed of material not conducting caloric, is sufficient to support animal life and develop it.—Detroit Free Press.

Thought Once Was Enough.

The Sunday school lesson was from that Scripture which teaches that if your brother strikes you on the cheek you should turn the other also and endure even for seventy times seven. Johnny had listened to his teacher very attentively while she emphasized this fact, and after the lesson the superintendent rose to make a few remarks.

"Now, boys," she said, "how many times ought another boy to strike you before you hit him back?"

"Just about once!" promptly answered Johnny.—Judge.

A Bismarck Story.

Lord Ampthill once found Bismarck reading Andersen's story on the "Ugly Duckling," which relates how a duck hatched a swan's egg and how the cygnet was jeered at by his putative brethren, the ducklings, until one day a troop of lordly swans floating down the river saluted him as one of their race. "Ah," observed Bismarck, "it was a long time before my poor mother could be persuaded that in hatching me she had not produced a goose."

The Sacrifice.

Mrs. Richleigh (scornfully)—I wish you had more brains, Ferdinand, instead of so much money. Ferdinand (unmoved)—I did once, dear, but it took all of them to get the money.—Widow.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Lafayette Young, editor of the Des Moines (Ia.) Capital, has been appointed United States senator by Governor Carroll to succeed the late Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver. Mr. Young has been publisher of the Capital since 1890. He is sixty-two years old, is a native of Iowa and served twelve years in the Iowa senate. He nominated Theodore Roosevelt for vice president at Philadelphia in 1900 and is an orator of wide reputation.

One hundred and thirty thousand women were added to the voting strength of the state of Washington by the adoption of an amendment for equal suffrage to the constitution at the election on Nov. 8.

"Grey" and "Gray."

What is the difference, if any, between "grey" and "gray," aside from the matter of spelling?

The editor of the Oxford Dictionary some years ago made extended inquiry as to usage and found that opinions in London varied. Replies to his questions showed that in Great Britain the form grey is the more frequent in use, despite the authority of Dr. Johnson and later lexicographers, who give the preference to gray. Many correspondents said that they used the two forms with a difference of meaning or application, the distinction most generally recognized being that grey denotes a more delicate or lighter tint than gray. Others considered the difference to be that gray is a warmer color or that it has a mixture of red or brown. Another group held that grey has more of sentiment, gray more of color, which may mean that grey is a suggestion rather than a positive outline.—New York Press.

Twice Declined.

The invitation list of the governor general of Canada is made out strictly in accordance with precedent, but is not kept up to date always, the aid who has to send the invitations out—generally an Englishman or a Scotchman—not always being au courant with changes on the list. The late Sir Antoine Dorion, chief justice of Quebec, was once invited to some function, as was proper, but Lady Dorion, who was dead, was invited likewise. Sir Antoine accepted for himself, but declined for her ladyship, on the ground that she was in the cemetery. The next year, however, the same mistake was made, so the old judge wrote back to the aid-de-camp in waiting:

"Sir Antoine Dorion accepts, etc., but, her ladyship being still in St Anne's cemetery, Sir Antoine is compelled again to decline the invitation for her."

A New Game.

William is the only son of a pious minister, and, though he is only three and a half years of age, his father considers it quite time he learned properly to observe grace on coming to the table. His parents have more than once endeavored to explain to him the reasons for his so doing, but the little boy regards it as no more than an amusing game.

The other afternoon his older sister made another attempt to interest him in this duty. All were seated at dinner, and on the first words of the grace William's small head dropped in his hands in apparent reverence. His sister, secretly pleased with her success, stole a glance at him, when, to the consternation of the family, he sprang up, shouting gleefully:

"Oh, Sis, you're it! I saw you peep!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Barred Them Out.

A proprietor of a cotton mill in England who is something of a philosopher posted up on the factory gates the following notice:

"No cigars or good looking men admitted."

When asked for an explanation he said: "I'll tell you. The one will set a flame ageing among my cottons and the other among the girls. I won't admit such inflammable and dangerous things into my establishment at any risk."

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

The Leghorns and the Brahmas are the Jerseys and Shorthorns of the poultry world, the similarities being traceable in several important respects.

The average man gives a far better account of himself and is also a more useful member of society if he is so fixed that he has to keep scratching. What is true of the human is true of the hen tribe.

It was the fellow who went right on cultivating during the dry weather and using plenty of bug poison at the critical time who has been rewarded the past few weeks by digging a satisfactory crop of potatoes.

A little stack of clover or alfalfa should be included in the winter food supply of every flock of hens from which eggs are expected during the winter months. It provides protein in a form which they greatly relish.

Straw is not only a more economical feed for horses than rich hays when they are not working hard, but is preferable from the standpoint of their health. A good deal of bright straw will be thus fed the coming winter.

The class of people who squander the most money on get-rich-quick schemes are not much better nor a great deal worse than the sharpers who fleece them, for both are playing the same game—getting something for nothing—the latter successfully, the former unsuccessfully.

Where the current is available there is no light for use in the barn that is so safe and convenient as the electric. It is always on tap, and there isn't a continual expenditure for broken chimneys, while the danger from fire as a result of the cow kicking the light over is reduced to a minimum.

The everyday experience of the average dairyman as well as the handling of special milking tests of long duration proves very conclusively that a cow which is given a rest of six or eight weeks between milking spells will produce just as much milk and butter fat in the course of a year as a cow which is milked to within a few days of dropping her calf. It is very natural that this is so, for if she does not have this period for recuperation she has just so much less vigor and reserve force with which to begin her second period of lactation.

Oats have been recognized as a sort of ideal horse feed so long that any suggestion which appears to controvert this view seems to be sort of revolutionary, but this is just what the Iowa experiment station has done lately. It has concluded some rather exhaustive horse feeding experiments and finds that, while oats are usually the lowest priced cereal fed to horses, they may in the end be the most costly ration that can be used. It was found that by substituting for them oilmeal, cottonseed meal or gluten meal just as satisfactory results were had at a less cost. In results secured a value of $60 per ton was placed on oilmeal and an even higher price on cottonseed meal.

While it may be viewed as an act of generosity for parents to divide all of their property equally among their several children, there are good reasons why they should keep enough of it to provide themselves a modest home and a good living in their old age, entirely apart from the hospitality which, as a rule, is gladly extended to them in the homes of their children. There is no place like home, and to people of no other age is this truer than those well along in years. To have a spot or realm which is one's own and in which one can do as he pleases is a prerogative that every parent should enjoy. It not only breeds a spirit of independence on the part of the parent, but induces a wholesome respect on the part of children and other relatives.

An investigation by members of the forest service in one section in Oregon where there had been much loss from forest fires disclosed what was believed to be an apparatus purposely designed for the setting of these fires. It was about as large as a gallon oil can, equipped with a time fuse and a supply of oil which would be ignited some time after the contraption was placed. The miscreant who operated this infernal machine probably took it into the section which he wished to fire, placed it, piled a lot of dry stuff around it, started the fuse, mounted his horse and by the time the blaze got under headway was miles away. It is likely a sharp lookout will be kept for devils of this type next season, and it is safe to assume that if caught they will be allowed a mighty short time to make explanations.

TOO MUCH WATER.

There is no irrigation enterprise that is worth a copper unless water is available for irrigation purposes at those intervals during the summer months when it is needed, and yet there are many owners of tracts in sections where ditch water has been abundant who have been severe sufferers financially for the very simple reason that they have had at their disposal and used too much water. In fact, tracts which have had too little water and where economy has been a matter of necessity have proved the most successful from the standpoint of crop production. In many of the arid sections of the mountain and Pacific coast states, where irrigation enterprises have been developed, serious trouble has resulted on lower levels from rising of underground waters, a trouble that goes hand in hand with that due to the presence of alkalis, which are dissolved and brought to the surface in such quantities as to retard or stop plant growth. While the term alkali is generally used to refer to any salts in the soil—usually sodium sulphate, sodium chloride and sodium carbonate—the last only is an alkaline salt. Unless the natural drainage is such as to carry off this accumulation of underground water or an artificial system is provided to do so such land is bound to become so wet or so alkaline as to be useless. The cure, and the only permanent cure, for alkali trouble lies in the installment of a drainage system which will cause a downward and lateral movement of the soil water. While this may be effected in part by the open ditch system, the underground tile system, with main leads and laterals at intervals to properly handle the flow, has proved most effective. The alkali trouble may be postponed sometimes by a sparse use of water and very thorough cultivation, but these will not prove an effective cure. Inasmuch as one ranch may be flooded with water coming through the subsoil from a higher level, it is imperative that the drainage proposition should be viewed as well as handled as a co-operative and community enterprise. It is advisable not to locate in a section where the troubles referred to are likely to develop, but if one is already located and such troubles develop subirrigation offers the only practical solution.

DAIRYING IN DENMARK.

Professor Boeggild, a noted Danish dairy expert, has recently been on a tour of America and has given those who have listened to his addresses many interesting facts and impressions of the famous dairy country from which he hails. While Denmark has but one-seventh the area of the state of Minnesota, it has an equal number of cows—1,200,000. He states that twenty-five years ago the average Danish cow gave 3,000 pounds of milk, which yielded from 80 to 100 pounds of butter fat. This standard has been raised by selection, testing and breeding until the average cow gives 8,200 pounds of milk in a year, which contains from 200 to 300 pounds of butter fat. Along with this improvement in the cows of the kingdom there has been a corresponding advance in the prosperity of the farmers. Thirty years ago they were poor, devoting most of their energies to raising rye, barley and oats and exporting them in the rough. Today they import large quantities of cereal foodstuffs and export millions of pounds of the finest butter. Prosperity today is general among these same farmers or their descendants. A most important factor in the large success which has been achieved in the Danish dairy business has been the co-operative creameries. The first, costing $2,000, was started in 1882 with 300 cows. Today there are 1,200 co-operative concerns and 300 creameries which are privately owned. Much of the success attending these co-operative enterprises Professor Boeggild attributes to loyalty to the organization, which in turn he considers due to placing on each individual member his full share of responsibility for the direction and success of the enterprise.

WILL IT PAY?

Parents often ask themselves the question whether it will pay to send the boy away to school or college. This will depend a bit on the college, but vastly more on the boy and the stuff—the grit and perseverance he possesses. In a general way it may be said that if the boy cares enough about an education to work for it—such part of the financial end as may be necessary—it will pay him to go to college, and it will pay his folks in satisfaction to make up the balance of the needed expense money. On the other hand, if the boy is too proud or too lazy to lift his finger in working his own way and has to call on the old gentleman every five or six weeks for a fat check, a good share of which goes into "incidental" expenses, a college education in all probability would make him a more useless member of society than he is now, and he would better stay at home. However, if the boy has a desire to buckle into the job and give it a fair tryout, helping to earn his way in such ways as are possible, it is worth letting him have a chance to do so, whereas if he doesn't take to it he can turn his hand to something else that's useful and worth while. It may not be necessary or advisable for the boy to do anything toward earning his way, but he should prize an education sufficiently so that he would be willing to work if it were necessary.

AMBASSADORS.

They Enjoy Some Curious Privileges at European Courts.

In the popular mind—the American mind at least—there is very little difference between an ambassador and a minister, but the former is entitled to very many privileges abroad that are denied to a mere envoy.

For instance, one curious privilege of an ambassador is that he, and he alone, when dismissed, may turn his back to the sovereign to whose court he is accredited. The mode of procedure, generally speaking, is as follows:

When the audience is at an end the ambassador waits to be dismissed by the sovereign. When dismissed the ambassador bows, retires three paces, bows again, retires three paces, bows a third time, turns on his heels and walks to the folding doors. But when the reigning sovereign is a woman still politer methods obtain. To turn his back would be discourteous; to walk backward would be to resign a privilege; therefore the ambassador retires sideways like a crab. He keeps one eye on the sovereign and with the other he endeavors to find the door. By this unique means he contrives to evince all politeness to the sovereign and at the same time retain one of his privileges.

Another privilege of ambassadors is the right of being ushered into the royal presence through folding doors, both of which must be flung wide for him. No one save an ambassador can claim this privilege, the most any nonambassadorial individual can expect is that one of the doors shall be opened to him.

One privilege appertaining to the ambassador, one capable of causing great inconvenience to the ruler, is the right of demanding admission to the sovereign at any hour of day or night. This was one of the reasons why Abdul Hamid, when sultan of Turkey, opposed the raising of our mission at Constantinople to an embassy. It was decidedly inconvenient at times to see the American representative at all.

To the European the most important feature of the ambassador's makeup is his sword. There the blade of the sword is a rapier blade with the point blunted. It has been facetiously observed abroad that the use the sword is put to in addition to its trick of tripping up its wearer is usually the harmless one of poking fires. One diplomatist was said to file his bills on his sword when it was not otherwise engaged, and for a long while it was a standing witticism of the corps diplomatique in Europe that the Russian ambassadors used their swords to file broken treaties, a circumstance that was held to account for the inordinate length of their weapons.—Harper's Weekly.

Emmet's Presence of Mind.

A story is told of Robert Emmet which proves his secretive power and resolution. He was fond of studying chemistry, and one night late, after the family had gone to bed, he swallowed a large quantity of corrosive sublimate in mistake for some acid cooling powder. He immediately discovered his mistake and knew that death must shortly ensue unless he instantly swallowed the only antidote, chalk. Timid men would have torn at the bell, roused all the family and sent for a stomach pump. Emmet called no one, made no noise, but, stealing down stairs and unlocking the front door, went into the stable, scraped some chalk which he knew to be there and took sufficient doses of it to neutralize the poison.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Miss Eva LaCoe In a Critical Condition as a Result of Explosion.

Accident Came as a Result of Mistaking Gasoline for Kerosene.

Miss Eva LaCoe, who resides with her parents on the East Side, had an accident last Friday that may prove very serious and possibly fatal.

The accident happened, while she was filling a kerosene stove with what she thought to be kerosene, but later proved to be gasoline.

An explosion followed and the gasoline was thrown all over her body, making it in an instant a mass of flames.

Assistance was soon at hand and the flames smothered, but not until she had sustained very serious injuries.

She is now reported as being in a grave condition although hopes are being entertained for her recovery.

Development "Meet" at Brainerd.

The third annual meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be held at Brainard today and tomorrow and promises to be the biggest meeting of its kind held in this state.

Considerable interest has been manifested in this meeting and every county in this state will undoubtedly send a liberal number of delegates to participate in this meeting.

The questions of most vital importance to be considered by this meeting will be that of reapportionment, good roads and the development of the vacant lands in the northern part of the state, and some of the most prominent speakers in the state including Gov. Eberhart will be present.

Another question to be considered will be that of fire protection, and in all likelihood some action regarding such protection will be recommended for the consideration of the legislature.

Ed. O'Hara Improving.

The many friends of Ed. O'Hara, who went to Rochester a couple of weeks ago, will be pleased to learn that he successfully withstood the operation for cancer of the stomach at the Mayo Bros' hospital, and is now on a rapid road to recovery. He expects to be able to return to this city in about three weeks.

MARRIED SATURDAY

Walter Robbecke and Miss Grace Kennedy Bound In Wedlock

Marriage Takes Place at Home of Brides Parents In Detroit

Last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in Detroit occurred the marriage of Walter W. Robbecke to Miss Grace Kennedy, the ceremony being performed in the presence of immediate friends and relatives.

The contracting parties are both well known and popular young people of this city, and the News joins in with a host of friends in wishing them a long and happy married life.

The happy couple left the same evening on a short honeymoon trip, and will visit among other places St. Paul, Fargo and Fergus Falls, and are expected home this week.

Mr. Robbecke will on his return to this city assume active charge of the Ogahmah Hotel and will conduct that business in the future.

Leaves This City.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wernham departed last Saturday afternoon for Chippewa Falls, Wis., where they are to make their future home, and where Mr. Wernham will engage in the mercantile business.

Mr. Wernham has for a number of years been traveling salesman for the Duluth firm of Wyman-Partridge and has made his headquarters in this city.

During their residence in this city they have made countless friends, who deeply regret their loss from our midst, and who will wish them abundant success in their new undertaking.

Get Two Moose.

Game Warden E. C. Cooke and Dr. C. R. Crandall of Thief River Falls, after a week's weary hunt succeeded last Saturday in killing two moose. The doctor shot the larger one, which Mr. Cooke thought would weigh 1,400 pounds. With five moose in the bunch, which they trailed, two separated, and they followed the tracks of the three. With sheer good luck they came upon the three unobserved and were able to make a near approach with lucky results. Mr. Cooke contributed a goodly chunk of his moose meat for the Thanksgiving dinner of the Times editor, for which he has our thanks.—Roseau Co. Times.

NEW COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

Gov. Eberhart Issues Proclamation Which Officially Creates New County.

On Wednesday the 23rd inst. Governor A. O. Eberhart issued the proclamation that added another county to those already formed in the State. As the upper portion of the state develops and increases in population, the formation of new counties will continue until the total number in the state will reach probably one hundred.

This most recent addition of which this city is the county seat is named Pennington after Mr. Edmund Pennington, President of the Soo Railway and at once takes it place as one of the thriving, progressive counties of the State.

It comprises over seventeen townships of splendid agricultural land. The incorporated village of St. Hilaire and this city. It starts life the possessor of a good court house and modern jail and the lands upon which they stand presented by Thief River Falls. Its portion of the debts of the old county when the property is divided will be very small and as there are no expensive public works to maintain a very reasonable rate of taxation is expected.

By the interchange of property, the officials of the new county are very comfortably housed for the winter in the basement of the Auditorium where the city offices are located.

The county grants the city the free use of the jail and the portion of the court house now occupied by it and in return receives very pleasant quarters paying twenty-five dollars per month for light and heat. The county board is composed of Peter Hedeen, Kratka; Olof Larson, Numedal; Pete Wold, Highlanding; Daniel Shaw, Thief River Falls and Ed A. Aubol of St. Hilaire. The latter was elected chairman and Mr. Larson, vice chairman. In early spring the court house will be remodeled, vaults built and other changes made that will make it very suitable for the purpose.

The officials appointed by the commissioners for the new county are as follows.

A. H. Fasel, Auditor
E. L. Quist, Register of Deeds
H. E. Ives, Clerk of Court
A. E. Mostue, Supt. of Schools
Dr. Swanson, St. Hilaire, Coroner,

Andrew Trovoten, Treasurer
E. M. Stanton, Attorney
Jesse LeBree, Sheriff
C. H. Martz, Co. Surveyor

With the appointment of Wm. Michelet as Judge of Probate by the governor which has been announced, this completes the organization.

The formation of the new county of Pennington was, as is well known the result of a six years fight for the removal of the county seat from Red Lake Falls to this city. Many meetings of the commissioners were held, or rather called as they were seldom attended when this matter was up, petitions innumerable one at least of which was lost, stolen or strayed. Sessions of court from court commissioner to the Supreme Court injuctions, summons, interpleadings, pleadings and all the rest of those processes of law that the average laymen thinks are designed for delay only were used to prevent the people who are the last and final tribunal from deciding the matter by their votes. When at last they were given an opportunity to speak they did so and the matter is now settled, not perhaps as everyone would have liked but settled nevertheless. During those six years some hard feeling has of course been engendered, but as in the "late unpleasantness" between another North and South, both sides worked for what they thought was right so let us forget our recent differences, take a new hold on other matters and in friendly rivalry wage a different and perhaps more profitable fight.

Married In This City.

Last Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Teal, in this city, occurred the marriage of Miss Rose Whitead, of Euclid, to Mr. W. A. Rose, also of Euclid. The bridal couple returned to Euclid the latter part of the week, and will reside on the Axtell farm, where they will be at home to their friends after January 1st.

Thief River Falls lodge No. 287 A. O. U. W. will hold their annual election tomorrow night in the Masonic Hall and all members are urged to be present.

Wilson-Bradrud Wedding.

On Wednesday evening of last week in this city occurred the wedding of Oscar E. Wilson to Miss Sarah Bradrud, both young people of Wyandotte, the nuptial knot being tied by Rev. Aastad.

Now In Grygla Country.

The dredges of the Northwestern Drainage company have completed their work in the Mud Lake country and work of building camps and hauling supplies to the vicinity of Liner and Grygla was commenced last week.

The dredges will be taken apart and hauled to the new places and reconstructed and will be in readiness for service again as soon as the frost goes out of the ground in the spring.

WILL HAVE DAY POWER

City's Council Grants a Continuation of all Day Service.

Big Dynamos Furnished Power by Big Mill Engines.

The city council met last Friday evening, and the question whether or not to discontinue the electric power days during the period when the scarity of water in the river is most eminent, was brought before the council.

The power as it is, is furnished by the big saw mill engines and, as this is regarded as a heavy expense it was suggested advisable to discontinue the day service until the water in the river would have increased to such an extent to admit of running the power plant by water power.

This would necessarily mean that the users of electric motors would have to switch off to gasoline or steam and the expense in so doing would be more than to off-set the diticit should there being any from running a continuous current.

The council was unanimous in granting the continuation of service and henceforth there will be a continuos day and night service.

Lost Horse Found.

The Percheon Stallion, which so mysteriously disappeared from a freight car at Crookston last week was discovered at a farm about four miles from Crookston. It was at first thought a clever feat of burglarly had been committed, but at present induations show that the door in some manner had become unfastend and the horse released in that manner.

The horse was being shipped from Ashby to Pembina.

Wounded While Hunting.

I. Steenerson, a nephew of the Congressman, was accidently shot while hunting deer with a party of friends near Warroad. He got separated from his companion, who soon returned in his direction. Hearing a rustling, and thinking a deer was approaching, one of the party fired a shot in the direction of Steenerson, without seeing him. Steenerson was shot in the leg, but, though painfully wounded, he will recover. His companions made a litter and carried him fifteen miles to town.

WILL BUILD NEW DAM

Thief River Falls to Enlarge Scope of Municipal Ownership.

Will Build Dam Six Miles South of City.

This city is having plans made for a dam across Lake river, four miles south of the town. The adjoining property has been secured by city authorities and work will be started in the spring. The city owns the electric lighting plant, but the powerhouse is on leased property. It is the purpose to remove the powerhouse to the new dam and install a plant sufficiently strong to supply the city with all the electric light and power, which may be required. The river has been low and the present power is not able to meet the demands made upon it.

T. R. Johnstone Leaves Crookston

Crookston is to loose one of her prominent citizen in the person of T. R. Johnstone, who shortly leaves for St. Paul where he will make his home in the future.

Mr. Johnstone has long been recognized as a popular asset to the part of the state where he has made his residence and for which he has ever been an ardent booster, and his leaving will be regarded as no little loss.

For two years he has occupied the position of president of the Northwestern Minnesota agricultural society, and his services have ever been sought for in various other positions of trust.

He conceived the the idea of organizing the Polk county fair association and his interest in everything pertaining to the growth of this section of the state particularly fitted him for the position that was thrust upon him.

Cream Buyer Arrested.

Max Ingber, of Red Lake Falls, was arrested last week by H. A. Lidenberg, state creamery inspector, for testing cream without a license, and was fined $25 and costs.

Joe. Holland, of Lambert, was also arrested, and brought to Brooks and was fined $15 and costs for selling adulterated milk.

It is understood that Ingber will appeal his case.

The wrestling match between Walter Miller of St. Paul and Otto Suter of Cleveland, held at the Auditorium at St. Paul, terminated in a draw. READY FOR WINTER.

In the course of a very short interval it is reasonable to expect that winter will be at hand for a four months' sojourn, more or less severe in character, and there are a number of things that should be attended to before the season of long winter evenings sets in. They should include, besides ample supplies of fuel, such repairing and overhauling of furnace, stove and chimneys as will give a maximum result in heat with a minimum danger of being routed out of a warm bed by fire some cold night. If one is in a latitude where the mercury goes to zero or below these winter plans should include giving the house some sort of banking to make the floors warm and keep the "praties" from freezing. For this purpose a strip of tarred building paper, the upper edge fastened with cleats to the lower clapboards and the lower secured with a slight embankment of earth, will answer the purpose nicely. If this does not give sufficient protection it may be re-enforced with litter, leaves or straw. The storm windows should be inspected (there should be none on the sleeping rooms) and broken lights fixed, and it is well to put them up before it gets so cold a fellow has to put his fingers in his mouth by turns to keep them from freezing. For the barn the "get ready" should include not only sufficient supplies of roughage and grain, but such protection of them as will reduce weather waste to a minimum, and also repairs about the yards, pens and stables, including the hauling out of accumulated manure, fixing doors and windows and in the case of henhouse and dairy barn giving the interiors a good coat of whitewash. Some or all of these things may need doing, but if by the time the cold weather sets in things are shipshape the winter ahead will be enjoyed in a far larger measure than if these make ready measures are postponed or neglected.

SOME FEEDING TESTS.

The Arizona experiment station has lately concluded some feeding tests with lambs with a view to determining the feeding value of several kinds of rations. A like number of four groups of lambs of the same age were fed respectively sorghum hay with the seed, alfalfa hay, alfalfa hay with sorghum hay and sorghum hay alone. When the cost per pound of gain was figured out at the close of the feeding period it was found that the cheapest gain was made with the mixed ration, sorghum and alfalfa, half and half, the cost per pound of gain being 5.65 cents. With alfalfa alone the cost was 5.86 cents, with sorghum hay with the seed 9.55 cents, while with the sorghum hay alone the ration was fed at a small loss. The test shows in a very nice way the value of a balanced ration along the line of economical meat production; that the cheapest production was by the use of the high priced alfalfa and sorghum, while the most costly and wasteful ration was the relatively cheap sorghum, because it was not properly balanced by a flesh forming ration. When fed alone the alfalfa hay, the flesh former, was not most economically used, because it was not offset by the fat forming sorghum. In the great corn country the same feeding lesson may be applied by balancing the timothy hay and corn stover with clover or some of the field peas or beans. Where none of the legumes is available the flesh forming part of the ration may be supplied in the shape of oil or cottonseed meal, which is expensive, it is true, but which in the end is not as expensive as feeding as much of the timothy and stover as will be required to provide the desired amount of protein.

IRRIGATION PAID HIM.

In the arid and semiarid sections of the mountain and Pacific coast states the use of water for irrigation purposes is taken as a matter of course, and the remarkable yields of both fruit and vegetables under the intensive type of soil culture followed are matters of common record. During the past summer semiarid conditions prevailed throughout a large portion of the country where in normal years the rainfall is ample. One Mississippi valley farmer whose case we read about the other day took advantage of a nearby supply of artesian water and irrigated a patch of one-sixth of an acre of tomatoes, and a week or more before a killing frost hit this patch he had sold over $400 worth of fruit from this area and had many more dollars' worth in sight. This is at the rate of $2,400 an acre gross, which ranks well up with the best returns in the strictly fruit growing sections of the west. His unusual success suggests an aid which might be used more often than it is for increasing the yield of fruits and vegetables during dry seasons.

With pure bred fowls selling at prices ranging from $2 to $2,000 it is perhaps unreasonable to expect all around perfection in an individual for which the owner asks but $4 or $5.

The sheep killing dog is not unlike some men you now and then run across, seemingly pious and well behaved by daylight, but raisin' the devil o' nights. Both need chaining up twenty-four hours of the day.

Now that the leaves are off it will be a good idea to cut the grape or other vine from the apple or shade tree unless it is the intention to sacrifice tree to vine. If the tree is already done for it may well be left as a trellis for the vine.

Figures recently compiled show that in some way or another, by hook or crook, and many are disposed to think by the latter method chiefly, the corporations of the country have acquired possession of 164,000,000 acres of land in the United States, while small holders own but 105,000,000 acres.

In latitudes where the strawberry bed requires a covering for winter protection this should not be put on until the ground is thoroughly frozen. When the covering is applied, and this may be straw, cornstalks or coarse hay, it should be only thick enough to effectively prevent the alternate thawing and freezing during the winter and early spring months.

In view of the number of sheep which have been killed in different parts of the country the past few weeks by worthless neighborhood dogs whose only other activity seems to be chasing teams on the public highway, it would seem a very appropriate time to dig canine graves behind many a barn with shingle markers bearing the emblem, "In Memory of Our Towser."

The cow that just barely pays her way may be carried through the summer on pasture without the owner being the loser thereby, but when the winter season comes on and high priced hay and grain must be fed to secure results at the pail it is time to sell such loafers to the butcher for whatever they will bring. It's a dead sure thing that a dairyman who is well to do won't want to keep this type of cows, while the man who is poor can't afford to.

Poultrymen have been a good deal concerned the past few months over the rather widespread appearance of a disease among poultry which has thus far defied successful diagnosis, including cause and cure. It seems to take both young and old and works with suddenness. Instances have been noted where hens have been taken with the disease and died within a few minutes after laying. An examination of dead fowls seems to show a diseased condition of the liver, but what is responsible for this is not known.

A newspaper clipping which came under our notice the other day told of a tight fisted old codger who gave as an excuse for not taking the home paper that he was too poor, but who a few days later read an ad. in some other paper telling of a recipe for making a horse stop slabbering, sent on receipt of $1.50. He bit on this bait, and when the recipe came it contained the laconic direction, "Teach your horse to spit." The account doesn't state what this fellow did next.

Data which have been collected by the Minnesota experiment station relative to the cost of keeping farm work horses show that this averages about $90 per head per year, including feed, care, shoeing, veterinary attendance and depreciation. Of this amount about $60 is for the feed bill. The information collected shows further that but three hours' work per day through the year is had from the average work horse. Two methods are suggested whereby this situation may be improved—feeding a cheaper winter ration when the horses are idle and so arranging their work through the year as to get more work out of them.

Many a man has solved the problem of keeping the boy on the farm by taking him into partnership, as it were, at least in some department of the farming operations. This is frequently shown on barns in which pure bred stock is kept in the inscription "Mr. Blank & Son." Briefly stated, the reason why so many boys leave the farm is because they have little or no interest in a financial way in its operations, which expressed in another way means that they have nothing to look forward to or work for. This partnership idea ought not only to bring father and son nearer together, but to simplify and increase the profits from all of the farming operations.

An interesting fact has been made very clear this season in connection with land, naturally well drained, which has been lately tiled—namely, that in the driest season known in years this land has produced larger crops of better quality than land lying near by which was apparently sufficiently dry for crop production. This greater productiveness seems directly due to the fact that in land which is tiled there is a much freer circulation of the air, which means a mellower and looser soil and a more rapid passage to the surface of subsoil moisture. This same condition results in a rapid absorption into the soil of rain that does fall, thus reducing to a minimum the volume which flows off from the surface, washing and gullying the soil.

Exercise and health are so closely connected in the case of the fowls that this idea as affecting the care of the flock during the winter months should be kept constantly in mind. Exercise means health, and health means eggs.

If any one of the house plants have a sickly yellow color it is fair to assume that there is a lack of nitrogen in the soil. This may be supplied by using a moderate amount of plant food, watering the plants with dilute ammonia or a small quantity of manure water.

The question of fresh air for the poultry is not a vital one during the summer months, when they are out of doors all day and when the door and windows of the poultry house are left wide open at night. During the winter months, however, the question is very important. It is true with hens as with human beings that there is no more prolific cause of colds and other bronchial troubles than bad air. Fresh air should be supplied in the henhouse during the coldest weather even at the expense of warmth.

The New Jersey mosquito, which has deservedly achieved a national reputation, has in the past had as a breeding ground some 290,000 acres of salt marshes. But its days seem to be numbered, for long straight ditches are now being dug through these marshes which drain the depressions and which contain sufficient running water so that myriads of little fish with which the drainage ditches have been stocked are enabled to live, feasting on the mosquito larvae, for which they have a lusty appetite. Depressions which do not drain readily are doped with oil or filled with sand.

While the words gutta percha and rubber are sometimes used interchangeably, they are quite different. The former is procured from trees which grow in the Malay peninsula, while rubber is from a tree native to the western hemisphere, the supply coming chiefly from the wild trees of Brazil and the cultivated groves of the Straits Settlements. Rubber has been known since the discovery of America, but it was not until 1823 that any serious attempt was made to use it on a commercial scale, while the major portion of the present enormous rubber business has been a growth of the past fifteen years.

Corn smut, known to every one who is acquainted with the corn plant, was formerly thought to be injurious to stock, causing abortion and in rarer instances what is known as the cornstalk disease. Some time ago the bureau of animal industry at Washington conducted some feeding experiments in which as high as eleven pounds of smut per day were fed to some of the animals. The animals seemed to relish the smut and to thrive on it, no injurious effects whatever being noted. From this it is safe to assume that the amount of smut which cattle would get hold of in eating corn fodder in one shape or another would be entirely harmless.

As the time for the winter snows approach the owner of the newly set family or commercial orchard should straightway take the measures necessary to protect the trees from the attacks of rabbits and mice. In guarding against the mice one of the first things to be done is to remove all dead grass, leaves or litter from the base of the tree within a radius of two or three feet, which will prevent their nesting near the trees. To protect from both mice and rabbits the trunks of the young trees should be wrapped with some kind of paper well up to the lower branches. For this purpose wood veneer or building paper may be used, though old newspapers used four or six ply will answer the same purpose and be the cheapest wrapper that can be got. The paper or other wrapper should be tied securely with binding twine or cotton cord. In way of supplementing this rodent campaign, guns, traps and ferrets should be called into service.

The efficiency of thousands of rural schools might be vastly increased were a serious attempt made to teach in simple and direct way some of the fundamental and very important things which are taught elaborately at the agricultural colleges. The list of subjects discussed and demonstrated ought to include the testing of seed corn, the determination of butter fat in milk by the Babcock test, the testing and cure for sour soils, a study of small grains and a demonstration of the advantage of growing pure bred over growing scrub grain, something about balanced rations and the philosophy of them. The rural school would seem to offer an admirable meeting place for the young people of the country and fundamental instruction in things which promise so much for the agricultural betterment of farming communities. It may be the teacher is city bred or knows little about these interesting and important subjects. But this should not prove a serious obstacle, for enterprising companies are publishing books which outline this work in a very satisfactory manner. A little determination, coupled with the assistance which boys and girls of the school will be only too glad to give, will make possible a very helpful and practical line of study and experimental work which will serve to keep many a restless boy in school and vary the routine work for both boys and girls.

SCHOOL NOTES.

An extra radiator was placed in the Masonic block school room this week. But any room not specificially constructed for school room purposes can never be entirely satisfactory. This room is the best temporary place which could be secured for the children and will be vacated at the close of this month.

Arrangements are about perfected for the three month's course beginning in January for farm and city boys and girls who can afford to attend school only during the winter months. A course for farmers and their wives will also be presented in the college of agriculture and will include a two days'. institute. The farmers' course will be held one day each week for six weeks. Further paticulars will be announced later.

Esther Stebbins, Bertha Olson and Monday. Everybody was pleased to Muday. Everybody was pleased to greet their former school-mates and to learn of their success at normal and college.

An inventory of the school furniture was taken last week. The seating capacity is less than the enrollment and a moderate amount of new equipment will have to be secured to seat all the students when the Lincoln is occupied.

The normal students are teaching in Miss Anderson's room at the Knox this week.

Mothers are requested to attach some mark inside the children's overshoes to enable them to recognize their own foot-wear. Fifty pairs of overshoes in one cloak room and belonging to fifty little people about the same age would puzzle more mature people than first graders.

Several of the teachers spent their Thanksgiving at their homes in various parts of the state.

The civics class has already learned the names of the county officers of Pennington county.

Mr. Schmitz has a promising class of large boys in vocal music. They meet after dismissal afternoons and are doing surprisingly good work. This makes the second strong vocal organization in the high school.

The state high school board requires that high school students carry only four solid subjects. When students are permitted to carry more than this it is expressly understood that their standings must be satisfactory-must be more than a mere pass mark. Where local students fail to meet this requirement they must submit to the workings of the rule.

Building Machine Shop.

The Northwestern Drainage company's large machine shop which is being constructed in the west portion of this city is fast nearing completion, and is expected to be ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

The dimensions of this building are 100 feet long by 40 feet wide with an L of 100 by 20 feet.

This building will be equipped with all the machinery required for the repairing and also for construction of the large dredges.

Herrick-Watson Marriage.

Last Saturday at the home of the brides' parents occured the marriage of Miss Carlie M. Watson to Mr. Fred Herrick.

The bride is an accomplished young lady who on her number of visits has made a host of friends in this city. The groom needs no introduction to the majority of the people of this city and vicinity, he having been manager of the Thief River Grocery Company since its organization here.

The happy couple arrived here last Tuesday and will go to housekeeping in the Evenson flat on North LaBree avenue just recently occupied by Geo. Werham.

The News joins in with their numerous friends in extending congratulations.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian church will hold their annual sale of Fancy articles and Christmas goods in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon and evening, Dec. 1st. A good supper of cooked food including pies, cakes, bread and cookies. A ten cent lunch will also be served during the afternoon and evening. Anyone wanting Christmas presents will do well to call at the church and see what the ladies have for sale.

Contest Stirs County

The contest started to determine whether John Saugstad or A. D. Stephens will represent Polk county in the state senate is the sensation of the hour here. The three main points of the contest will be as follows:

First—That Saugstad, having been defeated at the primaries, was not eligible as an independent candidate for the same office at the general election. In his only published statement he said "I had not intended to become a candidate after defeat at the polls, but if elected I will qualify and serve," and this is construed as announcing that he was a candidate in effect.

Second—That hundreds of stickers with his name on were counted for him as a candidate for senator when they were placed on the ballot for every office thereon from governor down to county surveyor and even in the place designated to record the vote on county division.

Third—That at scores of voting precincts peddlers of stickers were inside the polling places, and in many instances the peddlers followed the voters into the booths.

In addition, it is asserted that over zealous followers of Saugstad insisted after voting, in showing their ballot publicly before the judges and others in the polling places, and pointing to the sticker they had affixed and announcing "I want people to know that I voted for Saugstad." These and many other alleged irregularities will be sworn to by several witnesses.

Annexing More Territory.

In a statement, taking up the indian treaty question in Minnesota, the department of the interior has the following to say in regard to the treaty taking in this territory.

"There are six separate treaties involved in the Minnesota situation, in each of which it is, in effect declared that those portions of the law of the United States prohibiting the introduction or traffic in ardent spirits, wines, or other liquors in the Indian country should continue in force within the territory covered by such treaty until otherwise provided. These six treaties were made up at different times with different bands of Indians in Minnesota.

"The territory in the northwestern corner of the state, including Kittson county, parts of Roseau, Marshall, Red Lake, Polk and Norman counties, was ceded to the United States by treaty with the Red Lake and Pembina bands of Chippewa Indians on Oct. 2, 1863. The treaty contained this provision:

"The laws of the United States now in force, or that may hereafter be enacted, prohibiting the introduction and sale of spirituous liquors in the Indian country, shall be in full force and effect throughout the country ceded until otherwise directed by congress or the president of the United States."

WHAT CAN YOU GIVE?

The following pathetic and unique request for Red Cross Seals same to the office of the Red Cross a few days ago:

"Dear Sirs: I have only two cents that mama gave me a long time ago. Teacher told us about you and the Red Cross Seals. I can't send a penny, so I put a stamp on this postal card. Will you send me a Red Cross Seal for it?

"Carrie—"

If a little girl from her scanty store of carefully hoarded pennies can give all that she has for the sake of those who suffer from tuberculosis, what can you give?

WHAT'S A SEAL?

"Mamma, what's a seal?" asked eight-year-old Mary, looking up from the paper, whose black headlines she was laboriously deciphering.

"A seal is a little animal that lives in the ocean. We use its fur for coats and wraps," was the enlightening answer of the parent.

Mary puckered her brow for some minutes, and again interrogated, "Mamma, will seals stop plagues?" referring perhaps to some of the Biblical narratives she had heard told in Sunday school.

"Stop plagues! Why, child, what are you talking about?" cried the mother in amazement.

"Why here it says, 'Red Cross Seals Stop White Plague,'" triumphantly holding up the paper.

Then mamma explained to her little girl that the Red Cross Seal is a tiny stamp-like sticker which is placed on the back of letters and packages coming from Santa Claus and others. Every seal costs a penny and every penny goes to fight and cure consumption, which is the real name of the white plague, and which is an awful sickness. Mamma told her of a little girl n their own neighborhood who had consumption, but who was given a chance to get well because the people had bought Red Cross Seals.

Mary litsened attentively, and finally touched by the closeness f the appeal, said "Mamma, I think I'd rather have some of those seals than a new dolly."

The first marriage license issued in Pennington county was issued by Clerk of Court H. E. Ives last Tuesday to Ole Braaten, of this city, and Clara Rustabakke, of the town of North.

Our manager of the new Auditorium certainly is labouring to bring the best and highest rank attractions and artists to our city. Mr. Halvorson made arrangements for a great concert with very well known artists. One of them is the greatest Bohemian prima donna Contralto, now living. Wherever Mme. Hesse-Sprotte—this is the name of the singer—made her appearance, everywhere she had the greatest success. All newspapers speak only with the highest praise of her voice, interpretation and artistic work. The musical courier in New York wrote once; "While Madam Hesse-Sprotte now has studios in the Twin Cities, one cannot get over the impression that she does not belong to the Northwest, but to the world, and the world will soon claim her as it has all other great artists". The Minneapolis Tribune says: "Such singing as one is not given the opportunity of listening to many times in the course of a lifetime". The concert will be given by Mme Hesse-Sprotte, Contralto;—Mr. James A. Bliss-an american young pianist and composer of eminent talent and brilliant technic and Mrs. Carrie Fumbach-Bliss,—the accompanist of Mme. Hesse-Sprotte;—very interesting will be the numbers for two pianos, played by Mr. Bliss and Mrs. C. Fumbach-Bliss. The Western musical Herald writes about these two artists: "Nothing more delightful than their two piano work can be imagined". And about Mr. Bliss the critic says: "Building upon a firm groundwork of musicianship and illuminated by a sincere and an unswerving devotion to his art Mr. Bliss has succeeded in erecting individuality and independence".

Upon the basic structure of his work, he has spread much original color. The individuality of his interpretations is undeniable and sometimes a little startling, they are always artistic, always scholarly and always redolent of the charm of vigor and poetry combined.

Thief River's Poetess

The Chicago Sunday Tribune of November 27, gives considerable space to a Thief River Fall's poetess, Mrs. Maurine Hathaway. A booklet of lyrics by Mrs. Hathaway entitled "Embers" is just being issued. A number of verses taken from "Embers" is published in the Chicago Tribune, also a sketch of her life and how she came to write poetry.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Martin Olson, of St. Hilaire Sustain Injuries Which Later Prove Fatal.

Fell Out of Sleigh While Crossing a Deep Ditch.

Martin Olson, a young farmer near St. Hilaire, died last Monday morning at 3 o'clock from injuries sustained in a fall last Saturday.

It appears that Olson in company with Sever Nelson, of St. Hilaire, were out in search of some cattle, and while attempting to cross a deep ditch, the sleigh gave a sudden jar, throwing Olson from the sleigh, he sustaining injuries that proved fatal.

Mr. Olson is a single man about 31 years of age, and a son of the late Christian Olson.

The funeral services were held at St. Hilaire Tuesday afternoon.

Zion Church.

Services will be held in the Zion church next Sunday evening at 7:45. A cordial invitation to all.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Zion church will meet at the home of Mrs. T. A. Fossum next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All welcome. A. L. Larson, pastor.

In the matter of acres of land under ditch Idaho is said to be in the lead, with California a close second.

A little sewing machine oil judiciously applied will put a stop to that prolonged squeaking of bedroom and closed doors.

Too often it is a person who cannot swim who rocks the boat and the one who doesn't seem to know breech from muzzle who is shot with the "unloaded" gun.

A boy without moral stamina and backbone is like a boat without sail or rudder—destined to be a floater and drifter and sooner or later doomed to be wrecked on the rocks and shoals.

There is very good reason why tuberculosis doesn't make very much headway in hogs that are raised for market, the bulk of them being converted into bacon, hams and salt pork before the germs get squared away and ready for business.

The United States army regulations provide the following rations for animals in the service: For horses, fourteen pounds of hay and twelve pounds of corn, oats or barley per day; for mules, fourteen pounds of hay and nine pounds of corn, oats or barley.

The University of Missouri has a Holstein cow that in a recent six months' milking test gave 1,400 pounds more milk than any other cow in a like period on record. She is now on the last half of the period, and it is expected that she will break all records for both milk and butter fat production.

One of the warmest as well as driest stationary poultry houses we ever saw was made of clay hollow blocks, the dead air spaces in the block insuring both of these conditions. The interior of the house was plastered with a thin coat of cement, which served to make the structure still warmer and filled up crevices which would serve as a refuge for lice.

During the past summer reports from the District of Columbia were to the effect that a bounty of 4 cents a hundred was paid for flies. Normally this might result in extermination of the pest if there weren't folks just depraved enough to view this bounty sufficient to justify breeding them purposely, the way some farmers nourish pairs of old wolves so as to get bounty on the pelts of the whelps in the fall.

Inasmuch as a tile drainage system is no better than the poorest section of it, it is a matter of long run economy and good business management to exercise especial care in the selection of tile of the best make for the drainage system. When this has been done the purchaser should cull out with utmost care any pieces that are weak and defective. An attempt is made to do this at the factory, but the process should be repeated by the purchaser.

When an article or commodity is advertised at 30 or 40 per cent below the prices which usually prevail there is quite likely a reason for it, and in a good many cases this reason is an inferior quality. The commodity may be "wrecking house" lumber, $4.97 morris chairs or $19.98 buggies. We are not urging folks to stop buying at the bargain, but only to appreciate the fact that a considerable reduction in price almost invariably denotes a lack in both quality and durability.

A long step would be taken toward improving the highways of the country were so simple a thing to be done as the enactment by state legislatures of laws compelling the use of wide tired vehicles for the hauling of loads to and from market. This would not alter the contour of roads out of shape, take the place of the road drag or of graveling or macadamizing roads which would otherwise be impassable, but it would do more to improve country roads than any simple policy which has been put into effect up to the present time.

The Maine experiment station recommends the following spray for the interior of poultry houses to kill lice: Three parts kerosene to one part crude carbolic acid, 90 to 95 per cent strength. This should be applied as a paint or spray to roosting boards, nest boxes, floor and walls. The mixtures should be stirred when being used. The insecticide can be most quickly applied as a spray, and for this any two or three gallon hand outfit may be used. It is recommended that the interior of the henhouse be whitewashed as soon as the spray has been applied.

Some analyses of solid and liquid manures which have been made by an English soil specialist place the fertilizer value of fresh urine from a ton of linseed cake at $12.50, while the value of fresh manure from the same quantity of linseed cake is but $2. This investigation gives emphasis to suggestions which have been made of late showing the necessity of more care in saving liquid manure, which in the usual process of handling the homemade fertilizers is usually lost. Straw of itself has slight fertilizing value, but when used as an absorbent of liquid manure it serves a most valuable and useful mission. Thus instead of allowing the stacks of straw to rot down in the field, as is the case in so many sections, it should be scattered in the feed yards and lots and used generously for bedding, which will serve the twofold purpose of making the cattle and horses comfortable and saving the fertilizer in question.

SOME LESSONS OF A DRY SEASON

While the protracted drought which prevailed over a large portion of the country worked serious hardship in limited areas where it was unduly severe, it has nevertheless forced home some lessons for the agriculturist that he could hardly have learned in any other way. Chief among these is the demonstration of the value of persistent cultivation of tilled crops as a means of conserving moisture. Results along this line in the shape of good yield and fine quality of both grain and vegetables have been an eye opener of a very convincing kind. Again, there has been demonstrated on thousands of rich, low acres what could be expected from the careful tiling of such land, the unusually dry conditions prevailing this season producing conditions similar to those which would prevail were the land properly tiled. Several tracts of this kind that we know of, heretofore used only as pasture or producing rank weeds, have this season yielded bumper crops of corn and small grain. The question which the owner of such a tract may well ask himself in view of these results is, Can I afford to let this land lie idle, or largely so, year after year when tiling it will make it yield bountifully? The answer of many who have had such a demonstration under their very noses will be an emphatic "No!" Another lesson of the dry season, though perhaps of less wide application, is the benefit which may be derived in seasons of short rainfall from irrigating plants. While such irrigation would hardly be feasible for large tracts, very satisfactory financial results have accompanied an application of water on fruit and vegetable gardens. A fourth lesson which the drought has enforced as a result of an unusually light crop of hay is the need as well as the wisdom of making a more economical disposal of the great amount of corn fodder which in so much of the territory west of the Mississippi has been going to waste year after year. Closely connected with this last truth has been demonstrated the tremendous advantage which the man with the silo has over the one who has not as a result of being able to furnish his cows with a succulent ration when pastures are parched and brown. As stated, the drought has borne with much severity on those in sections where worst, but it will have been worth the cost if the lessons which it has taught have been brought effectively to the attention of tillers of the soil.

A GOOD FALL TO BUY FEEDERS.

Taking into account the two chief factors, stock prices and prices of grain, the coming months would seem to offer an unusually favorable period for the buying and feeding of lambs, steers and young pigs. Corn, which will be the chief factor in the fattening process, is now both reasonable in price and of remarkably high quality and feeding value. True, roughage is scarce and high priced, but the quality will in a measure offset this drawback, while oat straw is of an unusually good quality, and this and corn stover, which has been saved in larger quantities than usual, can be substituted in part for the high priced clover and alfalfa. Moreover, prices for live stock are good and bid fair to be maintained, so that the feeds referred to can be used at a substantial profit. Not the least advantage of feeding a considerable number of animals will [illegible] the value of the manurial byproduct [illegible] the feeding process to the farm on which the animals are kept. Every big stock market has reliable firms that make a business of picking up healthy young stock for just such feeding operations—usually western bred stuff—and they will supply the need of the farmer who cannot secure in his own neighborhood what he may want. In some smaller towns buyers make a specialty of handling this kind of stock, in which case they may be dealt with.

STORING APPLES.

Inasmuch as just a fair barrel of apples will cost this season from $4 to $5, it will be worth while, if one wishes to have the supply last well through the winter, to take care in storing them. A good way of doing this is to go through the fruit carefully, picking out that which is soundest and freest from blemish, wrapping them in pieces of paper and [illegible] an empty barrel or box. [illegible] the apples that [illegible] inferior or damaged [illegible] themselves and should be [illegible] this way none of the fruit [illegible] wasted. The best temperature [illegible] apples is as [illegible] possible, and for this purpose an upstairs bedroom [illegible] will often be a better place of storage than a warm cellar.

As a rule, a bull develops ugliness and treachery in just the proportion that he is denied opportunity for exercise by means of which he can work off surplus physical energy. Notwithstanding this, the usual practice is to confine a bull the closer the uglier he gets.

There is no one of the unpretentious flowers that is so satisfactory from the standpoint of hardiness, freedom from insect enemies, sweetness and fragrance as is the modest English violet. It requires little care and blossoms daintily and profusely at seasons when many other flowering plants are idle.

While there is no getting around the fact of an unusually short hay crop, there is some consolation in the fact that a ton of it well cured is worth about two tons of hay put up in seasons of heavy rainfall and muggy weather for curing. In view of this fact a smaller feed will give equally good results.

The unusually high price of bacon is due in part to the fact that the pig supply is inadequate to meet the rapidly growing demand, but even more to the fact that the demand for this particular part of the pig far outstrips the demand for the other portions of the carcass. Just so long as sugar cured breakfast bacon continues as toothsome as it is at present and any considerable number of folks have the wherewithal to buy, the price is likely to go beyond the reach of the fellow who has a small purse and a large family of kids.

Inasmuch as there seems to be little likelihood in these days of scorching automobiles and skittish horses that the country roads will be made narrower than at present, the unused strip at either side of the road in sections where soil and climatic conditions are favorable might well be set with a row of fruit trees which are hardy and are known to do well in a given locality. Travelers in Germany and other European countries report this idea as carried out very generally, and the amount of fruits produced for the benefit of the public by these highway trees is very considerable in quantity.

During the coming winter feeding season, with prices of bright, well cured hay very high, the feeding value of oat straw should be taken account of. A ton of clover hay contains about five times as much protein as a ton of bright oat straw, about twice as much fat and not quite so much of carbohydrates. This means that with clover hay worth from $10 to $12 bright oat straw should be worth from $4 to $5. So long as the straw is deficient in protein as compared with the two other ingredients a mixed ration of one-third straw to two-thirds clover hay would be economical. For idle work horses the roughage may consist largely of straw.

The fall and early winter is the time for securing the seed of walnut, peach, plum and other nut or fruit trees. So far as possible it is well to reproduce in the winter storing of the seeds conditions which would exist were they to fall from the tree to the ground beneath and remain there during the winter months. In the case of the fruit seeds, they should be cleaned, dried and mixed with sand. When cold weather has set in the receptacle containing them should be set outside, the seed being moistened and covered with earth or other covering which will prevent alternate thawing and freezing. The action of the frost during the winter will crack the shell and make germination possible. The seeds may be planted in nursery rows in the spring after the soil is warm. In the case of walnuts or other nuts which it is desired to propagate, they may be scattered thinly in some place where they will not be disturbed and covered with leaves or straw. In planting the nuts it is well to plant them where the trees are to stand permanently.

The Illinois experiment station has recently compiled figures giving the relative cost of round and rectangular barns. These show that a round barn having a diameter of sixty feet has the same capacity as a rectangular structure 36 by 78½ feet and costs in material alone $799.76, while the material for the latter costs $1,023.27 if plank frame and $1,233.41 if mortise frame. With cost of foundation and a 250 ton silo included the figures were $1,045.68 for the round structure and $1,424.43 and $1,634.57 respectively for the plank and mortise frame rectangular barns. In summing up the advantages of the round barn the bulletin gives convenience, strength and cheapness as the chief ones. The advantage of convenience is found in the unobstructed mow, which requires less labor in stowing away hay and the ease and fewer steps required in getting feed to the cows. The strength of the circular barn is due to the fact that advantage is taken of the lineal strength of the material used, while the exposed surfaces offer less resistance to wind pressure. In the matter of cost of materials the round barn makes possible a saving of from 34 to 58 per cent. Any one planning to build a barn might profitably look over the bulletin in question, No. 143, free to the citizens of the state and to be had for 10 cents by nonresidents.

The development in the potato situation during the past three weeks has certainly kept buyers and sellers guessing. With tubers retailing at $1.40 Aug. 15 and the prospect good that they would climb still higher, the late crop is turning out far better than it was expected it could, with the result that prices have suffered a decided slump, though this is doubtless encouraged by the buyers, who are always bears until the crop is well out of the hands of the growers. The grower who is fixed for it might store part of his crop rather than let it go at once for less than 40 cents, in which case not all of his eggs would be in one basket. He may get more than 50 cents by Christmas, and then again he may not.

In 1909 the people of the United States imported $75,000,000 of Cuban sugar, but if the development in the beet sugar industry of the country keeps up at the present rate another decade will see a good share of this produced at home. While the high price and scarcity of labor tend to discourage the growing of any crop which savors of intensive soil tillage, it should be said in behalf of beet growing that beets do not pull heavily on the land, that there is a good revenue in raising them and that they leave the soil in the best possible tilth for other crops used in rotation. Conditions to be found in the states of the west where water is on tap from ditch when wanted and where sunshine is the rule through all the growing season are ideal for their culture, for the soil is marvelously rich and the weed pest reduced to a minimum.

While pocket gophers are quite generally distributed over the western two-thirds of the United States, the damage they inflict to crops and trees is perhaps most serious in those sections of the west where summer rainfall is limited and where natural herbage, which usually forms a portion of their bill of fare, is scarce. The underground habits of the rodent are so familiar as hardly to need description. The methods of destruction are chiefly by means of traps and poison. The ordinary steel traps give good results by placing in the main tunnel. Several types of special gopher traps are preferable because they kill the animal at once. Of poisons which have been used strychnia sulphate is the most effective and is made as follows: Dissolve an ounce of the poison in a quart of boiling water and add a quart of thick sugar sirup, mixing thoroughly. This amount is enough to poison thirty-five pounds of barley or wheat or thirty pounds of green alfalfa. If the latter is used more water is added. When the bait has been prepared it can be inserted into the gopher tunnels through holes made with a spade handle shod with a metal point and having a metal bar for the foot about fifteen inches from the point. For loose soils a pointed stick will serve the purpose. Where the soil is too hard for a prod a spade will be needed in digging to the tunnels. In studies which have been made by the biological survey of the natural enemies of the gopher a very high value is placed on the barn owl, the great blue heron, badgers, skunks, weasels and snakes, and of the last named enemies the Pacific bull snake is considered most valuable. All of these gopher enemies are stanch friends of the grain and fruit ranchman and should be accorded his protection at all times.

APPEALS FOR HELP

Chief Nay-ay-tah-Wub In Conference With Steenerson Last week

Points Out a Dissmal Story of Existing Conditions Among Tribesmen.

Chief Nay-ay-tah-wub, the most influential chief of the Red Lake band of Indians, and Chief Pay-she-ke-shig of the same tribe, was in a conference with Congressman Steenerson at Crookston last week regarding relief measures, which they insist are necessary for most of the tribe. They were accompanied by Joseph O. Roy, an educated Indian, who acted as interpreter.

The government pays an annuity of $16 50 to each Indian, this sum coming from the sale of land from the eleven towns near this city a few years ago. However, the government has withheld the payments due the minors since the fall of 1905, six payments having been withheld. Last spring the secretary of the interior agreed to pay all back money in one payment, which would amount to about $1,500 for the average Indian family.

In July another order came whereby $100 was to be retained and banked to the credit of each minor and the balance paid to the head of the family. The first of the present month still another order came which reduced the sum a parent Indian could receive to $25 for each minor at one time.

The Indians are preparing a petition to be presented to Senator Clapp asking that the original agreement be carried out. Chief Nay-ay-tah-wub, through an interpreter, says:

"At this season of the year the Indians generally have plenty of corn, potatoes, fish, venison and vegetables to carry us through the winter. This year we are destitute, with winter staring us in the face. We all raise small crops, but this year the dry weather ruined them, and we had just enough for use during the summer, and fall. We have nothing in our winter pits to eat during the cold weather.

"Learning of the scarcity of hay, the Indians hired help and bought supplies on credit and put up thousands of tons of hay, which we could have sold at big prices and secured sufficient money to carry us through the winter. Then the great forest and swamp fires came and burned nearly all our hay. Very few saved any at all, and the entire band has no more than will be required to feed our ponies and cows. Now we have neither the hay nor credit left at the stores or trading posts.

"We have no fish supply. Every fal between Oct. 20 and Nov. 10 we use nets to catch trollupes and white fish, which we freeze for the winter. This winter great winds prevailed and we could catch little or nothing.

"The great forest fires have driven the deer, bear and moose from the reservation, making game very scarce, and we have no moose meat or venison. Hunting prospects are poor on the reservation and we cannot hunt off the reservation any more than the white man.

"The trapping is getting poorer every year and we can make little now, where we could make a great deal in the olden days. We are destitute, and unless the money due us is paid early in the winter our tribes will suffer terrible hardships and many of them will die.

"The white man does not seem to know that we are not living as we used to do. We are living in houses. We need stoves and furniture. We did not need them, when we were living in tepees. They say we squander our money, when we get considerable at once. This is not true. Some few may squander, like the white man, but when we received money before we did not squander it. We built houses and bought furniture. Our squaws like to have our homes homelike. They want decent beds and bureaus. They want decent dishes and looking glasses. They want their children clothed comfortably and they like little nick nacks to make their homes attractive like the white lady. This is not squandering money.

"You want to civilize the Indian? Then remember that civilization brings with it civilized desires. We spend our money for horses and cows. We cannot live like we used to".

Court Commissioner Tarrant

At the adjourned meeting of the County commissioners held on Friday the second, N. W. Tarrant formerly Judge of Probate of Red Lake county for six years, was appointed Court commissioner. Mr. Tarrant announces that one of the privileges of his new position is that of performing the marriage ceremony, and that as he had a large and lucrative practice in this line, while Judge of Probate, he will marry the first couple for nothing and add his blessing.

MAY BUILD RAILROAD

Plan to Connect Grain Belt With Head of Lake

Road to Connect With Soo Line In This City

According to well founded reports Thief River Falls may in the near future have another railroad added to its collection.

Negotiations for the construction of a railroad from points in southwestern North Dakota to this city was commenced last week.

The purpose of this railroad will be to connect the great North Dakota grain belt with the head of the Lakes, thus furnishing quicker and more direct shipping facilities to market.

The plan is to construct the line either from Carrington or Bismark thru Grand Forks and to connect with Soo line at a point near Viking west of this city.

It has been known for some time that Grand Forks is desirous of having a road built South West from that city to Carrington, and possibly Bismark the Capital, and easterly to this city for a connection with Duluth.

To further the project a conference of representatives of the commercial clubs of the two cities is to be held, in the near future. Such a road would give central North Dakota a very direct haul to and from the Great Lakes.

It is thought that when this project is completed, which, it undoubtedly will be, the line again will be extended from this city thru to International Falls, connecting with the Canadian Northern at that point.

Erick Odelin Dead

Erick Odelin died at his home in this city last Saturday, aged 54 years, 8 months. Deceased was born in Norway in 1856. He leaves a wife and three children to survive him. The funeral services were held last Tuesday.

Some Costly Chickens.

Orie Sjoberg, the well known Middle River merchant, was arrested last week by Game Warden Munch and was brought before Judge V. A. Greer at Middle River for shooting three prairie chickens last August.

He pleaded guilty and was fined $32.

Grand Concert

The concert given by Mme. B. Hesse-Sprotte and supporting company at the Auditorium last Friday evening was a decided musical treat. Mme. Hesse-Sprotte has a charming and powerful contralto voice and is classed way above the average concert singer. The duets by Mr. and Mrs. Bliss also created quite a sensation and brought forth an abundance of applause.

In fact the concert as a whole was of a nature which is seldom available to the music loving public in a city of this size, but was not accorded the patronage here that the cause merited.

Increase In Entire State Is 18.5 Per Cent Since Last Census

Red Lake County Shows an Increase of 3,745 Since Last Census.

The statistics of the thirteenth census has been completed and was given out by the census bureau at Washington last Wednesday. The figures give Minnesota an increase of 324,314 or 18 5 per cent over 1,751,394 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 440,160, or 33.8 per cent.

Red Lake county, including that portion set off for Pennington county, shows an increase of 3,745 since the last census, the total is 15,940 against 12,195 in 1900.

Marshall county shows an increase of 640 since last census, the total being 16,338 against 15,698. Beltrami county has a very large increase over the former census figures, showing 7,507 inhabitants increase. The figures are for 1910, 19,337; against 11,830 in 1900.

Norman county showed a decrease since last census. The total number for 1910 was only 13,446 while in 1900 it reached 15,045.

State To Be Run on Business Plan.

St. Paul, Dec. 3.—Complete reorganization of some of the departments of state government, the elimination of obsolete boards and commissions and a general reconstruction to meet the demands of advanced business methods is to be brought about by Governor Eberhart, partly by his own power and partly by recommendation to the legislature. This announcement was made by the governor this morning on his return from the meeting of the Northern development congress at Brainerd.

"I am working with all my energy to gather data and information with that end in view", he said at the state capitol. "Part of this reconstruction may be outlined in my message to the legislature if I can get it in shape".

That a half dozen boards and commissions now in existence will never be reappointed was his assertion.

According to the governor, the state auditor's office probably will undergo the most radical changes. The removal of the land department and supervision of mines and minerals, two of the most important functions may be transferred to another division to be created for that purpose.

A general revision of the educational department to place it where no manner of politics may enter is proposed.

State inspection service will be changed and placed beneath a governing power where some certain head will be responsible.

"There are numerous boards, which probably will pass entirely out of service", the governor explained. "Then there are boards, for instance, on which the governor is asked to serve, on which he does not belong, because he does not have the time nor the opportunity to give his services. The drainage board is one. The timber board is another. These must be reshaped. If my plans work out as contemplated there will be more active officials in Minnesota and fewer nominal officials. The active officials will have certain work to do and will be responsible. I propose combining the duties of some boards and commissions and broadening the scope of others.

"Minnesota has forged to the front rapidly within the past few years, but there has never been a reorganization of its government. As a result there are systems in use, which are obsolete, the boards and commissions, which are unnecessary. I hope to be able to bring about a complete change in many of the state departments".

Bids will be received for 20 cords of good body split poplar wood for School Dist. No. 18, to be delivered at school. Bids will be open until Dec. 1st. G. A. Penney, Clerk.

Dan Cupid Active

The next surest thing to Pussyfoot Johnson's orders it would seem is the darts of Dan Cupid, and the latter rather youthful agent, to indicate by the numerous marriages recently wouldn't have to take a back seat for the former when it comes to activity.

Numbering among these wholesale events, news reaches this city from the state of Washington chronicaling the event of the marriage of two of Thief River's former young ladies.

On the 24th day of November at Seattle, Wash., occured the marriage of Miss Flora Mac Niven to Mr. Joe. H. Finkley, of Franklyn, Pennsylvania. Miss Mac Niven is well known to most of the residents here, having, until their removal west some three years ago, made her home in this city with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Mac Niven, and the other is Miss Lillian Brady, who was recently united in marriage to Mr. Wm. McCord, the marriage ceremony taking place at Mt. Vernon, Wash.

Inspected New Soo Line.

Charles Elmquest, State railway and ware house commissioner, was in the city last week and made a tour of inspection over the new Duluth—Thief River Falls branch of the Soo Line. He was accompanied by the secretary of the commission and Supt. Michaels of the Soo road.

He pronounced the road in first-class condition and especially comments on the equipment, solidity and construction of this road.

To Attend Father's Funeral.

Greeley E. Carr, formerly well known as a lawyer of this city, now of Minneapolis, passed thru this city last week with his sister, Mrs. J. C. Chamberlain, of International Falls. They were on their way to Middle River to attend the funeral of their father, L. G. Carr, who died there last week, aged 78 years. Deceased was one of the prominent men of the north country and has made his home with his son, R. D. V. Carr, publisher of the Middle River Pioneer, for several years past. His death was due to a general breakdown on account of old age.

Marcoe-Riley Wedding

Last week at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Riley, in New Richmond, Wis., was solemnized the marriage of their daughter Miss Sadie Riley and Ray Marcoe, a railroad man of this city.

The happy couple are now on an extended honeymoon trip thruout the East and upon their return will make their home in this city.

DRAINAGE REPORT

Geo. A. Ralph, State Drainage Inspector Makes Public Report.

Report to Be Sent to State Legislature Next January.

Crookston Times:—George A. Ralph state drainage engineer, has made public the report of the state drainage commission, which will be sent to the state legislature next January. The commission is composed of the governor, the secretary of state, and the state auditor.

Engineer Ralph speaks optimistically of the work, which he pointed out, was the cheapest of its kind that the state has ever done.

The survey work was done in connection with the United States geological survey, according to an agreement entered into by the drainage commission and the survey. The expense was divided equally between the state and the federal government. For the topographical survey the state spent $9,121.76. Investigations of the water resources of the state were made under the same sort of an agreement and the state's share of the expense in these investigations amounted to $17,552.61.

Surveys of thirteen rivers, aggregating 227 miles, exclusive of an entire survey, of the Minnesota river from Big Stone Lake to the outlet, and a survey of Mille Lacs lake have been made. These the report says, have been made to devise plans for the improvement of the territory, and to enable the commission and its engineers to figure properly on the cost of drainage work. The intended improvement will not only facilitate the drainage work, but will do much toward preventing floods.

"During the years 1909 and 1910, the commission has constructed or has under construction, 15 state ditches, aggregating 460 miles, requiring an excavation of 6,828,378.2 yards, costing $605,837.30, or an average of 8.8 cents a cubic yard," said Mr. Ralph. "This is the absolute minimum for state drainage work in Minnesota."

According to the report, the ditches will drain 141,441.63 acres of state land and 403,010.81 acres of private land at an average cost of $1.25 an acre.

WANTS LANDS HOMESTEADED

Steenerson to Introduce Bill Providing for Minnesota Tracts.

Un-entered Red Lake Lands May Be Homesteaded.

News reaches us from Washington to the effect that Representative Steenerson will, in a few days, introduce a bill providing for the homesteading of the un-entered lands in the ceded eleven towns in the Red Lake reservation east of Thief River Falls. Under the law this land is subject to disposal at public auction but Mr. Steenerson has prevailed on Secretary Ballinger not to sell the lands during the pendency of his bill.

Progressive Republican Convention.

The Progressive Republicans of the State of Minnesota have sent out a call for a Convention to be held at Minneapolis on January 4, 1911, and a banquet to be held in St. Paul the same evening. The call is signed by the leaders of the party and reads as follows:

To the Progressive Republicans of Minnesota:—

The Progressive Republicans of Minnesota are waging a vigorous fight within their party for clean government and popular rule. This is an uprising of the people that is spotaneous and not the result of any pre-arranged leadership or plan. It springs from causes that are deep seated and common to the whole state.

The voters of Minnesota are driving special interests from the control of the state government. They are driving business out of politics and politics out of business. They are restoring to themselves the power guaranteed in the State Constitution.

The essentials of success in this struggle comprise a complete organization of all the people, together with such progressive legislation as will give the people an equal opportunity with predatory interests.

It is deemed wise and necessary that Progressive Republicans from all parts of the State shall convene for careful consideration of the best means of securing these desirable results. With this purpose in view the Progressive Republican Leagues of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater have, through a joint committee, arranged for a convention to be held in Minneapolis on the 4th day of January, 1911, and a banquet to be held in St. Paul on the evening of the same date.

The Committee signing this call therefore extends an invitation to the Progressive Republicans of the State to be well represented at this convention and banquet.

This is the first political convention ever held in the northwest solely for the purpose of considering political principles. It is the hope of the Committee that every Progressive Republican in the State will co-operate to make this movement a success.

Dairy Meetings Under Way

A series of dairy meetings are being held in eastern Pennington, Marshall and Roseau counties by Messrs. Brown and Carlson under the supervision of the college of agriculture at St. Anthony Park.

The creameries hereabouts are co-operative and are owned and managed exclusively by the farmers themselves, and in not a single instance has a failure been recorded. Remoteness from railways does not cut any figure, as some of the creameries are east of Thief River Falls twenty-five miles, and their product is hauled to this city by team.

Became Insane

Mrs. Christina Johnson, wife of Severt Johnson, and residing near Liner P. O. northeast of here was brought to this city last Tuesday, and yesterday was taken to Warren where she will be examined for her sanity.

The cause of her insanity is attributed to over study and brooding over religious matters. She first showed signs of being demented last Friday and has since steadily become worse.

She was accompanied by her husband and his brother and Con Frisco.

An Important Buick Announcement.

There appears in this issue an advertisement of the Pence Automobile Company, Minneapolis, exclusive Northwestern agents for the Buick automobile, which smacks of real enterprise and which like a fanfare of trumpets, resounds the good tidings of future Buick importance in the automobile world.

The announcement by the Buick company of a successful coup in the financial marts of the world, which gives the concern a new impetus and added prestige in the automobile world, after all is only incidental. The success of the Buick company and the efficacy of the Pence Automobile Company system of marketing these machines in the Northwest during the past five years stands as a monument to indefatigable effort and is indicative of thrift that is incomparable in the annals of automobile industry in the United States.

The Pence Automobile Company has sold this year over 2,000 cars. The Pence Automobile Building in Minneapolis is the largest exclusive automobile structure used for sales purposes in the world. Buick cars for 1911 will show the result of the greatest effort all along the line on the part of the best trained engineers in America.

There is Buick enterprise in every detail of Buick business, and at no point in the world is this Buick enterprise so strongly reflected as at the great home of Buicks in Minneapolis—the Pence Automobile Company's headquarters, Minneapolis, Minn.

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Published Every Thursday.

FOREIGN RATES:
Including the Dominion of Canada and Mexico .... $1.50 Per Year

Gov. Eberhardt proposes a change in several departments of the state government. Go to it, governor, there never was a successful business that did not have to change its methods to meet changed conditions and why not state departments?

Gov. Eberhardt's flat statement at the Brainerd meeting that he would, if necessary, call an extra session to pass a re-apportioment bill has the proper ring. The Governor in his re-election speeches promised his support and the people are glad he is making good.

Last week's issue of the Red Lake Falls Gazette treated it's readers to a very lengthy, and somewhat humorous account of the first meeting of the commissions of Pennington county. That's all right boys; what you won't understand is that the only difficulty the commissioners met with, was, the lack of candidates to fill the more important offices.

The State Drainage Commission is out with a report of its doings for the past and former years. This department is doing a good work, and doing it at fair prices, but, let no one think that the state is out anything. On the contrary it is a good investment, bringing large returns in enhanced values, and the cost is passed on to the settler in the shape of a tax.

The amount of drainage work carried on by the department does not represent more than ten per cent of the work completed and in progress in various parts of the state.

The press of neighboring towns is going out of its way to notify us that the recent election, which resulted in the establishment of Pennington county, is to be contested. Well, What of it? While we desire peace, we can still fight, and possibly command sufficient resources to carry it on as long as our opponents may desire.

The Northern Minnesota Development associations third meeting held in Brainerd last week appears to have been a great success. Over thirty counties were represented, among them the newly born Pennington, and matters of grave importance were discussed affecting the welfare of the whole state. Re-apportintment, a one mill tax for good roads, and the prevention of forest fires and settlement of the wooded portion lying East of us were among the matters brought up. The meeting was so representative and the delegates so earnest that their recommendations will without question have great weight with the incoming legislature. Among the things asked for was a change in the administration of State lands. It was agreed that they should be on sale every day in the year and in such a manner as to ensure settlement and cultivation. That the state should pay taxes for the purpose of maintaing schools building roads etc. on its unsold lands that are now a burden upon communities in which they are situated.

MINNESOTA RANKS HIGH.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Minnesota corporations paid into the United States treasury in the fiscal year 1910, ended June 30, the sum of $1,140,339.90, according to figures from the annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue. This money was turned over to the government under the terms of the new corporation tax law. Corporations in Minnesota, to the number of 6,559 were made subject to taxation. The average amount of tax per corporation in the state was $173 86. According to the returns made to the treasury, the corporations in Minnesota against which assessments were made under the new law reported an aggregate capital stock of $1,485,931,773, amount of bonded and other indebtedness $1,120,914,798, net income $123,777,230.

Minnesota stands twelfth among the states in the number of corporations taxed. In the amount of the tax assessed, Minnesota stands near the top in the list of states such as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and New Jersey.

Olny nine states surpass the corporations of Minnesota in the matter of the aggregate capital stock. They are California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Washington. As to the net income of corporations, Minnesota stands eighth among the states, with $123,777,230, being surpassed by the corporations in states as follows: California, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. The figures for the Dakotas, Iowa and Wisconsin follow:

Wisconsin, corporations, 8,583; tax assessed, $192,351; capital stock, $597,395,039.

Wisconsin, corporations, 8,183; tax assessed, $592,217; capital stock $961,952,771.

North and South Dakota are embraced in one revenue collection district. The tax assessed against the corporations in the two states amounted to $60,336. In North Dakota taxation was assessed against 2,090 corporations, and in South Dakota 2,128 corporations. The aggregate capital stock of the corporations in South Dakota footed up to $61,660,010, and in North Dakota to $250,729,967.

Collections from other internal revenue sources in Minnesota during the year were $2,955,255, in North and South Dakota, $217,857, in Wisconsin, $8,688,758 and in Iowa, $1,127,171.

School Notes

Architect Fremont C. Orff, accompanied by the board of education, made a final inspection of the Lincoln and mechanical buildings on Tuesday. The Lincoln is now being kalsomined and will be ready to dedicate and occupy during the Christmas holidays.

To date, just 90 more girls than boys have enrolled in the local schools. The Central is the only building having more boys than girls enrolled.

39 new pupils entered the upper grades during the month of November. These of themselves would make one good room of pupils.

Some of the high school boys, chiefly sophomores, have organized a literary and athletic club. They meet Saturday evenings at their room which is supplied with reading and athletic material. Carl Nelson is president and Ben Lonson secretary.

The manual training classes under Mr. Schmitt's direction are fast completing the equipment in the mechanical building. The shafting is hung and the turning lathes will soon be in use. The plan of this department is to avoid making anything which is of no service in or about the home. No toys are made. Six of the boys are just now at work on six typewriting tables for use in the commercial rooms of the Lincoln.

School closes on Friday, December 23 rd, for a two weeks term of holidays. During this time the supplies and furniture will be moved into the Lincoln and the dedication will take place somewhere about the first week of January.

The accompanying set of questions was a forty minute test in the freshman cooking recently given the class. The average made was 81. How many of the mothers of the girls could do as well?

1. From what is chocolate made? Describe its manner of growth, preparation and manufacture. Draw a cross sectional diagram of the fruit.
2. Write about the value of pastry as food. What precaution would you take to prevent a juicy filling from soaking the crust of the pie? From running over?
3. What is a "shortening"? What is its use in cookery? Name some shortenings used. Mention the different ways of adding shortening in making pastry.
4. What is carbon dioxide and of what use is it in cookery? Name the different acid and alkaline substances used to produce CO 2,. Describe the action which takes place.
5. Give some general rules for mixing and baking "quick breads". Give instructions for making hard sauce.

About Rural Schools.

That the great number of rural schools are not fit to be used as a child home is the finding of C. G. Schulz, superintendent of public instruction, who has just completed his survey of rural schools for the biennial report of his department.

"The schoolhouse is cold, when the child reaches it in the morning", says the report. "It is marked by a bareness that makes him dread the thought that he must spend there six hours a day, 20 to 40 weeks in the year. Most of the school grounds are bare of trees; flowers and shrubbery are unknown; the outbuildings are a mockery and a disgrace; the drinking water is often supplied from a nearby surface well, kept in an open wooden or tin bucket, and the common dipper or drinking cup very often serves the entire school".

Consolidation of rural schools is treated at length in the report and the present method for securing consolidation is condemned as unsatisfactory. The superintendent urges that consolidation should be made possible through legislation by means of a graduated system of special state aid. The report in part is as follows:

"The last ten years have been a period of pronounced advance in all classes of public schools. The work has become more definite, standards have been fixed, courses of study worked out, and new lines of work undertaken. The number of high and graded schools has nearly doubled. The increase in the number of students has kept pace with the growth of these schools. Industrial education has become a permanent feature of public education in Minnesota.

"In the onward movement of high and graded schools the progress of the rural school becomes noticeable through contrast. The big educational problem in this state is to lift the rural school out of itself, to put life and vitality into the work, to make its surroundings harmonious with the children's home life, and to render it possible for the child in the country to secure in his own school a training that will place him on an equality in strength of mind, training of hand, and broad outlook of life, with the child reared in a city system of schools.

"The condition of the country roads and the long distance that many children must travel, make attendance not only difficult but irregular, and are two of the main causes for truancy and the low average of attendance in the rural schools.

"In respect to buildings, equipment, libraries, text books, length of term and attendance, rural schools have made progress in recent years. As long, however, as these essentials for a good school are not radically changed, the rural school will fail to accomplish its purpose."

"Lion and the Mouse" Coming

Local theatre-goers will have an opportunity to witness one of the best shows of the present day. "The Lion and the Mouse" will be presented at the Auditorium in the near future.

A Peculiar Theft.

A peculiar sort of theft came to light this week at one of the local stores. Three men, one who was to pay a bill, came into the store and after making some purchases left. A little while thereafter they returned and one of the gentlemen claimed he had left three $20 gold pieces lying on the show case. Chief of Police Lang was summoned to investigate the matter and as their "hard luck" story did not seem creditable a search was made of the three gentlemen, and in one of the latter's spectacle holders were found the coin.

Whether this was a put-up job to lay the blame onto some of the clerks or whether one of the "trencies" proved to be a traitor is a matter of speculation.

As the days are very short, Mr. Berry will be at his gallery Sundays, both forenoon and afternoon till New Year's.

Wrestling Match Tomorrow Night.

In a catch as catch can wrestling match at the Auditorium tomorrow night, Chris Person, the heavyweight champion wrestler of the south, has agreed to throw Ed Ober, the middleweight champion of Finland, and "Bill Kline", the local mat artist, in one hour.

Chris Person tips the scale at 190 lbs. and is ranked among such wrestlers as Zybyszo, Beil and others.

Ed Ober is a comer and will no doubt prove a stiff proposition for the dusky champion, and then having "Bill" Kline, also, to contend with, Person will have a run for his money.

W. Smith will be referee of the event.

The match is called for 8:30, and some lively preliminaries will also take place.

This will be the great athletic event of the season.

Person is to wrestle Hackensmith, the "Russian Lion" after his local bout.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Corn of giant size, standing ten feet high, raised near Brook Park, Pine county, is pictured on the first page of the book of Northern Minnesota, 50,000 copies of which have been run off the press and 100,000 copies more of which will be printed later. That the pictures will be a surprise in many corn raising states into which the Great Northern exhibition car will penetrate is the expectation of officials of the Great Northern road.

The Minnesota State Banking association has inaugurated a campaign which has for its object the enactment of laws by the next legislature which will double and possibly treble the present appropriation of the state immigration department and provide sufficient funds properly to exploit and advertise Minnesota and its resources abroad.

The construction of the treaty under which the federal authorities ordered railroads to refuse shipments of liquor into certain territory in Northern Minnesota will be made a definite issue in mandamus proceedings which brewing companies of the Duluth district will bring in federal court.

Lucian W. Chaney, formerly professor of political economy at Carleton college, Northfield, is said to have been offered the position of state labor commissioner by Governor A. O. Eberhart. He is now an assistant in the bureau of labor at Washington, D. C.

It is reported in Washington that President Taft is very favorably considering the request that he make Judge Ira B. Mills of Minnesota a member of the commerce court, the five members of which he hopes to appoint shortly.

Governor Eberhart has appointed William Hodgson of Hastings to be district judge in the First district, succeeding the late Judge F. M. Crosby, also of Hastings. Mr. Hodgson will serve on the bench until the next general election.

Nearly 5,000 more children attended school in Minnesota during the school year ending June 30, 1910, than the previous year, according to C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of schools.

Ore shipments from Two Harbors continue at a reduced rate. The total shipments for the season will be a little over 8,000,000 tons, or about 900,000 tons less than the shipments in 1909.

The Edward Hines Lumber company of Chicago has taken over the entire properties of the St. Croix Lumber company of Winton, this state, for a consideration of $2,500,000.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. Sarah Oxborough, one of St. Paul's oldest residents, is dead of old age. Mrs. Oxborough was seventy-nine years old, having been born in England in 1831. The family reached St. Paul in the early fifties, when the site of the present city was but a wilderness.

Frederick Weinard, aged ninety-one, a resident of Minneapolis for fifty-six years and one of the early pioneers of St. Anthony, is dead in the Mill City. He was a painter by vocation and painted nearly all the frame houses in St. Anthony and Minneapolis in the early days.

W. D. Harden, a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars, one of the earliest residents of Mower county and for eight years postmaster of Le Roy, is dead. He was eighty-three years of age.

William Farley, aged twenty-eight years, died at Barnesville from fatty degeneration of the heart. Farley was considered the fleshiest man in Clay county. He weighed 320 pounds.

Walter, six year old son of J. J. Farrell of Carver, former president of the National Buttermakers' association, broke through the ice in the Minnesota river and was drowned. Doctors tried for two hours to resuscitate him, but failed.

In the Matter of the Estate of Hans Langseth Deceased.

On reading and filing the Petition of T. P. Hamre the Representative of said Estate setting forth that since the filing of the Inventory of said Estate, he has discovered that said decedent was the owner of an undivided one-half interest in Lots 7, 8, 9 and 10 of Block 23 of Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids now a part of the city of Thief River Falls in said County of Red Lake, and that since the appointment of said representative the said estate has become vested with the fee title to an undivided one-third of other real estate described in said petition, that no part of said real estate is included in the Homestead of said decedent; and alleging that said property has not sufficient earning capacity to pay a reasonable rate of interest on the money invested therein; that there are now unpaid claims against said estate past due and no funds on hand to pay the same; and that it is for the best interest of said estate that said property be sold and converted into cash, which will enable said petitioner to sooner close up the affairs of said estate, and setting forth the names of all persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell said real estate.

And it appearing by the said petition that it would be for the best interests of said estate and the persons interested therein to sell said real estate and apply the proceeds thereof to the payment of the debts of said estate.

It is Therefore ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Tuesday the 20th day of December, 1910 at 3 o'clock P. M. at the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said T. P. And It Is Further Ordered, That this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in "The Thief River Falls News", a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls in said County; and that a printed copy of this Order be personally served on Annie Langseth, the surviving spouse of the said decedent and Guardian of all the minor children of said decedent, on or before November 30th, 1910.

In a disastrous factory fire at Newark, N. J., twenty-five lives are known to have been lost and the same number of persons were injured, some probably fatally. Nearly all the victims were young women workers in the manufacturing plants in the building, a four-story structure, which took fire from an explosion on the third floor. Loss of life and injury was heaviest on the top floor, where fifty girls were trapped. Some of them jumped to safety in firenets and others to their death or serious injury.

Two persons were fatally injured and a dozen others fatally hurt, most of them by jumping from windows during a fire in Young's hotel, Winthrop Beach, Mass.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mabeus, near Denova, Ia., was destroyed by fire, the couple perishing in the flames.

The wrestling match between Walter Miller of St. Paul and Otto Suter of Cleveland, held at the Auditorium at St. Paul, terminated in a draw. The referee, State Representative Thomas Green, stopped the match after the athletes had gone through three hours and four minutes of grinding, gruelling, heart breaking wrestling and had both reached the state where they had not strength enough to turn the other over.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

MAY EXTEND DRY TERRITORY

Indian Bureau Considering the Closing of All Saloons on the Mesabi Iron Range.

Hibbing, Chisholm, Nashwauk, Bovey and all the other towns and villages on the Mesabi range, which have considered themselves immune from the liquor crusade of the Indian bureau, may suffer the same fate as Bemidji, Cass Lake, Park Rapids and Detroit, where the saloons were recently closed.

W. E. Johnson, known as "Pussyfoot," special agent of the interior department, has arrived at Minneapolis from Washington and made known his intention to enforce the treaty provisions without discrimination.

According to a map which he has prepared Hibbing and the other towns mentioned above are just within the restricted territory and although there are no Indians nearby and there has never been any complaint about violating the Indian liquor laws they must suffer with the others. Mr. Johnson has not entirely verified his map, but he says he will close the saloons if his map is correct.

He places the blame for the present agitation on F. W. Zollman, a St. Paul attorney.

"We are going much farther in this matter than the Indian bureau ever intended," he said. "We have been forced to proceed with extreme measures by the breweries themselves. Rather it is F. W. Zollman, who is responsible for the new course of events."

Mr. Johnson would not say what action will be taken in regard to Minneapolis, Moorhead and other cities covered by Indian treaties.

SALOONS AT DETROIT CLOSED

Lid Put on Another Minnesota Town by Indian Agent.

The "Indian country" liquor lid went on Detroit by order of Special Indian Agent Brentz, who visited that place with a number of deputies.

No liquor was destroyed. Agent Brents, however, ordered the four saloonkeepers to box all of their liquor stock and ship it out of the restricted territory. The dealers made no resistance. Recently they increased their stocks by receipts of seven carloads of beer and 100 barrels of whisky. They were under the impression that they would be allowed to keep open as long as their supplies lasted. The saloons of John Swanson, John Adair, Frank Courtright and Martin Christianson were those closed and there are no others there. They were conducted under licenses granted last spring.

LID IN OTTER TAIL COUNTY

Indian Agents Close Saloons in Restricted Territory.

Government Indian agents arrived in Otter Tail county and began the work of closing up saloons in about half of the county which is embraced in the Indian treaty of 1855.

The agents first went to Richville. There were two saloons there and both were ordered closed. There was no resistance and the liquor was boxed up and shipped back to the Twin Cities, while the beer was taken back to Perham, where there is a large brewery.

Later the agents went to Dent, the next village north of Richville. There were three saloons there. They were ordered closed and the liquor shipped away.

All three of the girls broke through the ice. The brother attempted to rescue them and but for the aid of neighbors all would have perished.

Criticises State Auditor.

The conditions existing in the state auditor's department are not satisfactory to Public Examiner Anton Schaefer and he has written a report to the governor based upon the findings of his assistant, J. O. Cederberg. The most serious criticism is made of the conduct of the land department.

Buick

TO THE FRONT

Every Dog Has His Day

For the past sixty days automobile manufacturers, dealers, traveling men, and the trade in general have carried gossip of every conceivable nature concerning the BUICK Company and the BUICK Car. One could hear any kind of a report by keeping an ear close to the ground.

IT IS A LONG LANE THAT HAS NO TURNING and the BUICK Company have reached that turn by successfully floating a loan which puts them on their feet with a bang, and places them in better shape than ever before.

But in the meantime they were not idle, progress was being made, new 1911 models of the latest improved construction thruout were being built ready for the 1911 season.

The BUICK Company is NOT doing what practically all the other popular priced manufacturers are trying to carry out, that is, change the color of the paint, or some other minor detail, and continue the same models for 1911 that they used for 1910. And what is more they started out with the idea that they would be able to unload all of these at the same old 1910 price, but before getting very far they found that the supposed gullible public were getting wise to this fact; then in order to successfully get away with the proposition, they found it necessary to reduce the 1910 selling price, which was done forthwith. Later developments seemed to indicate that this would not solve the problem. Consequently it is hard to tell what the next move will be.

The fact of the matter in a nut-shell is, that the majority of the popular-priced Companies must necessarily do during 1911, just what the BUICK Company did in 1910, that is, make a general cleanup so as to bring out a new model car. Consequently, the BUICK Cars for 1911 are just one year ahead of the others, for their machines will be brand new models, having the latest of everything attached, and not a continuation of the old 1910 machines, which are now being sold by competitive manufacturers under the guise of new models by simply making a change in the paint, or something equally ridiculous.

We take it for granted that the automobile buying public are more than "seven" and when they buy a 1911 model—a real 1911 model they expect to receive, and if these manufacturers think they can put something over, they will be sadly mistaken.

BUICK cars for 1911 will show the result of the greatest effort on the part of the best trained engineers in America today, to turn out new 1911 models that will be the equal of machines costing several times as much, but at popular prices.

Furthermore, we have been in the business a sufficient length of time to thoroughly understand that we dare not make these assertions unless we have the goods to back them up.

Another thing, the story has gone broad cast that Sears-Roebuck & Co. are selling BUICK Cars, and at a rediculous price, we want to simply say that this report is a lie out of the whole cloth.

Sears-Roebuck & Co. have never sold nor had for sale any BUICK Cars and furthermore we will pay $1000.00 GOLD CASH to any person who can prove to the contrary.

All our models will be available within the next thirty days, so don't hurry, take a peep at the 1911 BUICK Line before making your selection. We will have something to show you that will be worth waiting to see; we have never misled you and will not this time.

To The Dealers in the Country

We want to say to you, don't take any stock in the malicious stories that are being circulated broadcast concerning the BUICK Company, for this Company is now in better shape financially and in every other way than ever before, and there is absolutely no truth in any reports to the contrary. Competition is trying hard to discredit the BUICK Company and the BUICK Car for they well know they will have hard sledding to sell their machines when the really new 1911 BUICK Cars make their appearance on the market. We simply want to say to you, PIN YOUR FAITH TO THE BUICK CAR, and you will be the big winner in your locality, for the BUICK Company and the PENCE AUTOMOBILE CO. are too energetic to be followers or in other words bring up the rear. They are only satisfied with one position, THAT IS IN FRONT, so don't close up on any automobile agency for 1911 until you have seen the BUICK Line, and have had a talk with the PENCE AUTOMOBILE CO. Get in touch with them at once.

PAUL STARTS THINGS

Belcourt, former Star Ball Player Here, Gets Into Muddle.

Caught With Liquor in Suit Case at Crookston and Is Arrested.

Paul Belcourt, who has held down short for the local base ball aggregation the last few seasons, has got himself into very serious trouble at Crookston and was placed in jail to await further developments, but was later fined and given his liberty.

Paul was arrested at Crookston last Saturday, when he was about to board an east bound train, and a search of his suit case revealed four quarts of alcohol and one quart of whiskey.

As Belcourt is of Indian blood, and should his assertions be found correct, there is liable to be trouble brewing for the person who is found guilty of selling him the "wet goods".

This is an example of what may put a ban on the liquor traffic in the territory tributary to that included in the Indian treaty, which is being enforced thruout this section of the state, if the liquor question is not dealt with more cautiously.

The federal authorities have been communicated with but what action may be taken is just a matter of speculation.

Belcourt says he purchased the liquor at Crookston for a dance that was to be given at a place four miles south of Ulen.

Start Co-operative Store.

A farmers' co-operative store, to be known as the Badger Co-operative company, has been organized at Badger. The company has a capital stock of $15,000, in 150 shares of $100 each, of which 102 shares have already been sold.

No stockholder is allowed to hold more than three shares. The stock and fixtures of Anderson & Frycklund have been purchased at appraised value and they intend to be ready to have their share of the Christmas rush. The following were elected directors to hold office until the annual meeting: Ben Setran, B. L. Sundal, B. C. Sater, Jalmer Wellin, Peter Eklund. The officers are as follows: Ben Setran, President; B. L. Sundal, Vice-president; Jalmer Wellin, Secretary; and B. C. Sater, Treasurer.

Not Well Attended.

The Thief River Falls Concert Band rendered its first indoor concert at the Auditorium last Monday night and was a success in all respects excepting in the point of attendance.

The band, under the capable direction of Prof. Houle, has put in a lot of time and energy since early this fall to make this the opening indoor concert, the success that it was.

The receipts from this concert was to have gone to the band boys as a salary for their services in rendering free open air concerts on the streets during the course of the summer, and as the total receipts amounted to only some $30, deducting the expenses, this leave less than $1 for each member. This can hardly be called a fair remuneration for their hard and splendid work.

A Large Cut Next Season.

D. N. Winton was up from Minneapolis this week, and while here made arrangements for the unloading of the logs, which will be shipped in by the Thief River Falls Lumber Company in the spring over the Soo railroad. The Company has a large number of men at work cutting the timber that was purchased this summer and the cut next season will undoubtedly be exceptionally large.

The right is hereby reserved to reject any and all bids. By order of the Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Minot to Boost Commission.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 9.—So immensely well pleased is the board of commissioners of the city of Minot with the manner in which the commission plan has worked out in this city that it has been decided to publish an advertising pamphlet covering the situation. The city commission and the Minot Commercial club will act together in making up the pamphlet. Minot's commission plan, it is declared, has been immensely beneficial, and it is desired to point out the benefits that have been derived.

THE COMMISSION PLAN

The Commission Plan of Municipal Government Gaining Wide Approbation.

Overwhelming Success Reported By Cities Under this Plan.

We call attention to a paragraph in another column, having reference to the success of city government, by commission in Minot. The North Dakota law is not regarded, as being as good as that of Minnesota notably that there is no provision for recall, and in that respect is no better than the old style; but here is a case, where it has been tried and proven a great advantage over the old system. The commission plan is the modern business way of governing cities and it should and will be adopted by every live community before long.

There are many advocates of the plan in this city, as it is felt that we are outgrowing the present system and that a change of charter at least is an imperative necessity. Everyone knows that it would be difficult for us to fall into the error of getting a worse system than we have at present, and that the chances are all in favor of a better one.

Modern conditions require modern remedies and very many cities throughout the nation have applied this modern remedy to their municipal ills and bear testimony to the efficacy of the cure. Under the commission plan certain duties are assigned to certain individuals and responsibility is fixed. Under the recall any official may be removed at any time by a vote of the people. This is a valuable feature and places the control of matters in the hands of the people at all times.

We understand the first step is an application to the district court for the appointment of a committee of sixteen taxpayers whose duty it shall be to formulate a plan of city government and submit it to the voters at an election for ratification.

Failed to Make Good.

Chris. Person, the heavy weight wrestler of the south, who agreed to throw two men in one hour in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match at the Auditorium last Friday evening, did not realize what a proposition he had run up against, and failed to throw Ed. Ober, one of the other contestants in the required length of time.

Chris. had the strength, but Ober's quickness seemed to get the best of him.

Person claimed his weakness due to a three week's sickness, which was not accepted as an excuse by the audience, and the management, but was looked at as an imposition as nothing was mentioned about his condition, when the contract was signed.

The preliminary bout by two railroad men in this city was a fast one and proved a draw.

A challenge was read at the ringside from John Gorden, the Minneapolis policeman—wrestler, who agreed to meet the winners of this bout. The result consequently will mean that he accept a similar proposition with that of Person's and another match may be looked for in the future.

Minnesota May Lose One Cong.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Minnesota, as the outcome of the congressional reapportionment which is to be made during the present session, may lose one house member, instead of gaining a member, and possibly gaining two.

This is one of the possibilities of the situation as it is being worked out intentively by the leaders in both houses.

There is a strong disposition to make the house no larger than at present, 391 members. The obvious argument against this is the fact that it will leave several of the smaller states, such as Delaware, Nevada, Wyoming and the new states of Arizona and New Mexico, with much less than the new ratio; but notwithstanding this situation, the sentiment in favor of not increasing the total house membership seems to be growing rapidly. The arguments against any increase have been stated many times and are familiar to the public. Chief among them is the fact that the house is already too large for the conduct of business in a business way.

There is a growing belief that the new ratio ought to be about 230,000, and many who hold this opinion are really in favor of about 235,000. The former ratio would give a total house membership of 395, and the latter a total membership of 389. As indicating how such ratio would work in the central west, where several states have not made any gains in population as they made in previous decennial periods, it is to be noted that Indiana would lose two members of the house.

It is the disposition of a good many members of the house at present to go as high as 250,000 for a ratio. That would mean a total house membership of 366. This is by no means an impossibility.

A ratio of 210,000, which has many supporters, would give the house 381 members. Any ratio above 240,000 would lose one member of the house in Minnesota, and whatever may happen it seems at this time reasonably certain that the state at best will not gain any members.

The situation here outlined will affect Iowa very greatly, for the census shows a slight loss of population there as compared with 1900. Iowa would lose several house members with a ratio of 210,000 or more.

In all probability there could not have been a better time than the present for the adoption of a new ratio of representation. Had the republicans won a victory last month there would have been the unceasing pressure on the part of members not to be legislated out of office, and that pressure would have prevailed, as it did in 1900. But with a great many republicans already on the eve of going out of office, as the result of the election, there is a smaller opportunity for the personal equation to cut a figure. The ratio this time will probably be made in a more disinterested way than for many years. In 1900 when the previous one was made, the republicans were in full control of congress and had just won a presidental victory.

In 1880 the republicans were also in full control, and so on back to the days of Lincoln. The question of a greater ratio would have come up in 1890, whose conditions resemble those of the present, had the house at that time been overcrowded. It is now realized that the house is too big for comfort or for business, and since the way seems open for the adoption of a ratio that will at least not increase the membership, such a course seems likely to be adopted. This would mean the ratio of 235,000, two members below the present number, or 230,000, with four members above. And a top of this is the tendency, already referred to, to make the ratio 240,000, or even 250,000.

Should the new ratio be 230,000, Minnesota would retain her present nine members. Should the ratio be 235,000, she would also retain them, because she would have enough people for eight members and for a major fraction of a ninth.

5000 Acres Wanted—I want to list every farm in northern Red Lake county that is for sale, for quick sales. Call or write Wm. Moeller, St Hilaire, Minn., R. R. No. 1, box 9.

WORK STILL CONTINUES

Bemidji Saloons Ordered to Close Up and Hereafter Sell No Liquor.

Brainerd, Walker and Perham Receives Similar Orders.

The worst has happened and the Bemidji Sentinel of last week announced crestfallen, altho with a faint glimmer of hope, that "the hammer has fallen—the deed is done—and still Bemidji is not dry."

The saloons of Bemidji were ordered to close up last Friday and henceforth to sell no more liquor, but shortly thereafter twelve saloons served injunctions on the Indian agents restraining them from acting further in the matter and are now doing business on the same old scale. What action will now be taken in the matter remains to be seen, but in all possibility it remains for the courts to decide the muddle.

Similar orders were issued to Brainerd, Walker and Perham last week and as a consequence these are now as dry as Sahara.

The Bemidji Sentinel lays particular stress on the fact that the enforcement of the Indian treaty in Minnesota may work a number of hardships that have not been thought of", and one of these it states is as follows:

It should be borne in mind that the treaty has been in existence about fifty five years, and at the time it was made the need of it was apparent or it would not have been made. In spite of this it was not enforced. And now that to all intents and purposes the treaty is practically useless the government begins to enforce it. It is learned that suits may be started by all who have paid in money to the cities, towns, villages or county for recovery of their license money for six years back. Should that be done Beltrami county would practically be bankrupt. Bemidji alone would have to pay out about $100,000; Nymore $10,000; Wilton $10,000; Solway $3,000; Blackduck $20,000; Tenstrike $9,000; Farley $3,000; Turtle River $3,000; Funkley $6,000; Baudette and Spooner $30,000; Beltrami county $20,000. In all the total amount runs up to about $250,000. Of course, it should be understood that the above is only a rough estimate, and the figures may even go as high as $300,000, or as much as the county's present indebtedness.

Election of Officers and Installation.

Last evening the members of the Eastern Star elected their officers for the ensuing year and immediately afterward the newly elected officers were installed by Mrs. Love A. Braly, of Crookston, Worthy Grand Matron of this state. The event was celebrated by a banquet at six o'clock at which the husbands and wives of the Stars, who are not members of the lodge were invited. The election and installation followed the banquet.

Rebuilding Rapidly.

Twenty-two business places have been opened in Beaudette since the fire, according to the Region, and by Dec. 7th two months after the fire, there will be thirty-five places that have resumed business. A big army of men are working into all hours of the night rushing the remaining buildings to completion. The places that have opened report business very good, and by spring the town will get back to its moorings again, in a business way, at least.

Crookston Has Bad Fire.

Last Saturday morning Crookston was visited by the most destructive fire in the history of that city.

The Odd Fellows hall, one of the old land marks and the first court house of Polk county was totally destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at about $10,000, nearly covered by insurance.

The structure was built in 1881 and was bought by the Odd Fellows of that city, when the new court house was erected, and was moved to the heart of the city.

The building contained the records of the Odd Fellows, Maccabees, Lady Maccabees, Workman, Degree of Honor, Sons of Herman and Ladies Auxiliary, Eagles, Royal League and U. C. T.; most of which were destroyed, and was occupied by the National Business College and Co. I.

Ludefisk-Supper.

The Ladies' Aid of Trinity church, Hauges Synod, will serve ludefisk-fladbrod-supper at the empty storebuilding formerly occupied by Korstad Bros. on LaBree Ave., S. Thursday evening, Dec. 29, from 5:30 to 10. This will be a "norsk" christmas supper. Good music and singing will be secured. Everybody is cordially invited. I. L. Lasseson.

Mesdames McKinney Houle and Curran will entertain for the benefit of the Catholic church at the home of Mrs. McKinney Thursday evening, Dec. 15. Everybody cordially invited.

WRIT FOR INDIAN AGENTS

Saloon Keepers of Bemidji Secure Injunction Against Men Who Fit the "Lid."

Indian agents struck a snag when they started to close the saloons of Bemidji, the last town to get the "lid" in the territory covered by the Indian treaty of 1855. There were twenty-four places doing business there.

Special Officers T. E. Brents and H. F. Coggesnall went to every saloon in town; told the proprietor to clear his place of the crowds, lock the door and have his supplies packed and ready for shipment out of Bemidji by 6 p. m.

No resistance was offered at the time, but as soon as Brents and Coggeshall got back to their headquarters at the Markham hotel they were served with injunctions by Deputy Sheriff Rutledge, the papers having been prepared by Attorney E. E. McDonald.

Under cloak of the injunctions the saloons were opened, the only ones in the entire territory, and after being closed three hours were again doing a thriving business.

Agents Brents and Coggeshall accepted service of the injunctions without protest and proceeded at once to St. Paul for a conference with United States District Attorney Houpt. The liquor dealers here have high hopes that the injunction, made returnable on Dec. 29, will permit them to continue to do business without molestation from the government and this would mean that saloons would be reopened throughout the entire territory.

Ten Strike and Turtle River saloons were closed by the government agents, which leaves Bemidji the only town in Beltrami county affected by the Indian treaty which still has saloons.

Deputy C. C. Brannon arrived at Perham and closed eight saloons there. The stocks of liquors were loaded in a freight car and shipped to the Twin Cities.

BRAINERD SALOONS CLOSED

Federal Deputies Order All Liquor Be Shipped Away.

Deputy D. Patten of Akeley and Deputy James M. Quinn of Brainerd, under order of "Pussyfoot" Johnson, closed Brainerd's twenty-seven saloons. No disorder attended the closing. In giving the orders to close Deputy Patten said he was a United States officer, that the saloons should close; keep out all patrons; lock the doors and box up and ship the liquor supply as quickly as possible to the wholesale houses. The saloons expected the closing and had only small stocks on hand.

WELL KNOWN IN MINNESOTA

Consul General E. H. Ozmun Dies at Constantinople.

Edward H. Ozmun, American consul general at Constantinople, is dead at the Turkish capital after a brief illness. He was born at Rochester, this state, Aug. 6, 1857.

Mr. Ozmun was appointed consul general at Constantinople May 22, 1906. Prior to that, from 1897 to 1906, he was United States consul at Stuttgart.

The dead consul general was well known in St. Paul and throughout Minnesota. When he graduated at the University of Michigan in 1881 he went to St. Paul and became associated with the firm of Smith, Gilbert & Clough. When Mr. Clough became general counsel for the Northern Pacific railway he took Mr. Ozmun with him as an assistant.

ENDS IN VERDICT OF GUILTY

Minnesota Murder Trial Began Six Weeks Ago.

Whitford M. Hall, who on the night of Oct. 1 shot and killed his nephew, George Crook, at Madison Lake, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury. The trial had been in progress ever since Oct. 28.

The defendant on the night of the murder repeatedly admitted that he had committed the deed, but later denied the fact, stating that his victim had jerked the gun away from him, muzzle first, and accidentally discharged the shot which caused his death.

Would Protect Woodsmen.

The state of Minnesota may be asked to supply a special agent to look after the interests of the men seeking work in the woods. Many charges are being made against local employment agencies that men are assured of work in the outlying points, are made to pay a fee to the latter agencies and then shipped away to places where they find no employment waiting for them.

Father Sees His Son Killed.

Andrew Nelml, aged twenty-one was killed by a cavein at the Burt mine near Mountain Iron. His father was employed in the same property and saw the rush of earth as it descended and buried his son, while other workers had narrow escapes.

THIEVES CARRY OFF SAFE

Strong Box Said to Have Contained Large Sum.

A portable safe containing between $15,000 and $17,000 was stolen from the Adams Express company's office at Minneapolis. The safe weighed 400 pounds. It is believed the thieves took the strong box and the fortune it contained away in a wagon or automobile.

The Minneapolis and St. Paul police, together with the Pinkerton detective agency, are now working on the case.

The safe was taken to the company's office by Fred Clark, night watchman, and Robert Noyes, driver, from a Minneapolis and St. Louis train. They left the safe in a rear room. Two hours later they went to the depot to get a consignment of merchandise. When they returned they found that the rear door of the office had been broken open and the safe stolen.

Stolen Safe Found.

The safe stolen from the Adams Express company's office at Minneapolis, was found on Superior boulevard in that city by James Larson, a dairyman. The $900 in bills and silver in the safe at the time of the theft was not found. Bank checks and drafts, also the valuable furs which had been sent from Waterville, Minn., to J. W. Evans of Minneapolis, were still in the safe. No clew as to the robbers has been obtained by the police.

PIONEER PRIEST IS DEAD

Father John A. Oster, Former Vicar General of St. Paul Diocese.

Father John A. Oster, seventy-six years of age, pioneer priest, died at St. Joseph's hospital at St. Paul from heart disease after an illness lasting over a year.

Father Oster was the best known priest in the diocese of St. Paul and was called monsignore by all who knew him. He was offered the honor by Archbishop John Ireland several years ago, but refused, saying that he wished to die a priest.

Rev. Oster was born in Strensberg, Alsace, in 1834. He reached St. Paul when a young man, entering the St. Paul semin. He finished there in 1856 and was ordained a priest by Bishop Joseph Cretin. He was assigned to the parish of Mendota a year later. He served in various parishes after that and was at one time vicar general of the St. Paul diocese.

He was retired two years ago on account of his health.

THE NEWS

BY JOHN W. EASTMAN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Published Every Thursday.

FOREIGN RATES:
Including the Dominion of Canada and Mexico .... $1.50 Per Year

The city papers contain an account of a surveying party running lines from Plummer through Red Lake Falls to Crookston. The item of cause was sent out from the latter place. Start the graders this week boys.

"Pussyfoot" Johnson and his aids are still at work south and east of us and many towns are either partly or entirely dry as the result of their crusade. What the average fellow would like to know is the cause of the present activity and the object aimed at. The avowed one of keeping liquor from the Indians is the worst kind of tommyrot.

There is some criticism of the Northern Minnesota Development Association on the ground, that too much time and attention was devoted to matters political. As most of the reforms sought are to be obtained through politicians, one cannot see how politics could be entirely eliminated?

The association deserves credit. it has kept clear of party or fractional politics, and is doing good work for the advancement of the North end.

The Federation of Commercial Clubs at their annual meeting in January propose to ask the legislature to appropriate $100,000 to be expended by the immigration department of the state government in advertising the advantages of the state and inducing immigration. The same attempt was made two years ago, but the bill failed to pass. For so extensive a land owner as the state the amount asked for is not excessive and should be granted as a good business investment.

The "Eleven Towns" is not satisfied with the appointments made by the county commissioners, claiming that the offices should have been distributed over the county. In this we understand the commissioners entirely agree with Mr. Lattimore, but will he tell us how to give an office to a man who does not want it? There were but two applications from the eleven towns before the board, and they both landed the office they sought. The difficulty was the lack of applications for most of the offices, as it is generally known that for one of the most important ones there was not a single application, and that several to whom it was offered refused. The people of Pennington County are prosperous, more especially the farmers, and are not running after small offices, as their farms and other occupations are giving them a better and more independent living. We do not think the commissioners desire to make any apology for their appointments, or their acts, but it is only fair that the facts be inquired into before criticism is made.

We want to assure our readers that though talk of a contest of the recent election is heard, that there will be none. Every step taken in the formation of the new county, has been on the advice of the best legal talent in the state, and it has been established in a strictly legal manner; so that though our friends in the South start suit, and we do not think they will, to ease their feelings it may have that effect but no other. Pennington County is here to stay and has already taken its place among progressive and larger counties of the State.

Think of a town that has notoriously gone down hill for the past six years, that increased its vote from 309 two years ago to 457 this year, talking about crooked elections and the voting of minors. Wouldn't it jar you?

Contrary to rumors Pennington county has not been formed into commissioner districts, and will not be until after the census figures are available. It would seem foolish to do it before.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Mrs. Stokke substituted for Miss Sommers in the kindergarten at the Knox last Friday and Monday. Miss Sommers was called to Minneapolis by the death of a friend.

162 boys are now receiving instruction in the manual training department. At least half of them have gotten beyond the preliminary period and are making useful articles. There are nine boys in the mechanical drawing class.

It is discovered that the heating of the new Lincoln building requires but half the fuel which is needed to heat either of the other buildings; this also in spite of the fact that the Lincoln has twice the capacity of the others. This is an instance where a first class heating plant is a case of immediate and permanent economy.

The senior class, assisted by the faculty, chose the dozen students who are to prepare and present the class play. The title of the play is "The Red Acre Farm."

A museum room has been prepared in the Lincoln for the storing of articles which may be of service to students in the grades and high school. These may include anything from the animal or mineral kingdom, or even the vegetable if the objects are not too bulky. Many citizens in Thief River Falls possesses articles which they have collected in various ways, and housekeepers often tire of them after they have been lain in the home for several years and would gladly donate them if assured the collections would be properly cared for. The school authorities will cheerfully receive any such articles and see that they are correctly labeled and made use of in the schools. It is hoped that a collection of the native and local birds and small animals will be mounted within the year for natural history and nature study work.

Most earnest efforts are being made to improve the writing. The system in vogue is a combination of the Economy and Palmer systems. It consists of the arm movement and constant and systematic drill on practice paper and in writing books. After all has been said with reference to the values of the special studies and advanced work, still the fact remains that the old fashioned three R's constitute the most important features of every child's studies.

School closes for two weeks of holidays on Friday, December 23rd. Special exercises will be held the closing day in the intermediate and primary grades. The three kindergarten rooms will have Christmas trees but no lights or fires will be used in connection therewith.

Tuberculosis is often induced by damp and filthy surroundings and badly ventilated sleeping quarters; hence the removal of these causes, if they exist, will contribute to the health of the herd.

A poser for those fond of making fine ethical distinctions. Does the egg laid by your neighbor's hen in your barn or woodshed rightfully belong to him or yourself, provided your garden and back yard furnish her food and your flower beds a dusting place?

Nine times out of ten it does not pay to monkey with really sick poultry. It is better to knock them on the head with a broomstick than to allow them to run indiscriminately with and infect the rest of the flock. Should the sick fowls recover they seldom pay their keep for months.

DO MOLES EAT GRAIN?

There has been considerable discussion over the question whether the mole is entirely an insectivorous animal or whether its bill of fare includes besides insects some grain. To settle this question one of the instructors in the Michigan agricultural college put a mole in a box of fresh earth in which some twenty kernels of corn were placed in four or five places. At the end of thirty-six hours it was found that all of the corn had been searched out and devoured, and there was no getting around the fact that the mole was responsible. This experiment tends to prove the claim of some that when a mole follows a row of corn he is not only after insects which may have been attracted by the presence of the seed, but the seed itself. It is a matter of common observation that when the mole can get all the big, white, juicy grubs he wants he does not seem to care for or molest anything else, but it is more than likely when these are not to be had he goes after other insects and grain if he can locate it.

Hearing Next Monday

H. C. Anderson, construction foreman for the Tri State Telephone company was arrested last Monday for making some improvements which seems to be contrary to the city ordinance.

The case was to come up before Judge Bishop Tuesday morning, but a continuation was asked for by the defendants and next Monday morning at 10 o'clock was set as the date for the hearing.

The Tri-State contend that they were acting in accordance with the rights of their franchise in placing poles and making such other improvements as they saw fit while the city has it to the contrary.

Holland P. Roberts, of Minneapolis, will represent the interests of the Tri-State at the hearing.

He Was In Town.

Homer Mussey, of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, spent the night in the city on some business matters, and took a few hours off last evening to witness the Climax at the Grand. Homer seems to be surrounded with an air of mystery, but he wouldn't say a word as to the cause.—Crookston Times.

May Locate Mill Here.

The rumor that the Crookston saw mill will be torn down and removed to this city, which has been revived from time to time in the past has again been taken up and this time indications are that it may become a reality.

It has been known for some time that the mill will be torn down at Crookston and moved and reconstructed at a more lucrative location, and this has generally been considered as the best place.

The mill, if constructed here, will in all likelehood be built on the Squaw Point.

"Pussyfoot" May Visit Us.

Secures Big Contract.

The J. B. Arpin Dredging Co., of Grand Rapids, Wis., as awarded a large contract last week in securing the work of digging Judicial Ditch No. 19 which will include parts of Marshall and Roseau counties. The work of building camps and getting the machinery on the ground will be commenced this winter, and active operations will be started as soon as the frost goes out of the ground in the spring.

To Be Run by Motors.

The work of stringing the cable which will connect the city power plant with the Northwestern Drainage company's large machinery shop in the western part of this city was commenced this week. The power required for the running of all the machinery in the shop will be furnished by this large cable, which will be the feeder for a number of motors that are being installed.

The cable is a big one as the work will necessarily consume a large amount of electricity.

Game Warden Munch Gets Busy.

Deputy State Game Warden, Wm. Munch did some business here Monday. On Sunday he came in from Beltrami county having in custody Adolph Hodapp and Carl Ek. The prisoners were on Monday morning brought before Justice Greer for violation of the game law. Hodapp was charged with killing a cow moose and Ek with having the meat of the same in his possession. Both plead guilty. Hodapp was fined $100 and costs and Ek $50 and costs. They paid their fines and returned east ward sadder, but wiser men.

Warden Munch says there has been too much recklessness in the matter of killing cow moose out in the big game country east of here and it will have to cease.—Middle River Pioneer.

Petition For Ditches.

The first steps have been taken toward constructing an extensive road and drainage system in the territory lying north of the Great Northern railroad between Warroad and Roseau lake. Two petitions are in circulation, one in the Mud Creek region and the other in the Warroad section. This important work has been delayed until the western and central part of Roseau county could be surveyed and suitable arrangements made for building roads and providing for outlet of surface water. The country between Warroad and Roseau lake is rich in fertile land and well adapted to grain and stock raising. Because of an impassable tract lying south of this valuable land no attempt has been made to develop the country thus far, although several tracts have been proved up.

MANKATO CHEERS EBERHART

Celebrates Election of Favorite Son to Governorship.

Mankato celebrated the election of its favorite son, Governor A. O. Eberhart, to the highest office in the state with great jubilation. The whole city seems to have laid aside its ordinary vocations to take part in the event and many persons attended from outside points.

Shortly after his arrival in the afternoon the governor held a reception in the lobby of the Saulpaugh hotel, where he shook hands with hundreds of old friends and made many new acquaintances.

The feature of the evening celebration was a big parade of citizens and visitors, including half a dozen bands. Later the governor was taken through the principal streets in an automobile and made several speeches to large crowds. The first was at North Mankato, across the river in Nicollet county. Then he made five short speeches to crowds on the street corners in different parts of the city and the closing speech before a large crowd assembled at the opera house.

Wealthy Minneapolis Woman Receives Threatening Letter.

Mrs. Thomas Lowry of Minneapolis received a threatening letter demanding that $1,000 in cash be left in the waiting room of the railroad station at Hopkins, near Minneapolis. For several days detectives and special officers have been turning Hopkins and Minneapolis upside down in an effort to track the writer and Mrs. Lowry's safety is being watched by a special detail.

One woman has been arrested in connection with the affair, but she was later released, as Chief Corriston was convinced that her connection with the case was only circumstantial.

TWO RAILROAD MEN KILLED

Fatal Accidents in Minneapolis Switching Yards.

Two railroad men were killed in Minneapolis switching yards at almost the same hour and in practically the same manner. Both died in Mill City hospitals, where they were rushed immediately after the accidents.

William Webster, aged thirty-five, a conductor on the Omaha road, was run down and terribly mangled by a yard engine in the Omaha yards. Robert Sackimac, thirty years old, a Northern Pacific switchman, met death under the wheels of a moving freight car three squares from the scene of the first tragedy, a very few minutes after the accident to Webster.

CHARLES H. ELLIOTT DEAD

Prominent Resident of Rochester, Minn., Passes Away.

Charles H. Elliott of Rochester, one of the founders of the Olmsted County Democrat and also the Rochester Bulletin, the first daily paper to be published in that city, passed away very suddenly at his home there, angina pectoris being the cause.

Nine weeks ago to the day C. Elliott, the father of the deceased, died in the same manner very suddenly at the Vendome hotel, Minneapolis.

Last July Adin Elliott, a son of C. Elliott and brother of Charles E. Elliott, also died suddenly in Milwaukee, afflicted with the same malady.

In the Matter of the Estate of Hans Langseth Deceased.

On reading and filing the Petition of T. P. Hamre the Representative of said Estate setting forth that since the filing of the Inventory of said Estate, he has discovered that said decedent was the owner of an undivided one-half interest in Lots 7, 8, 9 and 10 of Block 23 of Knox's Addition to Red Lake Rapids now a part of the city of Thief River Falls in said County of Red Lake, and that since the appointment of said representative the said estate has become vested with the fee title to an undivided one-third of, other real estate described in said petition, that no part of said real estate is included in the Homestead of said decedent; and alleging that said property has not sufficient earning capacity to pay a reasonable rate of interest on the money invested therein; that there are now unpaid claims against said estate past due and no funds on hand to pay the same; and that it is for the best interest of said estate that said property be sold and converted into cash, which will enable said petitioner to sooner close up the affairs of said estate, and setting forth the names of all persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell said real estate.

And it appearing by the said petition that it would be for the best interests of said estate and the persons interested therein to sell said real estate and apply the proceeds thereof to the payment of the debts of said estate.

It is Therefore ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Tuesday the 20th day of December, 1910 at 3 o'clock P. And It Is Further Ordered, That this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in "The Thief River Falls News", a weekly newspaper printed and published at Thief River Falls in said County; and that a printed copy of this Order be personally served on Annie Langseth, the surviving spouse of the said decedent and Guardian of all the minor children of said decedent, on or before November 30th, 1910.

During a sudden tempest in the Caspian sea a landing stage on which were 300 Persian dock workers was dragged from its moorings and swept out to sea. The storm was so violent that attempts at rescue were futile. Scores of ships, several with their crews on board, were sunk at their moorings at different Caspian coast towns. Seven towns along the coast were flooded, the inhabitants in hundreds of cases being forced to flee from their homes.

Seven hundred Druses have been slain in battle with Turkish troops at Hauran, Syria, according to dispatches received at Constantinople. Despite the heavy slaughter the main body of the Druses, estimated to number 15,000, is still holding out and another fierce encounter is expected.

The second parliament in the reign of the late King Edward VII., which met on Feb. 15, was dissolved in pursuance of the programme of the Liberal government to go before the country on the question of the prerogatives of the house of lords. The new parliament will meet Jan. 31, 1911.

WILL TOUR UNITED STATES

Danish Students' Chorus to Visit This Country in June and July Next. King of Norway Draws Line on Becoming Total Abstainer—Professor J. J. Exner, Well Known Painter, Dead at Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

Gustave Thalberg, the well known impressario, who is at present on a lecture tour in the southern part of the country, having recently appeared at Malmo, Lund and other cities in Skane, has accepted an offer from the Danish Students' chorus in Copenhagen to be their leader on a concert tour in the United States in June and July next summer. As is well known Mr. Thalberg was the impressario for the Lund and Christiania Students' choruses when they made their respective concert tour throughout the United States and also when he was impressario for the Swedish-American Male chorus during their triumphant tour through Sweden last summer. The Danish chorus will first appear in New York and in a number of other large cities and will then come West, starting at Chicago, visiting St. Paul and Minneapolis and may go as far west as Denver and Seattle. Such choruses have drawn large audience in American cities in former years and it is freely predicted that the Danes will also receive fully as hearty a reception.

A telegram to Reuter's Telegraph bureau, dated Teheran, Persia, Nov. 15, says: "The Persian government will in the near future turn to one of the smaller powers, presumably Sweden, to engage officers to lead the Persian troops to quell the rebellion in the southern part of the country." There are a number of young Swedish officers who would jump at the chance to go and the Persian government will not have any trouble to secure such officers, provided the Swedish government will permit it.

The separation of the church and state in Sweden has its advocates in free churchmen and politicians and, of course, in the ranks of the Baptists and Methodists, but the people, especially in the rural districts, do not want to hear of it at all; they can see only harm done to both sides by such a separation and are not willing to let it go that far. They are willing to see what transpires first in England and Prussia in this respect.

One of the oldest inhabitants of the city of Stockholm died week before last. It was Lady Sigrid Cederstrom, who was born Sept. 1, 1825. She was a daughter of the chief of the famous Svea Life Guards, Major General Sixten Sparre, and her mother was the Countess Carolina Lewenhaupt. In the year 1852 she was married to Thure Cederstrom, who for a number of years was a commander at Carlscrona.

The Katrina school, Stockholm's newest, largest and most modernly equipped public school, was dedicated by King Gustaf in the presence of the queen, several members of the royal family and members of the diplomatic corps and a large gathering of Stockholmians. The king delivered a splendid address in which he emphasized the great importance of Sweden's educational progress.

The chief of police in Stockholm has been informed by the government that it will pay the expenses entailed in the capture of Deputy Consul Friberg in London last summer, since Friberg himself has no available funds. The expenses amounted to 561 crowns. This sum will soon be forwarded to the metropolitan police in London.

Drottningholm palace is undergoing thorough repairs and the king and queen have moved out there in order to superintend the work personally. Drottningholm is the favorite palace of both the king and the queen and it was also the place, of all the royal residences in the country, that King Oscar was most fond of.

Three hundred and fifty Swedish-Americans arrived the first week of this month at Gothenburg and from there went to various parts of the country to spend the holidays. It is estimated that there will be over 2,000 Swedish-Americans who will spend Christmas and New Year's in the old country.

Nov. 6, the anniversary of the death of King Gustavus Adolphus, was generally observed with appropriate ceremonies in most of the cities of Sweden. It is a noteworthy thing, however, that the great historic day is not as generally observed as was the case a number of years ago.

The regular soldiers of the army are to have gray uniforms in the near future, in compliance with a recent military order [illegible] by the king. The uniforms will be [illegible] all the divisions of the army at once.

Bishop Billing celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as [illegible] Nov. 1. A number of his friends held a reception of a more private nature in his honor.

NORWAY.

The unexpected has happened in Norway once more. A temperance speaker and agitator went up to the royal palace the other day, sought an audience with King Haakon and got it. After Mr. Gunderson, for that was his name, came into the presence of the king he started to admonish his majesty in regard to drinking liquor and requested him to become a total abstainer. The king politely answered that he never believed in getting intoxicated and had to his own knowledge never been in such a condition, yet he drew the line at becoming an out and out Good-Templar. Mr. Gunderson came away feeling, perhaps, that he had missed his mark. It is a well known fact, however, that both the king and queen of Norway, while not total abstainers, use spirituous viands with exceeding temperateness and good grace. Gunderson has, since offering the king this piece of advice, been a very much talked of personage in Norway and his desire to get a lot of free advertising has certainly been gratified.

According to the Kristiania Handelsblad Norway is approaching better times, economically speaking. At the annual business men's banquet, which was held in Christiania on the evening of Nov. 12 and which was attended by the leading merchants of the city, there were indications that the business men are exceedingly hopeful for the coming year. Judging from the enthusiastic tone of all the addresses on that occasion a new era of economic progress has struck the country and not for many years has the money situation been as healthy as at present. The statsminister, who was present and delivered a lengthy address, stated that there would be a surplus of 2,000,000 crowns in the government budget for this year and that reports from all sections of the country indicated healthier labor and business conditions.

In Norway they are not so willing to accept as a fact the claim that Peary has discovered the North pole. Among those who are unwilling to take any stock in Mr. Peary's claims is Professor Galle, who contends that the statements made by various Eskimos are not necessarily reliable. He does not believe that either Peary or Cook has discovered the pole and that if it is to be discovered at all that Roald Amundsen has the best show.

Norway has for many years been a great maritime power and, for a small nation, it may be said that her merchant fleet is the largest in the world. As it is Norway has the third largest merchant fleet of any country in the world. The total receipts of the Norwegian steamers engaged in the foreign freight traffic were $37,000,000 for the year 1908. Christiania was at the head of the cities with one-fourth of the total amount.

A number of prominent men have started a movement, the aim of which is the circulation of a petition to raise 10,000 crowns for the purpose of purchasing the estate on which Bjornson was born. The intention is also to secure as much of Bjornson's furniture as is possible and place it in the old "prestgaard," where the country's greatest man first saw the light of day.

Among those who have just returned from an extensive whaling expedition in Greenland waters is Captain Otto Sverdrup of "Fram" fame. The captain has suffered many hardships and has not done so well as he expected on this last trip. He has made many trips into the Far North.

DENMARK.

Professor J. J. Exner, the well known painter, died the other day, aged eighty-five years. Exner belonged to the older type of Danish artists and is classed with the so called Dusseldorf school of artists. He took his motives, most of them, from the Amager farmers and he has portrayed their life most vividly with pen and brush. He traveled extensively and spent several years in Sweden and Italy and made many of his best paintings in those countries. Exner was for a number of years a teacher of art at the Academy of Arts in Copenhagen and became a professor at that institution in 1876.

It takes money to run a city like Copenhagen and the city council has had to spend so much money during the past year that it will have some trouble in convincing the people that they have been absolutely necessary expenditures. The total expenditures for the last year were not less than $8,000,000 and there has arisen a deficit which amounts to the neat little sum of $1,500,000. The increase of the population was about 5,000. The value of the taxable property is placed at $228,700,000 and the bank deposits aggregate $95,550,000.

Within the near future Baron Cederstrom will start his flying school in Copenhagen and will teach ambitious aeronauts how to fly in the Bleriot monoplanes of which he has at least two to give exhibitions with. Baron Cederstrom was so successful in his flying trips in a Bleriot monoplane in Copenhagen last summer that people have confidence in him and he will undoubtedly have a number of pupils.

Copenhagen will soon have a hippodrome, where the public will be invited to learn horseback riding for a small admission fee. The building is under course of construction and will be completed some time next month. Such a place will afford a lot of amusement and will also prove to be healthy and pleasant pastime for the young men and women of the city.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Currency reform; extension of the scope of the national banking laws, in the event of no immediate general changes in the monetary system; civil service retirements; a customs service free from "practical politics;" business-like methods in the daily transactions of the government and a general abolition of red tape wherever it clogs the wheels of the government's business are among the recommendations contained in the annual report of Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued his annual report, which states in part as follows: "A year ago the fiscal records of the postal department disclosed a deficit of $17,500,000, the largest in the history of the country. In the space of twelve months a reduction of $11,500,000 has been made in this deficit, the excess of expenditures over receipts as reported for the year ended June 30 last amounting to only $5,848,566.88."

In his annual report to congress Secretary Ballinger of the interior department devotes a large amount of space to public land problems. All the coal lands in Alaska not located prior to Nov. 12, 1906, are under the bond of withdrawals. These located prior to the said date are for the most part under departmental investigation on charges of fraud, irregularities, etc.

As might have been expected after his personal flights in aeroplanes in France Secretary of War Dickinson comes out in his annual report with a strong endorsement of the flying machine and with a recommendation to congress for an appropriation to provide the signal corps with a reasonable number of the better type of machine for instruction purposes and field work.

The estimates of appropriations required for every branch of the federal government during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, aggregating $748,414,861, were submitted to congress by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. This grand total stands against estimates of $745,067,197 and appropriations of $805,294,513 for the current fiscal year.

The supreme court of the United States holds that the federal court of New York erred in dismissing certain counts of indictments against F. Augustus Heinze charging misapplication of funds of the Mercantile National bank of New York. Further proceedings must now be had in the lower court.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

The government crusade against the "bathtub" trust shifted to Detroit, Mich., with the result that indictments were returned by the federal grand jury against sixteen firms and thirty-two individuals alleged to have secured control of 85 per cent of the annual output of enamel ironware bathtubs, sinks and accessories in the United States. The criminal proceedings grow out of a civil suit to dissolve the alleged combination, begun by the government in the federal court at Baltimore.

In denying the habeas corpus petition of John F. Deitz and quashing the writ the supreme court of Wisconsin indicated plainly that the trial court can use its own discretion about ordering service of any or all warrants outstanding against Deitz, thus cutting off Deitz' hope of liberty.

A portable safe containing between $15,000 and $17,000 was stolen from the Adams Express company's office at Minneapolis. The safe weighed 400 pounds. It is believed the thieves took the strong box and the fortune it contained away in a wagon or automobile.

Father John A. Oster, Former Vicar General of St. Paul Diocese.

Father Oster was the best known priest in the diocese of St. Paul and was called monsignore by all who knew him. He was offered this honor by Archbishop John Ireland several years ago, but refused, saying that he wished to die a priest.

Rev. Oster was born in Stronsberg, Alsace, in 1834. He reached St. Paul when a young man, entering the St. Paul seminary. He finished there in 1856 and was ordained a priest by Bishop Joseph Cretin. He was assigned to the parish of Mendota a year later. He served in various parishes after that and was at one time vicar general of the St. Paul diocese.

He was retired two years ago on account of his health.

FLAYS SWEDISH-AMERICANS

Paul Peter Waldenstrom Lectures at Stockholm on Return From the United States—Determined War on Tuberculosis Started in Norway—Prominent Danish Merchant Arrested for Swindling Copenhagen Banks.

SWEDEN.

Paul Peter Waldenstrom, the well known divine and lecturer, who has on several occasions visited this country, has returned to Sweden from his latest visit and upon arriving in Stockholm he had some very interesting things to state regarding the Swedes of America. Waldenstrom delivered a lecture the other night in Stockholm in which he subjected the Swedish-Americans to a rather severe arraignment and it is doubtful if he can expect any hospitality extended him on such generous a scale as was accorded him during previous visits in this country. It has been suspected for some time that Waldenstrom does not like the Americans or the Swedish-Americans a little bit. He characterized them in his Stockholm lecture as a people who are always bragging about their economic welfare; that they are always claiming when one comes from the other side to pay them a visit that their condition is so much better than that of their countrymen in the old fatherland. "Why," said Waldenstrom, "they claim that their railway trains run so much faster and better than ours, that their homes and comforts are so far superior to ours, that it so expensive to live in Sweden and so cheap to live in America, in fine, they cannot see any good in the old fatherland any more and such expressions from every hand is very disheartening to the visiting Swede in America." Mr. Waldenstrom added further that he had "argued in vain with his countrymen in America, but they refused to listen to reason." This statement is a rather amusing one on the part of the learned "lektor" who has been feted and entertained so liberally wherever he has appeared among his countrymen in America. During his lecture tours in this country he was paid liberally for his work and every time that he returns to his native land he speaks in ill terms of the prosperous republic. Swedish people generally are resenting this and the Swedish-American papers have made it a purpose to follow rather close on to the heels of the covenant leader and have taken him to task in no uncertain language on more than one occasion.

Now is the time of the year when a great many Swedish-Americans are packing their grips, betake themselves to a steamship office and start out for the old country to celebrate Christmas. There will be thousands of them who will go from all parts of the United States, but especially from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Illinois. There are also a good many who make the long journey from the Pacific coast to be with the good old folks on the other side. According to reports from the emigrant bureaus in Sweden and the various steamship offices in Minneapolis, Chicago and New York, there is a great demand for first and second class tickets. It is a singular thing that when the Swedish emigrant arrives from his native land he always takes third class passage, but when he returns to pay a visit at home and spend a holiday with relatives and friends, he, as a rule, takes either first or second class passage and enjoys all the comforts that steamship travel has to offer. Swedish-Americans bring some money home, too, and when they return they are likely to have some friend or relative with them. The home returning son does not always receive a hearty reception. Of course he is welcome by his relatives and friends, but there are many in Sweden who look upon him with suspicion, for he speaks well of his adopted land and often induces others to return with him.

The crown prince and crown princess and their children departed from London for Berlin Nov 6, where they have been the guests of the emperor and empress of Germany. They returned to Stockholm on Nov. 16 when they were met at the Central station by a large number of people, including the members of the diplomatic corps.

"Children's day" in Stockholm netted a large sum of money this year and the books show that there is 127,100 crowns set aside for a good cause. This is a record breaking result and the largest amount of money ever collected on this important holiday in Stockholm.

The successor to Sigfrid Wieselgren has been appointed in the person of Victor Almquist, who will soon assume charge of his duties as head of the prison commission. He is an able man and the Swedish papers speak very highly of the appointment.

NORWAY.

In Bergen they are determined to do everything in their power to check the ravages of tuberculosis throughout the country. In that city during the past few weeks they have raised not less than 10,000 crowns, a sum which will be donated to a sanitarium for consumptives. This is not the first time that Bergen has given generously to this cause. The good people of that city subscribe large sums of money for this same cause every year and are now arriving at a standpoint where they can conduct the subscription work after a well defined system.

Marta Sandal, the charming song bird of Christiania, has created a perfect furore among song lovers in her native city. Her singing has attracted unusual attention and this young woman really gives promise of something great for the future. Wherever she appears large and critical audiences gather and critics state that such a songstress has not been heard for years in Norway. The fact that she is only a woman of twenty years adds still greater interest to her charming art.

Haldan Christensen has been appointed general manager and director of the National theater in Christiania. The appointment has met with general satisfaction and the papers have spok a very highly of Herr Christensen, claiming that he is the best fitted man in the country for this very delicate position. Christensen has proven himself to be a splendid scenic instructor, has a fine conception of dramatic art and has splendid tact and judgment.

H. T. A. Winther, professor of philology at Drammen, died the other day, aged sixty-five years. His name was closely connected with the dissolution of the union in 1905. He wrote, as is well known, a series of articles for Swedish newspapers which were exceedingly friendly to that government. They proved, however, to be very unpopular in his own community and his home was at one time surrounded by an infuriated mob and pelted with stones.

M. S. Lie has been appointed minister to Mexico from Norway, as before stated in these columns. Owing to the revolution which is in progress there now he will not leave for that country until Jan. 1. He is one of the rising and already prominent men of Norway. He was born in 1862. His father, Jonas Lie, was one of the country's best known authors. He is the graduate of a military academy and in 1906 was minister to Germany.

During 1909 the mail department of Norway handled 20,377,900 packages of different kinds. This was an increase of over 7,000,000 above the previous year. The department handled in all from foreign countries 1,445,441 copies of newspapers and other periodicals. The largest number was received from Germany and Sweden, each sending 507,734, while Denmark sent 458,590, Russia 14,452 and France 13,464.

P. O. Skaugen, formerly cashier of the Fevik railway machine shops, is behind in his accounts to the tune of something like 25,000 crowns. The other day he was arrested and sent to prison for six months. Skaugen has been speculating rather recklessly of late, but he was able to cover up his tracks for a period of at least two years.

Norway's first direct cable communication with England is now approaching its completion. The English cable steamer, which has the work in charge, arrived at Arendal Nov. 3 from Newcastle. The same day the cable steamer began working out of Arendal and by this time the cable has possibly been extended to Christiania.

A Norwegian paper states that "there is political dissatisfaction in Norway and that systematic criticism is indulged in by the Norwegian press every day." Sweden seems to be suffering from the same form of malady and this kind of a thing does not bode well for the future.

Soren Oljen, a well known merchant in Trondhjem, has donated his whole fortune, amounting to 250,000 crowns, to charity institutions in his native city. Of this amount the hospital in Trondhjem receives 25,000 crowns.

DENMARK.

Christian Henningsen, a detective employed on the Aarhus police force, was arrested Oct. 14 for having accepted bribes in connection with the grain inspection work conducted on the part of the government. Thousands of pounds of grain was disappearing from time to time in the various elevators in Aarhus and Henningsen was detailed to look into the matter and if possible arrest the perpetrators. He, instead, accepted bribes from a number of people, but was finally caught in the trap himself.

G. Franch, a prominent merchant and one of the heaviest stockholders in the firm known as M. I. Nebelong & Co., has been arrested for swindling the banks of Copenhagen out of a sum amounting to not less than 300,000 crowns. His firm has been compelled to make an assignment and at the end of this month Franch will commence his prison term. The swindle has been talked of very extensively and the affair has, in a sense, created as much attraction as the Alberti scandals.

The riksdag has accepted the proposition to renew the 15,000,000 government loan, which was negotiated some time ago for the government by the Stockholm Handelsbank and M. M. Warburg & Co. of Hamburg.

VOL. XXVII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1910 NUMBER 52

CALLED BY DEATH

Two Victims of the Dreaded Disease—Consumption—Record for Last Week.

Malcolm Eberhart Is the First to Pass to His Reward.

Last Thursday at the home of his parents in this city occurred the death of Malcolm Eberhart from the dreaded disease, consumption.

Altho it had been known for some time that he could not recover from the disease, his death nevertheless came as a sad shock to his many intimate friends and relatives.

He contracted the disease some two years ago, and since then most of his time had been spent in the southern states in hopes that the climate would restore his health, but it was not to be, and the sad ending came as stated above.

"Malc" as he was commonly called by his most intimate friends, was a prince of good fellows and a model youth, and his demise from this earth in the prime of youth, just when on the verge of manhood and a life full of usefulness, seems most sad.

Deceased is 23 years old and a son of Capt. and Mrs. Pete Eberhart. Besides his parents he leaves three brothers to mourn his demise.

The funeral services were held last Sunday at 2 o'clock in the Methodist church and were conducted by Rev. J. B. Smith. The remains were laid to its last rest in the Greenwood cemetery.

The bereaved parents have the heart-felt sympathy of the entire community in their hour of sorrow.

At her home on the East Side last week occurred the death of Betsey Alvina Wolfhaupt at the age of 20 years. Death was due to tuberculosis. The remains was brought to Radium, on the Soo line for burial.

Case Continued.

The case of the Tri-State Telephone Co., against the city, which was to have come up in the municipal court last Monday morning has again been continued, and January 2nd has been designated as the date set for the hearing.

ASKS FOR AN EXTENSION

Petition Put In Circulation By J. S. Brown Last Week.

Asking For Extension of Payment On Red Lake Lands.

Work of securing signers to a petition that is being circulated asking the government to grant an extension of time to bona fide settlers, residing on the Eleven Towns, in which to make the payments on their lands, was commenced by J. S. Brown last week.

The petition as soon as completed will be forwarded to Senator Clapp, asking that he secure the necessary legislation by inserting a clause in the Indian appropriation bill to that effect.

As the petition calls for, the extension is to be indefinite and in favor of bona fide settlers having resided on the lands more than seven years and having complied with all the requirements of the homestead law.

In response to a letter written recently by Mr. Brown to Senator Knute Nelson he is in receipt of the following communication:

Washington, D. C. Dec. 5, 1910.

Mr. J. S. Brown,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of November 30 th., setting forth the difficulties under which the settlers up your way are laboring and giving an account of the failure of your crops and the difficulty the settlers are having in raising money to make the payments on their lands, and asking for an Extension of time, is at hand. I shall be glad to do what I can in this matter. The legislation, however, comes before the committee on Indian affairs, of which Senator Clapp is chairman. I would suggest that you get up a petition signed by as many people up there as possible addressed to Senator Clapp, asking that he secure you a further extension of time by having a paragraph inserted in the Indian appropriation bill to that effect.

Yours truly,
Knute Nelson.

Mr. Brown states for the benefit of those who are desirous of signing the petition that as the time is limited they will greatly co-operate with him in the venture by arranging to meet him in Kratka Dec. 26th at 10 o'clock, or at Highlanding at 2 o'clock on the same day, and to kindly notify their neighbors.

RED LAKE FALLS FILES A "PAPER"

Paper Filed With Clerk of Court Last Week Contesting (?) Recent Election.

Certain individuals in Red Lake Falls, last week, filed a "paper" with the clerk of court of Red Lake county, contesting or protesting the recent election, which, does not seem clear, but they are naturally testy at present.

Think of the labor of preparing thirty pages of swash, in order to ease your feelings, when they, as well as everyone else knows have not the slightest chance of getting into court. In this wonderful document it is alleged that division will result in the bankrupty of both counties, and that for this reason the election should be voided; just speak for yourselves boys, we are perfectly satisfied.

It is also alleged that we cast too many votes. You cannot make us sorry, we are growing, but we are sorry our vote did not show as great a growth as the vote of Red Lake Falls would indicate they have had.

It is no use, the south end made its bed, and must lie on it, and while some admired them as good fighters though dishonest, they would have done better to have shown themselves good losers. However it should be borne in mind that the majority of the people of Red Lake Falls are not responsible for this recent display of childishness.

If it were not laughable, it might have the effect of prolonging the bitterness caused by the late struggle, but you cannot feel bitter toward the other fellow, when you are laughing at him. And apart from the display of hatred and spleen the precious document is truly a mirth provoker.

"The mountain labored for weeks and brought forth a mouse". It is perhaps unnecessary to say that Pennington county is and will continue to do business at the same stand. Not a hair has been turned and it is uncertain, if any notice whatever will be taken of the matter.

Reapportionment Assured.

The Brainerd meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development Association will go down in history as one of the conventions, which did things.

The most important topic under discussion was that of Reapportionment according to the last U. S. census. The following is a portion of Governor Eberhart's speech, which testifies to his view of this important question and the promise he makes to see that justice is done by the legislature, which will meet Jan. 3rd, 1911.

"I am here not representing any section. I am here as a Minnesotan, and that is why I am for reapportionment. Though I have had only a few hours to look over the census figures, no one can see them without realizing the need of a change. We all agree that taxation without representation is unjust. Our government is built up on the theory of equal rights to all, but the situation, wherein one section of the state 12,000 people elect a senator and in other sections, it takes 62,000, is intolerable. The house apportionment is equally unjust, with 8,000 people electing representatives in some sections and 32,000 required in another part of the state. I have been in the legislature and know what arguments will be used, but they are not valid arguments, only excuses to protect the selfish interests of those, who realize they would lose their seats by the change. It is suggested that reapportionment may fail, because of the county option fight. I do not believe either the friends or the enemies of the county option movement would take the responsibility of defeating reapportionment at the coming session. The injustice of the present system is so plain that I cannot conceive that our legislature will refuse to right it. If the matter is slighted—I do not mean this as a threat—I may be forced into calling an extra session. I hope that will not be construed as a threat. I do not believe it necessary to make one. I have confidence that our legislature will get this question fairly and justly settled".—Governor Eberhart.

Why Not Develop North Minnesota.

Northern Minnesota is coming into its own. Her citizens are waking up to the possibilities of the northern and middle part of Minnesota.

There is no place that offers better opportunities to young men and women than this great undeveloped section of Minnesota.

The convention of the Northern Minnesota Development Association recently held at Brainerd was attended by 500 live, enthusiastic, boosting delegates.

This convention passed a resolution asking the legislature for good roads.

A bill providing for the prevention and control of forest fires.

At this convention Governor Eberhart put himself on record favoring reapportionment of the state and that in case the legislature did not pass such a bill, he would call an extra session of the legislature.

It is likely that the new law looking to the prevention of forest fires will include the following measures:

To compel railways to clear their rights-of-way for 50 feet on each side of the track, and to enforce the use of spark-arresters on all locomotives operated in the forest districts.

To prohibit settlers from setting fires in timber districts between April 1 and November 1, unless given permits by the county authorities.

To compel all villages to make and establish clearings of at least 20 rods in width around the town.

To prohibit all hunters and fishermen from building fires in the woods from March 1 to November 1, unless there is snow on the ground.

To provide for the appointment of deputies, who shall make regular inspections of lumber camps and railroads to see that all the provisions of the law are carried out.

There is no one improvement that means so much for the state as the development of the northern and middle part of Minnesota.

With the co-operation of its citizens and the boosting of her possibilities by the state press, northern Minnesota should double her present population in the next two years.—Minneapolis Star.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1911.

This City Will See a Great Boom in the Coming Year.

Large Hotel and New Soo Depot Among List of Buildings.

Many improvements are promised for the coming year; A brick block 100x140 on Third St., one 25x80 on LaBree; A large block on the corner of LaBree and Second St., a large noted and a new depot by the Soo are among the buildings that are certain to be erected.

As the most prosperus town and the one having the best backing of any in this part of the state, these improvements are justified and will prove profitable investments.

Had a Bad Wreck.

Four cars of freight sent out from this city went off the track at Mahnomen Wednesday night of last week. One of the cars was completely tipped over and it was necessary to send to this city for the wrecker and crew to mend the damages.

The main track was blocked for the time being. An additional waste of time was caused by the wrecker going thru and open switch and was tied up until next morning.

Roadmaster Ellason and Horton went down to superintend the work of the wrecking crew.

Will Remove to This City.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cooke regret to learn that they intend to leave Roseau. Due to the large territory Mr. Cooke has to look after as state deputy game warden, he finds it necessary to locate more centrally, and the family has therefore bought a home in Thief River Falls, which they will occupy next January. The Cooke family has made a host of friends in Roseau and other places in the county, who are sorry that they have concluded to move out of the county. Mr. Cooke, however, enters upon a larger field of service for the state, and will be a frequent visitor to Roseau county in the performance of his duties.—Roseau Region.

CONCEAL MISSION

Surveyors Spy Out New Territory Under Guise of Ditch Viewers.

Surveying Parties Have Run Lines From This City Northeasterly.

From the activities of railway surveying crews in this section it is evident that railroad construction is contemplated by some company in the spring. Surveyors are running lines through and beyond the territory in eastern Marshall and northwestern Beltrami counties. These engineers inform the farmers with whom they occasionally stay that they are ditch viewers, although all the great ditching projects in that territory have long since been let for construction.

Several railroad parties have run lines from this city northeasterly toward the Canadian boundary, ostensibly with a terminus at International Falls. The region within these surveys is the only rich territory left in the northwest not traversed by a railway line, and the company first entering it is assured of an abundant return.

This is the opinion of all who are familiar with the country and its immense scope and the settlements found in it. For fifty miles northeast of this city the land is open prairie and is all practically settled. To reach any railway the people of this broad section must visit Thief River Falls. Creameries, stores, schools, rural telephone lines and every other feature of a well developed country mark this region.

The ditches which are being constructed through the lowest parts of the counties mentioned will make available for farming the last acre of this rich soil. The wooded portions of Beltrami county, beyond the prairie of eastern Marshall and Pennington counties, is full of homesteaders, all waiting the entry of a railway. This section is larger than several southern Minnesota counties combined.

It is probable that the surveyors represent one of the two competing lines which are striving to get possession of the railway business in this part of the state.

Don't fail to note some of the prices quoted in the big ad of the Farmers' Co operative store in this issue.

WHAT TWO STUDENTS DID.

As showing that the instruction that is given at the agricultural colleges is of a practical and valuable kind may be cited the case of two Minnesota young men. One after finishing his course at the state school took up the raising of potatoes on a scientific scale. On 200 acres, which was a virgin prairie a half dozen years ago, he raised last season (1909) an average of 187 bushels to the acre, from which he realized net $10,000. This year he expected to increase his yield to 200 bushels and to get just as large a net revenue. To do what this young fellow did took brains and hustle. The other graduate of the same institution started five years ago with $500. He went into debt $11,500 for a 240 acre farm. He also had hustle and brains. Now he has property valued at $12,500. In the interval mentioned he has paid $1,000 a year in interest, spent $1,000 on buildings, has pure bred horses, cattle and swine worth $5,000, and he holds that his farm has increased $10 an acre in value, which it must be admitted is a conservative estimate. The book farming he learned at the agricultural college he put to good account, his wheat averaging ten bushels more per acre than his neighbor's, whose soil was just as good. These instances may be termed by some exceptional, yet they show nicely what a fellow can do if he is equipped for his work and takes hold of it with determination.

ONE CAUSE OF HIGH PRICED MEATS.

While the prevailing high prices for all commodities have doubtless been in a large measure due to a price inflation which has been worldwide, there is little question that a very important factor in causing high prices of meats has been due to the rapid cutting up of considerable range areas of the western plain and mountain sites through settlement by homesteaders. This settlement, which is going on more rapidly today than ever, means that the day of the vigorous range sheep and cattle, which were eagerly bought and shipped to points farther east for feeding, is fast passing and that ere long the territory which heretofore has been raising the feed with which to fatten these cattle will also have to breed and rear its own fattening animals. Taking into account that this will have to be done on high priced land, it means that higher prices are bound to prevail for cattle and sheep, whatever fluctuations from month to month may be, due to stockyard receipts. Corn belt should keep this situation in mind and be ready for it.

We went by a home the other night where the windows were all down tight—no provision made for a breath of fresh air—and where, to cap the climax, a kerosene lamp turned low was doing much to befoul what little air the house contained. Fresh air is a good deal cheaper than dirt, more health promoting than pills and tonic, and yet some folks are as afraid of it as death and a good deal more so than taxes.

There is no place where religion—that of deeds as well as words—needs putting into practice more than in the home. It should not only mean being kind and cheerful, keeping socks mended and buttons on the men's shirts, but having a supply of dry wood as near the kitchen stove as possible, kindling closer than the corncrib, a handy supply of water and easy means of disposing of the waste water. Any man who pretends to be a good man about the house, let alone being religious, is worse than—well, he's a pretty poor stick if he doesn't provide for these things.

There's many a man in the north part of the corn belt who has a kindly feeling toward the variety of corn known as Bloody Butcher, which was used considerably in some sections for replanting fields where the larger variety of corn planted at the usual time did not germinate. In one instance which came to our notice some seed of this variety was planted on June 9 and in just sixty-eight days samples of firm dented corn were picked from the field. While we would not urge the planting of it in latitudes where a larger and more productive variety would mature well between spring and fall frosts, yet it answers a good purpose as an emergency variety where one needs corn for feeding purposes and does not want to lose the use of the land.

The wisdom and urgent need of testing animals which are to be used for breeding purposes were effectively shown in the case of the owner of a fine herd of [illegible] cows of which we read the other day. One cow in the herd which he prized highly had not responded as she should from the tuberculin test applied at intervals of several months before, and to be fully satisfied in regard to the matter he had the cow slaughtered by an assistant of the state veterinarian's office. A postmortem examination showed that the cow was so far gone with tuberculosis that there were tubercular lesions all through her vital organs and muscular tissues and that no portion of her carcass was fit for food. It was an emphatic demonstration, convincing not only the owner, but many neighbors and visitors who were present. Next time he will act sooner than he did in this case and thus prevent a diseased animal from infecting other members of the herd.

There is no line along which the animal husbandman makes more serious mistakes than in his unwillingness to pay a good round price for the sires needed, and, while this holds of sheep and hogs, it applies with particular force to dairy and beef cattle. The old maxim "The sire is half the herd" is nowadays considered an under rather than an over statement of the facts in the case, and, considering this and the bearing it will have on the herd, it is sheerest folly and desperately poor management to put up with anything that walks on four legs just because such a sire can be bought for a song. A sire of the dairy breeds that comes of a family whose females have large milk and butter capacity or one of any leading half breeds that has the desired build, vigor and conformation to accepted types is cheap at most any figure, while one that hasn't breeding back of him and is in reality a scrub would be an expensive proposition if he could be got for little or nothing. This is a case of mistaken economy that may save a few dollars at the start, but may easily mean the loss of hundreds of dollars in the course of a few years.

While a complete outfit for determining the amount of butter fat in milk by the Babcock test will not cost over three or four dollars, a very fair idea can be got of what the individuals in the dairy herd are doing by sending average samples of milk from the several cows to the local creamery and having them tested there, a lift most any manager or buttermaker would be glad to give a patron. His test, whether showing a percentage of fat of 25 or 5 per cent, coupled with the amount of milk which each cow averages per day during her milking period, will be sufficient data from which to determine which the loafers are. The sooner this test is made the more money there will be in the bank, while a lot of profitless drudge work will be done away.

ONE KILLED AND TWO HURT

Accident Results Fatally to Minnesota Woman.

Mrs. Johanna Hendrickson was instantly killed and her daughter Jessie was seriously injured when the carriage in which they were riding was overturned eight miles south of Blue Earth, throwing all of the occupants to the ground.

Mrs. Hendrickson, her son and daughter were driving home from a dinner given by a local church, when the team turned a sharp corner. The carriage tipped, throwing the three down a steep embankment. Mrs. Hendrickson's injury caused instant death. The girl was injured internally, and the boy escaped with only slight injuries.

DEED OF JEALOUS HUSBAND

Fatally Wounds Wife; Then Puts Bullet Into Boarder.

Mrs. Joseph Sauro, aged twenty-three, and Giuseppe Mezzacappa, aged thirty-eight, boarder at the Sauro home at St. Paul, were shot by Joseph Sauro, the woman's husband.

Mrs. Sauro and Mezzacappa are at the city hospital, where it is said Mrs. Sauro has only a slight chance for recovery. Mazzacappa is probably not dangerously wounded.

Sauro fled, but surrendered to the police several days later.

FARMER'S WIFE IS SLAIN

Supposed Robber Kills Woman In McLeod County.

Mrs. Frank Simon, sixty years old, wife of a farmer living at Swan Lake, McLeod county, was murdered by a robber, who entered her home and demanded money of her and her husband.

Mr. Simon said that the robber came to the door, demanded admittance, pushed by Simon, who advanced to meet him, and immediately went upstairs. The farmer heard a shot, then a sound of a falling body outside and retreating footsteps. Simon rushed upstairs and found his wife lying on the floor unconscious and with a bullet wound in her head. She expired in a few minutes. The robber had fled, leaping from a window. Simon summoned neighbors and the authorities were notified.

Aged Woman Taken to Prison.

Mrs. Elina Goebel of Moorhead, aged eighty seven years, recently sentenced to five years for manslaughter in the first degree, has been taken to the penitentiary to begin her term. She was accompanied to Stillwater on what many believe to be her last journey by her son and Sheriff Archie Whaley and wife. Mrs. Goebel was sentenced as a result of the death of Elina Narverud of Hittenial, upon whom she performed an operation.

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

FOREIGN RATES:
Including the Dominion of Canada and Mexico............$1.50 Per Year

According to the rules of the post office department which requires publishers to collect for subscription each year we would ask that our readers note when their subscription runs out and if in arrears kindly settle the account and renew your subscription for another year.

It is said that Frank Grady was recalled from Crookston to help frame the "paper." We presume Frank is a good stenographer.

Your college professor is bound to get into print. The head of a large eastern college gravely informs us that the recent census shows that we are now in the same class as India and China as to density of population.

Why was not the destruction of the poll list of the second ward of Red Lake Falls that cast as many votes or more than it has inhabitants given as a "reason" in the "paper"?

It is alleged in the "paper" that when Thief River Falls four years ago divided one of its wards into two voting precincts that it was done illegally and this is given as a weighty reason why the recent election should be set aside. Waugh! do your christmas shopping early.

A business man from Minneapolis came to the city a few days ago to dispose of some property he had acquired here; but after spending a few hours looking us over decided the property was not for sale at the present time as he had not seen a town for some time that showed so much vitality and so good a promise of future growth.

Commission form of government is being very generally discussed in the City and it is understood the matter will be taken hold of and pushed after the Christmas holidays. It is the intention of this paper to later publish a series of articles on the matter. In the meantime our columns are open to the public and we invite discussion of the subject by our readers.

The Journal-Press has never been able to see the logic of the county option scheme, but it is decidedly opposed to the legislature being bossed and controlled by the brewery bunch. The members of the house and senate owe it to themselves to kick every liquor lobbyist way down the front steps of our magnificient and beautiful Georgia marble bill board.—St. Cloud Journal Press.

Quite right! Treat the other fellow the same way.

It is stated that the leaders of the county option movement will endeavor to take advantage of important legislation that will come before the next legislation to further its interests. If this is done it will injure their cause a great deal. Should there be any attempt made to mix county option with such measures as re-apportionment or good roads, the people generally will resent it and county option will suffer. By many of the best people of the State it is regarded as a good measure but it should stand on its merits and we do not think its supporters will countenance any political trickery on the part of its leaders.

Route No. 2.

Arno Steinhauer left for the coast the fore part of this week for a pleasure and business trip. His sisters expect to visit their oldest sister, Mrs. Y. Flaske, at Duluth in the near future.

Many of the Excel boys are busy trapping, but they'll soon have to "bait," as there is hardly any left.

Miss Margaret Jackson, teacher of Dist. No. 20, with the aid of her pupils, decorated everything about the schoolhouse in order to make everything pleasant for the visitors Dec. 22 at 8:30 p. m., as a very large number of the vicinity expect to be present.

Henrich Wendt left for Middle River to act as clerk in one of the pioneer stores of that place.

The surveyors for Judicial No. 23 are still about staking out lines for next spring's work. The ground is not any too hard for them yet and never will be, unless the weather should become more severe than what it has been.

The Larson boys will soon begin batching on their claims at Mud Lake.

G. Johnson and Aug. Koglin are busy baling and shipping hay to parts east of Grand Forks, N. D. Hay is valued this year owing to its scarcity.

Zion Church.

Christmas services will be held at the Zion church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. the Christmas program will be given at the Christmas tree by the Sunday school. Special songs by the choir at both occasions. A cordial invitation to all.

The Ladies Aid society of the Zion church will meet at the home of Mrs. Ole Evenson next Thursday at 2:00 o'clock p. m. All welcome.

Arrested on Serious Charge.

Agent Oven, of the Canadian Northwestern mounted police, was in the city the first of the week enroute to Holt, where he went to get information as to the character of a man who, with his son and two daughters, was arrested recently at Rainy Lake on a very serious charge.

The family were former residents near Holt before their removal to Rainy Lake, and it was for the purpose of getting evidence that Mr. Oven visited that place.

The British laws in dealing with criminals are very severe and it is anticipated that the culprits will not be dealt with lightly.

Deaths of the Week.

Grace Elizabeth Conklin, the six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Conklin, died last week from typhoid fever. The funeral services were held last Tuesday and interment took place in Greenwood cemetery.

Roy Ernest, the one year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roberts, of this city, died last Sunday after a brief illness. The funeral services were held last Tuesday.

Room For More.

Minnesota has a scant 2,300,000 population. Experts state that it is capable of multiplying this ten times, and still guarantee to all the same degree of prosperity which at present exists. What the increase of rural population means in a state where at present some counties have actually fallen off in population in ten years, should be obvious. To the farmer it means better roads, rural delivery, more money for local improvements, better social and better business conditions. To the towns and villages it means proportionate growth, for it is useless to expect in any state that the cities and towns will outstrip the agricultural districts to which they must look for their greatest prosperity.

TO SUCCEED CYRUS NORTHROP

Dr. G. E. Vincent Elected President of Minnesota "U."

At the semi-annual meeting of the regents of the University of Minnesota held at Minneapolis Dr. George Edgar Vincent, dean of the faculties of arts, sciences and literature of the University of Chicago, was elected to succeed Dr. Cyrus Northrop as president of the university. Dr. Vincent has accepted.

The new president will take up his work April 1, at which time Dr. Northrop will retire.

Dr. Northrop was elected president emeritus of the university. The salary of his successor was fixed at $10,000 a year.

Dr. Vincent is forty-six years old and well known as an educator, speaker and writer. He is a son of Bishop John Heyl Vincent, founder of the Chautauqua institution.

POLICEMAN AMONG NUMBER

Masked Robbers Hold Up Twelve Men in Saloon.

Two masked bandits walked into a saloon on the West Side at St. Paul about 9 o'clock at night, lined up twelve men in the place against the wall with their hands above their heads, plundered the cash drawer of $47 and walked right out again. Because Patrolman George Sudeth, attached to the Ducas street station, who was one of the dozen who held up their hands, failed to follow the men or make any effort to arrest them he was suspended from the force by Chief O'Connor. Sudeth was not on duty at the time.

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

St. Paul Man Accused of Killing His Wife.

Charles P. McKenna, a laborer, is being held at St. Paul police headquarters pending an investigation of the death of his wife. McKenna's arrest followed an autopsy by Coroner D. C. Jones.

Mrs. McKenna's death was caused by violence, according to the coroner, who says that the post mortem revealed several ribs on both sides broken and scalp wounds on the back of the head.

Bloodstains were found on the floors and walls of the house.

Drowned While Ice Boating.

While ice boating on Ripley lake at Litchfield, Nora Peterson, aged nineteen, was drowned and Harold Weeks, Glen Lacy and Miss Fay Wheeler narrowly escaped a similar fate. The party of young people had been out on the lake with the iceboat enjoying the moonlight for some hours, when they ran into a stretch of open water several hundred rods from shore. All four were precipitated into the icy waters of the lake.

Fall From Bridge Fatal.

Sent to a neighbor's house for milk for her parents, Violet Barr, aged twelve years, daughter of Frank Barr, attempted to cross the Omaha trestle span over the Blue Earth river at Mankato and while in the middle of the structure was so frightened at the approach of a train that she either fell or jumped to the ice fifty feet below. Her mangled remains were found shortly after the accident.

LOCAL ITEMS

For Sale—Fine poplar wood. Phone 233. Geo. Elder.

Editor Converse, of the St. Hilaire Spectator, was in the city yesterday.

County Surveyor Martz was in the city the first of the week, and made a trip over the state road east of this city inspecting the improvements made during the past year.

The local high school has placed on exhibition at the office of Dan Shaw a number of articles in woodcraft made by the students of the manual training department. These pieces are among the finest specimens in woodwork we have seen, and speak volumes for this important addition to our schools, its instructors and pupils. We urge the public to look at this fine collection and they will be surprised at what our young boys can accomplish.

Miss Blexrud, a former high school teacher in this city, was over from Warren last week to pay a visit to the local school.

Edgar Irvine leaves tomorrow night for Stillwater, where he will spend a couple of weeks at the home of his folks.

Frank Zavoral, of Erie, was in the city last Tuesday and while here made this office a pleasant call.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dobner and family are expected to arrive in Thief River Falls the last of the week to spend the holidays.

This idea of starting agricultural schools at different places in the state is a mighty good one and we hope it will be carried out. These schools will raise the standard of fertility of our soil, for they will teach their students scientific farming and until that is learned we can look for a steady decrease in our farm productions. When the soil is worn out, it does not yield one half what it did a few years ago and it lies with the younger generation to bring it back to its old form, with schools.—Ex.

Mrs. O. W. Johnstone, of this city, was over to Warren last week visiting her old home.

Mrs. McMillan arrived in the city Tuesday morning for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Dobner.

Mrs. David Erickson of Lisbon, N. D., who had been in the city visiting her sister, Mrs. Hans Olson of the East side, died very suddenly Tuesday night, December 20th. Deceased was 60 years of age. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Norwegian Synod church.

Services in the Swedish Baptist church next Sunday, Christmas day. Early in the morning, six o'clock sharp, there will be held a service, "jul otta," as was customary in the old country. Special music. 12 o'clock, Sunday school. 7 o'clock in the evening, Young Peoples meeting. All are welcome. Nils Ek, pastor.

Dr. Spofford will be at Evelyn Hotel, Thief River Falls, Feb. 17.

THE FACTS ARE OUT

The Clipping Below Shows Why Contest Was Instituted.

Red Lake Falls Admit That They Cannot Secure a Dissolution.

The following clipping sent out from Red Lake Falls to the Twin City papers this week goes to show why the contest was filed last week and what the down river "bunch" hope to secure by instituting the proceedings:

Red Lake Falls, Minn., Dec. 19 Notice of contest of election on the proposition to divide Red Lake county has been served on the old board of county commissioners. There are fifty six counts in the contestants' notice.

Those making the complaint admit they do not expect to secure the dissolution of the new county, but hope to secure a delay, which will permit the old regime to collect and disburse the $30,000 tax levy of 1910-1911. Pennington county, which is now organized and officered and doing business, claims its proportionate share of these taxes. The dispute about the taxes is the crux of the whole trouble and the courts will have to settle it. In the meantime the contest is instituted to create a delay.

School Notes.

Arrangements have been perfected for the farmers' meetings which will be held in connection with the agriculture department of the local high school. These meetings will be in the nature of the ordinary state institutes and will be under the direction of expert institute workers. They will be held one day each week for six weeks, beginning the second week in January. Prof. A. D. Wilson promises to announce the exact date and the list of the lecturers next week.

The attendance in some of the lower grade rooms is lowered of late by reason of illness among the pupils.

Nearly all the teachers will leave Friday evening for their homes throughout the state.

The grades now housed in the Masonic block will return to their rooms on the first floor of the old High School building after the holidays. It is almost two years since these classes left this building. The seventh and eighth grades will occupy the second floor of the same building. The plan of having all the grammar grades in the same building and the work organized similarly to that of the high school is known as the department method. It is in vogue in some of the best schools in the state. Its chief feature is that one teacher has charge of those studies in which she excels.

The kindergarten room in the Knox lost one of its brightest pupils in the death of Grace Conklin last Saturday of typhoid fever. She was a sweet little girl whose memory will long remain with those who knew her during her brief term of school days.

The normal students and their instructor learned rural school methods at first hand on Monday, when they visited Miss Miller's school southeast of the city.

As soon as the electric light fixtures arrive and are put in place the dedication announcement will be made. It will take place sometime during the early part of January.

School closes Friday of this week and re-opens on Monday, January 9th. The pupils have honestly earned a breathing spell of two weeks and it is hoped that the famous peddler of Yuletide will generously remember them with his favors during that period.

By the way, what are you going to give your boys and girls for Christmas?

How would it be to give each one a People's Bank pass book, showing a dollar deposited to his credit?

That's a gift that draws interest at 4 per cent; and it gets the boys and girls interested in savings.

Beginning the New Year with a savings habit seems a mighty good way of starting in.

STRUCK BY SOO TRAIN

Farmer Killed While Crossing Track East of Plummer Tuesday.

Sleigh Was Totally Destroyed, But Horses Escape Injury.

The first accident recorded on the new Duluth-Thief River Falls extension of the Soo Line occurred last Tuesday evening, when the train struck and instantly killed a farmer, who was crossing the track in a sleigh.

The accident is thot to have happened thru the failure of the man to hear or see the train on account of the blinding storm, and who in turn was not discovered by the engineer in time to avert the accident.

Who the man was, we were unable to ascertain up to the time of going to press last night.

—The horses in some miraculous manner escaped injury.

STATUTE A DEAD LETTER

Commissioners Report on Minnesota Personal Property Tax Law.

Attempts to tax real and personal property at its full value are confessed a failure in Minnesota by the state tax commission in its annual report to Governor Eberhart. In spite of the law, the commission says, it has been the universal practice for years to value property at 25 to 50 per cent of the full value for taxation purposes. "The truth might as well be frankly acknowledged," the report says, "that it is a dead letter, a still born statute, uninforced and uninforceable."

The commission enumerates another failure in the attempt to reach moneys, credits and other intangible property for taxation. In practice, it says, it has been possible to reach a very small percentage of such property. It recommends that instead of the usual rate all such property be listed separately to pay a flat rate of 4 mills on the dollar.

The gross earnings system of taxation is commended in the report and the commission takes a stand in favor of extending it to street railways, telegraph lines, sleeping cars and similar corporations.

As to steam railroads the commission intimates that the present 4 per cent tax may be found too low. In case the revised valuation of roads now being made should show the tax too low the commission favors an increase in the rate to correspond.

The report takes a stand against the income tax, not believing conditions to warrant a change in the system. It is silent on the tonnage tax for iron ore, which was recommended two years ago.

MINNESOTA LID DISCUSSED

Governor Eberhart Has Conference With President.

Governor Eberhart and five members of the Minnesota congressional delegation discussed with President Taft conditions in the state growing from the enforcement of the Ballinger prohibition order in the so called "Indian country."

Governor Eberhart did not go to the White House with the Minnesota representatives. He went there alone, talked the subject over with the president and returned to his hotel.

"My conversation with the president was of a confidential character," said the governor. "Therefore I do not care to make any comments on it."

Asked whether he protested against the further enforcement of the Ballinger order, the governor said: "That is a question for the federal government to determine. I do not care to discuss it."

Five members of the Minnesota delegation, Representatives Tawney, Stevens, Miller, Volstead and Nye, put in an appearance at the White House. They saw the president and discussed the liquor case with him. Mr. Tawney made public a statement in which he spoke for himself and his colleagues.

In this statement there is outlined arguments that have been made heretofore against the enforcement of the treaty law. Representative Tawney declared it was the belief of Minnesota members who were at the White House that the order of the federal government amounts to an invasion of the police rights of the state.

PICK PLACE FOR TAWNEY

Friends in House Would Make Him Governor of Canal Zone.

Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota, who retires on March 4, may be the next governor of the isthmian canal zone. A nonpartisan movement in the house of representatives is under way to urge upon the president the appointment of Mr. Tawney to a position where, in the words of Representative Burleson of Texas, the senior Democratic member of the house appropriations committee, "he may continue his invaluable services to the government."

Mr. Burleson and other Democrats believe Tawney could do great work and be of immense assistance to Colonel Goethals, the chief engineer of the canal, as governor of the canal zone. This position is now held by Morris N. Thatcher of Kentucky. Those behind the nonpartisan movement say that Mr. Thatcher could be given something else.

Minnesota Teachers to Meet.

A call has been issued for a meeting of the Minnesota Educational association to be held at the old state capitol at St. Paul Dec. 28 and 29. The meeting will be held to elect officers and make changes in the constitution so that the meetings can hereafter be held legally in October or some other time convenient to the teachers. The business meeting is called at this time to conform to the interpretation of the articles of incorporation made by the attorney general.

Two Brothers Insane.

Abraham and Bendick Skaar, brothers and residents of the town of Nordon, were taken into custody by Sheriff La Bree the first of the week and taken before Judge of Probate Michelet yesterday to be examined for their sanity.

Both were found to be in a demented condition and were committed to the detention hospital at Fergus Falls, and were brought to that place last evening by Sheriff LaBree.

The cause of their condition is attributed to a weakness that is hereditary, as their father is also an inmate of the asylum.

They are 27 and 26 years old respectively.

Chas. Gustafton was up from St. Hilaire the first of the week to attend the monthly meeting of the Farmers Co-operative creamery at this place.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

In a battle with a sheriff's posse and a state militia company following the shooting of Daniel Courtney, a prosperous farmer residing near Yankton, S. D., who, it is said, cannot recover, George Rossteucher, a discharged hired man, was shot in the head and mortally wounded after a fusillade of bullets from the members of Company M had riddled the Courtney home, where the pursued man had barricaded himself and refused to be taken alive.

John Deitz, his wife and their son Leslie have won their hard fight to get more time to prepare themselves against the charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the killing of Deputy Oscar Harp in the assault on the Deitz cabin at Cameron dam on Oct. 8 last. Judge Reid, at Hayward, Wis., has granted a continuance of their cases until the March term of court.

Following a quarrel over the ownership of a small gray mule Will Benefield, John Benefield and White Benefield, brothers and well to do planters, engaged in a fight with revolvers at Hopewell, Ala., and all three were killed.

United States secret service officials raided the offices of the Capital Investment company at Chicago as a bucket shop. The main office and four of its branches were visited and papers and records confiscated.

Earl Ward, thirty years old, who, it is said, robbed the State bank of Paradise, Kan., procuring $2,500, killed himself when surrounded by a posse of farmers fourteen miles north of that place.

Robbers held up Cashier J. H. Comer of the Prue State bank at Prue, Okla., at the point of revolvers, took what money was available and escaped.

Minnesota Corn Growers Assn.

A booklet announcing the first annual contest of the Minnesota Corn Growers association to be held at Albert Lea, Jan. 2nd to Jan. 7th, 1911, has just recently been issued. The book contains an attractive price list and a program of the farmers short course to be held at the same time.

A number of other states have corn growers' associations and annual contests which have proven of almost incalculable value in spreading knowledge and stimulating production of this great crop. Minnesota has not in the past been considered as one of the great corn producing states. Until very recent years corn was not a leading product. Because of this and because varieties and cultivation had to be adopted to a cooler climate and a shorter growing season the farmers of the State have had even more to learn about this most important crop than even the corn growers of other states. The acreage planted to corn in Minnesota is rapidly on the increase. This is as it should be. We are firmly convinced and it has been demonstrated that it is possible to increase the average yield and the quality of the corn, to a very marked extent.

The association which has just recently been formed is known as the Minnesota Corn Growers Association and the object of this association as marked out is as follows:

1. To advance the interests of corn growers by securing better methods of selecting and caring for seed corn.
2. The improvement and development of varieties of corn.
3. To encourage better and more thorough methods of cultivation.
4. To perfect a score card and establish a standard of perfection for use in judging exhibits of corn.
5. To hold conventions for instruction in corn judging.
6. To issue certificates of qualification to expert judges of corn.
7. To hold conventions wherever practicable.

What the association will try to accomplish:

1. To bring together the leading men in the state who are interested in corn improvement.
2. To create an interest in improved seed.
3. To eliminate poor varieties of corn from the state.
4. To disseminate among its members a better knowledge of corn, thus improving the agricultural conditions of the state.
5. To hold an annual corn show that will surpass anything in the west.
6. To establish a farm boys' organization with a grain growing contest of mammoth proportions.

An attractive premium list has been prepared for this contest, and a very big exhibit is looked for. Among the special premiums offered there is one by Dan Shaw, of this city, who offers to farmers of Red Lake county $10 in cash to be divided as follows: Best ten ears of corn, any variety, first, $7, second, $3.

The Commercial-Normal School

Is Training Scores of Young Men and Women for Successful Life.

It extends an invitation to you. No matter what you intend to become; farmer, doctor, lawyer or minister; you will be better prepared for success if you secure a thorough business training in this well known school. It has a faculty of competent teachers, large and light quarters, and is equipped with everything necessary for the successful teaching of modern business.

Educated Heads and Skilled Hands Always in Demand.

All young men and women of character are ambitious to maintain themselves in independence, save money, learn what to do with it that it may increase; create fortune, wisely providing for a "rainy day" or old age. Those who are ambitious to rise in the world will make slow progress without knowledge of the business usages of everyday life. The following studies are essential to success or self-maintenance and prosperity:

Business Writing—Under our method, the student in a very short time acquires an elegant, easy and rapid style of business penmanship while pursuing other studies.

Bookkeeping—The invention of newer, shorter and simpler methods of keeping books goes on year by year. We have kept pace with these improvements. The student is taught the usages of the best business houses and enters upon and conducts and closes many different kinds of businesses for himself and others.

Business Arithmetic—Quickness and accuracy are the essentials in good business figuring. Our methods of calculation are simple, easily learned and show wonderful results.

Spelling—In connection with the above, is also taught, so as to make it at the same time a special exercise.

Business Correspondence—The acquirement of a simple, terse and easy style is carefully taught by the giving of frequent exercises in writing business letters on various subjects.

Grammar—Persons requiring knowledge of this very necessary subject are given careful attention, it being included in the business course in connection with other studies, for those who need it.

Business Forms—Under the tuition of our skilled instructors, the preparation of all business forms, agreements, contracts, etc., are included in the course.

Actual Business—So thoroughly practical is the instruction in this institution that a great proportion of the course of study is as completely actual business as can be in the school room.

Commercial Law—All who want to conduct their affairs in a careful manner must have knowledge of commercial law. Many have lost fortunes by lack of just this kind of knowledge. We include with other branches, thorough instruction in this.

The Young Man Stenographer

The best business equipment for the young man today is a knowledge of shorthand and typewriting, coupled with a thorough training in bookkeeping. Do you wonder at this? Do you think as many men do, that girls have crowded you out? If such is the case let us tell you now emphatically and distinctly that the girls in the stenographic profession have not crowded the young men out.

Young men stenographers are scarce; they are wanted; they are in demand. There is where your opportunity comes in. If young men would only realize that the field of stenography offers them opportunities to be in daily touch with the master minds of the business world, where they will draw knowledge from the dictation of men who have spent years and years learning the very things that they dictate, we believe that more of them would take up stenography as a means of livelihood. Do you realize that the young man stenographer for a great concern is in a position to know more about that concern, its trade secrets, its special discounts, its way of getting business, and its manner of buying to advantage, than anybody else in the whole concern, except the proprietor himself.

Do you know that we have two calls for young men for every one we can fill, and they are the best positions in the business world? Any business man will tell you that the young man who knows stenography and typewriting can start anywhere at double the salary of one who lacks this knowledge, and that is not all, he rises faster.

Bookkeeping Encourages Honesty

The beginner must not get discouraged and say: "I shall never learn Bookkeeping, because I have no aptitude for figures." He must persist. He must remember that intelligent practice begets aptitude. Bookkeeping is of too great value to be omitted or to have any other study substituted for it; or to be given up after once begun.

After one learns to read, to write, and to make arithmetical calculations there is no science of so great a value to anyone, man or woman, young or old; in any calling or profession; from any viewpoint, financial, mental, or moral, as the science of double entry bookkeeping. It will furnish remunerative employment; it brings into play the best of one's mentality, it fortifies one against fraud or imposition in his dealings, it sharpens one's business acumen; it cultivates patience, fairness, promptness, and mathematical exactness; it gives exact poise to character; and there is no other science that forces so clear a view and so deep-seated a conviction of absolute honesty and fair dealing.

If one will reflect for a few moments he will fully realize that there has never yet been found a man so cunning or so profound but that if he attempted to go crooked, when the accountant or skilled bookkeeper was put on his track, his devious dealings were soon uncovered and all of his frauds laid open to prosecution and bared to public scorn.

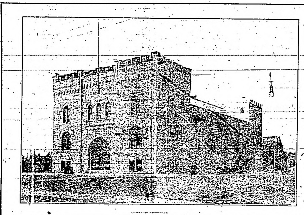
The daily newspapers are full of instances of igorance or crookedness uncovered by bookkeepers and auditors. If one should attempt to go crooked in the face of such inevitable disaster in the end, he is open to conviction of insanity.

The young man that expects to attain any standing before the public, and to hold the positions of honor and trust, cannot afford to neglect the science of double entry bookkeeping.

Our City.

Thief River Falls is a beautiful city of 5000 inhabitants, located at the junction of the Thief River with the Red Lake. It is the natural center for the adjoining territory, and is rapidly developing into a distribution point for the northern part of the State. The Soo railroad makes this city one of its division points, thus centering a large amount of traffic here that would otherwise pass by, and this traffic will be greatly increased with the beginning of the proposed transcontinental service that will be established in connection with the new Duluth line. The Great Northern also runs through the city affording excellent railroad connections with Warroad and Crookston.

The city has fifteen churches, representing nearly all denominations, and the moral tone of its citizens is not excelled anywhere. During the last summer a large municipal armory and Auditorium has been completed at a cost of $50,000. This is the largest and most beautiful municipal-owned auditorium north of the TwinCities. Every indication is that within ten years Thief River Falls will be the manufacturing, commercial, educational and social center of northwestern Minnesota.



Opinions Of Leaders

"I think a knowledge of shorthand and typewriting as almost an essential to success in these days."

HON. FRANK M. EDDY.

"The education I acquired in a business college, I consider as of the greatest practical value of any I ever received."

HON. LYMAN T. GAGE
EX-SECRTARY OF THE U. S. TREASURY.

The demand for men of brains and capacity is far and away greater than the supply. The man with the practical education is given the preference.

JAMES J. HILL, PRESIDENT
GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

No young man who looks ahead to the bright awards of a grand career should allow himself to be prevented from entering the race by unfavorable circumstances.

GROVER CLEVELAND

There is no place in the modern world for the unskilled; no one can hope for any genuine success who fails to give himself the most complete special education.

HAMILTON W. MABIE

With the vast extension of our business and the new methods in vogue, practical training is absolutely essential to success.

HERBERT H. VREELAND, PRESIDENT
METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY, NEW YORK

There is no easy road to success:—I thank God for it. A trained man will make his life tell. Without training you are left on a sea of luck, where thousands go down while one meets with success. Training, with brain work, is what will bring success.

JAMES A. GARFIELD

To succeed in business today, the young man must have the advantages of modern training, modern methods and modern ideas.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, PRESIDENT
THE UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION

"Adequate knowledge of any part of a business enterprise, will, with industry, enthusiasm and integrity, place any man in an independent position. In all cases such knowledge does not produce great wealth, but great wealth does not add one jot to contentment. Respectable occupation is the best, most wholesome, and satisfying thing a man can have".

ALEXANDER H. REVELL,
Chicago, Ill.

"Prepare for life's work. I first learned to write a legible hand in a business college during vacations, while attending public school. I regret that at the same time I did not take time to learn shorthand and typewriting, as a knowledge of the same is almost invaluable at the present time."

EDWARD DUNN,
Ex-Mayor of Chicago.

To Backward Young People.

Some years ago, a Northwestern farmer said to his neighbor, "My boy thinks he wants to go to a business school; what do you think of it?" "Well," replied his neighbor, "It is a good indication, and I should let him go." The farmer took his neighbor's advice, and sent his boy to a good business school. A few years' schooling in a country school was all the education the boy had previously obtained. After finishing his course at the business school, he returned to the farm. By reason of the business training he had received, he was elected town treasurer, afterwards town clerk, then county clerk, and finally county Treasurer, an office which he held with credit for many years. His business education enabled him to draw contracts, deeds, wills, and other important papers for his neighbors, and he became a leader in his community, simply because of his business training.

Youny people should not hesitate a moment about entering a business school because they are backward in their studies. That is the very reason why they should be anxious to enter. There is no other kind of school in which they can so quickly, comfortably and cheaply make up the lack of early school advantages.

Tact vs. Talent

Despise small opportunities and you will never have large ones. Great opportunities are generally the wise improvement of small ones. Sometimes a "happy hit" may be made by a bold venturer, but usually the safest road to travel is the common highway of steady industry and close application—these qualities make men sharp to discern opportunities and turn them to account.

"Talent is something, tact is everything." Talent knows what to do, tact how to do it. Talent sells a man what he wants, tact sells him what he does not want.

At the bar talent talks learnedly, tact gets the hearers. In the house of legislation talent has the ears of the assembly, tact gets the bills through. Talent is honored with approbation, while tact is blessed by elevation.

How To Win Success as a Business Man

The Saturday Evening Post recently contained the following.

"It is a significant sign of the times that in the list of occupations in the graduating classes of both Harvard and Yale this year, business led.

"Business proclaims itself boldly and exceeds all other callings. It has come to its own. We find no surplus in this calling. Business is wide and broad enough for all graduates. It suffers not from overcrowding. It even faces a plethora of positions. It is the age itself, with all its abounding activities and energies."

Business offers you more opportunities than do any of the so-called higher professions. It is the most honored and most profitable and most powerful of all pursuits in life. Business makes the professions possible.

Business offers its young stenographers wonderful chances. It takes them right into its confidence—dictates to them its business secrets—outlines to them its business methods—reveals to them its business successes. That is why some of the most powerful and prosperous men that this country knows today have risen from the ranks of stenographers. Business must depend upon its bookkeepers. They control the circulation of its life-blood—money. They take the observation of the thermometer of business—profit and loss. This is the reason why alert, energetic bookkeepers are promoted to the positions of credit men and managers. That is the reason why bookkeepers so often win such signal success when they go into business for themselves.

He succeeds best as a stenographer or bookkeeper who gets the best training in stenography or bookkeeping. He gets the best possible training in either or both of these branches if he attends our college. This is no mere advertising boast. No staff of bookkeeping or stenography teachers in this country are better paid or more able than our corps of instructors. No business college surrounds its pupils with every necessary appurtenance of business or office practice in any more thorough manner than does our college.

A visit paid to our college and a talk with our president will convince you once and forever of the truth of our claims. If you can't call, at least send for our free catalogue.

THE UNIVERSAL NEED OF A BUSINESS EDUCATION.

It will be noticed that the opinions of eminent men on the value of a business education bear upon its general rather than on its restricted value. They do not commend it so much for its use in preparing young men and young women for profitable business positions for the general preparation it affords for the practical duties of life that all must encounter. They take the broad ground that a knowledge of correct business principles is essential to all, and that the diverse relations of human life and the employments that must absorb human energies must be regulated and controlled by the best business methods. The school of experience is a dear teacher, and many of its lessons can be secured at far less expense and trouble in a good school where the curriculum of studies embraces branches that are essentially the product of human experience. Because business principles are so universally applied in human affairs, a business education is of universal value. The best place to get the education spoken of by the great men is this Business College.

PARENTS PLEASE HEED.

You cannot make a mistake by putting your boys and your girls in a reputable commercial school. No matter what vocation they are to follow in the future, a business training fits them for it. We will make it stronger, you will make a mistake if you do not send your boys and your girls to a good commercial school for at least a partial business education. As a means of earning a livelihood there is no other training that will fit them so quickly and so thoroughly. The average training given in a good business college will prepare a boy or a girl to earn more money and to get farther ahead in the world, than will four year of college training.

The Commercial-Normal School

"THE QUALITY SCHOOL"

A school where good order and good companionship make study a delight; where character is considered as important as culture; where the needs of each student are studied and satisfied; where the most approved methods of instruction are employed; a school which is being built up on the recommendations of satisfied students; which produces certain and satisfactory results and is in close touch with the business world which enables it to place all competent students in good positions.

O. A. NAPLIN, President.
Commercial Law and Business Methods.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Dec. 10, 1910.

To Whom it May Concern:

During the time I attended the Commercial Normal, I found the school up to date in every respect. The courses are thorough, and the rooms well equipped, and the teachers take a personal interest in every student.

I can gladly recommend this school to anyone contemplating attending school and desiring a good business training.

Very truly yours,
Martin Lundgren.

To Whom it May concern:

Last year I took a course in the Commercial Normal School and I consider it the best investment I ever made. By reason of the knowledge of bookkeeping which I secured through your instruction, I was given a position in the First State Bank and am rapidly getting the experience that will place me in line for advancement.

I take this opportunity to say that any young man or woman, who plans on a business career, can do no better than taking a course in your school thereby getting the right start.

Wishing the Commercial Normal School all possible success, and its Proprietors continued prosperity, I am

Respectfully yours,
Ole C. Granum.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Dec. 14, 1910.
Commercial Normal School,
City.

Gentlemen:

We have one of your students in our employ, and we find him very satisfactory and competent help, and well qualified for the position he occupies.

From our knowledge of your students, we feel justified in saying that your methods of instruction are thoro and up-to-date, and as business men you are prompt and honest in your dealings.

We take pleasure in recommending your school to anyone desiring a thoro business education.

Yours respectfully,
Jackson & McGinn.

Appreciating as we do the necessity of concentrated effort, one of the first things we teach our pupils is how to work to the best advantage, how to accomplish the most with the least expenditure of time and money. We believe that a right start is half the battle, and the large amount of work accomplished by our students demonstrates the degree of our success.

The Woman: Here's a wonderful thing. I've just been reading of a man who reached the age of 40 without learning to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made scholar of himself in two years.

The Man: That's nothing. I know a man who was a profound scholar at 40. Then he met a woman and for her sake he made a fool of himself in two days.

UNGALLANT.

Most Southerners are gallant. An exception is the Georgian who gave his son this advice:

"My boy, never run after a woman or a street car—there will be another one along in a minute or two."

G. T. ALMEN, Treasurer.
Banking and Accounting.

EXPENSES.

The tuition rates at the Commercial Normal are lower than at any other institution of the same standing in the state. A whole year's tuition in Bookkeeping and Stenography will cost you $55.00 with us, while other schools charge you $75 or $85. Our monthly rate for the day course is $9, and at all other institutions it is $12 or $15. Evening rates with us from $3.50 to $5. per month depending on the work taken.

Board and room can be secured in private families at $12 to $15 per month. Any student can save from $50 to $75 by attending our school instead of going to another place.

Don't be fooled by what you read of free books, free fare, free board, etc. That may seem cheap, but alas, too many have found that it was expensive to accept an offer of that kind. Don't expect something for nothing. It is foolish.

Some schools advertise that all students are guaranteed positions. In that way they attract large numbers of unwary young people, who honestly believe such a thing possible. To fulfill their part of the agreement these schools make arrangements with some unscrupulous business firm to take their students with the understanding that they are to be discharged after a few days trial to make room for another one. Often these firms are doing business in some far distant city thus entailing a heavy expense on the poor student.

We will place our Graduates in good positions, but we can not guarantee positions to anyone who may enroll. During the past year we had a number of calls for competent office help. We could have placed in positions every student enrolled had they been sufficiently advanced in their work. Come early and complete the work and then you need not worry about getting something to do when you are through at the Commercial Normal.

Fear of failure never started a man on the road to success.

Do good to them that hate you,—and pretty soon they won't.

What a sorry state the world would be in, if all men were great leaders!

Success is within the reach of everyone who is willing to make the necessary effort.

The difference between a compliment and flattery is whether you get it or somebody else.

It does not harm to let a little milk of human kindness slop over the sides of the bottle once in a while.

In entering upon business pursuits, as in most other things, it pays not to begin until you are ready, and the place to get ready is at the Commercial Normal School.

No alarm clock is going to ring when time strikes the hour of your opportunity. Fate never yet failed to turn down the man who waited for something to turn up.

Do not flinch however fierce the fire. Only the scorch of the flame can harden the steel for its work—can fashion the man for the responsibilities and problems, the successes and rewards of business.

The place to learn business practice is the business school, and not the business office. The place to put business practice into definite and practical use is the business office. The more you know before you undertake to fill a position in the business office the better will be your chances for success.

WHAT IS REAL EDUCATION?

Lots of apparently well educated people fail in practical life.

They have knowledge-but no POWER.

Success demands both. An education that does not develop both is a false education.

The branches taught by the Commercial Normal are designed to fit pupils for success by teaching them what they need to know, and develop in them the power to apply their knowledge:

If you want success, write to this school for information how to go about getting it. New term starts next month—so find out now.

A WORLD FULL OF OPPORTUNITIES is open to the young man or woman with a good business education.

Do you wish you were a stenographer, a bank cashier, a prosperous business man or woman? Wishing won't make you one. Putting off entering our school won't make you one. Every moment of delay gives opportunity for failure. There are hundreds of men and women today who would now give almost anything (and would now be receiving much larger salaries) if they had taken a course in a business school years ago. But they neglected their opportunity until it was too late. Be warned by their failure and seize the present opportunity to master shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, penmanship, correspondence, etc., and thus possess the knowledge for which business men are willing to pay well.

Begin right by enrolling in our school, and begin right away. Don't plod along in the old beaten path, that leads to failure, but strike out into the highway that leads to success and fortune.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR BUSINESS.

I.

Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but shalt pull off thy coat and go to work that thou mayst prosper in thy affairs and make the word "failure" spell "success."

II.

Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a bum, for thou shouldst know that thy personal appearance is better than a letter of recommendation.

III.

Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shalt thou say to those that chide thee, "I didn't think."

IV.

Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, for thus may thy days be long in the job which fortune hath given thee.

V.

Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine integrity, nor shalt thou be guilty of anything that will lessen thy good respect for thyself.

VI.

Thou shalt not covet the other fellow's job, nor his salary, nor the position which he hath gained by his own hard labor.

VII.

Thou shalt not fail to live within thy income nor shalt thou contract any debts when thou canst not see thy way clear to pay them.

VIII.

Thou shalt not fail to blow thine own horn, for he who is afraid to blow his own horn at the proper occasion findeth nobody standing ready to blow it for him.

IX.

Thou shalt not hesitate to say "No" when thou meanest "No," nor shalt thou fail to remember that there are occasions when it is unsafe to bind thyself by hasty judgment.

X.

Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last and great commendment and there is no other like unto it. Upon this commandment dependeth all the law and the profits of the business world.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Unusual, but still practical—a Christmas gift of a course in the Commercial Normal to an ambitious son or daughter, niece or nephew. That gift will help them to help themselves.

The commercial course teaches business by the laboratory method. Students learn business by doing real business; learn to keep books by keeping them. They learn easily, because learning this way is fascinating.

We have normal courses designed especially to help young men and women whose early training was neglected.

The English language taught to new comers in this country.

Because Horace Greely was a great man without being a good penman it does not follow that the firststep in greatness is to have one's penmanship look like crow tracks.

WELL, THAT'S SO.

It was in the smoking room of an Atlantic steamer that a worthw Teuton was recently talking about weather forecasts.

"Look here," said he, "I dell you vat it is. You petter don't dake no shtoch in der wedder bredictions. Dose beople don't know nodings. Dey can't dell no petter as I can."

"But, my dear Sir," said a person present, "they foretold the storm we have just encountered."

"Vell, dat ish so," said the Teuton contemplatively, but I dell you vat it is, dat shtorm would have come yust de same if it had not been bredicted."

EVENING SCHOOL.

The school is open for evening work on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. It is in session from 7:30 P. M. to 9:30 P. M. It offers an excellent opportunity to those who work during the day to acquire a good knowledge of almost any subject on moments that would otherwise be wasted.

Foreigners, especially those unacquainted with our language, should seize this opportunity to learn to read and write the English language. A special class has been organized for their benefit and any one is invited to join.

We invite the business men of the city and others to join our evening class in Commercial Law. The course will consist of a series of lectures, thus requiring no preparation outside of the time spent at the school. By taking this course you can secure a good understanding of the principles of law that apply to your business, and that knowledge may in time be the means of saving you thousands of dollars.

Thousands of young men have received promotion through their knowledge of Bookkeeping and Shorthand. Many of them have secured this knowledge by attending evening schools and showing that they were willing and eager to seize the oportunity that presented itself. Our evening classes in Bookkeeping, Shorthand and Typewriting have been in session for three months. Why not spend your spare time there? Do not think that opportunity will give you a warning before presenting itself. Be prepared when it calls. No time like the present. Do it now.

Life is a real thing. Don't play it away. Some day you will wake up to find that it is impossible to make the right start. Every one is architect of his own fortune,—at least to a great extent. Begin to draw your plans early. On those plans erect the structure of your character, strong and indestructable.

Wishing you continued success, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Sir:

We have your letter of the 11th, inst., regarding one of your former students, Miss Eleanor Boyce. Miss Boyce was with us for several months as Billing Clerk, and we are pleased to state that her work was entirely satisfactory.

She is a competent stenographer and makes an excellent office assistant.

Yours truly,

TRADE WILL BE INCREASED

One Result of Direct Steamship Communication Between United States and Sweden—Terrific Snow Storms and Bitter Cold Weather in Norway. Great Influx of Polish Workingmen Worrying the Danes.

SWEDEN.

A recent Washington dispatch says: With the establishment of direct steamship connection with Sweden our trade with that country will increase notably, says Edward D. Winslow of Chicago, consul general to Stockholm, who is in this country on leave of absence to spend the holiday season and also to discuss with state department officials methods for establishing closer commercial relations. "We are now sending into Sweden through middlemen large quantities of exports which in our statistical records are credited to other countries, because we have no direct steamship communication with Sweden," said Mr. Winslow. "Take, for instance, the single case of Germany. Sweden buys $50,000,000 worth of manufactured goods each year in that empire, most of the articles being made in this country. Upon this commerce she has to pay the additional tax of the middleman's profit, which will be escaped as soon as steamship communication is established. Last year Sweden commenced the shipment of iron ore to this country and 600,000 tons have arrived. Two large steamers are now being constructed for the trade. We are receiving large shipments of wood pulp from Sweden and our opportunities are excellent to build up a large business with these people. Corn has been placed on the free list and we should ship large cargoes of it. Our merchants must give more attention to the country. All sorts of manufactured goods are imported, while the exports are principally raw products. Sweden is prosperous and the nation is making rapid progress under a protective tariff policy. The natural resources are being harnessed to supply cheap power, heat and light."

The programme for the next Olympic games, to be held in Sweden in 1912, will be of special interest to American athletes, because they will find several new events. Some of them are so different from the standard that the American athletes will have to go into training at once in order to take part in them. Besides the regular long, short, distance and hurdles and cross country runs, fencing, cycling, gymnastics, horseback riding, lawn tennis, yachting, wrestling, shooting, diving and swimming there will be water polo, association football and rowing.

The so called "lumber barons" are gradually buying up all Norrland and soon there will be few independent farmers in that part of the country. In the fifties and the sixties there were plenty of prosperous farmers in Norrland. They were not living so high then as they have done of late when they were foolish enough to commence selling their timber to the lumber companies. The result is that thousands of farmers in Norrland today do not own a thing, for all they possess has fallen into the hands of the lumber companies.

During the month of November last it rained almost constantly in Stockholm. Not for years has so much rain fallen so late in the season and people have been compelled to carry umbrellas every day on their way to their places of occupation. Surely something unusual for Stockholm at that season of the year.

Anders Zorn, the famous artist, has sold his oil painting, entitled "Gopsmor," to the Argentine Republic for 10,000 crowns. The painting has for some time been on exhibition at the International Arts exhibition in Buenos Ayres.

NORWAY.

Terrific snow storms, accompanied by biting cold weather, kept railway men in an anxious state all along the Bergen and Trondhjem lines during the latter part of last month. The snow storms came on suddenly and the cold that followed them was as bitter as that of midwinter. Nearly all the trains that started from Christiania were caught in the mountain passes, where the snow had fallen so deep that they were stuck for several days. The coast steamers also had a hard time of it and several were held up in the harbor for several days. The Eskimo of the Wilson line sent a wireless message that it was twenty English miles away, but that it was in the midst of a terrific hurricane. Terrific storms appear to have raged all along the coast, causing an immense loss to the shipping industry. Telegraphic communication between Gothenburg and Copenhagen had to be arranged via Stockholm. It is feared that many lives were lost.

Recent statistics on the various industries of the country show a marked progress. In every line of industry there is evidence of a healthy awakening and business men are predicting that the industrial awakening of the country has really set in at last. The building of new railroads has a great deal to do with this, also the harnessing of the power of important waterfalls and the quickening of the lumber, iron and ore industries. Norway is not using old time methods any more. New systems and new methods are in vogue all over and every branch of industry has a taint of the modern push in it.

Norway is exporting large quantities of marble stone to Germany. The Norwegian stone is in great demand in that country and that means that there will be something doing on a large scale in the near future for Norwegian exporters of fine quarry and marble stone.

Louis Charles Marie Delavand, the French minister at Christiania, will, according to the Aftenposten (Christiania), change his post and will on Jan. 1 assume charge of the French ambassadorship in Central America. Delavand has been very popular in Christiania.

Hedemark, the well known opera singer in Christiania, who has been ill for several months, is now a convalescent and will soon be heard at the National theater again. He possesses an immense voice and is very popular with Christiania audiences.

A Jewish minister, who has been converted to the Christian religion, held a lecture in the Bergen cathedral the other night which attracted an immense audience. His interpreter was Rev. Klaveneas, who is the pastor of the great Bergen church.

The so called radiotelegraph stations near Kristianssand and Arendal were opened recently for communication for seagoing vessels. The minimum price per word will be 15 ore and the minimum price for a telegram will be 1 crown and 50 ores.

"Nord i Taakeheimen" is the name of Fritjof Nansen's new book, which has just been published. It is certain that this book will prove popular in Norway and Sweden and Denmark as well. The book will deal entirely with polar themes.

Editor Haakon Loken has just completed his new book entitled "Anne Katherine's Youth." Critics pronounce it one of the stirring novels of modern fiction and predict that the book will be a tremendous success.

The Gammel theater in Bergen has been converted into a moving picture showhouse and since this change was made there have been large crowds visiting the old theater every evening.

The new "festsal" at the university will be finished in marble and will entail an expenditure of at least 100,000 crowns. It will be one of the finest assembly halls in the country.

The Bergen store employes have organized a club, which now has a membership of at least 250. The purpose of the organization is to effect higher wages and shorter hours.

Sarah Bernhardt is scheduled to appear at the National theater some time during the winter season. Her coming will attract thousands of enthusiastic theater goers.

DENMARK.

If one keeps his ears close to the ground he will hear something about the "Polish danger." This is the "yellow danger" on a small scale, but there is this difference, that the Poles must not in any sense of the word be confused in this connection. The truth of the matter is a great many Poles are emigrating to Denmark these days from Russian Poland, of course, like the Finns, to escape Russian oppression. They come in large numbers and it is beginning to worry the Danes a little bit. There are not less than 10,000 Poles in Denmark at present and last year these industrial people earned in Denmark not less than 3,600,000 crowns. A great deal of this money was sent to their people in their native land. The Polish workingmen are as a rule an excellent people, but the trouble is that they are willing to work for less than the Danish workingmen are and that is just where the real trouble comes in.

The old Danish whipping post must go. Peculiarly enough there is such a thing to this very day in Denmark. There is what they call the "prygellagen" and Minister of Justice Bulow has proposed to the folkethinge some radical changes in this law, which caused so much indignation, especially some time ago when the Alberti scandals were on the docket. It is evident that most people in Denmark want this law repealed, but it is not such an easy matter to accomplish just now.

The Danish Women's Labor union celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary in Copenhagen the other day in the midst of great festivities. The union has a membership of 1,500 and is growing steadily. The organization as such has been able to accomplish a great deal of good for working women and has been of great benefit especially to the poor working girls of Copenhagen.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The state normal school board has decided to ask the legislature for appropriations totaling $937,688 for the next two years for the five schools. This is a net increase of $11,435 over the previous two years, as an increase of approximately $70,000 in the amount asked for the support of the schools is nearly offset by a decrease of about $60,000 in the amount asked for new buildings, repairs and special purposes.

A total of 2,300 deer were shot and shipped by residents of the state during the recent hunting season, according to reports of the state game and fish commission. These were all shot by holders of resident licenses. Thirty-nine were shot and shipped by holders of nonresident licenses. How many were shot by people without a license is not known, as everybody can hunt in his own county without a license.

The joint committee of the Commercial club and city council of Duluth appointed to look into the commission form of government and the practicability and advisability of its adoption for the city of Duluth, has completed its report, commending the commission plan and urging its adoption. The Des Moines plan, with certain modifications, is recommended.

It is reported about the capitol that A. D. Brown, clerk in the office of the state treasurer, will be appointed secretary of the dairy and food department. The position pays $1,800 a year. Mr. Brown was chairman of the state Republican central committee during the Jacobson campaign.

The appointment of Charles E. Keller of St. Paul as state fire marshal to succeed Edward Peterson was announced by Governor Eberhart. At the same time the governor announced the appointment of Asa Wallace of Fairfax as deputy fire marshal, to succeed C. H. Day.

The sum of $1,316,000 for the agricultural department of the state university will be asked from the legislature by the university regents in addition to the standing appropriation. Of the total $350,000 is allotted to the Morris, Grand Rapids and Crookston schools.

The Minnesota legislature will be asked this session to amend the state law under which it is now almost as easy to buy chloral, morphine, opium and similar drugs as it is to buy candy. Only cocaine is now surrounded with regulations.

Pierce Butler of St. Paul, special assistant in the department of justice, has been designated as a member of the "special force" that is to be charged with the duty of conducting prosecutions of the beef trust.

The Minnesota Historical society will ask Governor Eberhart to incorporate in his message to the legislature a recommendation that an appropriation be made for the erection of a building for the society.

MONEY IN QUACK GRASS LANDS.

About the last section of the country which one would think might be boomed by the real estate agent would seem to be a locality in which quack grass had gained a foothold, and yet the experience of one Minnesota farmer, whose case was related to us directly the other day, would seem to indicate that here was an opening for some energetic as well as patriotic real estate agent. The man in question lives in the vicinity of New Richland, Minn., a section which has been afflicted with quack, more or less—quite likely more—severely for the past fifteen or eighteen years. He cleared one eighty of the pest several years ago, and by dint of much vigilance has succeeded in keeping it clean. A year ago last August he bought another eighty adjoining the home place, which had been given over to quack grass for the preceding ten years. He paid $2,060 for it, or $25.75 per acre. Although it was late in the season before he could get at it, he plowed forty acres of it early in October, raked it with a special quack rake and burned the roots. Next he went over the piece with a quack root digger, gathering and burning all the roots which it was possible to reach. The next spring he planted corn on about twelve acres, oats on a third and wheat on the remainder. This fall he husked 300 bushels of fine corn from this twelve acres, and we know he did because we got the figures straight and have a sample of the corn before us. It is better corn than that raised on land which has been free from quack for years. He will tackle the other forty acres infested with the grass next season, and he figures that when he has given it the same treatment as he has the first forty he will not care to sell the eighty for less than $5,000, and if it is free from the pest it ought to be worth this price. It goes without saying that a fellow with flabby muscles, short in red blood or laking in courage will hardly want to tackle the redemption of this quack grass land, yet we believe there is a first class opportunity for the fellow who is made of the right stuff to get a good farm land at a low price. If he redeemed the land he will not only have added to his bank account, but served his neighborhood and country in a praiseworthy way.

SHOULD NOT BE STAMPEDED.

Straightway following election the big packers have announced that there is going to be a gradual decline in live stock prices. Since the wish in this case is father to the suggestion, because it will enable them to buy heavily on a declining market and thus enlarge their profits—and they seem abundantly able to carry out their wishes—it is fair to assume that the decline in prices will follow. Yet the less the feeders of the country are stampeded by the announcement and the less they yield to a very natural impulse to rush their stuff to a demoralized market the more money they will save in the end and the less will the packers profit by the coup which they have sprung. There can be a decline of $1.50 per hundredweight from present prices ($6 to $7) and yet be left a very satisfactory profit in feeding corn worth 35 to 40 cents per bushel. The man who is so fixed that he can do so would far better hold his hogs and steers, especially if they are unfinished, and sell them a few weeks later, when there is reason to believe that the market will have steadied from the present flurry. There are just as many hungry mouths to feed now as before election, and there is every reason to believe that the legitimate demands for meat products will be just as strong as they have been during the past two years.

THE VALUE OF OILMEAL.

While it is high priced as compared with other cereal feeds, oilmeal is the most valuable of the whole list as a means of furnishing stock with protein in condensed form. The best grades contain 30 per cent or slightly better of digestible protein, and it is because of this fact that it is worth the high price asked for it. Of the two brands of kinds of meal old and new process the former is cheaper at the same price because 94 per cent of the protein content is digestible, while in new process meal but 84 per cent is digestible. Mature fattening cattle may be given from two to two and a half pounds per day, while with growing young stock and pigs it may constitute one-tenth by weight of the grain ration. Dairy cows will handle from one to two pounds daily, depending upon their milk flow. It is the opinion of animal husbandry experts that there is no other feed which has so beneficial an effect on the animals eating it as does oilmeal. Fed in proper balance with other grains, it is the most economical ration which can be fed.

Tuberculosis is often induced by damp and filthy surroundings and badly ventilated sleeping quarters; hence the removal of these causes, if they exist, will contribute to the health of the herd.

A poser for those fond of making fine ethical distinctions: Does the egg laid by your neighbor's hen in your barn or woodshed rightfully belong to him or yourself, provided your garden and back yard furnish her food and your flower beds a dusting place?

Nine times out of ten it does not pay to monkey with really sick poultry. It is better to knock them on the head with a broomstick than to allow them to run indiscriminately with and infect the rest of the flock. Should the sick fowls recover they seldom pay their keep for months.

We went by a home the other night where the windows were all down tight—no provision made for a breath of fresh air—and where, to cap the climax, a kerosene lamp turned low was doing much to befoul what little air the house contained. Fresh air is a good deal cheaper than dirt, more health promoting than pills and tonic, and yet some folks are as afraid of it as death and a good deal more so than taxes.

There is no place where religion—that of deeds as well as words—needs putting into practice more than in the home. It should not only mean being kind and cheerful, keeping socks mended and buttons on the men's shirts, but having a supply of dry wood as near the kitchen stove as possible, kindling closer than the corncrib, a handy supply of water and easy means of disposing of the waste water. Any man who pretends to be a good man about the house, let alone being religious, is worse than—well, he's a pretty poor stick if he doesn't provide for these things.

While a complete outfit for determining the amount of butter fat in milk by the Babcock test will not cost over three or four dollars, a very fair idea can be got of what the individuals in the dairy herd are doing by sending average samples of milk from the several cows to the local creamery and having them tested there, a lift most any manager or buttermaker would be glad to give a patron. His test, whether showing a percentage of fat of 2.5 or 5 per cent, coupled with the amount of milk which each cow averages per day during her milking period, will be sufficient data from which to determine which the loafers are. The sooner this test is made the more money there will be in the bank, while a lot of profitless drudge work will be done away.

There's many a man in the north part of the corn belt who has a kindly feeling toward the variety of corn known as Bloody Butcher, which was used considerably in some sections for replanting fields where the larger variety of corn planted at the usual time did not germinate. In one instance which came to our notice some seed of this variety was planted on June 9 and in just sixty-eight days samples of firm dented corn were picked from the field. While we would not urge the planting of it in latitudes where a larger and more productive variety would mature well between spring and fall frosts, yet it answers a good purpose as an emergency variety where one needs corn for feeding purposes and does not want to lose the use of the land.

The wisdom and urgent need of testing animals which are to be used for breeding purposes were effectively shown in the case of the owner of a fine herd of Holstein cows of which we read the other day. One cow in the herd which he prized highly had not responded as she should from the tuberculin test applied at intervals of several months before, and to be fully satisfied in regard to the matter he had the cow slaughtered by an assistant of the state veterinarian's office. A postmortem examination showed that the cow was so far gone with tuberculosis that there were tubercular lesions all through her vital organs and muscular tissues and that no portion of her carcass was fit for food. It was an emphatic demonstration, convincing not only the owner, but many neighbors and visitors who were present. Next time he will act sooner than he did in this case and thus prevent a diseased animal from infecting other members of the herd.

There is no line along which the animal husbandman makes more serious mistakes than in his unwillingness to pay a good round price for the sires needed, and, while this holds of sheep and hogs, it applies with particular force to dairy and beef cattle. The old maxim "The sire is half the herd" is nowadays considered an under rather than an over statement of the facts in the case, and, considering this and the bearing it will have on the herd, it is sheerest folly and desperately poor management to put up with anything that walks on four legs just because such a sire can be bought for a song. A sire of the dairy breeds that comes of a family whose females have large milk and butter capacity or one of any leading half breeds that has the desired build, vigor and conformation to accepted types is cheap at most any figure, while one that hasn't breeding back of him and is in reality a scrub would be an expensive proposition if he could be got for little or nothing. This is a case of mistaken economy that may save a few dollars at the start, but may easily mean the loss of hundreds of dollars in the course of a few years.

Many a habitually muddy road running east and west can be helped a lot if the trees to the south shading it are removed entirely or thinned enough so that the sunshine can get a chance at the highway. It is not quite so bad on north and south roads, but bad enough so that the majority of the trees might well be removed.

Following a summer and fall which have been unprecedentedly dry the present winter season offers a serious problem for the man who has considerable stock on his hands and whose water supply is none too abundant. Many a well will have to be drilled deeper and a rigid economy in the use of water for the stock be put into practice.

Timothy or other hay at from $10 to $18 per ton makes pretty high priced bedding for live stock. Better bed with straw and reduce the ration of hay, so that what is put before them will be eaten up clean. If the roughage fed consists of hay and straw, half and half, there will be no hay wasted, while there will be enough straw left in the mangers to bed with.

The average lively boy has all the native impulse and outward incentive that he needs along the line of sowing wild oats without being sort o' encouraged or at best excused by an indulgent but shortsighted parent. This wild oats business is one unique line of cereal production where the crop is always sixtyfold, lessened neither by drought, frosty nights nor hail at harvest time. The thoughtful parents will do the most in their power to reduce the sowing to the minimum.

If you are fitting a bunch of shotes for market and have never tried anything else with the corn ration add to this ration, which is too wide—does not have enough protein in proportion to the fat forming elements—some tankage or oilmeal at the rate of one part to nine or ten of corn and see the pigs jump. While both of these protein feeds come rather high, the feeding of them in the proportion mentioned will make a far more economical ration than corn alone because of the rapid gains which will be made.

Being the product of root rather than the fruit of the stem, it follows that potatoes will not mix through planting different varieties in the same hill, as one might think, without looking beneath the surface. The only way in which potato varieties may be crossed lies in fertilizing the blossom of one variety with pollen from a different variety and the next season planting the seed therefrom borne in the tomato-like pod developing from the blossom. It is in this way only that new varieties are developed. Such simple experimenting is within the reach of any gardener who is careful and will take the trouble to work it out.

While some utterances of the packers may have to be taken with a grain of allowance, there is no getting round the force and sanity of a declaration made by one of them the other day to the effect that feeders of cattle, sheep and hogs lose hundreds of thousands of dollars annually because they do not take more pains to secure good feeding animals and send them to market in prime instead of poor and ragged condition. The force of this statement ought to be as plain as the nose on a fellow's face, and yet any big stock market in the country most any day shows a variation of from $2 to $3 per hundredweight on stuff where the difference in price is due to quality and finish alone and not to class or kind.

Notwithstanding the fact that it is entirely feasible, we nevertheless have neither seen nor heard of any serious effort being made to utilize the grass and weeds that annually go to waste on tens of thousands of acres of country highways by herding over them neighborhood flocks of sheep, which could be looked after by some of the grandfathers of the community whose days of active farm work are past. Not only would the grazing of the highways in the manner suggested turn into dollars a lot of roughage that annually goes to waste, but it would greatly improve the appearance of the highways and prevent their being weed seed manufactories for the fouling of the adjoining fields. Of course the carrying of such a co-operative plan into effect presupposes that the folks in the community are on good terms, which is one of the essentials of good farming.

Quite a good deal has been appearing of late in the culinary columns of the daily papers about churnless butter. As near as we can make it out, the cream is put in a brown calico (English for cotton and maybe white would do just as well as brown) bag and put in a hole in the ground for about twenty-four hours, at the end of which time it will or ought to be converted to butter. The philosophy of the business seems to lie in the buttermilk seeping out of the sack, while it is said that contact with the earth "brings" the butter and adds a delicious flavor. It is maybe a confession of ignorance, but we would think that when the good housewife had dug the hole in the ground and filled it up and washed that cotton bag she would have expended about as much energy as in putting the cream in a basin or crock and giving it a few stirs with a spoon.

The doctor states that he has another quarter in the same section, known as the Dick Edmunds place, which he will sell for $1,700. All good dry land, with small house, barn and granary, good well, 25 acres broken. Also a tract of 175 acres, the finest best drained land in the Thief Lake country, known as the Evans quarter, lying just north of Mike Polansky's, which he will sell for $2,000. Both of these quarters are well worth the price asked.—Middle River Pioneer.

Ed O'Hara, who underwent an operation at the famous Mayo Bros. hospital at Rochester, for cancer of the stomach recently, is back home in this city and has almost completely recovered from the effects of the operation. He says that while a patient at that institution he had a number of interviews with Frank Horn, who is also a patient at the hospital there. He reports Frank as getting along nicely and that he will be able to leave for his home in the southern part of the state in a short while, which will be good news to his many friends in this city.

An Arkansas man tells a story of a man who was caught out in the woods in a storm. He didn't want to get wet and the only dry place he could find was a hollow log in which he managed to crawl. The rain lasted a couple of hours, when the fellow decided he had better go home. He tried to extricate himself from the log, but the soft wood had swelled and he couldn't budge. There, alone in the desolate woods, many miles from human habitation, he thought of all the meanness he had done. The poor man lay for hours thinking, when all at once it dawned upon him that he had read his home paper for three years without paying a cent for it. This made him feel so small that he crawled out of the log through a knot hole.

The Commission Plan.

We quote below the salient features of the commission form of Municipal government; and what can be expected if this form of government is instituted.

The chief merits of the commission as will be observed are these:

First:—The nomination of all candidates for council are made at non-partisan primaries and they are finally selected at a non-partisan election at large.

Second:—Responsibility is fixed by placing each member of the council at a head of a department and holding him responsible for this department.

Third:—The abolition of the ward system make each member of the council a representative of the entire city instead of a part of the city only.

Fourth:—The initiative, referendum and recall keeps the power in the hands of the people.

The initiative, referendum and the recall are the salient features of the commission plan. Through the initiative the people have the right to adopt any ordinance which seems wise to them. Through the referendum they have the right to reject any ordinance passed by the commissioners when its wisdom or expendency is not clear. Through the recall they are vested with authority to discharge public servants who prove unworthy of public trust.

"Where the people elect all of their officials, occupants of subordinate positions are responsible only to the people, and this fact accounts in a measure for the failure of the ancient system. The commissioners have the authority to enforce their orders, and thus insubordination and friction disappear. The administration becomes a business machine, the sole purpose of which it to get results for the stockholders in the municipal corporation.

"Again it is not difficult for the people to locate trouble if it arises. Each commissioner is solely and entirely responsible for his department, and if he goes wrong he cannot evade exposure or the penalty of conviction if the people are disposed to impose it".

Three Deputies Let Out.

—Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 20.—For reasons well known to the Indian bureau, Deputies Sero, Matulye and Way, who have been working under government officials in the closing of saloons in Indian territory, have been retired and are no longer employed by the government. The report that Deputy James M. Quinn of Brainerd has also been dropped from the service is not true. Quinn, however, does not go unscathed for he has received word from the state game and fish commission that his name has been removed from the pay roll as a deputy of that organization. The reason given is that dissatisfaction has been caused by his work for W. E. Johnson of the Indian bureau.

A Bemidji paper says that one reason in circulation for the dismissal of the three deputies first named is that they have been talking too much to newspaper reporters. Most of the bartenders, who were employed in the twenty-seven saloons of this city are about to leave or have left the city. Cigarmakers are moving to Superior and Ashland. Business in many lines is seriously affected by the closing of the saloons.

Civil Service Exam.

Applicants for appointment to the positions as carriers on the two rural routes running out of Thief River Falls wrote an examination in this city Saturday afternoon. The examination was held in the high school building and was in charge of Mrs. E. F. Marshall. Those who took the examination are Soren P. Knutson, Constantine J. Hoffman, George E. Smith and Harry Bakken, all of Thief River Falls.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Signs of a Profitable Year.

During the past six past weeks this City has enjoyed a splendid trade. Everyday the streets and business places are crowded with buyers, a large proportion of them are strangers. The amount of business done is most gratifying and is drawn from a large territory. It is very evident that we have become the market place of many of the smaller communities in the Northwestern portion of the state.

COLLIDES WITH A STEAMER

Swede Making Canoe Voyage Through Europe Has a Serious Mishap—Norwegians Seek Better Transcontinental Traffic Facilities—Band of Robbers Outwits Police of Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

Herman Lantz, a Swede who is making a canoe voyage through Europe, had a bad mishap on the river Rhone, France. He left Gothenburg in August, followed the coasts of Sweden, Denmark and Holland, and continued his voyage up the river Seine to Paris, where he spent two weeks sightseeing. Then he went up the Seine still further and crossed the country by rail to the Rhone. Down this river he had an easy time of it until he came within a few miles of its mouth. The light from the steamer Ganigou misled him and his little craft ran against the steamer with such force that it was disabled and went to the bottom. The crew of the steamer saved his life and he says he is bound to complete his trip. Mr. Lantz intends to go through the Mediterranean sea, the Egean sea, the Black sea and the Caspian sea, and to sail up the Volga and return to Sweden by way of St. Petersburg. He pays his way by writing correspondence for the Seglaren.

As was mentioned previously in these columns the well known chemist, Otto Wallach of Gottingen, Germany, was awarded the annual Nobel prize in chemistry. The decision to honor Wallach with this important prize came only after a long and tedious discussion on the part of the Nobel jury, selected from the Academy of Sciences and Arts, and it is significant that his competitors for the honor was Martin, the inventor of Martin steel, and Professor Frank, who is also considered one of the world's progressive chemists. Professor Wallach was born March 27, 1847, in Koningsberg, and he received his scientific training at Gottingen and Berlin.

A beautiful portrait painting of Mrs. Taft has been completed and hung in the White House. The portrait was painted by the Swedish artist, Bror Kronstrand, who at present resides in London. It is considered one of the best portrait paintings in Washington. Bror Kronstrand was born in Malestad in 1875 and graduated from the Arts academy in Stockholm when he was only twenty years old. After spending about three years in Paris and Dresden he located in Newlyn, on the southwestern coast of England, where he spent about two years, barely eking out an existence. He later moved to London, where he made portrait paintings of a number of celebrities, among others being Lord Kelvin, Sir William Ramsey and Princess Victoria Louise.

Ludwig Sjostrom, a prominent Swedish-American manufacturer, died at his home in Miami, Fla., Nov. 18. The deceased was born in Kristianstad, Sweden, March 18, 1831, and was a graduate of Lund university in 1850. He continued his studies at the Stockholm Technical Institute, from which institution he graduated in 1853. For a number of years he conducted his father's clothing manufacturing concern in Kristianstad and continued in the same business in Hjo until 1867, when he emigrated to America.

The great St. Erik's palace, which was erected a number of years ago in Stockholm at a cost of 1,400,000 crowns, is not even paying interest on the money invested and will soon be sold at public auction. This building a few years ago used to net the stockholders rents amounting to 100,000 crowns annually. It takes at least 20,000 crowns to heat and light the building and because it was getting old fashioned a number of the office tenants have moved out of the building.

Frederick Weyerhaeuser, the lumber baron of the Northwest, has donated $150,000 to Augustana college at Rock Island, Ill., for the erection of a conservatory of music. Work on the new building will commence in the early spring and its erection and equipment will be under the sole direction of Mr. Weyerhaeuser. There are thousands of Swedish-American Lutherans in this country who are rejoicing because of this generous gift on the part of Mr. Weyerhaeuser.

Word comes from Stockholm that Professor Einar Lonnberg, for a number of years connected with the Stockholm Zoological museum started Dec. 1 for an exploration trip in British East Africa. He goes chiefly in quest of zoological specimens and will be accompanied by Ake Sjogren and Konservator Jansson of the Royal museum. They will land at Nairobi and from thence will proceed into the interior of the country.

NORWAY.

An international conference was held in Christiania the other day with a view of securing better transcontinental traffic facilities. Sweden was represented by General Director Pegelow. The result was that an inter-Scandinavian committee was appointed, whose duty it will be to submit an expedient proposition before the state railways of the three countries, viz., Sweden, Norway and Denmark, purporting ultimately to secure better transcontinental service. As matters stand now there is a great deal of protest and the important international trade, which includes all live commodities, is suffering a decided setback.

It is interesting sometimes to notice what peculiar, rather what misleading, views they will take of all things American in Norway. The following item is only another illustration: "Peace and War" is the name of an illustrated weekly which contained a remarkable editorial on the American elections. The most prominent feature of the opus is that it turns nearly everything upside down. No wonder the Norwegian-American newspapers "go" for this kind of journalism. The Norwegian-Americans have started to raise a memorial fund of $1,000,000 to be given to the state of Norway, May 17, 1914. One paper proposes that part of this money be used for educating those who write newspapers in the old country, in order that they may keep themselves somewhere in the neighborhood of the simple truth when they tackle America, Americans, or things American.

A cook at one of the leading restaurants in Christiania found this very significant piece of news in the stomach of a mackerel which she was cleaning and preparing to cook for one of the leading mackerel exporters of the country: "During the past year there have been exported from Norway 972 barrels of salted mackerel," etc. Inasmuch as this bit of information was found in a mackerel and served to a leading mackerel exporter the "find" may be regarded as a rather significant one.

Harald Olsen, a well known Christiania architect, died at his home in that city a few days ago, aged sixty years. He was considered the leading architect in the city and had erected many of the largest buildings, particularly those of more modern date. He was president of the Christiania Art society and was a man of great influence in social and financial circles throughout the city.

Two sailors from Antwerp were arrested in Copenhagen the other day for inducing two fifteen-year-old Norwegian girls to follow them aboard a steamer that was bound for the Danish capital. The two sailors will stand trial in Christiania next month.

DENMARK.

The statistical bureau has just completed an interesting report of the amount of charity work that was done by private organizations in Denmark during the year of 1908. That year was selected because it was a banner year for charity work. In Copenhagen the amount given to poor people by private organizations was not less than $725,000 and from other cities in the country the amount exceeded $300,000. In Copenhagen the work has been in charge of sixty-two organizations and the beneficiaries were mainly children and young people who are in poor circumstances.

There is a band of burglars operating in Copenhagen and throughout the countryside immediately adjoining the city and in spite of the most determined efforts on the part of the police they are unable to effect any arrests. This same gang of burglars has been breaking into every jewelry store of any consequence in the city and they have made a specialty of robbing jewelry stores in all the suburban towns. They have been operating on a systematic basis for more than a month and detectives and police officials and their assistants have not been able to cause any arrests.

P. Jorgensen and wife were found lying prostrate in their beds at their home in Nystad. Jorgensen had received a blow from an axe on the head and his wife's head was brutally crushed. It is a plain case of murder and the perpetrators of the terrible crime had taken everything of value in the house in which the unfortunate people resided. The murdered people were respectively eighty-four and seventy-six years old. Not a single clue has been discovered as to the whereabouts of the brutal criminals.

The unexpected and seemingly impossible always happens. Dr. Fischer of Copenhagen, who is a specialist in Roentgen treatments, is seriously ill and not expected to live from a disease which Copenhagen doctors claim that he received from handling the Roentgen rays. In other words, while he was endeavoring to cure other people by means of administering the Roentgen rays he contracted a disease which is now threatening to claim his life.

Robert Svendsen and his sweetheart, Miss Martha Bahr, attempted to give an exhibition in an aeroplane which the young swain claimed to have invented, but made a signal failure. The aeroplane rose to the height of about fifteen meters and then made a sudden drop, but fortunately neither one of the daring pair were killed, although they sustained injuries which may prove to be of a serious nature.

The Swedish church in Copenhagen is approaching completion. It is modern in every respect and from an architectural viewpoint is one of the finest churches in Copenhagen. There are plenty of Swedish people in the Danish city and there will undoubtedly be a large congregation there in the near future.

MONEY IN QUACK GRASS LANDS.

About the last section of the country which one would think might be boomed by the real estate agent would seem to be a locality in which quack grass had gained a foothold, and yet the experience of one Minnesota farmer, whose case was related to us directly the other day, would seem to indicate that here was an opening for some energetic as well as patriotic real estate agent. The man in question lives in the vicinity of New Richland, Minn., a section which has been afflicted with quack, more or less—quite likely more—severely for the past fifteen or eighteen years. He cleared one eighty of the pest several years ago, and by dint of much vigilance has succeeded in keeping it clean. A year ago last August he bought another eighty adjoining the home place, which had been given over to quack grass for the preceding ten years. He paid $2,060 for it, or $25.75 per acre. Although it was late in the season before he could get at it, he plowed forty acres of it early in October, raked it with a special quack rake and burned the roots. Next he went over the piece with a quack root digger, gathering and burning all the roots which it was possible to reach. The next spring he planted corn on about twelve acres, oats on a third and wheat on the remainder. This fall he husked 300 bushels of fine corn from this twelve acres, and we know he did because we got the figures straight and have a sample of the corn before us. It is better corn than that raised on land which has been free from quack for years. He will tackle the other forty acres infested with the grass next season, and he figures that when he has given it the same treatment as he has the first forty he will not care to sell the eighty for less than $5,000, and if it is free from the pest it ought to be worth this price. It goes without saying that a fellow with flabby muscles, short in red blood or lacking in courage will hardly want to tackle the redemption of this quack grass land, yet we believe there is a first class opportunity for the fellow who is made of the right stuff to get a good farm land at a low price. If he redeemed the land he will not only have added to his bank account, but served his neighborhood and country in a praiseworthy way.

SHOULD NOT BE STAMPEDED.

Straightway following election the big packers have announced that there is going to be a gradual decline in live stock prices. Since the wish in this case is father to the suggestion, because it will enable them to buy heavily on a declining market and thus enlarge their profits—and they seem abundantly able to carry out their wishes—it is fair to assume that the decline in prices will follow. Yet the less the feeders of the country are stampeded by the announcement and the less they yield to a very natural impulse to rush their stuff to a demoralized market the more money they will save in the end and the less will the packers profit by the coup which they have sprung. There can be a decline of $1.50 per hundredweight from present prices ($8 to $7) and yet be left a very satisfactory profit in feeding corn worth 35 to 40 cents per bushel. The man who is so fixed that he can do so would far better hold his hogs and steers, especially if they are unfinished, and sell them a few weeks later, when there is reason to believe that the market will have steadied from the present flurry. There are just as many hungry mouths to feed now as before election, and there is every reason to believe that the legitimate demands for meat products will be just as strong as they have been during the past two years.

THE VALUE OF OILMEAL.

While it is high priced as compared with other cereal feeds, oilmeal is the most valuable of the whole list as a means of furnishing stock with protein in condensed form. The best grades contain 30 per cent or slightly better of digestible protein, and it is because of this fact that it is worth the high price asked for it. Of the two brands or kinds of meal—old and new process—the former is cheaper at the same price because 94 per cent of the protein content is digestible, while in new process meal but 84 per cent is digestible. Mature fattening cattle may be given from two to two and a half pounds per day, while with growing young stock and pigs it may constitute one-tenth by weight of the grain ration. Dairy cows will handle from one to two pounds daily, depending upon their milk flow. It is the opinion of animal husbandry experts that there is no other feed which has so beneficial an effect on the animal's eating it as does oilmeal. Fed in proper balance with other grains, it is the most economical ration which can be fed.

The Magpie Ceiling.

One of the apartments in the ancient royal palace at Cintra, Portugal, is known as the Hall of Magpies. Painted in the arabesque ceiling is to be found a swarm of magpies. Each has in the mouth a scroll, on which, painted in red on a white ground, are the words, "Por bem." The story runs that King John of Portugal was making love to one of the maids of honor in this chamber and was surprised by the queen. His majesty made the best of the circumstances and explained to the queen, "E por bem minka sacre" ("Oh, it is nothing at all. It is quite right. There is no harm in it"). As to whether the queen was satisfied the legend is silent, but the ladies of the court were deeply interested and were constantly saying to one another with a smile, "Por bem! Por bem!" The king thought it time to act, so he commissioned an artist to paint on the ceiling as many magpies as there were talkative ladies about the court, each holding in the beak the ribbon with the words, "Por bem."—London Globe.

Fate of Portugal's Homer.

"The Lusiad" is one of the noblest records ever written of national glory and success. Camoens, its gifted author, determined to do for Portugal what Homer had done for Greece. The great poem was written in the sixteenth century, which has been called the heroic age of Portugal, and its main feature is the rounding of the Cape of Good Hope by Vasco da Gama, while a most interesting episode is the crowning after death of Inez de Castro as queen of Portugal. "The Lusiad" took its name from Lusius, who was said to have founded Lisbon. Its author was born about 1520, and his career, which began brilliantly, was blighted by the death of a broken heart of the lady of his love, for whose sake he was banished from the land. He wrote "The Lusiad" in his banishment and was recalled in 1571, losing on the way all his property except his poem. Pensioned at first by the king, this great epic poet of Portugal died in great poverty in 1570, when his patron was also dead.

Down In a Coal Mine.

To the ear accustomed to the constant sound of a living world the stillness of a coal mine, where the miles of crosscuts and entries and the unyielding walls swallow up all sounds and echo is a silence that is complete, but as one becomes accustomed to the silence through long hours of solitary work sounds become audible that would escape an ear less trained. The trickling murmur of the gas, the spattering fall of a lump of coal loosened by some mysterious force from a cranny in the wall, the sudden knocking and breaking of a stratum far up in the rock above or the scurry of a rat off somewhere in the darkness strike on the ear loud and startling. The eye, too, becomes trained to penetrate the darkness, but the darkness is so complete that there is a limit—the limit of the rays cast by the pit lamp.—Joseph Husband in Atlantic.

Portuguese and Codfish.

It is an interesting fact that the fishermen of northern Portugal started and developed the fishing industry on the "banks" off the northern coast of America, and, though they now send fewer ships, their taste for salt cod from Newfoundland is unabated—in fact, it is a national Portuguese dainty. It is found in every little grocery shop, hard and brown as a board. A number of Portuguese have made their home on the islands to the south of the mainland of Massachusetts, and there the dark eyes of the Iberian maiden, raven locks and a certain picturesque element in dress are not infrequent. This connection with Portugal dates back many years, the ships of Marthas Vineyard bridging the distance over sea and returning with Portuguese crews.—Exchange.

Adam and Eve.

"I hope this expulsion of ours is not going to injure our social position," said Eve ruefully.

"I guess not," replied Adam. "They can't stop us from being one of the very first families, whatever they do."

"I don't find our names here in the 'Social Register,'" said Eve, looking the volume over.

"Look under 'Dilatory Domiciles,' my love," said Adam as he went out and named the jackass after himself.—Harper's Weekly.

A Pithy Sermon.

Here is the pithiest sermon ever preached: "Our ingress into life is naked and bare, our progress through life is trouble and care, our egress out of it we know not where; but, doing well here, we shall do well there. I could not tell more by preaching a year."

"Not exactly. He gave a million away and threw her in."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Rajahs of Bustar.

The rajahs of Bustar are hybrid rajputs, claiming to be of the family of the moon, and have reigned in Bustar for between five and six hundred years. The family bears the name of Rathputty, and every year the rajah has to sit on the rath at the festival of the Dusseerah wearing the jewels of the goddess Dunteshwarre, the tutelary goddess of the state, which are brought from Dantawara temple for the purpose.

"Save for the jewels he is clad only in wreaths of flowers," says a writer in the Wide World, "and when we saw him he looked very solemn—almost ashamed of himself—as he passed us.

"In connection with this ceremony there used to be a brutal custom of dragging the rath, a huge sort of juggernaut car weighing many tons, over the bodies of live buffaloes, often only partly killing them.

"This horrible practice was stopped by British officials."

Indispensable.

Three camels presented themselves at the dock where the ark was tied up, whereas but two animals of a kind had been called for.

"One of you fellows will have to step aside!" shouted Noah very peremptorily.

But the three ships of the desert smiled knowingly.

"I," said the first of them, "am the camel which shall pass through the eye of a needle sooner than a rich man shall enter the kingdom of heaven."

"I," said the second, "am the camel which so many people swallow while straining at a gnat."

"And I," said the third and last, "am the camel whose back was broken by the last straw."

Whereupon Noah, perceiving that posterity could ill spare any of these and would be lost for illustrations without them, graciously made an exception in their favor.—Puck.

A Famous Vine.

In the Cumberland Lodge portion of the royal gardens at Windsor there is a vine, known all over England as the Cumberland Lodge vine, which is a shoot of a still older vine which grows at Hampton Court, but the shoot has far outdistanced its parent in dimensions and productiveness. In England grapes are generally grown under glass, and the Cumberland Lodge vine has a great glass structure, 120 feet long by 20 wide, all to itself. Growing with astonishing luxuriance, the vine spreads itself over a roof area of 2,400 square feet and bears annually a crop of approximately a thousand huge bunches of the finest flavored grapes. These grapes are frequently found on the royal table, and the subject who is presented with a basket of them considers himself highly favored. The shoot from which the great vine has grown was planted in 1775.

Cliff of Natural Glass.

A cliff of natural glass can be seen in Yellowstone park. It is half a mile long and from 150 to 200 feet high, the material of which it consists being as good glass as that artificially manufactured. The dense glass which forms the base is from seventy-five to a hundred feet thick, while the upper portion, having suffered and survived many ages of wind and rain, has naturally worn much thinner. Of course the color of the cliff is not that of natural glass—transparent and white—but is mostly black and in some places mottled and streaked with brownish red and shades of olive green and brown.

Exclusive.

At an evangelistic service at Glasgow the preacher at the end of his address cried, "Now, all you good people who mean to go to heaven with me, stand up!" With a surge of enthusiasm the audience sprang to its feet, all but an old Scotchman in the front row, who sat still. The horrified evangelist wrung his hands and, addressing him, said, "My good man, my good man, don't you want to go to heaven?"

Clear and deliberate came the answer, "Aye, Awm gaugin, but no wi' a pairsonally conducted pairty!"—St. James Gazette.

Kindly Fruits.

The expression in the prayer book "Kindly fruits of the earth" has for most persons no definite meaning on account of the difference in significance now attached to the word kindly from that used when the expression was first written. The word kindly in that connection meant as nearly as possible "of its kind," and the expression "kindly fruits of the earth" meant "the fruits of the earth each after its kind."

Why Waste His Breath?

Fairly Warned.

He—My dear, I can't afford to buy you that hat. She—Still, you'd save money if you did. He—How so? She—Because I'll just be ill if I don't have it, and you know what doctors' bills are.

Hit Both Ways.

"It ain't no fun bein' a kid," observed a boy bitterly. "You always hafter go to bed when you ain't sleepy an' git up when you are."—Toledo Blade.

It is worth a thousand pounds a year to have the habit of looking at the bright side of things.—Johnson.

The Filial Chinaman.

Many examples of Chinese filial piety strike the occidental reader as ridiculous. There is the famous story of Lao Laitsu, which Mr. R. F. Johnston repeats in his "Lion and Dragon In Northern China." Lao's parents lived to such extreme old age that he was himself a toothless old man while they were both still alive. "Conceiving it his duty to divert their attention from their weight of years and approaching end, he dressed himself up in the clothes of a child and played about in his parents' presence with the object of making them think they were still a young married couple contemplating the innocent gambols of their infant son."

A similar case is that of Wang P'ou, whose mother had an unconquerable dread of thunder and lightning. When she died she was buried in a mountain forest, and thereafter, when a violent thunderstorm occurred, Wang P'ou, heedless of the wind and rain, would hurry to her grave and throw himself to his knees. "I am here to protect you, dear mother," he would say. "Do not be afraid."

Making a Gunstock.

A party of men were out hunting, and an old woodsman who was with them broke his gunstock in some way or other. It was just about nightfall when the accident occurred, and inasmuch as he was very anxious to do some shooting early the next morning he decided to fix up his shooting iron. Finding a walnut fence rail, he set to work. His only tools were an ax and a big pocket knife. All night long he labored vigorously at his task, and by morning the gunstock was finished and back in place and worked like a charm.

"How did you do it?" asked one of the number, greatly surprised.

"Very easy," was this old hunter's reply. "No trouble at all. Just get a piece of wood about the size and kind that you want and then whittle away all that you want whittled away. When you have all the wood cut off that you don't want you have a gunstock."—Kansas City Journal.

The Measure.

The ancient judge sat before the scales of worth.

"Bring forth the royal treasure!" he cried, and the hurrying slaves poured into the huge pan sacks of golden metal, caskets of sparkling gems until it seemed as if all of the wealth of earth were there. Yet the balance never stirred.

"Let the learning of the ages be added," came the order, and tons upon tons of the wisdom of sages, philosophers, scientists and poets was heaped upon the pile. And still the great arm of the scales remained high in air.

"Add now the men of power and high position," said the judge, "and the scale will fall." But all in vain.

"But what is on the other side that outweighs all these?" asked one.

"It is character," said the judge.—Portal.

A Good Sleeper.

Talleyrand used to tell an extraordinary story of the impassiveness of Louis XVIII. When he was minister of foreign affairs a courier came to him one evening bearing unpleasant news, and he therefore postponed the communication of it to the king till next morning, when he explained that he was afraid the tidings might have disturbed his majesty's sleep. The king replied: "Nothing disturbs my sleep, as you may see from this instance. The most dreadful blow of my life was my brother's death. The courier who brought this dreadful news arrived at 8 o'clock in the evening. For many hours I was quite overcome, but at midnight I went to bed and slept my usual eight hours." The story is told by the Duchesse de Dino, Talleyrand's niece, in her memoirs.

Sons of Butchers.

Three of the stained glass windows in the hall of the Butcher Guild, London, contain the portraits of Cardinal Wolsey, William Shakespeare and Daniel Defoe in recognition of their connection with the meat trade.

The cardinal was the son of a "respectable" butcher at Ipswich, in Suffolk, and "the immortal bard" assisted while a youngster a butcher in his native town of Stratford-on-Avon.

Defoe, nowadays known as the author of "Robinson Crusoe," but in his day an adventurer and secret agent of his government, was the son of a butcher in Fore street and a member of the guild.—National Provisioner.

Time, but No Money.

Street Missionary—My good friend, why idle away the precious hours in this fashion? Don't you know that time is money?

Loafer—Don't you believe it, guv'ner. If that was so I should be a bloomin' millionhair, I should. I've been doing time on and orf ever since I was a nipper.—London Mail.

The Mean Thing.

"Phyllis is the meanest kind of a gossip."

"What makes you think so?"

"Because she never tells you anything herself, but gets you to tell her all you know."

A Poor Plan.

The trouble with some men who reach the top is that they go right on over and down the other side.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Parting Shot.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Kenneth Clark, state treasurer of the National Red Cross society, reports that contributions now totaling $88,054 had been raised for the relief of the forest fire sufferers in Northern Minnesota. Of this amount about $25,000 has been expended. Mr. Clark said there was little hope of getting any more subscriptions and that if the money raised was not sufficient the legislature would be asked to make an appropriation.

Minnesota corporations paid into the United States treasury in the fiscal year 1910, ended June 30, the sum of $1,140,339.90, according to figures from the annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue. This money was turned over to the government under the terms of the new corporation tax law. Corporations in Minnesota to the number of 6,559 were made subject to taxation.

Minnesota again carried off highest honors at the International Live Stock show at Chicago. Ringmaster, the two-year-old bull raised by Smith and White of St. Cloud, won the grand championship. The same bull won the grand championship at the Minnesota state fair, at the North Dakota state fair and at the Winnipeg fair last summer.

Mrs. Perry Starkweather, assistant state commissioner of labor, will have a bill introduced into the next legislature providing for the appointment of women police officers to patrol the depots of the big cities, watch for homeless and friendless girls and see that they are guided to paths of safety.

John Zignego of Minneapolis, organ grinder, who died Nov. 19, left an estate of $30,000, accumulated touring the continent with a monkey and organ. Zignego left a portion of his fortune to charity and divided the balance among relatives.

During the December term of the Ramsey county district court a total of eighty-eight divorce cases are set for trial, which is seventeen more than were to be tried during the November term.

That 116 St. Paul children under the age of two years died last fall as a result of diseases attributed to the use of impure milk is the assertion of Dr. J. H. Armstrong, assistant commissioner of health.

The appointment of Andrew Fritz of St. Cloud as public examiner, when the term of Anton Schaefer expires early next year, has been officially announced by Governor Eberhart.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

John C. Welch was taken into custody at Stillwater on a bench warrant issued by the district court, in pursuance of an indictment alleging that as one of the judges of an election district of the Second ward at Stillwater at the primary election he wrongfully announced to the clerks of election a canvass of votes for county attorney, county superintendent of schools and city treasurer.

While three sons of August Spitzack, living northwest of Faribault, were playing with a loaded gun it was accidentally discharged, the load taking effect in an arm of their three-year-old sister. It was necessary to amputate the arm.

Mike Vovich, a miner employed at the Buffalo-Susquehanna mine at Hibbing, had his eyes so badly injured by a blast that he will never have the use of them again. The man's right arm was also fractured by the force of the explosion.

Mrs. W. L. Rittenour, wife of a farmer residing near Wheaton, was drowned in Mustinka river. A small hole had been cut in the ice where the stock was watered and either Mrs. Rittenour fell in for wilfully committed suicide.

Inviting her five-year-old son to go with her, Mrs. G. Halverson of Granite Falls, who was released from the insane asylum at St. Peter recently, grabbed the child and pounded his head on a rock until she had fractured his skull.

Leland Whiting, twelve-year-old son of Charles Whiting of Clitherall, Otter Tail county, was drowned while skating across Lake Clitherall on his way home from school. He went into an air hole, drowning in fifteen feet of water.

Ben Forman, who, it is alleged, shot and killed Mrs. Mina Altschuler in a room at the Willard hotel at St. Paul Nov 22, has been indicted by the grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree.

William Brannon, a farmer fifty-one years old, was run down by a Milwaukee freight train near Lamoille and killed.

A rat trap that works like a charm may be rigged up by sprinkling a couple of handfuls of bran over the surface of half a pailful of water, with some sort of an approach fixed so that the rodents can get into the pail without difficulty. We have seen this tried and know that it works well.

Roughly a horse will eat as much hay per day during the year as it weighs in hundred pounds; hence a horse weighing 1,200 pounds would eat twelve times 365, or 4,380 pounds of hay. This estimate is on the supposition that a fair grain ration is fed. If this were increased or diminished a trifle less or more hay would need to be fed.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

Some one who has tried it says that scattering concentrated lye in their runways will fix the rats. The stuff gets on their feet and burns them, and they next put their feet to their mouths to lick the lye off, and this finishes them.

In the purchase of cows for the dairy herd the cow is of vastly more importance than the price paid for her. To many men a cow is a cow and one worth no more than another. Yet when you get down to hardpan one cow for dairy purposes may be worth four or five times as much on a cash revenue basis as another that outwardly seems to be as good looking and be cheap at $80 or even $100, where the other wouldn't be worth a cent more than she would fetch as butcher's stock.

The fellow who goes with hair and beard untrimmed, dirt on his neck and in his ears, belongs exactly to the same class as the woman who goes about the house in a dirty, slovenly old wrapper when one neat and clean would not cost a cent more. Both are sinners and should repent—should clean up and try to make themselves as winsome and attractive as possible. A little gumption and the same amount of soap won't remove freckles, cure a hair lip or make over ugly features, but they will go a long way toward making a pretty unlovely individual look clean and presentable.

More boys go to the bad every year because they are not made to feel that they amount to something than from any other cause. The ball is started to rolling when they are little fellows and treated as if they were all round nuisances, and it's kept up until the job is finished. Those who have a hand in this process of degeneration apparently forget that the boys (and girls) are the best asset the country has, not excepting all the blue ribbon winners at the big stock shows. Give the boys something to do and try to cultivate in them a feeling that they amount to something in the busy workaday life and many of them will be saved from failure and utter misery.

Kids that are allowed the run of all outdoors will get their hands and faces dirty, but for their own sakes and the reputation of the place they call home they ought to be cleaned up at least once a day and be given an all over warm water bath once or twice a week—twice won't hurt 'em any. We saw some forlorn little heathen the other day that but for the fact that they stood on their hind legs might have been little pigs right out of the pen or kittens from an ash barrel. When the good Lord ordained lye and grease he made soap possible and probably intended when six or eight bars can be had for a quarter that parents should use enough of it to keep their kiddies clean.

There's many a man engaged in tilling the soil who is wont to poke fun at the agricultural college professors and lead pencil farming in general, has got up at 4 a. m. to do chores and has wound up with them at bedtime and has literally grown gray headed at the farming business, who has not up to the present time learned the simplest and most important truth in agriculture—that a fellow can't keep skinning his land year after year in the raising and selling of raw grain products and not have his good acres become destitute and impoverished any more than he can lift himself by pulling on his boot straps or make water run uphill. The fact is if the lead pencil were used by more farmers in simple processes of addition and subtraction in the several lines of farm work there would be more profits on paper and in the bank at the end of the year.

The state of Wisconsin has a law which went into effect Dec. 1 of the present year which makes it unlawful to sell or otherwise transfer any bull, cow or heifer over six months old for other than breeding purposes or to export from the state or slaughter any animals unless the same shall have within a period of two years prior to such sale been tuberculin tested by some competent person approved by the state sanitary live stock board and been found free from tuberculosis. This law, which should be used as a pattern in other states, is supplemented by a state dairy law which makes unlawful the sale of milk and cream from diseased animals. In case the test applied shows animals are affected with tuberculosis the owner on their being slaughtered receives three-fourths of the appraised value, which in no case shall exceed $25, while if no lesions of tuberculosis are found on slaughtering the full appraised value of the carcass is received.

A Jersey calf of the male persuasion that hasn't sufficient merit to justify his use as a sire should be converted into veal by the time he is ten weeks old.

There are mighty few dogs that are so handsome that the owner is willing to have one of them around his back door and pay from $3 to $5 for the privilege. A number of towns we know have about extinguished the canine tribe by assessing just such a fine. It's a whole lot better than anonymous poison and works automatically.

Where it is possible to do so it is a good idea to place the semi-tropical plants such as the palm, sword fern, sprengeri and cactus as high on the plant stand as possible, this because of the fact that there is a difference of several degrees in a stove heated room between the air three feet and seven feet from the floor. One of the most beautiful and long fronded sword ferns we ever saw was given a high niche, and we do not doubt that the warmer upper air had something to do with its thriftiness.

A postmaster general—if we remember correctly it was John Wanamaker—said that the four chief reasons why a parcels post had not been adopted in this country were the American, Wells Fargo, Adams and United States Express companies, and these same reasons still persist and keep the people of the United States from having a decent parcels service when every other civilized country has the system in successful operation, and some of them more than a century. When the farmers of the country wake up and make a roar they will get what they want, but not before.

Among other means which may be employed to protect the trunks of young fruit trees from the attacks of mice and rabbits whitewash gives excellent results. A recipe for making it recommended by the Ohio experiment station is as follows: Slack one peck of fresh lime with old soapsuds, thin to the consistency of whitewash and stir in one gallon of crude carbolic acid, four pounds of sulphur and one gallon of soft soap. This wash should be applied with a brush and will not only prevent rodents from gnawing the trees, but will kill insects and promote the health of the bark.

Owing to the scarcity of hay very generally through the north central states many a townsman who in years past has fed timothy, clover or alfalfa will have to feed instead shredded corn fodder, which has been put up in extra good condition this season. For the family cow this may be nicely balanced as a milk giving ration by feeding a quart of cornmeal, two quarts of bran and a double handful of oilmeal twice a day. This is sufficient for a cow giving from twelve to fifteen quarts of milk per day. If she is giving less than this the ration should be reduced proportionately. If ensilage is available and the ear corn was not removed when it was put up the same ration will suffice, leaving out the cornmeal.

There are now and then occasions when the circumstances seem to justify one in going to law, but they are few and far between. Especially is this true in equity cases, where property or money is involved and where a settlement could by all odds be best effected by arbitration and compromise. The folly of "lawing" it out willy nilly lies in the fact that before a settlement is effected in the court the chances are that the lawyers will have the bulk of the money or proprty that the litigrants are scrapping over. Folks who persist in "lawing" in this way are easy "pickin's" for the legal fraternity and those who contribute most largely toward buying their flour and bacon and footing their coal and electric light bills.

Some experiments which have been conducted the past four years by the Ohio Agriculture college to determine what sized and shaped ears will on the average produce the most corn per acre, while not entirely conclusive, present some interesting facts. First it was found that long ears produced 3.97 bushels per acre more than shorter and deeper kerneled ears; that seed from ears with bare tips produced more corn per acre the first year than from ears that were well filled, but that in succeeding years the seed from well filled ears yielded from 1.5 to 2 bushels per acre more. It was also found during a period of five years that crease dented corn produced 2.84 bushels more per acre than rough dented seed and that seed from a well manured plot produced 2.4 bushels less per acre than seed from an adjoining plot that was not manured at all.

One of the best propositions we noticed listed for sale in a recent auction was a flock of forty pure bred Shropshires. We say best because there was nothing else on the list which put to its best possible use would do so much good to the man who bought it as these sheep. Rightly handled they will give an easier return than any other resource on the farm. For at least seven months in the year they will get their living from the weeds on the farm, which are worse than useless; will convert this into fertilizer, which every farm needs, in much larger quantities than it gets, while the lambs can be finished for market in a comparatively short time. The wool fetches a high price and will add a snug sum to the bank account. It is better to start with twenty sheep than sixty and get experience as one goes along, which if unfavorable doesn't come in as big chunks.

Many a habitually muddy road running east and west can be helped a lot if the trees to the south shading it are removed entirely or thinned enough so that the sunshine can get a chance at the highway. It is not quite so bad on north and south roads, but bad enough so that the majority of the trees might well be removed.

Following a summer and fall which have been unprecedentedly dry the present winter season offers a serious problem for the man who has considerable stock on his hands and whose water supply is none too abundant. Many a well will have to be drilled deeper and a rigid economy in the use of water for the stock be put into practice.

Timothy or other hay at from $10 to $18 per ton makes pretty high priced bedding for live stock. Better bed with straw and reduce the ration of hay, so that what is put before them will be eaten up clean. If the roughage fed consists of hay and straw, half and half, there will be no hay wasted, while there will be enough straw left in the mangers to bed with.

The average lively boy has all the native impulse and outward incentive that he needs along the line of sowing wild oats without being sort o' encouraged or at best excused by an indulgent but shortsighted parent. This wild oats business is one unique line of cereal production where the crop is always sixtyfold, lessened neither by drought, frosty nights nor hail at harvest time. The thoughtful parents will do the most in their power to reduce the sowing to the minimum.

If you are fitting a bunch of shotes for market and have never tried anything else with the corn ration add to this ration, which is too wide—does not have enough protein in proportion to the fat forming elements—some tankage or oilmeal at the rate of one part to nine or ten of corn and see the pigs jump. While both of these protein feeds come rather high, the feeding of them in the proportion mentioned will make a far more economical ration than corn alone because of the rapid gains which will be made.

Being the product of root rather than the fruit of the stem, it follows that potatoes will not mix through planting different varieties in the same hill, as one might think, without looking beneath the surface. The only way in which potato varieties may be crossed lies in fertilizing the blossom of one variety with pollen from a different variety and the next season planting the seed therefrom borne in the tomato-like pod developing from the blossom. It is in this way only that new varieties are developed. Such simple experimenting is within the reach of any gardener who is careful and will take the trouble to work it out.

While some utterances of the packers may have to be taken with a grain of allowance, there is no getting round the force and sanity of a declaration made by one of them the other day to the effect that feeders of cattle, sheep and hogs lose hundreds of thousands of dollars annually because they do not take more pains to secure good feeding animals and send them to market in prime instead of poor and ragged condition. The force of this statement ought to be as plain as the nose on a fellow's face, and yet any big stock market in the country most any day shows a variation of from $2 to $3 per hundredweight on stuff where the difference in price is due to quality and finish alone and not to class or kind.

Notwithstanding the fact that it is entirely feasible, we nevertheless have neither seen nor heard of any serious effort being made to utilize the grass and weeds that annually go to waste on tens of thousands of acres of country highways by herding over them neighborhood flocks of sheep, which could be looked after by some of the grandfathers of the community whose days of active farm work are past. Not only would the grazing of the highways in the manner suggested turn into dollars a lot of roughage that annually goes to waste, but it would greatly improve the appearance of the highways and prevent their being weed seed manufactories for the fouling of the adjoining fields. Of course the carrying of such a co-operative plan into effect presupposes that the folks in the community are on good terms, which is one of the essentials of good farming.

Quite a good deal has been appearing of late in the culinary columns of the daily papers about churnless butter. As near as we can make it out, the cream is put in a brown calico (English for cotton and maybe white would do just as well as brown) bag and put in a hole in the ground for about twenty-four hours, at the end of which time it will or ought to be converted to butter. The philosophy of the business seems to lie in the buttermilk seeping out of the sack, while it is said that contact with the earth "brings" the butter and adds a delicious flavor. It is maybe a confession of ignorance, but we would think that when the good housewife had dug the hole in the ground and filled it up and washed that cotton bag she would have expended about as much energy as in putting the cream in a basin or crock and giving it a few stirs with a spoon.

In the Matter of the Estate of Hans Langseth Deceased.

On reading and filing the Petition of T. P. Hamre the Representative of said Estate setting forth that since the filing of the inventory of said Estate, he has discovered that said decedent was the owner of an undivided one-half interest in Lots 7, 8, 9 and 10 of Block 23 of Knox's addition to Red Lake Rapids now a part of the city of Thief River Falls in said County of Red Lake, and that since the appointment of said representative the said estate has become vested with the fee title to an undivided one-third of other real estate described in said petition, that no part of said real estate is included in the Homestead of said decedent; and alleging that said property has not sufficient earning capacity to pay a reasonable rate of interest on the money invested therein; that there are now unpaid claims against said estate past due and no funds on hand to pay the same; and that it is for the best interest of said estate that said property be sold and converted into cash, which will enable said petitioner to sooner close up the affairs of said estate, and setting forth the names of all persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell said real estate.

And it appearing by the said petition that it would be for the best interests of said estate and the persons interested therein to sell said real estate and apply the proceeds thereof to the payment of the debts of said estate.

It is Therefore ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Tuesday the 20th day of December, 1910 at 3 o'clock P. CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

Peace and Plenty Marks the Closing of Another Year.

Santa More Liberal Than Ever With His Remembrances This Yuletide.

Just one more week and another chapter will be added to the world's eventful history. The holidays just passed is an illustration of what the harvest of the past year has brought to the masses and how a kind and considerate people bestow as tokens of remembrance to their fellow men their appreciation and thankfulness for the best gifts of mankind—peace and plenty.

The volume of business the last few weeks is evidence of a profitable year. The Christmas trade this year has been better than the average, and the heavy and select stocks of merchandise, confections, etc., put in by the local dealers in anticipation of the heavy Xmas shopping were heavily taxed.

The various churches in this city and thruout the country held the customary services in honor of this great sacred holiday, and again as usual the inevitable Christmas tree furnished a large part of the programme. The never faltering Santa Claus with his spirited reindeer made his customary trip and left presents innumerable and good cheer in his tracks.

The trains to and from this city have for some time been filled to over flowing with a happy throng, who were bound for their respective homes or other places to spend their holidays.

The postoffice force likewise has for some time been working over time in caring for the enormous amount of mail the Xmas holidays bring forth.

C. L. O. F. Elect Officers.

The Catholic Ladies' Order of Forresters elected the following officers at the last regular meeting:

C. H.—Mrs. Robt. McGinn.
B. C. H.—Mrs. N. W. Tarrant.
R. S.—Miss Flynn.
S. S.—Nellie McGinn.
P.—Mrs. Wm. McGinty.
O. S.—Mrs. Soards.
I. S.—Miss Weibeau.

Mrs. N. W. Tarrant was elected as a delegate to the tri-annual convention to be held at Chicago.

CHANGE IN SCHEDULE

Soo Line Makes Changes in Schedule On Wheat-Line.

Train Leaves Thief River Falls at 8:15 in the Morning.

The Soo line has made a change in the running time of its trains on the Wheat-line, which took effect Monday, the 26th. Under the new schedule the passenger leaves Thief River Falls at 8:15 in the morning, reaching Kenmare at 8:15 in the evening. Connections will be made with the Great Northern at Ardock, and in making the change the Soo has assurances that the Great Northern will leave its present schedule on the Neche train intact.

The new order of things will cause the train to arrive later at all the towns along the line, and some towns further west will have but a short time between trains. No change will be made in the running time of the east-bound trains.

The Soo line has always been very accomodating to the people on its lines, and the traveling public generally, and this change is sure to be appreciated.

Must Police Their Trains.

Fergus Falls Journal: The supreme court of Minnesota has decided that railway company is responsible for what happens while the passenger is on the train. A priest was riding in an electric car and a drunken man in the car used abusive language and finally assaulted the priest. Through Miss Evans, a woman attorney, he sued the company and got a judgment for $500, which was cut to $200, and the supreme court affirms this holding that it is the duty of the road to police its trains. The priest appealed to the conductor but the conductor replied that the man was drunk and seemed to take the view that he therefore had the right to continue the abuse. This decision is important in laying down a new rule for the safety of passengers on a train.

The man, who "makes a business of farming" should have a business card; some printed letter-heads, with the name of his farm home thereon; and should pay his bills with checks on his bank. All these little things not only "make business", but help to dignify his calling, improve his social standing and enhance his credit.

SUPREME COURT ISSUES WRIT OF PROHIBITION

Judges of the District Court Must Not Hear Case of Contestant

The Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota has issued a writ of prohibition directed to the Judges of the District Court enjoining them from hearing the case of Ed L. Healy against Pennington County.

When the Red Lake Falls Gang planned to have all their own way in the county division contest they counted their eggs before they were hatched and now the Supreme Court of this State has stepped in and issued a writ of prohibition against the Judges of the District Court to the effect that they shall not proceed further with this contest on the ground that they have no jurisdiction.

Come on boys, your move next.

The Red Lake Falls gang seems to want trouble over this County division matter and while Pennington county would like to be left alone and devote its energy to other matters; we will give these people all the fight they want if we have to. We suppose it is hard for the professional tax collectors in Red Lake Falls to let loose of the goose that has afforded graft for so many years past.

FLYER JUMPS THE TRACK

North Bound Soo Express Jumps The Track In Canada.

No One Is Reported Injured As A Result of The Accident.

The north-bound Soo line express from St. Paul was wrecked between Detroit and Cary, stations in Canada, last Saturday. The engine and tender jumped the track.

As far as can be learned no one sustained any injuries as a result.

Danger To Minnesota Orchards.

In many places in our state the ground is exceedingly dry, and digging to the depth of two or three feet does not apparently disclose any moisture. Under such circumstances there is great danger of winter killing, and especially root killing, in Minnesota orchards. Where the orchard has been well cultivated during the summer, especially so as soon as possible after every rainfall, the ground would be in somewhat better condition, but I apprehend that as a rule such cultivation has not been given. The use of tiling in the orchard would also be conductive to an even distribution of moisture, carrying off the surplus in rainy seasons and answering an equally useful purpose in preventing extreme dryness in dry seasons. Few orchards, however, are tile drained. Under these circumstances to reduce the danger to a minimum at this time probably the only thing that can be done is to mulch the ground around the trees. A mulch of straw or straw manure, marsh hay, bagasse, or some similar material, put on several inches thick, and not less than six to eight feet wide all around the tree, would be a valuable assistance in this emergency. Apple trees that are not already well mulched should receive the necessary attention at least to this extent immediately. It would be better still if the ground about the trees could be soaked with water, but frozen as the ground is to a considerable depth that is now practically impossible.

Do not neglect this absolutely necessary precaution this exceedingly dry season. Dryness of the air and dryness of the ground are apparently the two principal dangers to Minnesota apple growing. They can be overcome to large extent by attending to watering the ground about the trees thoroughly in dry falls and then mulching as noted above. Of course a heavy fall of snow that remained on would answer an equal purpose, and yet it cannot be depended upon.

On account of danger from mice, do not put the mulch close up against the trunk of the tree, and it would also be well to wrap the lower part of the trunk at least with burlap, stiff paper, wood veneer or something of the sort as further protection.

For lists of fruits adapted to Minnesota and other information valuable to fruit planters address A. W. Latham, Sec'y., Minnesota State Horticultural Society, 207 Lasota Blk., Minneapolis. Every one interested in any branch of horticulture, especially fruit growing in the Northwest, should become a member of this society.

Had a Pipe Dream.

It was kind of a mean trick to get that train load of professional voters down from Bemidji to vote for Pennington county, and then not pay their fare back. There was quite a number of the poor fellows passed through Plummer "beating" their way back to the tall timber. —Sunbeam—Red Lake Co.

Bro. Hunt is not to be taken seriously these days. County division has unsettled his mental balance until he is ready to accuse himself of knavery.—Bemidji Sentinel

PLAN IS FAVORED

The Commission Plan Met With Approval In This City.

Matter May Be Taken Hold of And Pushed In a Short Time.

In former issues we advocated a commission form of government for the city and are gratified to know that the proposed change has met with the approval of good citizens of all classes.

Next week will be about the right time to call a meeting and start the matter as a good full and free discussion by the people of the new system of government, which is both necessary and desirable.

Young Fools That Marry.

The editor of the Britt Tribune is evidently an old bachelor—but, whether he is or not he has summed up a whole lot of logic in the following article:

"This article is written especially for the kids of various towns who make a habit of chasing out after every little girl in town and country whose petticoats reach below their knees with the purpose of inflecting matrimony upon some poor victim. A raw boy without a dollar present or prospective, sparking a girl and talking about marrying is a spectacle for gods and men. He should be reasoned with and if he will not quit it until he is able to support a wife and to know why he loves and the difference between love and the chickenpox, he should be quaranteed or put in a convent erected for such cusses. Nine tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run loose in society pastures without any yokes on them. They marry and have children before they have moustaches, they are fathers of twins before they are proprietors of two pair of pants, and the girls they marry are old women before they are twenty.

Occasionaly one of these gosling marriages turns out alright, but it is a clever case of luck. If there was a law against young galoots sparking and marrying before they cut their eye teeth we suppose the little cusses will evade it some way, but there ought to be sentiment against it.

T. K. HOMME THE VICTIM

T. K. Homme Was the Victim of the Railroad Accident a Week Ago.

Deceased Is 30 Years of Age and a Resident Near Oklee.

The victim of the railroad accident on the new Duluth—Thief River Falls extension of the Soo, mention of which was made in the News last week was T. K. Homme, a young farmer of the town of Chester.

The accident occured about one mile east of Oklee while Mr. Homme was returning home, and in the act of crossing the track in a sleigh. His neck was broken and was otherwise badly mutilated. Death is thot to have been almost instantaneous. The sleigh was demolished but the horses escaped injury.
